A Rollicking Roaring Success.
A Rollicking Roaring Success.
MR. AND MRS. CHALMERS MACKEY'S CO. in the New Romantic Irish Musical Legendary Play,
"ROLLICKING RORY."
"ROLLICKING RORY."
The Wigan Press says:
A play crammed full of music and mirth. Mr. Mackey is to be congratulated on a personal triumph.
The St. Helens Press says:
Singing delightful.
There could be no question about the heartiness of the reception. . . . While a story is told which is full of the deepest interest, there is a merry ring about the play which should make it particularly attractive. . . . There is no attempt here to travesty the Irish character, as is done in many so-called Irish plays. . . . The sentiment is healthy, the fun is rollicking. . . . continuous laughter from the opening scene to the fall of the curtain. . . . There can only be words of praise for the manner in which the play is staged, the scenery and dresses being really fine.
No Vacant Dates this year.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT,
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT,
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT,
MR. HATTON WHARTON,

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT,
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
The Empire, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

From Mr. Charles Thurston,
Original Royal Show,
60, Kitts-hill, Norwich.

To The "Walturdaw" Co., Ltd.,
3, Dean-street, High Holborn, W.C.

Dear Sirs,—

After very carefully studying singing picture machines, I decided to purchase yours, and I now write to say how pleased I am with it. It is proving a great attraction everywhere I go.

It is simplicity itself to operate, and has always worked well on every occasion.

I need hardly say that I shall recommend it most highly to everyone, and you are welcome to send any of your customers down to see it working at any time.

Will you please send me a copy of each of your new subjects to see. I am delighted with all those received, and am keeping the lot.

Yours faithfully,
(Signed) CHARLES THURSTON.

IN QUEST OF HEALTH. Code Word, "HEALTH."

A man suffers from a terrible backache. Tries all sorts of means to cure himself. Pills—which have quite a bad effect. Poultices—which hurt him more. Finally, he goes to a Sanatorium, and is put through the cure, consisting of open-air baths, where it rains all the time; mud baths, and vapour baths, where he gets nearly scalded. He leaves the Sanatorium a sadder and wiser man. Immensely funny, and the poor man's sufferings will amuse all.

IMPORTANT NEW URBAN-ECLIPSE FILMS.

A Sublime and Glorious Spectacle.

Photographed by Messrs. Burton Holmes and Oscar B. Depue, to whom are reserved the American Exhibition Rights.

Natural eruption of numerous Geysers, or boiling springs, which throw to a tremendous height wonderful columns of steam in fantastic and picturesque fashion. The Minute Man, The Constant, Black Growler, Fountain, Castle, and Old Faithful Geysers in grand display. Great Falls of the Yellowstone, 350ft. drop, 70ft. wide. Herd of Buffalo—only two herds now remaining; close views of the Bison; Bears roaming in freedom; &c., &c. Geyser and Waterfall sections beautifully tinted.

No. 1908. Code, "Faithful." Length 400ft. Price £6 13s. 4d.

NOVEL COMIC AND DRAMATIC SUBJECTS:

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN.

Mr. Boffles has NOT insured under the New Act. A Rattling Comic Subject. Every man, woman, and girl in his employ meets with injury of sorts. Boffles' drawing room is converted into a casualty ward, and Boffles himself, after compensating the victims, is reduced to beggary. The domestics, after compensation, recover with remarkable celerity. A CERTAIN BIG SUCCESS. No. 2042. Code, "Liability." Length 440ft. Price £7 6s. 8d.

LOVE CONQUERS ALL.

An Intensely Affecting and Beautiful Drama, delicately handled, exquisitely set, delightfully acted, and perfectly photographed. "Love Conquers All" will fascinate every audience of whatever class. No. 3187. Code, "Pathos." Length 535ft. Price £8 18s. 4d.

THE AMATEUR SPORTSMAN.

No. 3199. Code, "Stalk." Length 435ft. Price £7 5s.

A PIECE OF LIMBURGER CHEESE.

A Roaring Comic Series, free from the least trace of vulgarity or buffoonery. A laugh in every picture. A laugh in every subsequent remembrance. Something to talk about.
No. 3197. Code, "Sniff." Length 435ft. Price £7 5s.

SQUARING THE LANDLORD.

A Studio Comedy. By an ingenious trick, and with the help of a pretty model, a high-spirited but unprincipled artist evades his obligations to his landlord.
No. 3161. Code, "Laugh." Length 150ft. Price £2 10s.

THE POACHER'S DAUGHTER.

No. 3169. Code, "Tragedy." Length 480ft. Price £8.

THE KING AND THE "DREADNOUGHT."

THE FINEST NAVAL PICTURE EVER PRODUCED. Thrilling and inspiring scenes. Splendid Portrait of His Majesty as he congratulates Sir John Fisher on the record achievement of Record Breaking in Big Gun Fire.

TRIBUNE: "A distinguished Sea Lord has declared this to be the finest naval picture ever exhibited, and he, like the 'Dreadnought' gunners, has hit the mark."

No. 2040. Code, "Record." Length 500ft. Price £8 6s. 8d.

VITAGRAPH FILMS.

FOUR PENCE per foot nett.

The "Quality" Films. Also the "Quantity" Films. More Vitagraph Films are sold than any other make in the United States.

THERE'S A REASON!

They are posed more cleverly. Developed and printed more skilfully. Acted more intelligently. And wear better than all others.

THE BOY, THE BUST and THE BATH

COPYRIGHT 1907 BY THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA.

Scene is laid in a boarding house, a millinery store occupying the first floor.—The milliner, very attractive, is besieged by offers from all the boarders, particularly an old colonel and a near-sighted parson.—The bad boy shoots at them with a putty blower during their proposals.—In the milliner's store a wax bust has been seen by the bad boy, who hits upon an idea.—Placing bust in bath tub, boy hides in doorway.—Colonel starts for bath room, opens door, and mistaking bust for the milliner, beats hasty retreat.—Boy has seen him peeping through keyhole and demands and gets "hush money."—Little later parson has like experience and also tips the boy to keep quiet.—Boy enters bath room, gets the bust and is making off when he is discovered by the two victims, who take him back and thoroughly duck him.

Exceedingly Ingenious and Extremely Comical. Code, "BUST." Length, 425ft.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for the current year, besides having all the usual valuable features which make the work so necessary for reference, has, for a special feature, a series of short articles, stories, or sketches by prominent members of the dramatic and musical profession, a well-executed portrait of each writer accompanying the text. The obituary for last year—unfortunately a heavy one—is given in a series of photograph likenesses of those departed. The full-page portrait of Mr. J. L. Toole is, indeed, worth more than the humble shilling at which the Annual is sold. The monthly calendar is, as usual, a storehouse of interesting facts connected with the stage.—Weekly Times and Echo.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERTILLERY.—Pavilion.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—Here an excellent bill is provided for the week. The Brothers Durant introduce a farcical imitation of an airship and its navigation, finishing with a clever contortionist and trapeze turn; Zanfretto and Napio play upon some wonderful instruments, and are well received; Effie White, kaleidoscope dancer, is more wonderful than ever in her dances and effects; Mlle. Ada Gatley gives a charming juggling turn, and also is exceptionally clever on the swinging wire; the Sisters Poole are charming in songs and dancing; Fred Vallance is very good as a ventriloquist, and also contributes an illusionist performance; the Prince Milner Trio are clever with hoops, wire-walking, &c.; Charles Rutland (comic) and the Pavilion Bioscope complete.

Metropole.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—Mr. Charles March's company is playing The Gamester of Metz, The Saint and the Woman, and The Priest of the Temple. Mr. Charles March, in all his parts, attains great success. He is supported by a powerful company, amongst whom we must specially mention Messrs. W. G. Dudeney, Wilson Brash, W. Jackson, John Burton, Victor Knight, and the Misses Emma Victor, Nellie Brash, and Una Lane.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—This week we have a return visit of Mr. Frank Lindo and company in Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Frank Lindo sustains the rôle of Stephen with his usual success; Lucas Lyle is a good performance in the hands of Mr. F. M. Hodgson; Captain Gerald Gambier must be complimented for his performance as the Duke of Ancaster; Dick Redmain is well depicted by Mr. George Overs; Miss Marion Wakeford gave a scholarly reading of Joan; Misses Daisy and Ray Rochefort were smart in their respective parts; and the rest of the parts were in capable hands.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Potter, Vandy, and Weiskes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—A good bill is provided here this week. Oswald Williams gives a series of startling illusions; Phern and Phern are a smart musical turn; Tom Leo is funny; Lily Black is well received; Story and Triggs are clever burlesque artists; the Three Seabournes fairly bring down the house; Lucy Coventry, expert dancer, receives applause; Ernie Mayne is quaint and clever; and the Bio. completes a good show.

ALDERSHOT.—Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin.—The autumn dramatic season has been inaugurated most auspiciously, and no better comedy than Mr. A. W. Pinero's His House in Order could be desired. Mr. Frank Fenton's fine conception of Hilary Jesson adds materially to the success; his quaint humour, quiet and clear delivery being very effective. Mr. Cyril Harcourt's is a talented portrayal of the austere Filmer Jesson; and Mr. Richard Dalton gives an admirable assumption of the hypocritical Sir Daniel; Miss Marie Polini is a charming and talented Nina; as Geraldine, Miss Henrietta Leverett is decidedly clever; Miss Joan D. Cadell's is a capable portrayal of the French governess; and as Derek Miss Maisie Richardson captivates all with her charming simplicity.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Revill.—This week a return is being paid by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in the comedy drama, The Little Breadwinner. The character of Meg is admirably interpreted by a clever, precocious little actress, Miss Marjorie Lawrence. An effective impersonation of Margaret Daventry is given by Miss Janet Warden; while other able delineations of female characters are submitted by Misses Jenny Bostock, Ewen Stewart, Kate Melville, and Lissa Young. Mr. H. B. Peppin as the Quaker thoroughly realises the old man who is imposed upon by a set of unscrupulous persons; Mr. Louis Linford does good work as Richard Lawrence, the old lord's adopted son; Mr. Alfred Maurice acts a somewhat difficult part as Joseph Prior. Messrs. Norman Hall, Wallace Carey, and others fill essential parts in the plot.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech. Mr. Robt. Peel's orchestra attracts the attention in the preliminary overture with lively music, "Norwegian Scenes," by A. Mott. Jessie Jukes commends herself as an expert comedienne and expert all-round dancer; Connie Mascot in similar business finds favour; the Yorkshire Meisters introduce some excellent and artistic vocal items in a musical sketch; Wyndham and Waters appear as high-class comedy vocalists in a funny drawing-room act, The Professor and His Pupil; the Three Panamas do some really clever tumbling and acrobatic dancing; Eva Chadwick is a sweet-voiced ballad singer; a wonderful and intelligent canine performance is given by Corbin's dogs; a good comedy turn is that introduced by Coggin and Davies; and the Sisters Belmore, in song and dance, justify their engagement. The pictures illustrate the doings of a detective.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bert Lester. — This week's diversified programme is headed by the "bounding navvies," Wild, Willie, and West, who are responsible for a comedy acrobatic display, which is well received; an interesting and novel turn is that of the Cheers (lady and gentleman), in a scena entitled Dick Whittington, which serves to introduce a number of highly-trained cats; Zenora, hand-jumper and equilibrist, is particularly smart; Alice Maud is a clever child mimic; a fine series of pictures, The Great Victoria Falls, South Africa, is presented by Mr. E. C. Clayton; Mr. Harry Luck, comedian, is a favourite with his songs; Tennis and Laune are a couple of pleasing lady vocalists; and the Danas, in their comedy duologue, On the Honeymoon, meet with hearty approval.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—The theatre is occupied by Mr. Fredk : Melville's company in The Ugliest Woman on Earth. Miss Beatrice Homer is "the woman," and she plays the part admirably; and she is well backed up by Mr. Philip Darien as Jack Merryman; Mr. Leyton Cancellor makes a fine impression as Hubert Gold; Mr. Leonard Thackeray as Antonio Luchesi enacts the rôle well; while Mr. Wm. Wallace as Raggles makes the character an outstanding one. Mr. Alf. E. Wood as Dr. Carr is exceptionally clever; Mr. Tubby Edlin as Tubby Herrick and Miss Nellie Jackson as Aggie Brown are responsible for much fun in the play. Miss Nellie Oliver in the rôle of Rose Courtney infuses the part with much charm, and acts delightfully.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denmann-Wood.—Miss Lydia Donovan's company is the attraction here this week with the domestic play, entitled Her One Great Sin. Miss Donovan in the important rôle of Grace Warhurst plays with skill and tact, and enlists the sympathies of the audience throughout. The part of Ruben Warhurst is taken with conspicuous ability by Mr. John Cecil, and an incisive portraiture of the villainous Arnold Thornhill comes from Mr. Jack Armitage; Mr. Charles E. Lambert and Miss Louie Walton submit clever character-sketches as Dan Humble and Bet Humble; Mr. Fred Hodson provides plenty of mirth as Jerry Jumble, and is ably assisted by Miss Nellie Lambert as Nancy Wimpenny. Mr. J. Croudace contributes a sound performance as Jack Humble; and Mr. J. Nella, as Mr. Benton, a solicitor, makes the most of a small part; Miss Maudie Lambert is full of life and vivacity as Gracie Warhurst; and the part of Charlie is pathetically played by Miss Phyllis Damian. Other rôles are all intelligently sustained, and the piece is well mounted.

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Messrs. H. and F. Poole's Myriorama commenced a week's engagement here on Monday; the Geo. French Troupe of acrobatic cyclists go through some startling manœuvres; Mr. Bert Gates, guide and ventriloquist; Mr. Harry Dowsett, eccentric comedian; Learto and his dog "Babs," in an original comedy musical act; Miss Lilian Neville, operatic and ballad vocalist; Houston, an exceedingly clever magician; the Snow Family, eccentric knockabouts and expert skaters, who create great fun; and some very fine pictures on the Bioscope complete the entertainment.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Her Majesty's Theatre. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Decima Moore's company in The Truth is here. She herself is in every way admirable as Becky Warden, and is capitally supported by a fine performance of Tom Warden by Mr Robt. Minster; the Fred Lindon of Mr. Hugh Ardale is a capital character, and Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is a capable Mrs. Crespigney; Mr. Arthur Hare is a good Stephen Roland; and Miss Maud Linden as Eve Lindon and Miss Kitty Lofting as Laura Fraser are both very pleasing.

Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Mr. Junius Booth's company in Monte Cristo is here. Mr. Junius Booth is a powerful and picturesque Count, Miss B. Doyle a clever and sympathetic Mercedes, and Mr. Augustin Bowerman as Baron Danglers and Mr. C. W. Crowe as Gen. Fernand Mondego admirably portray stage villainy. Mr. Beckett Bould is an effective M. Noirtier, Mr. Finn Doyle an acceptable Lieut. Albert de Morcerf, and Mr. Percy Braithwaite a characteristic Caderousse.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Edgar Laban.—The top of the bill here this week is a funny sketch, The Carpenter's Shop, by the Four Karnos; and another sketch, entitled London's Lazy Coalmen, by the Kronez Brothers, is very well performed. The Musical Keighs give a very pleasing musical turn; Bert Kemble is very good, and quite out of the ordinary with his topical songs; Nell Brough has a taking song, and is an excellent whistler; and Fyne and Hurley (the dude and the coster) play their parts to life; Alfonzo (foot equilibrist) exhibits some really clever footwork; and Vernon's Bioscope concludes an excellent programme with some capital pictures.

Hippodrome.—Under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—There continues to be an excellent show of pictures and variety turns here, and this house is deservedly well patronised.

BARRY DOCK. — Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. R. Horrocks.—Well-filled houses are the rule here. The Tennessee Guards receive an enthusiastic welcome; Gertrude Hallé is a charming singer; and Alf Bishop, the little lump of fun, creates roars of laughter; the Devereaux Dogs are the acme of canine intelligence; Mlle. Zetta, wire dancer, is heartily applauded for her sensational novelty, "The cake-walk on the wire"; the Sisters Volbeque are clever comediennes and dancers; Corrie and Foote are excellent in their laughable sketch, A Double Birthday; and the new comedian and singer, A. D. North, gives an admirable turn. The Electric Bioscope, with its new series of up-to-date pictures, concludes the programme.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Once again The Silver King is attracting the usual large audiences that always delight in witnessing this sterling drama. Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's present combination is fully up to their acknowledged high standard of excellence. Mr. Herbert Ford as Wilfred Denver continues to give a fine performance of this popular rôle; unstinted praise must be accorded to Miss Viola Holland for her handling of the suffering Nellie Denver; Mr. Tom Paulton still is seen as the faithful Jaikes, which he enacts with all his former dry humour, and no little pathetic effect; the Spider is undertaken upon the usual lines with success by Mr. Henderson Bland, whose associates in stage crime are capitally represented by Mr. Edmund Beresford (Corket), Mr. John Detley (Coombe), and Mr. John M. Manley (Cripps). Geoffrey Ware and Sam Baxter are well portrayed by Mr. Allen Jeayes and Mr. Arthur H. Rooke; Miss Brineta Browne is Olive Skinner; and Little Genna Lyndon is good as Cissy Denver.

Palace Theatre. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—This week the classic poses of Clito are charming large audiences, and Mr. Chas. Raymond, the producer, is to be heartily congratulated upon his artistic achievement; Harry Allister's character impersonations are admirably conceived and received with much applause; Tennyson and Wallis, the popular comedians, are once again appearing, to the delight of their numerous local friends; two other comedians who score with their respective songs are Walter Stanley and W. B. Raby; Nora Stockelle, comedienne and dancer, is a favourite; La Belle Maie, upon the silver thread, is very skilful and pleasing; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux include some excellent representations of naval manœuvres.

BEDFORD. — Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. Norman Macowan and Miss Violet Sterne and company played the first three nights of this week The Tyrany of Tears. Mr. Bernard Copping, as Mr. Parbury, revealed some fine powers of humour as well as occasional pathos; Mr. Norman Macowan was an attractive George Gunning, his love-making being somewhat uncommon and masterful; Mr. Murray Hathorn was splendid as Col. Armitage, and was repeatedly applauded. Miss Mary Masters portrayed the tearful wife with much success; and Miss Violet Sterne played, as she always does, with much dramatic power; her Hyacinth was decidedly good. Last, but not least, Mr. Robert Entwistle made the best of his part of Evans, a butler.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Leigh Lovel, Miss Octavia Kenmore, and company opened here on Monday in Ibsen's play, The Master Builder. Miss Kenmore achieved success in the rôle of Hilda Wangel, her acting being irreproachable; and Mr. Lovel in the title-rôle (Halvard Solness) took high honours, realising thoroughly every phase of the character. Mr. Claude Haviland was the Dr. Herdal to the life; and Mr. Arthur Collins Rolfe acquitted himself admirably as Knut Brovik, the architect. Miss Katherine Maynard's acting as Mrs. Solness was undoubtedly clever; and Mr. Reginald Hargreaves furnished a good impersonation of Kagnar Brovik; Miss Dora Levis, an excellent Kaia Fosli, completed the cast. For Thursday, Friday, and to-night (Saturday), A Doll's House is billed.

Palace Theatre of Varieties. — Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Bud Snyder's sensation, consisting of motor-car somersaults through the air with a human being inside, is the chief attraction, and the marvellous act arouses much enthusiasm. Miss Ada Fawn is a delightful comedienne, with good songs; and Mr. J. T. Macmillan, the droll Scotch humorist, quickly makes himself a favourite; Voldam Bros., eccentric Dutch acrobats, make a hit; and the hand-balancing act of the Picquays is certainly one of the best before the public; Walker and Lake, patter comedians, take well; and a good reception is extended to Sterling and Love in their vocal and instrumental comedy act; Miss Marie Leonard, comedienne, and the pictures complete a fine bill.

Royal Hippodrome.—Maraging-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Leipzig heads the bill here, and his sleight-of-hand feats have created much amazement; Harrigan and Holt, versatile comedians, have been most successful; and the mimicry of Miss Ruth Molloy is realistic. Mr. Sam Redfern's funny sayings have caused endless amusement; and Miss Marie Jones, assisted by Mr. Ernest Munro, appear in a capital sketch, entitled The Way To Win a Bet; Prince Kokins's feats of jugglery would be difficult to excel; and a pleasing entertainment is provided by Miss Ethel Walker, a talented society entertainer. Also here are Pete and Juno, comedians and dancers; and the attractive Hipposcope pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The leading feature here is supplied by Henry Coutts and company, who appear with every element of success in their lightning change production, a number of characters being cleverly represented by Mr. Coutts. Mr. J. A. Wilson, the droll comedian, who is assisted by his well-trained dog, Towser, is always assured of success here; and a hit has been made by Binns and Binns in their smart comedy act, which is the essence of drollery; Farley, Rennie, and Farley provide plenty of amusement with their sketch, Fun at a Railway Station; and also here are Rocco, a smart tumbler; Ted and May Hopkins, Welsh entertainers; Mark Henton, comedian, and the Bioscope.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, produce here this week Why Woman Sins. Mr. Fred Terriss is upholding his reputation by his clever acting as Lieut Maxwell, his impersonation being one that would be difficult to excel. Miss Nina Blake Adams appears to great advantage as Nell Desmond, and the heartiest congratulations are due to Miss Kathleen Magee and Mr. Cyril Grier for their remarkably effective portrayals of Ida Valette and Jim Rainbird. Mr. Edward Smythe continues his successful engagement here, assuming this week the rôle of Cecil Spencer with every degree of satisfaction; and the iniquities of Capt. H. Carlton, R.N., are powerfully depicted by Mr. Wilford Cheetham. Other rôles are satisfactorily sustained by Miss Mattie Crawford (remarkably good as Lily De Vere), Mr. Thomas H. Solly (very humorous as Sam Spavins), Mr. Elmore Frith, Miss Alice Clarke, and Mr. J. E. Davies. The Alhambra Bioscope, under the able direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett, exhibits a fine series of pictures. It should be added that Mr. Thomas H. Solly is responsible for the admirable stage management.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. William Greet's company, in The Sign of the Cross, is drawing crowded houses. Mr. Cyril Austin Lee gives a powerful and impressive rendering of Marcus Superbus, receiving admirable support from Miss Gladys Leslie, who is irreproachable in her impersonation of Mercia. Mr. C. Yorke presents a fine performance of Nero; Tigellinus is capitally sustained by Mr. Charles Aldred; and Miss Dulcie Greatwich shows great ability as Stephenaus. Remaining characters are, without exception, creditably represented, and the costumes and scenic effects are admirable.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The Six Brothers Luck, in the pantomimic sketch, The Hotel Grande, are a prominent attraction; Mr. Austin Rudd, the popular comedian, well maintains his favourable reputation here; and Miss Bertha Duckett, an accomplished male impersonator and comedienne, has a host of admirers. The San Remo Girls, smart vocalists and dancers, present an attractive turn; and Johnny Johnstone, the musical dandy; Walter Wade, mimic and raconteur; Drum and Major, comedians and patterers; and Brown's Royal Bioscope, complete an excellent company.

Olympian Gardens, Rock Ferry.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton.—An entire change of artists introduces Mr. Charles Harvey, the droll; Miss Iris Banfield, comedienne; Mr. Charles Rogers, banjoist; Mr. Fred Barnes, comedian; Mr. Billy Richardson, stump orator; and Mr. Albert Shaw, pianist. The season is a pronounced success.

The Tower, New Brighton.—Manager, Mr. William Holland.—The entertaining sketch, Monte Carlo; or, The Belle of the Riviera, is a leading feature here.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Earl and the Girl is presented by Mr. William Greet's company. Mr. William Stephens is retained for his old part of Jim Cheese, in which he is even funnier than ever; Mr. Thomas Kennard is much appreciated for his singing and acting as the real heir, Dick Wargrave; Mr. Percy E. Wright renders valuable support as the Hon. Crew Boodle (the supposed heir); Mr. H. Courtin acts in the blustering style of Bunker Bliss with much success; Miss Chrissie Ralland pleases all with her fine singing and graceful acting as Elphin Haye, the heiress; Miss Jennie Richards shows exceptionally clever low-comedy powers as Liza Shoddam; Miss Kathleen Gerard scores largely as the strong lady, Mrs. Shimmering Black; and Mr. W. Norman as Downham, Mr. Greene Taylor as Mr. Talk, Mr. R. Mansell Fane as Mr. Hazel, Miss Ethel Erskine (a clever vocalist) as Daisy Fallowfield, Miss Frances James as Virginia Bliss, and Miss Hilda Gray as Lady Rosedale are able and popular.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is here with Florodora. The invaluable services of Mr. Fred Eastman are secured for the part of Tweedlepunch, in which this favourite comedian appears to be at his very best; Mr. Edmond Russell is very acceptable in the part of Cyrus Gilfain; Mr. J. B. Fox and Mr. Harold Terry are very successful in the respective rôles of Frank Abercoed and Capt. Arthur Donegal; Mr. Charles Roadnight makes a clever study of Leandro; Miss Edith Housley does credit to the part of Lady Holyrood, and wins numerous encores for her songs; Miss Marion Armytage presents a fascinating portrayal of Angela Gilfain; Miss Masie Ellinger accounts for the part of Dolores satisfactorily, both as regards her acting and her vocalism; and Miss Bessie Nunan as the typewriter, Miss Mildred as the maid, and the Misses Maudie Brock, Dorothy Mason, Daisy Gayley, and Emmie Oxlee in their speciality dances give satisfaction.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company appear in A Sister's Sin. Mr. C. Wills shows an abundance of zeal and strength as Harold Raymond; Miss Violet Ingram as Minnie Hastings impresses the audience very favourably; Mr. Frank Baglesfield plays the part of George Oakley on well-conceived lines; Miss Kathryn Eckhart is a commanding figure as Charzel; Miss Phena Powell meets with many signs of success as Redempta; Mr. Michael Madden as Larry Murphy (with songs) enlivens the play with his flashes of Irish humour; the Misses Janet Lawton and Lillian Bales support in a clever manner as the two rivals, Floss and Nell; Mr. Ernest Frere gives an unctuous performance of the Jew, Ikey Moses; and Messrs. A. Knight and Harry Lyndon as Walter Hastings and Theophilus Hope respectively both make the best of these parts. The Misses Maggie English and Dorothy Bales appeal strongly as Jack and May respectively.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—For Her Sake, presented by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, has made a big hit here. Conspicuously meritorious is the performance of Mr. Bernard Mervyn as the implacable Gregorvitch; Miss Doris Gilham's acting as the Princess is particularly powerful and well sustained; Mr. Wellesley Draper is the embodiment of courage and devotion as the Prince; Miss Mabel Mannering acts with much feeling and emotional power as Olga; Mr. Chas. E. Johnson gives a touching and thrilling portrayal of Nicholoff; Mr. Millar Anderson contributes a clever study of General Pauloff; Mr. Albert Sinclair is well-fitted to the rôle of Lieut. Rostow; Miss Gertrude Netterville presents the American heiress, Phyllis Gray, in a happy style; Mr. Fred Beck is admirably droll as Chumley; and Mr. Sydney Benson as Patrick and Miss Mamie Randall as Amelia Jane are very popular. Mr. Fred Hilliard excels in the brief but lurid rôle of Ivan, the serf.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—A Secret Wedding, played by Mr. Stanley Carlton's company, obtains a very favourable reception here. Mr. Stanley Carlton as Herbert Hartington maintains a steady grip of the audience throughout the performance; Mr. Herbert Evelyn makes a convincing study of the cousin, Edgar; Miss Rubie Maude as Edgar's wife, Grace, gives a highly-successful portrayal; Miss Ethel Lawson succeeds as the avenging angel; Miss Jessie Elvin is admirable as Elise Marchand; Miss Maud Steeple makes a successful appeal as the waif, Jack; Mr. Bert Elvin scores as Drummond; Mr. Edgar Morgan as the poetic greengrocer, Billy Barton, convulses the audience with his comic flights, and also wins success with a clever song and dance; and Miss Nelly Freeland is very good as the maid, Polly; Mr. Fred Conway is very useful as Constable Foot.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Proof is being played by Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's company. Mr. S. Herbert Humber imbues the character of Pierre with a personality and fortitude that strikes home to everyone; Mr. Penn Hamilton submits a realistic presentment of the unspeakable Lazare; Miss Beatrice Sinclair wins much sympathy as Madeline in the prologue; Miss Thelma Kurz as Adrienne gives a very charming and sympathetic performance; Miss Alicia Raleigh as Valentine is very warmly applauded for her clever efforts; and Miss Elizabeth Dexter as Mme. Deprets, Miss Emelie Wilson as the Duchesse D'Aubeterre, Miss Ellen Morris as Julie, Mr. B. Elliott as the Duke, and Mr. G. Ridgeway-Thorne as Victor are all good. Mr. Carl Beechy as Chamberau brings out the humour of the piece with eminently successful results.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Millie Lindon's songs are admirably suited to her daintiness and manner, and she scores a very flattering success with the latest additions to her répertoire, "Mary, she kept a dairy," and "She was just a simple milliner, just a milliner"; "Curly," Tom Edward's protégé, is as precocious as ever, and his comments on things in general keep audiences in the best of spirits; Ted E. Box maintains his reputation for cleverness; and Maie Ash, assisted by Stedman's children, appears in a pretty scena, entitled "Mr Gollywog, Good-night." Turner and Jacobs introduce a novel sketch in three scenes, designated A Motor Match; Whalen and West are smart American comedy artists; the Three Sisters Sprightly are excellent dancers; the Three Prestons in their absurdity, The Liftman's Rise, create a deal of laughter; and the Clement Trio introduce a novel trapeze act.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—The chief attraction at this house is an exceedingly laughable sketch, entitled Office Hours; Martin Conway, with his inimitable walk, is also attracting a good deal of attention; Walton and Lester, the "World's Worst Wizards," never fail to amuse; the Hilgert Arkas Troupe provide the exciting element of the show with their acrobatic feats; Fred and Louie Fuller are seen at their best in a pretty song-scena; Mr. Arthur Slater, "the whistling man in white," is very clever; and Nelly Moore is a character impersonator with a future. The miniature vaudeville theatre of Mlle. Haydée is a first-class entertainment.

Gaiety.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—John F. Preston's company in Rogues of the Turf has a well-selected company of talented artists; C. Emlyn Jones and the "Daughters of Britain" have a stirring musical episode introducing national songs of the British Isles; the Marsuma Bros. earn applause with clever cycling tricks; Rose Elliott maintains her reputation as a singer of sensible songs; Kitty Malone, comedienne, is a dainty singer; and Spry and Monti cause fun by their performance. Tom E. Hughes sings a capital song, entitled "Leicester Square," and Dan Conroy, comedian, also adds some good numbers.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—John Warren, magician, presents a sketch here entitled The Magic Carpet. Clever illusory effects secure for it immediate favour. Marguerite Broadfoote sings a couple of songs, and the applause which greets her shows that her appearances in Birmingham are as welcome as ever; the Three Van Dammes prove themselves to be versatile tumblers; the Legay Quartette dance excellently; Amos Howard is responsible for a good coon turn; the Norman-Leonard Trio present a clever musical sketch; and R. H. Douglass in a clever monologue is deservedly popular.

Curzon Hall.—Mr. Waller Jeffs' New Century Pictures still continue to attract good audiences. A special feature of the entertainment is the singing of Miss Violet Leslie, who is vociferously applauded for her American picture songs.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—Eden Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Jas. Willard's company in A Woman's Pluck occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Austin Mortimer very creditably sustains the part of Dick Darrell; as Jim Daremont, "the Tiger," Mr. J. P. Dryden is worthy of mention; Mr. Matthew Boulton gives a fine portrayal of Winstone Dale; and as Sir Noel Fordyce, Mr. Arthur Temple is good. The parts of Mr. and Mrs. Pope are safely entrusted to Mr. Harry Emmerson and Miss Elsie Maitland; and equally clever are Mr. Dickey Bird and Miss Fanny James as Mr. and Mrs. Pippin. Miss Dolly Gilroy as Jessie Pope is charming; and as Grace Daremont, Miss Marion Fawcett plays well.

BLACKBURN. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith's farcical comedy, The Night of the Party, has been making its first appearance in Blackburn this week, and has been received by capital audiences. The company is a good one, including as it does Miss Mab Paul as Gipsy Vandelier, who performs exceedingly well in that part, putting much life into her impersonation; Mr. Edwin W. Wynne is very amusing as Crosby; while Mr. G. Edward Hall creates much laughter by his acting in the part of the pompous servant Flamber. Mr. Percy Compton is good as the amorous Alderman Hargen; and Mr. M. Carter Slaughter does well as Mr. Frank Frayne. Miss Jenny Lynn proves capable as Lady Hampshire. The piece is capitally staged.

New Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company are appearing here in the drama The Female Swindler. Miss Madge Girdlestone gives a very powerful representation of the character of Lu Valroy; and Mr. Stanley Radcliffe acts well as Geoffrey Warden. Mr. Joseph Millane is good as John Coulson; and the comedy parts, which are in the hands of Mr. Henry Wright and Miss Jessica Ford, are very well played.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—There is a very good variety show here. The Cumberland Troupe of trick cyclists give a clever performance; and Conway and Leland, two one-legged artists, go through some remarkable feats. Frank Maura, Mexican foot juggler, is very dexterous with his feet; and Mollie Wolstenholme, operatic vocalist, is a popular turn. Henry Sims, a light comedian; the Sisters Iris, expert dancers; and Leoni Dixon, comedienne, go to make up an excellent programme.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The annual visit of Mr. Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson, which we have to record this week, always proves to be a huge success, and although The Scarlet Pimpernel is not new to Blackpool audiences, it has been received each night with the utmost enthusiasm. As Sir Percy and Lady Blakeney respectively Mr. Terry and Miss Neilson are seen at their best; whilst Mr. Horace Hodges repeats his remarkably clever impersonation of Chauvelin. Mr. Wigney Percival is duly dignified as the Prince of Wales; and Mr. J. Carter Edwards contributes a clever sketch of Brogard.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is paying another visit here this week with The Lady Dandies, and repeating the success which has been established on previous visits. Miss Evie Greene as Lodolska sings and act in the most charming manner possible; Mr. Eric Thorne, who again plays St. Amour, is a fun-maker in the very front rank; the Lagorille of Mr. Harold Thorley is likewise a meritorious performance; and Miss Dolly Castles is a great success as Illryine.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Hetty King, the "ideal boy," has a big reception; Jack Lorimer, the Scottish comedian, is no less successful in pleasing his audience; Hall and Earle are a clever pair of acrobatic comedians; the Maples are popular as duettists and dancers; Morny Cash, the "Lancashire lad" comedian, scores with the holiday-makers; Roma and Romani are talented musicians; Jennie Hartley is a pleasing comedienne; and Dandy George contributes a clever performance with his dog. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope continues to show the best pictures.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. P. Dingnan.—The principal attraction here this week is a novel spectacle, entitled Iona, the Enchanted, which is presented by Charles Fraser and company. Other attractive turns are provided by Derenda and Green, juggling comedians; the Lancashire Harmony Boys in a clever vocal comedy act; Les Woodbines, local gymnasts; Little Don, a quaint comedian; James and Alexander, duettists and dancers; Halter and Ray, comedians; the Sisters Kilner, comedy vocalists; and Lillie le Breton, trapeze artist.

Winter Gardens Pavilion.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The success of the ballet By the Zuyder Zee is still maintained, and two performances are now given daily to crowded houses.

North Pier Pavilion.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Jas. Walker.—Messrs. Gaze and Hayes's musical company is providing the entertainment here this week.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The End Crowns All, a romantic play, presented by Miss Augusta Tulloch and a good all-round company, has proved a successful attraction here. In the heavy rôle of Prince Borinsky, Mr. Hugh Travers is prominent; Mr. Arthur Plummer in the part of Lord Lyndhurst makes a decided hit; Mr. Edward Vivian is quite equal to the part of Nicholas Boris; Mr. Harry Carter is satisfactory as Ivan; Miss Amber Wyville as Lola is very effective; and Miss Tullock as Vera Romaine gives a vigorous and carefully-studied rendering of the part. In the lighter characters, H. Danby, Nellie Fern, and Rosie Watson lend valuable aid.

The Gaiety.—Lessee, Mr. George C. Good.—The artists appearing here include Mme. Sims Reeves, soprano vocalist; Fred Lyndo, eccentric comedian; Carl Santley, vocalist; Charles Torrain and company in the musical comedietta, entitled My Fiancée, and the Bioscope with a new and varied series of pictures.

BOLTON. — Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. B. Lloyd.—Mr. H. B. Irving's first visit to Bolton, along with his own company, has been looked forward to with much interest, and on Monday evening a large and fashionable audience greeted him warmly when he appeared in The Lyons Mail. The audience were deeply impressed with his impersonation of Joseph Lesurques and Dubosc, and showed their appreciation by repeated calls; Miss Dorothy Green gave a capital portrayal of the character of Janette; and Messrs. Eric Maxon, Charles Dodsworth, Tom Reynolds, Frank Tyers, Bernard Limpus, Arthur Curtis, and Misses Eily Malyon and E. Frances Davis played their parts with excellent point and discretion. The Lyons Mail was also down for Tuesday and Thursday, with King Rene's Daughter each evening as a curtain-raiser. On Wednesday Mr. Irving appeared as Mathias in The Bells, his impersonation in every respect being admirable; Miss Gwladys Wynne shone as Annette. The Lion and the Unicorn, in which Mr. Irving appeared as King Charles II., preceded The Bells. Charles the First is in the bill for Friday. Mr. John Dennys is the acting-manager for Mr. Irving.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—The Klien Family of trick cyclists top the bill here this week, and are supported by Maud Mortimer, burlesque artist; Cavalli, ventriloquist; Brady and Johnson, comedy merchants, in their screaming absurdity, Turning the Tables; Henry Cazman, in his famous entertainment, Le Café Chantant; the Glenroy Troupe (five in number), male and female characteristic dancers, in their novel speciality, Sons of Britannia's Empire; Florence Yayman, coon caricaturist; Maud Howard and Madge Townsend, vocal duettists; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The Muncaster stock company are this week presenting the old favourite drama, The Shaughran. Mr. A. Sember makes a typical and ideal Conn, being ably partnered by Miss Effie Macintosh as Moya. Miss L. Radbourne is a capital Arte O'Neale; while Miss Nina Vaughton was a captivating Claire Ffoliot. Mr. A. B. Adams' representation of Corry Kinsela was very forcible; and Mr. H. Denton (Father Dolan), Mr. Stanley Gordon (Captain Molyneaux), and Mr. H. Allen (Robert Geisha with considerable success. Miss Joan Ritz as O Mimosa San rendered her songs artistically and acted with intelligence; Miss Florrie Saunders made an attractive and vivacious Molly Seymour; and Miss Aubrey Ashton a dignified Lady Constance. Mr. Cyril Dane gave a jovial rendering of Reginald Fairfax; Mr. Sam Lockridge sang well in the part of Dick Cunningham; and Mr. Mansell Stringer as Capt. Katana, and Mr. A. J. Nicholls as Takemine, took their parts well. Mr. Lionel Braham made a droll Marquis Imari; and Mr. Edward Carlton scored a great success by his eccentricities as Wun Hi.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—There was a large audience on Monday night last to greet Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's excellent company in Mrs. Henry de la Pasture's smart comedy, Peter's Mother, which, by arrangement with Mr. Otho Stuart, is being played here for the week. Miss Lilias Earle was very charming as the sympathetic Lady Mary Crewys, and the iron-willed, old-fashioned Sir Timothy Crewys was portrayed by Mr. Charles Harley with excellent effect; Mr. Percy Hutchison presented a well-drawn impersonation of the unemotional, egotistical Peter; Miss Mary Griffiths's Lady Belstone and Miss Annie Stalman's Miss G. Crewys were both very quaint character-sketches; as John Crewys, Q.C., Mr. Alfred Bucklaw was convincing and natural; Miss Grace Muriell's Mrs. Hewell had quite the requisite dignity. There was a distinct charm in the bearing of Miss Hilda Honiss as the society beauty, Sarah Hewell, and Mr. F. G. Thurstans as Canon Birch and Mr. Drew Mackintosh as Dr. Blundell were very good. The comedy was preceded by the smart curtain-raiser, Chalk and Cheese, in which Mesdames Annie Stalman and Hilda Honiss and Mr. Drew Mackintosh proved very diverting.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's drama, Her Road to Ruin, was on Monday night presented to a crowded audience. Mr. Robert Faulkner's acting as the high-minded curate, Frank Temple, was good; the poor journalist, Tom Wells, Mr. J. Knox Orde represented with genuine fervour; Mr. Alex Bradley was effective as the deeply-dyed conventional villain Phillip Hardy; Mr. Dane Clarke was good as the Bishop; as the confiding, ambitious, wayward Jess Willoughby Miss Eva Moss acted with consummate skill and power; as her sister May Miss Alice Bowes won sympathy, and presented a vivid contrast; Miss Nellie Bonser presented a strikingly pathetic picture as the betrayed Mary Dawson; Mr. V. R. C. Moors was good as Charles Cholmondeley; and Mr. A. Byron as Billy Boots and Miss Marie Wright as Jennie Crackling supplied acceptable comedy.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mark Sheridan, the comedian, original, humorous, and bright as ever, is on a return visit; G. H. Elliott, too, is here again, and as "the chocolate-coloured coon" he is very popular; Queenie Leighton, a favourite here, is meeting with success; Horace White provides a good entertainment as a ventriloquist; Starr and Leslie are seen and heard in their good comedy, vocalism, and clever club-swinging act; and David Ganty's illuminated "Water Grotto" is a charming and delightful exhibition. The clever Jackley Trio give a marvellous acrobatic display; Percy Honri's performance on the mammoth concertina is wonderfully clever, and he is, moreover, a humorist. Some very fine pictures are shown by the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—King for a Day, a musical comedy, by George Sheldon, capitally staged and providing plenty of amusement, is brightly acted by Messrs. Sidney Dooley and Charles Seymour's capable company here this week. J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, is well received; Bennett and Martell, "the shipwrecked mariners," are a humorous couple; Mlle. de Rose again scores a success with her cleverly-rendered baritone songs; Fred Dunstone contributes acceptable comedy; Norah Desmond's well-illustrated songs are received with favour; and a smart and entertaining performance is gone through by Cole and Rags, juggling eccentrics.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Henry Hague.—The annual benefit of the popular and energetic manager of the Spa came off on Monday night, when a crowded attendance assembled to show their appreciation of the efforts which Mr. Hague is constantly making for the amusement and entertainment of his patrons. A monster double programme was provided, and a host of talent lent assistance to make the event the great success which it was voted to be. In the theatre Lindon's Vaudeville Entertainers contributed some of their choicest items, and also appeared in a capital musical mélange, Monks at Play, in which Mr. Surrie Lindon as Father Anthony, Mr. Harry Collard as Brother Ptarmigan, and Mr. Rob White as Brother Capon gave most successful impersonations. Miss Bertha Frey as Pierrette submitted a charming rendering of the part; and Mr. Hyam Long proved a clever illusionist. Miss Sybil Walsh was popular in dramatic recitations; and Mr. Dan Billington delighted with his songs. Under the glass dome a large crowd had also gathered, and the various artists who had appeared in the theatre gave great pleasure by their musical and vocal contributions. Mr. Hague is to be congratulated upon the great success he has achieved.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—That amusing and clever artist, Mr. Joe Bath, took his annual benefit on Friday night, when he was rewarded with a "bumper" house, the beneficiaire being very popular with the visitors at this seaside resort. He was supported by a host of talent. The Waterloo Pierrots gave one of their amusing programmes, and clever items were contributed by Messrs. C. Beanland, Geo. Hyam, Coda, Chas. Danton, and members of the Flockton-Forster company, and Mr. Surrie Lindon's entertainers. "Joe" himself gave his amusing sketch, A Night Out, and received a rousing ovation, which testified to the popularity he has acquired during his many years of catering for the pleasure of the thousands of visitors to Bridlington.

THE PALACE.—Managers, Messrs. J. W. and W. H. Delmar.—On Saturday there was a grand brass band contest for valuable money prizes, which secured a great measure of success. This week the Parisian Animated Picture Company are showing a series of capital films, and the various turns are well received. The "whirling the whizzer" competitions have been a source of great amusement.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licencee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is here this week with The Blue Moon. Miss Clarice Lockstone as Chandra Nil displays charming acting and singing; Mr. J. Edward Fraser achieves great success as Captain Jack Ormsby; Miss Ida Statham makes an attractive Evelyn Ormsby; Miss Maude Aston is a bright Millicent Leroy; Miss Laura Leycester is a dignified Lady Augusta Brabasham; Mr. Reginald Switz as Private Charles Taylor and Mr. Alfred Beers as Moolraj are very entertaining; Mr. Alfred Clark acquits himself admirably as the Major; and Mr. Horace Manger is a capital Bobbie Scott. The choruses are well sung, and the duties of conductor are ably carried out by Mr. Carlton Mason.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company opened here on Monday with The Still Alarm. Mr. Matthew H. Glenville gave an excellent impersonation of Jack Manley; Miss Frances Waring acted with great charm as Elinor Fordham; Mr. George Arthur was powerfully effective as the villainous John Bird; Miss J. Beresford's Carrie Wilber and Miss Mabel Veriton's Mrs. Manley were entertaining; while Mr. Fred Osmond was particularly amusing as Doc Wilber. The drama was finely staged and mounted.

ALHAMBRA.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is an excellent company here this week. Ray Wallace, a charming mimic at the piano, is a great favourite; Joe O'Gorman, Irish comedian, is enthusiastically received; John Le Hay and company achieve distinct success in the farcical and musical episode, Poor Beggar; Syd Godfrey is a pleasing comedian; Fred Poplar, comedian, wins hearty applause; Florence Esdaile is a charming vocalist; Kitty Wager is a winsome comedienne; W. L. Murray performs astonishing feats of strength; Baker and De Sales contribute a clever and entertaining comedy act; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford. A varied and attractive programme is sustained here this week. The Ten Loonies are very clever and amusing in their musical absurdity, Dotty; in the sketch The Stowaway, Miss Eva Lumley in the title-rôle, Mr. John K. Walton as Captain Worsley, and Mr. H. G. Shaw as Lieut. Burton merit warm praise; Valoni, a skilful juggler, introduces his highly-trained pigeons; the Four Kurios submit a capital combination of pantomime, art, and mystery; Smith and Johnson are clever coloured duettists; Amurat, musical athlete, is successful; the Smarte Brothers are novel acrobatic eccentrics; Freddie French is a diverting comedian; the Custances appear in a bright and sparkling comedietta, A Game for Two; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is here this week with A Country Mouse. Miss Annie Hughes submits an artistic and delightful impersonation of Angela Muir; Mr. Charles Esdale's Archibald Vyse is an excellent portrayal; Miss Frances Davie makes a vivacious Violet Aynsley; Miss Winifred Pearson's Lady Bowlby and Mr. Rupert Liston's John Bowlby, M.P., are able representations; Mr. Evelyn Vernon is well suited as the Duke; and Miss Mary Duggan is entertaining as Mrs. Cropper.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope provides a great attraction here this week. The pictures are up to date, interesting, and humorous.

BRISTOL.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident Manager, Mr. H. T. Alty.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is here on a return visit with The Midnight Wedding, the drama being excellently staged. Mr. Paumier acts with much power and in convincing style as Paul Valmar; Miss Annie Saker is in every way pleasing as Princess Astrea, she "looks" the part to perfection and acts with much power; Mr. F. W. Freeman is decidedly effective as the Crown Prince; and the parts of Lieutenant Von Strelsburg and Captain Rudolph Von Scarsbruck are ably taken by Mr. A. E. W. Barnes and Mr. Ernest Imeson. The comic parts of Kathie, Max, Otto, and Bobo are capitally taken by Miss Ada Champion, Mr. James E. Page, Mr. Vernon Vane, and Mr. Algie Spalding.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The Chinese comic opera, See-See, is here for the first time in Bristol, Mr. George Edwardes's company being a very capable one. Miss Denise Orme presents a charmingly graceful exposition of See-See; she sings pleasingly, and her style and personality are very suitable for the part. Mr. Leonard Mackay is highly successful as Yen; he acts well, and is the happy possessor of a fine baritone voice, which he uses with discretion. Miss Maud Boyd is always a favourite here; she acts well as Mai-Yal, and sings in excellent style. Miss Dora Langham acts prettily as So-Hie and dances remarkably well; Mr. Frank Danby has a good part in Hang-Kee, taking full advantage of all his opportunities; Checo and Hoang-Wang have excellent exponents in Mr. W. H. Rawlins and Mr. Ernest Freshwater; and Miss Daisy Revett and Miss Adeline Lester do well as Lee and Mrs. Hoang-Wang, Miss Hilda Holton being pleasing as Humming-Bird. The opera is staged admirably, the chorus is strong and effective, and the increased orchestra is conducted with skill by Mr. Arthur Spittle.

PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Hackenschmidt is attracting full houses here, prizes are offered to all comers, and interesting bouts take place nightly. Horace Wheatley, comedian, obtains much applause; Payne's Little Vagabonds do a good turn, entitled Old Daddy Watchman, comprising comedy, singing, dancing, and whistling; May Fallowfield is a successful and pleasing comedienne; Allosop and Bekwith amuse with a clever absurdity, I'm Coming Upstairs; Johnson and De Vere do some expert trick-cycling; Lola Dalby is an acceptable comedienne; and the performance concludes with some interesting and amusing animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Mr. Leslie Bell and Miss Lilly Pearl's company is here with the sensational episode of New York society, entitled The Red Letter. The sketch, which is founded on the Thaw case, is well staged in three scenes, and it is acted admirably. Alexandra Dagmar, popular comedienne, presents a clever turn of song and story; Charles Austin, comedian, obtains considerable applause; Billy Farrell, coloured vocalist and dancer, does a clever turn, and is appreciated; the Almas are smart equilibrists and tumblers; Stevens and Rennoir amuse with song, sand-dancing, and patter; Mike Sipple is a successful vocalist and clever dancer; and Tom Haig and Millie Novel score in their refined comedy speciality. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company are here with At Cripple Creek. Mr. Stanley Bedwell is excellent as Joe Mayfield; the part of Dynamite Ann is cleverly sustained by Miss Agnes Verity; Martin Mason is well presented by Mr. Eric Hudson; and the bully Manuel Alvarez is a capable portrayal by Mr. J. L. Leigh. Fun is provided by Mr. Roy Tracy as Ben White, Mr. Will Hook as Reggie Harwood, and Miss Daisy Carlton as Maggie Mason. Miss Nancy Roberts is charming as Belle Gordon.

BURNLEY. — VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's clever company, in the romantic drama, Two Little Sailor Boys, is the fare here, and is keenly appreciated by large audiences. The two central characters, Cyril Grey and Tom Yorke, are portrayed in admirable style by Miss Ethe D. Drawford and Miss Beryl Mercer; whilst in the rôle of Lola, Miss Blanche Steel is seen to great advantage; as is Miss Alice Defoe as the Admiral's daughter, Mildred. Mr. Horace B. Clarke as Captain Tregarthen is all that could be desired; and Mr. Forbes Harrison as the Admiral is good. Mr. Leonard Clark as Lieut. Redstone is sufficiently villainous; and Mr. Tom Sinclair as Ben Baxter maintains the mirth in a capable manner, deriving great assistance from Miss Lizzie Chambers as Lucy.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A first-class programme, in which humour predominates, is given here this week. In the dancing line, Snowball and Miss Dolia are excellent, and their jokes are greatly enjoyed; Vaudinoff paints beautiful pictures in an inconceivably short time, and is greatly applauded. A sensational turn is that of Wyndham and Kitty, in a clever wire act, introducing many clever feats; David Poole, in his ventriloquial scena, proves himself a master of his art, and is highly appreciated; very funny are Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford in their comedy, Getting Even; and Ryder Slone gives a clever rendering of Sing Sing, which brings down the house. In an acrobatic bicycle act, the Original Hartfords are exceedingly smart. "Crime on the Mountains" is the title of a very fine film shown by the Empire Theatroscope.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Frank Marks.—A very fine programme is headed by R. A. Roberts, the protean actor. His latest sketch is Ringing the Changes, and, judging from its reception here, it will become more popular than his Dick Turpin. Other fine turns are the Four Jumels, in a musical act; the Trentanovis Sisters, clever gymnasts; W. G. Webber, a splendid bass singer; Bugler Carr, equilibrist; Cosgrove and Burns, comedians; and Little Dot Moss, a clever juvenile.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Frank Marks.—The pictures include The Liverpool Pageant, The Coiner's Daughter, William the Poacher, The King on the Dreadnought, and Accidents Will Happen, &c. Between the pictures good turns are given by Mr. Tom Moyers, a prize vocalist; and the Sisters Varley, duettists.

THE HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. W. Broadhead, jun.—A good show is provided here, and includes the Victorias, harmonising vocalists; May Zant and her Royal Juveniles, vocalists and dancers; the Columbia Coloured Coons, in Plantation Pastimes; Nellie Lewis, comedienne; Milsted and Bell, in a comedy scene, entitled The Belle of Arizona; J. Gar Kiddie and company, in The House of Tin; and Madge Grey, a very clever mimic.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Penleve.—This pretty little playhouse opened on Monday for the autumn season with The Night of the Party, played to crowded houses. Mr. Edwin G. Wynne is deliciously funny as Crosbie; a good performance of Frank Frayne comes from Mr. N. Carter Slaughter; Mr. G. Edward Hall and Mr. Percy Robinson acquit themselves well as Flamber and Roundle; Mr. Stanley Arthur is well placed as Bogle; Mr. Fred Castleton and Mr. Percy Compton as Alderman Hargen and Sir Charles Hampshire creditably fill their respective rôles; Miss Mab Paul presents a striking appearance as Gipsy Vaudelier, besides proving a clever actress; Miss J. Lynne is a successful Lady Hampshire; and Paulina is played by Miss Lillian Williams with considerable distinction.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—A return visit is being paid by the ever-welcome Chinese Honeymoon. The company is Mr. Milton Bode's, and the elaborate scenery and costumes are characteristic of all Mr. Bode's productions. Miss Gwennie Harcourt is again seen in her clever impersonation of Fi-Fi, and quite convulses the audiences by her funny rendition; Mr. Rudolph Kloss is an exceptionally good Hang-chow; and Mr. George Rydon is diverting with his broad humour as Mr. Pineapple; Soo-Soo is charmingly delineated by Miss Elsie Skillings, a fascinating and talented actress; Miss Rosie Begarnie's rendering of Mrs. Pineapple is all that could be desired; and Miss Maud Adams as Mrs. Brown adds considerably to the merriment of the piece. Other players who stand out prominently are Mr. Harry Jennings (Tom Hatherton), Mr. P. Allerton Turner (Chippie Chop), and Mr. Leonard May (Hi Lung). Mention should be made of the excellent assistance rendered by the well-balanced chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Edward H. Whitehall.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Beneath the Stars is successfully enacted here this week by Mr. Coleman Davies's company. Mr. Terry Davies is the hero, Stephen Harcourt, and he puts in some capital work; Miss Mamie Stanton as Angel Marsden throws a pathos into her performance that could scarcely be improved upon; and Miss Emily Winters is an impressive Pauline Petrowski; Mr. J. Lonsdale wins loud applause as Matthew Marsden; Mr. Jack McCraig as Lord Sylvester submits a dignified impersonation; as Major Blonson Mr. Vincent Archer is very effective; and Mr. Arthur Prescott, in his interpretation of Silas Clipper, displays true dramatic ability; Mr. Coleman Davies (Jemmy Hopblossom) and Miss Eunice Udall (Becky Higgins) present capital comedy with much success.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—George Robey is in the premier position on this week's programme, and his popularity is boundless; a return visit is also made by Ethel Haydon in a répertoire of pleasing songs; Violas, the White Mahatmas, are no mean exponents of thought-transmission, and their success is greater than previously; a sensational turn is that of Cussac-Talma, illusionist, assisted by Mlle. Yvonne de Forge, who is the smartest protean actress seen in Cardiff for some considerable time; Beatrice Willey, vocalist, in a medley of old flower songs, provides a charming entertainment; while the Three Rubys prove themselves exceedingly clever lady acrobats and trapeze artists; E. J. Sheldon, styled "The Man in White," is a fine singer and whistler; and Ferguson and Mack, in their latest laughing absurdity, The Dimple Sisters, cause unbounded merriment; other good items are the Carnia Sisters, in an artistic musical mélange; and Godfrey James, a real singing collier.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The programme at this now popular house, for the present week, is up to the previous standard, and first-class performances are still delighting huge crowds. The "real treat" this week is Kleptomaniacs, in which the well-known comedian Fred Edwardes appears, supported by Miss Bertha Northam and a carefully-selected company. Quite as funny a turn is that of Les Bollingers, the original Rag-Painters of Paris; while Marba and Verity are capable humorists and acrobatic dancers; practically the whole show is one continued laughter, of which The Clumbia Trio, in their operatic and humorous absurdity, provide their share; and Bains and Reed, Humsti-Bumpsti, are also good contributors. The Claymores, in their buck-dancing and club-juggling act; Sisters Cora, duettists, dancers, and sketch artists; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, with new and amusing pictures, complete a highly-commendable entertainment.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—A strong attraction is found here in a return visit of Mr. Charles Macdona's company in The Girl from Kay's. Mr. Johnny Schofield as Hoggenheimer gets every ounce of fun out of the part; Harry Gordon is well played by Mr. Herbert Franklyn; Mr. Claude Dampier makes Joseph a prominent feature of the performance; in the title-rôle Miss Jessie Fraser shows a delightful appreciation of the character; as Norah Chalmers, Miss Mavis Hope's ability is quite apparent; and Miss Irene Vere makes a hit as the maid.

THE PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Nellie Wallace, who tops the bill here, is paying a return visit, and she is an undoubted attraction; Martine and Son are also here again, and their illustrated vocal turn is as popular as ever; Cara Magda gives an excellent performance on the rings, and the Zeloras, acrobatic equilibrists, do some wonderful tricks; May Marton is a dainty comedienne; Geoffrys and Benson's comedy burlesque, Spoofed, proves a genuine laughter-maker; Miss Jennie Johns is a charming soubrette with a refined and distinctive style. The Pepiscope with new pictures brings a bright and thoroughly enjoyable entertainment to a close.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—Local playgoers greeted the re-opening of this pretty theatre on Monday evening with delight. On Monday the habitués were unanimous in declaring that the interior of the building never looked brighter or more picturesque. The clouded ceiling, decorated with birds and flowers, looks remarkably pretty, while the proscenium front is festooned with flowers on trellis-work tied with ribbons, beautifully enriched with gold, and having a basis of chipperlina marble. The walls are of a rich red, and the columns in gold of Japanese fan pattern with fretwork arching. All is in perfect harmony with the Venetian frieze pictures of the side ceilings. The whole has been designed and completed by Messrs. A. R. Dean and Son, of Birmingham, under the personal direction of Mr. W. Mack, decorative artist for the above firm. The attraction for the week is Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company with The Traitor. Mr. Graham Woods gives an excellent interpretation of the dual rôle of Crown Prince Rudolph and Colonel Nervi; as Zula, the Avenger, Miss Marie Robson is particularly good, her powerful reading of the part being much appreciated; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan as the Traitor acts with much force and decision; Miss Polly Denville as Cen-Cen deserves much praise; the Jack Boult of Mr. Val Gully is a good study and full of humour; Mr. Alfred Richards gives a capital portraiture of Capt. Ross, R.N.; Mr. William Reed causes amusement in his portrayal of General Hertz, and is ably assisted by Mr. Henry Heller as Zoff. Miss Jessica Black, with an excellent enunciation, gives a fine performance of Lieut. Nicolas; Miss Gwynne Warren as Countess Zicka appears with excellent results; Miss Lilian Matthews makes the most of her part of Elsie Dupres.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—The Arthur Saxon trio top the bill with their strong act, and they create quite a sensation. The Itrams, acrobatic and novelty gymnasts, show originality and talent, and their efforts meet with much appreciation; the clever fooling of Yorick and Yorick, eccentrics, is greeted with shouts of laughter throughout; an item that should not be missed is that of the Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures, which are clear, interesting, and amusing. Mart and Pep, miniature acrobats, give a wonderfully clever performance; R. C. Note sings several successful ditties to great applause; Miss Daisy Davenport is excellent in song and dance of quite an individual style; Witzen gives a turn of an interesting nature as a speciality artist, and Tom Lydon, as a comedian and trick cyclist, provides an enjoyable entertainment.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—The White Chrysanthemum is making a welcome reappearance here, and had a capital reception on the opening night. In the title-rôle Miss Muriel George gives undoubted satisfaction; Miss Rosa Sullivan infuses the requisite amount of "go" into her representation of Cornelia Vanderdecken; Miss Dorothy Sephton proves a very popular Betty Kenyon; Mr. Melville Florance has many admirers as Lieut. Reginald Armitage; Mr. Victor Kerr makes an eccentric Lieut. Chippy Belmont; Mr. John T. MacCallum is a prime favourite as Sir Horatio; and plenty of merriment is caused by Messrs. James Graydon and Jamie Dallas as Sin Chon and Private Perks respectively. The piece is admirably staged.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Countess Romanow is the leading attraction here, her artistic representations of statuary finding much favour; Archie Pitt has some quaint schoolboy patter; the Zampas are nimble dancers and smart bâton manipulators; Gladys and Alber give a comedy act in which the latter introduces some smart tumbling; Chas. Gardener sings and patters to everyone's liking; the Sisters Currie and Wally Scott give a song and dance turn; and Evelyn Taylor's catchy choruses are rapidly taken up by the gods. Lacey's Erascope continues to interest.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis.—Lew Loman opens the ball here, and is followed by the Society Quartette of vocalists and dancers; Blanche Vincent gives a couple of ballads in good style; Mr. Tom Foy makes a big hit in The Yorkshire Lad in London; New Milk for Breakfast is rattled merrily through by Johnny Holland and Co.; the Edisonograph has some capital films, and the success of the evening is made by dainty little Daisy Dormer.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—A varied bill is offered here this week. The prettily-staged act A Ba-Bee's Postcard Album wins favour in all parts of the house; Wee Jessie is a sweet child vocalist who has a melodious number, entitled "When the band plays 'Annie Laurie'"; in Ye Brown Cow Inn, Burg, Hand, and Wise present a funny act allied to some clever acrobatic work; the Wakomie Brothers are verastile instrumentalists, and gain much applause; Percy Farrimond, the singing collier, displays an exceptional voice to advantage in the "Soldiers' Chorus" (Faust); and the Maximilian Trio submit a novel equilibristic act, the younger member of the troupe being also a skilful acrobat. The current bill is completed by Ida Katherina and Vernon's Bioscope with new films.

MUSIC HALL.—Joseph Poole's Myriorama is still doing great business here. The variety combination includes Eilen and Mayne, the musical dots; the Seddons, the juggler and the waiter; the Three Boleros, on the triple bars; Felix de Marce's clever animal circus, introducing a couple of highly-trained Shetland ponies and several others. Mr. Bert G. Berry makes a popular guide; and Poole's orchestral band, under Mr. Fred Drake, put in some excellent work.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Mr. Santé's company is here with The Life of a Showman. Mr. Frank Santé appears as Brian Leader, a circus proprietor, and acts with distinction, also giving displays of his various feats as an athlete; Miss E. Bamford is very good as Lena, his wife; the part of Hendrick Marais is capitally taken by Mr. Morris Maud; Miss Constance Medwyn plays with considerable power as Agatha Winter; Mr. Edward Warden is effective as the Rev. Cyril Arless; and Messrs. Charles Osborne and J. G. Santé are successful in their respective parts of Stickers and Laurie Grey; Miss Lizzie Power and Master Harry Warden play the juvenile characters most creditably. The comic parts of Angelina Mutton, Tommy Allthere, and Ben Tictac are taken in amusing style by Miss May Nelson, Mr. Charles Clement, and Mr. E. Turner.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—This week's attraction is A Trip to the Highlands. Miss Isa Bowman sings and dances nicely as Miss Winnie Brown-Windsor; Mr. Wal Croft creates a favourite impression as Macmutckin; Mr. Frank Barclay sings and acts well as Hon. Fred Lackington; Mr. Willie Scott is undoubtedly a smart comedian, his impersonation of the footman Timmins being very amusing; Mr. Wellesley Smith is well placed as Viscount Lackington; and Sir Septimus Brown-Windsor is in the good hands of Mr. James Sommerville. Other parts are well played by Mr. Harry A. Gribben as Dexter, Miss Nellie Burdette as Fanny Flounce, Miss Grace Desmond as Miss Araminata Brown-Windsor, and Miss Clara Moore as Flora.

COLCHESTER. — HIPPODROME. — Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Mr. George Marriott and company in the very sensational and certainly topical dramatic sketch, The Maid of the Alps, is the principal turn this week, and the piece contains many romantic and sensational incidents. George Prince is repeating his huge success of the spring, his reception being of the most flattering nature; Lily Flexmore goes wonderfully well with her legmania dancing, whilst Ella Loraine, with her illustrated song pictures, is most popular; Lucia Collins does nicely as a songstress, à la Maritana; and Lester May caters for the lover of eccentric comedy.

COVENTRY.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—This week we have Mr. Chas. H. Lester as Sherlock Holmes in the detective drama, The Bank of England. Miss Lallah Davis represents the American widow Aminta J. Beane; Miss Dorothy Riddell as Sylvia Barraclough makes a charming heroine; other characters are Mr. Clifton Earle (Stephen Hartley), Mr. J. H. Firman (Sir Sidney Barraclough), Mr. C. Berridge (Hon. Bertie Burlington), Mr. F. Ernstone (Godfrey Dane), Mr. Harry Wood (Eric Dane), Miss Lydia Hart (Margaret Dane), Miss Anne Thomas (Lucy Lockett). On Friday night Mr. Lester will play the part of Prince Lucio in the adaptation of Marie Corelli's Sorrows of Satan.

HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lennox Barry.—A very good programme is provided again this week. The first item is the wonderful performance by the Royal Tokio Troupe of Japanese ladder performers, their skill is simply wonderful; next comes a musical comedy by Dinah Morris's company, entitled A Village in Dahomey, which is received with rapturous applause; Herbert Clifton's singing is very fine, especially "The Holy City"; Messrs. Harris and Worth are sporting comedians, whose jokes are very much appreciated. Other artists are Harry Bedford, Messrs. Carney and Armstrong, and the Phydoras. These, with the myriophone, worked by Mr. and Mrs. Karay, which plays some very smart and quaint melodies, make a very fine night's entertainment.

THE EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. George Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Drace.—In a very up-to-date programme Ernest Shand appears with a couple of smart songs, and is deservedly encored for his humour and wit; a capital farcical comedy is presented by Arthur Jefferson, entitled Home from the Honeymoon, which is very amusing; Lewis de Burgh creates a sensation in the introduction of Dide, the creation of a woman from nothing, which is very clever; Harry Edson presents his clever trained dogs "Doc" and "Tighe"; Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic, is very successful, his patter is exceedingly good; Maude Courtney gives a medley of American songs; Cecil Bernard is a clever boy comedian; the mysterious Mr. C is a clever patterer, and possesses a charming voice. The Bioscope pictures conclude.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Managers, Messrs. Chas. Denley and H. Taylor.—An excellent programme here this week is headed by Miss Marie Lloyd, whose amusing songs and diverting mannerisms win her a most enthusiastic reception. McDonald and Huntington, clever American entertainers, are also deserving of commendation; Carta and Mirtziana, gymnasts, perform some excellent feats; Chas. Clark is a successful comedian, and his patter is also smart; Bros. Harrison are acceptable comedians and dancers; Jules Kiare is a meritorious equilibrist; Ella Lane is a pleasing comedienne; and the Bioscope adds to the general enjoyment with some funny pictures.

DEVONPORT.—Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Home, Sweet Home, a drama always popular with local audiences, is a strong attraction this week, as presented by Messrs. Green and Hinton's company. Mr. Arthur Hinton plays Stephen Armitage in a way deserving of unstinted applause; Miss Leila Zillwood is an admirable Joan; and Mr. Travis Green, in the rôle of Lucas Lyle, is a very creditable stage villain.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Mr. Edward Marris's company gives an efficient and agreeable performance of the old favourite, Somebody's Sweetheart. Miss Norah Melton as Lulu instils characteristic winsomeness and charm into her portrayal; Mr. Cecil W. Parke's assumption of Stanton Ashleigh is highly appreciated; Mr. George Brentwood finds in Martin Blabbs a very suitable outlet for his abilities as a comedian; and Miss May Norris is piquant in the part of Freddie Ashleigh. The villain, Stephen Leverton, has an admirable exponent in Mr. C. E. King; Zora is presented cleverly by Miss Lena Laton; and Miss Ainsley is convincingly interpreted by Miss Dora Hargreaves.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Empire, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The powerful Venetian drama, entitled The Tyrant, has attracted crowded houses here. Mr. Fred C. Somerfield as Homodei, the avenger, is the embodiment of weirdness, and acquits himself admirably in every phase of the character. Valuable support is accorded by Mr. Roy Fortescue, whose enactment of the title-rôle is emphasised by a commanding appearance; Mr. Edward E. Louis intelligently interprets Rudolph, Prince de Roma; Lady Katherine is played with charming and refreshing agreeableness by Miss Margaret Frame; and a success no less pronounced is made of Eulie by Miss Lallah Shelton. An effective display is made by Miss Vida Hazlewood, whose Daphne loses nothing of interest in her capable hands; Miss Gertie Reid gives a rich colouring to the part of Reginella; Mrs. Walter Bentley's part of Tisbe is sustained with charming grace and refinement.

DOUGLAS.—Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—Mr. George Dance's company appears here this week in The Spring Chicken, and audiences approve the musical comedy, which is quite adequately interpreted. Miss Nellie Kavanagh is quaint in her original rôle of Mrs. Girdle; Mr. Fred Payne is well suited as Master Girdle; the Rosalie of Miss Violet Lorraine has emphasis and point; Miss Nellie Wrigley as Mme. Babori is Gallic in intention; and Mr. Percival Knight as Babori is excellent. The augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Fritz Hart, does full justice to the melodious refrains of Mr. Ivan Caryll and Mr. Lionel Monkton.

The Gaiety Theatre, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—A large audience witnessed the performance of Hall Caine's play, The Prodigal Son, at the Gaiety Theatre on Monday, with evident appreciation. Miss Lily Hall Caine's success as Thora and Elin was decisive; the Oscar Stephenson of Mr. Albert Ward was a really subtle interpretation; Mr. Oswald Cray was robust as Magnus; and Mr. H. H. Bonington was artistic in the tiny rôle of the Pastor. Miss Isabel Grey did well as Anna Magnussen; Miss Mima Renouf, a clever actress, was quite successful as Margaret Neilson; Miss Betty Castle worked hard as Helga; and the other characters were well played by the respective members of Mr. George D. Day's company.

The Palace, Ltd.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—The primary attractions here are Mr. Harry Wood's Orchestra and Vernon's Bioscope. The variety programme includes Mme. Clasen's Living Art Bronzes; Mr. Alfred Gibson, a clever and resourceful comedian; Miss Helen Charles, who presents a smart interlude; and the Two Anartos, always clever and up to date.

Derby Castle.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Kelly.—The management here vend to willing buyers a very pleasant programme. Mr. George Lashwood is the star attraction, and his songs are popular; another clever and quite novel item is supplied by the New York Nippers, who quite caught on with their sketch, Fun Before Bedtime; the Sisters Gerette give a daring trapeze performance; Mr. Rowland Hill is a refined but funny comedian; and other clever people who appear are Miss Nellie Martell, Messrs. Ryan and Hall, and Les Cleos.

The Hippodrome.—Sole Manager and Director, Mr. F. J. Connor.—The attendance at the circus in Parade-street has been phenomenal. Among other attractions, the Philippi Brothers appear in their sensational acrobatic interlude; and the Brothers Leotard are conspicuous with a clever show.

Mr. Frederick Buxton's Pierrots and Tea Village attract large attendances.

Mr. Charles Dare, with his burnt cork combination, has no need to complain of the patronage extended to him on Douglas Head. His venture also at the Empire Theatre, with two houses nightly, is crowned with success.

Messrs. Adeler and Sutton, with a select concert party, are a great attraction on Onchan Head.

Mr. Tom Isherwood has a fine following in Douglas, and the crowds who congregate round the bandstand on the promenade are a tribute to his popularity.

DOVER.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Mr. Popple (of Ippleton) made his first appearance in Dover on Monday. Mr. Charles Macdona's company presents the comedy in excellent style. Mr. Arthur Longley scored a personal triumph in the title-rôle; the delicate handling of the rôle of La Bolero, and the highly artistic rendering of the musical numbers by Miss Millie Hylton were worthy of all praise; Norman Popple found a satisfactory exponent in Mr. H. Carnelly-Joye; and Mr. Douglas Phillips's pleasing voice was heard to advantage in the songs allotted to Jacques Kenyon. Henry Doring and George Hennay were two amusing character studies as played by Messrs. Sydney Young and James Stevenson; the neglected wives were cleverly enacted by Miss Alice Rene as Mrs. Doring and Miss Edith Grenfell as Mrs. Hennay; and a smartly-played part was that of Platt, most successfully taken by Mr. C. E. Paton. Miss Nellie Hodson, a charming Louise, acted and sang with vivacity; and Miss Cora Lingard was a pretty Violet Brinton. The augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Julian Rutt, worked exceedingly well. Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company in See-See came on Thursday.

The Pavilion, Promenade Pier.—Messrs. Gaze and Hayes's charmingly-dressed concert party, travelling under the name of the Hollanders, made their first bow to the Dover public on Monday. Mr. Harry Buss (Peter Schnapps) is a versatile humorist; the fine voice of Mr. Alec Clunes (Hans Brummel), pleasing alike in stirring songs and baritone love ballads, has invariably won for the artist a double encore; while some amusing numbers are rendered in capital manner by Mr. H. Gaye. The charming soprano voice of Gretchen Marken, otherwise Miss Hilda Vining, is as much to be commended as her excellent choice of songs; and Miss Mabel Dent proves herself a capable dancer as well as an attractive vocalist. Miss Marna Chalcraft (Gurda Smidt) acts as a tactful accompanist; while the duets and concerted numbers are among the most popular in the programme.

The Palace Hippodrome.—Signor Tricardo, magician, is at the top of the bill this week, and Jack and May Mackenzie at the bottom, with their exceedingly smartly played and wittily written duologue, Married for Money. Sam Ives gives a popular turn, and Fred Wright a most amusing one; Maud Garland sings and dances with skill; Stuart and Evans are a good pair of comedians and dancers; the players, duettists, and dancers score; and Norman Grant, a clever entertainer, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete.

DUBLIN.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harrington.—A big reception was accorded Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Zena Dare on their appearance here on Monday night, in The Beauty of Bath. Mr. Seymour Hicks keeps the audience in a continuous roar of laughter as Lieut. Richard Alington; and Miss Zena Dare gives a delightful and convincing portrayal of the Hon. Betty Silverthorne. Mr. Laurence Caird successfully displays his abilities as a comedian in the rôle of Lord Quorn; the part of Mrs. Goodge is well represented by Miss Sydney Fairbrother; and much clever fun is provided by Master John Clifford as Lemon Goodge. Miss Marion Lindsay makes a good impression as Lady Bun; Mr. William Lugg is excellent as Viscount Bellingham; and as the Countess of Orpington and Jane Topit the Misses Vera Morris and Katie Butler are particularly good. Mr J. C. Buckstone gives a capital depiction of Sir Timothy Bun; and the parts of Mrs. Alington, the Hon. Dorothy Quorn, and Miss Truly St. Cyr are well presented by Miss Florence Lloyd, Miss Dorothy Laine, and Miss Claire Rickards respectively.

Gaiety Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The boards are again occupied this week by Mr. George Dance's company, in Miss Hook of Holland. Mr. Leslie Holland still keeps the audience in the greatest merriment by his humorous portrayal of Mr. Hook; and Miss Deborah Volar is delightfully vivacious and refreshing as Sally. Mr. Fred Lyne still affords much acceptable amusement as Simon Slinks; and Miss Mabel Sealby portrays Mina with exceptional ability and charm. Van Vuyt is cleverly enacted by Mr. Arthur Harrold; and Miss Queenie Preston is pleasing as Freda Voos. Mr. Frederick Hobbs acquits himself with credit as Captain Adrian Paap; and the part of Gretchen is well played by Miss Barbara Dunbar. Other members of the company who are largely responsible for the success of the play are Mr. George Ide (Lieut. De Coop), Mr. R. C. Harcourt (Ludwig Schnapps), Miss Irene Raye (Clara Voos), and Miss Mabel Keith (Thekla).

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A strong attraction is afforded by John Lawson's company, in The Unwritten Law, which is enthusiastically received nightly; Norton and Bowman's comedy duologue, She Loved a Policeman, is provocative of uproarious mirth; and Walter Munroe scores again with song and patter. An entertaining musical act by Orpheus proves vastly popular; and Maude Laverne finds a ready acceptance for her vocal contributions. The Sisters Caselli, duettists and dancers, are warmly applauded; and Harry Weldon submits his comic songs in acceptable style. Marco is both smart and clever as a coin and card manipulator; and Miss Josie Mooney, comedienne, has a good presence and a pleasing style. The Empire Pictures are again a popular feature of the programme.

Tivoli. — General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Four Regals introduce some extraordinary feats of strength in a remarkably well finished style; Martinetti and Grossi cause no end of laughter, and are thoroughly deserving the hearty reception accorded them; and Fred Arthur, comedian, is as popular as ever. Pete and Minnie Lee, in The Scotchman's Visit to London, are highly entertaining; and the Gilberts, in a graceful dancing act, meet with well-merited success. The Meymotts create much merriment with their funny sketch, Semi-Detached; and Harry Vardon, ventriloquist, makes a decided hit. Denby and Dent submit a most amusing turn; and Mlle. Pollo, gymnast, and the Bioscope, conclude the entertainment.

Rotunda.—The Irish Animated Photo. Company entered on their third week's engagement here on Monday, and judging by the full houses daily, seem to have lost none of its popularity since the opening week. The constant change of pictures, and the vocal items, contributed by Miss May Durkin and Messrs. Patrick O'Shea and Ralph Goffin, elicit hearty appreciation.

Abbey Theatre.—The National Theatre Society opened here for a short season on Monday night. The programme presented consisted of four short plays, entitled The Jackdaw, Spreading the News, by Lady Gregory, Riders to the Sea, by Mr. J. M. Synge, and Kathleen Ni-Houlihan, by Mr. W. B. Yates, in which Messrs. F. J. Fay, W. G. Fay, Miss Sara Allgood, Miss Brigit O'Dempsey, and Miss Marie O'Neill appeared, as on previous occasions, with marked success, and were deservedly applauded.

Pavilion, Kingstown.—Manager, Mr. Fred R. Heley.—The Anglo-Indian Entertainers are here this week, and drawing capital houses. The artists include Messrs. Kennedy Allen, Frank Hook, Clifford Morgan, Murray Scott, George B. Bartlett, and the Misses Rene Steadman, Alice Sudbury, and Kitty Allen, who all contribute successfully to a good variety programme.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Charles A. James. — Capital performances are given by Howard and Lenore, vocalists and dancers; Bert Watson, comedian; Frank Dandy, character vocalist; Cissy Nora, vocalist and dancer; and Arthur Richards, actor vocalist.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company in the sensational drama, The Face at the Window, has met with a good reception here this week. The principal characters are well-sustained by Mr. Gilbert Hall who, as Lucio Delgado, gives a realistic rendering; by Mr. T. W. Dunscombe, who acts Paul Gouffet, a detective, in forcible and telling style; by Mr. Herbert Daneville, as Lucain Cortier, a discharged clerk; and by Miss Marie Barrett, who is very pleasing as Marie de Brisson. The comedy element is in the capable hands of Mr. C. Alan Hunson as Peter Pottlebury, and Miss Gladys Newcombe as Babette. The piece is well staged.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred. H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Peberdy.—A good programme is here this week, headed by Fields and Lewis, who give an extremely funny turn; while Miss Molly Doon is at the bottom of the bill as a comedienne and dancer of the first order; the Sisters Temple are vocal duettists of a pleasing type; Lauri Brothers perform in clean and skilful style as society gymnasts; Chas. Landor is clever in an acrobatic table act; Will Carol, Minnie Clayton, Bentley and company, in The Terror of Turneys Rents, and the Empire Bioscope, which maintains its popularity, go to make up the bill.

DUNDEE. — Her Majesty's Theatre. — Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Company, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Tom Taylor's romantic drama, Clancarty, is presented here this week by Mrs. Russ Whytal Mrs. Russ Whytal presents a striking and powerful delineation as Lady Clancarty, her acting in the lighter scenes being full of charm, while in the more emotional parts her undoubted dramatic ability makes a great effect. Miss Mabel Knowles is a coquettish and delightful Lady Betty; Miss Henrietta Yule is excellent as Mother Hunt; Mr. Acton Bond's Lord Clancarty is a telling performance his manly bearing and sound elocution being worthy of all praise; Mr. Stratton Rodney enacts the part of King William III. in a skilful and expressive manner; Lord Portland has a dignified representative in Mr. Charles Combe; Mr. J. J. Bartlett interprets Lord Spencer in a worthy manner; while Harry J. Crane scores well as Scum Goodman. The dressing and mounting of the piece is on a lavish scale.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam McIntosh.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week, the Savonas and Elliots, who are great favourites here, being the attraction. Aided by magnificent electrical effects, the former render their well-known high-class musical entertainment to vociferous applause, while the Elliots are no less successful in their clever trick cycling act. The Two Bees appear in an allegorical comedy scena, The Man in the Moon, their witticisms proving highly diverting; George Antill, comedian, amuses the audience with his songs and grotesque legmania business; Earle and Melville, comedians, take well with their cross-patter and smart dancing; Johnny Beveridge, a well-known local blind pianist and comedian, is popular with his funny songs, played to his own accompaniment; while the Two Wiltons (refined duettists and dancers) and the Three Sisters Glenn (vocalists and burlesque entertainers) are greatly appreciated. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope concludes a capital programme.

New Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Mr. Edward Marris's company are here in The Dandy Doctor. Mr. Owen Dacry, who essays the part of Melchisadek Brown, keeps the house in a continual ripple of laughter during the whole time he is on the stage; Mr. Leslie Winter as Arthur Vandyke is very successful; Colonel Pendred is played in a brisk manner by Mr. Herbert Pearce; Mr. Walter Nugent as Bertie Bolingbroke goes through his part with credit to himself and pleasure to the audience; Miss Florence Smithers as Jane, "the general," causes endless laughter with her smart comedy work; Ivy Pendred has a graceful and refined representative in Miss Ethel Ward, her singing and acting being charming; and Miss Rose Chandler as Marie Merton deserves praise for her smart dancing. The numerous other parts are capably sustained, while the staging and dressing are all that could be desired.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Owing to the success which has attended the engagement of the Twentieth Century Animated Photo Co., the management of this house have retained them for another week, and their action has been amply justified by the large audiences which have nightly attended. The films shown, whether of an instructive or amusing nature, were greatly appreciated. Special mention might be made of "A Wife's Forgiveness," "Detective's Chase Round the World," and "The Harlequin's Love Story." Variety turns were submitted by Lindon and Wright, two smart comedians; Roy Lovell, vocalist; Nellie Dyson, a charming burlesque actress; and Jock Ramsay, a funny Scotch comedian.

DUNFERMLINE.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—After having undergone considerable alteration and repainting, this popular house of entertainment was re-opened for the season on Monday evening with a six-night's engagement of Mrs. Fred. J. Kirke's Musical Comedy company, when The Naval Detective was produced. In his triple part of Lieut. Jack Beresford, Rev. Frequent Nipper, and Pat McGuinness, Mr. E. H. Bertram proved himself extremely versatile; Mr. J. W. Holloway was an effective Dr. Schriner; Mr. Lorrimer Stuart a capital Captain Hustle; Mr. Walter T. Hybert did ample justice to the part of the Hon. Bertie Fairlox; and Mr. Charles Burns was most amusing as Hans Winklepump; Miss Edith Claris was a meritorious Susan Schrubbs; Miss Marie L. Ellis an admirable Lula Kaufmann; and the dancing of Misses Gerty and Daisy Gaye as Pearl and Ruby was a strong feature of the performance; Miss Louie Fontaine gave a creditable rendering of the triple part of Phyllis Leslie, Mme. Lucette, and Bill Mainway. Our Sailor Lad and In Old Madrid were to be produced during the week.

EASTBOURNE.—Devonshire Park Theatre.—Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Baths Co., Ltd.; Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company in Veronique is here, Miss Mabel Lait scoring a notable success, both as actress and singer, in the name-part. Mr. Arthur Stroud as Florestan de Vallancourt merits high praise, the familiar "Swing" duet as rendered by these two artists evoking enthusiasm. The chief fun-provider is Mr. Daley Cooper, whose excruciatingly humorous portrayal of M. Coquenard is ably assisted by the amusing characterisations of M. Louslot and Seraphin by Messrs. Oliver J. Round and Sidney Bracy. Miss Roberta Williams is seen and heard to advantage as Agatha; Miss Stella St. Audrie is an eminently satisfactory Ermerance, using her fine voice to particular advantage in "The garden of love"; and Miss Elsie Probyn, a delightfully dainty Denise, ably completes the cast of principals.

Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. G. Hayes.—Mr. George's Dance's company in Miss Hook of Holland opened here for three nights on Monday. Mr. Fred Winn's Mr. Hook was a comedy creation of striking excellence, and the actor must be warmly congratulated upon the conspicuous success he achieved. Miss Maggie White as Sally proved herself both a refined actress and a cultured vocalist; and Mr. Percy Carr as Bandmaster Van Vuyt added materially to his previous reputation here. Miss Rita Everard made a particularly good impression as Mina, her songs being among the evening's biggest successes; Mr. Albert Kavanagh added to the general merriment by a capital portrayal of Simon Slinks; Mr. H. Talbot was a brisk representative of Ludwig Schnapps; Mr. T. J. Bolesworth looked and played the part of Capt. Adrian Paap cleverly; and the remaining rôles were capably filled.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—Lottie Collins is the star attraction here this week, and had an enthusiastic reception. Lawson and Namon's clever display of ball-punching and eccentric trick cycling is applauded; the middle of the bill is occupied by Hippodrome pictures, and some beautiful Scotch views are exhibited; Johnny Fuller and Howe and Ardie repeat their clever speciality acts; and the programme is further contributed to by the Lorrisons, Violet King, the Three Consol Girls, and the Ellertons.

Devonshire Park.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Edgar Allan Brown.—The programmes this week are shared by the Meistersingers' Orchestra (an exceptionally fine combination of performers under Mr. Norfolk Megone) and the Duke of Devonshire's Private Orchestra. The special vocalist is Miss Dorothy Wiley.

EDINBURGH.—Royal Lyceum Theatre, Ltd.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Mr. Edward Terry has long held a place in the affections of Edinburgh playgoers, and his engagement here this week has attracted large and enthusiastic audiences. On Monday last Liberty Hall was played, with Mr. Terry in his quaint study of the old bookseller, Todman. The part is one in which Mr. Terry displays his great command of humour and pathos, and carries the absorbing attention of his audience from start to finish. Mr. Thomas Holding, a young actor possessed of a graceful figure and a face capable of varied expression, made a distinct success in the character of Mr. Owen. His voice is excellent, and his lines, whether serious or humorous, were spoken with admirable elocution. Miss Marion Ripley was a very charming Blanche Chilworth, whose acting revealed qualities both of tenderness and power. Miss Evelyn Ormonde, a young Edinburgh lady who has advanced rapidly in her profession, was a bright and natural Amy, and her serious scenes were very delightfully acted; Mr. Wm. Dexter's Briginshaw was a finished performance of an unsympathetic character; and the Crafer of Miss Eugenie Vernie was a capital bit of low-comedy acting. Clever support was given by Mr. B. A. Pittar as Harringay, Mr. Chas. B. Bedells as Mr. Pedrick, Miss Ruth Nightingale as Binks, Mr. H. A. Samson as Mr. Hickson, and Miss Ella Dixon as Miss Hickson. The actors were recalled at the close of each act, and at the end of the play the audience was not satisfied until the curtain had been raised several times. On Tuesday The Magistrate was presented, Mr. Terry revelling in the humour of Mr. Peskett and Miss Agnes Knightes making a vivacious Agatha. Sweet Lavender was also played during the week, Mr. Terry repeating his fine performance of Dick Phenyl.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—Marlo's juggling feats are performed with singular neatness and dexterity; Cordite and Buffalo, in their miniature Wild West kind of show, give a remarkable exhibition of skill in rope-spinning and lariat manipulation; the Falcons are among the most marvellous of acrobatic equilibrists, with some original humour to boot; Harry Webber contributes an acceptable turn as a Hebrew dialect comedian; and the Ross and Grayson comedy couple appear in a spirited mélange of songs and dances, introducing some extraordinary pianoplaying. The flying aerial act of the Hanlon troupe of gymnasts is a very sensational performance; Wilson Hallet's interesting entertainment includes clever imitations of children; Captain Frank Taylor's collection of educated baboons illustrate a high degree of perfection in animal training; and a good series of Bioscope pictures portrays many of the latest events.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Foreman and Fannan contribute an animated turn, compounded of good songs and patter and smart dancing; Gus Garrick is successful in clever imitations of types of variety artists; Hermann Melot's skilful conjuring tricks are seasoned with quaint humour; excellent solo playing on violin, harp, and xylophone is pleasingly contributed by Les Frasettis; Ben Albert affords much merriment with his quick-witted chop logic; an entertaining sketch, entitled Applicants, is produced in versatile fashion by Dean Tribune and company; the Bensons make a lively musical comedy act out of The Page and the Maid; La Berat appears in some very effective dances, illuminated by coloured lights; and meritorious comedy turns are given by Bessie Butt and Dot Hardy.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Joseph L. S. Moss; Manageress, Mrs. Amelia H. B. Moss.—Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company commenced the second week of their engagement on Monday, and had the pleasure of playing to a crowded house in The Conscript. Mr. Frank Petley delighted his audience by his manly rendering of the hero, Karl Truevitch; Mr. Cowell Clarke played Ivan Manloff, the Starost of Seavgorod, and played it remarkably well; as Count Paul Hardiski, Mr. Walter Steele was realistically brutal, and met with the usual reward; Mr. Charles Coleman played well as Doggervitch, a convict; the clever fooling of Mr. Harry Liddle as Tretch Trotoff, a postman, and Miss Isabel Hunt as Wanda, a Khoral, was greatly appreciated; Miss Lilian Ross gave a brilliant rendering of Nadia Truevitch, Karl's wife, some of her best scenes being with Little Karl (her son), a part played with great feeling and discretion by Miss Mabel Ronald. Other rôles were cleverly sustained by Messrs. Fred Eric, Ed. Jeffs, James Holt, F. E. P. Case, Murray Maude, and Harold Holmes, and Misses Gertrude Price and Olga Datre.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—The boards are occupied this week by Miss Winifred's company in Oliver Twist, as dramatised by Henry L. Osmond and Ernest Noble, and The Master Criminal. Oliver Twist was produced on Monday before an appreciative house. Mr. John C. Carlyle was excellent as Fagan, the Jew; while Mr. Henry L. Osmond made a splendid Bill Sikes by his callous demeanour. Miss Nellie Stephens in the title-rôle soon won the sympathies of the house, and Miss Winifred Chalmers was a decided success as Nancy. Mr. H. C. Macartney ably sustained the part of Mr. Brownlow, and Miss Kate Somerville was good as Rose.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr Horace W. Ebbutt. — The boards have this week been occupied by Mr. Horace Stanley and company with Guilty Gold. Mr. Wallace Campbell is a capable hero. Mr. Ralph Wilberforce acts forcibly as Ralph Bartlett; Mr. David Curtis as John Middleton is successful; as Septimus Sweet Mr. Horace Stanley furnishes the humour of the piece in conjunction with Miss Kate Kilpack as Nancy Bright, and Miss Evelyn M. Walton as Bertha Blossom. Miss Effie Bartlett does well as Rhoda Hampton; Miss Josephine Lee is effective as Hetty Hoyle; and Miss Rosaline Heath is satisfactory as Elsie Middleton.

FALMOUTH.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's musical company visited the Drill Hall here for the first time on Friday and Saturday last with The Earl and the Girl. The principal parts were taken as follows:—Jim Chune by Mr. Bert Beswick, Dick Wayram by Mr. Cecil Lloyd, the Hon. Boodle by Mr. Arthur Radcliffe, Bunker Bliss by Mr. Harold Cotter, Downham by Mr. Chas. McCann, and Hazel by Mr. H. Webb. Mr. Beswich was particularly well received, and he seemed very versatile and apt throughout. His local and political fun as interspersed delighted the audience. The ladies' parts, capably played, were Elphin Hay (Miss Dorothy Dempster), Liza Shoddam (Miss Ada Waugh), Mrs. Simmering Black (Miss Violet Campbell), and Virginia Bliss (Miss Viola March). Miss Dempster made a pretty and genuinely attractive heiress; she sustained her part with ability. Miss March, too, carried her dignity well throughout; while Miss Ada Waugh, in her very characteristic and real rendering of the coster type, scored heavily.

FLEETWOOD.—Queen's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Snelson.—Miss Grace Warner is here this week, supported by a strong company, in a triple bill—The Scarlet Clue, Lady Audley's Secret, and The Little Widow. A crowded house gave The Scarlet Clue an enthusiastic reception on Monday night. Miss Warner as Madame La Lune thrills the audience with her emotional acting; Mr. George Gordon takes the part of Michael Stanton with power and effect, and is a villain of more than average ability. The other parts are all in capable hands, Little Doris Graham showing distinct promise both in acting and singing.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland. — Mr. George Dance's principal company, in The Catch of the Season, played the first three nights of the week. Mr. Frank Lincoln sang and acted with admirable effect as the Duke; Mr. Tom Shelford made a most amusing Lord Dundreary; Master Peter Grata as Bucket was very popular; Miss Louie Bentley was well fitted to the part of the Duchess; Miss Ernestine Walter was a pleasing Lady Crystal; Miss Doris Greville as the Hon. Honoria, and Miss Muff Carew as the Hon. Sophia left nothing to be desired. Miss Connie Hilliard sang well as Miss Caw; Miss Emily Mellon was a great success as Lady Caterham; and Miss Moya Mannering was a charming Angela, singing delightfully. Mr. George Dance's company appeared during the latter half of the week in Miss Hook of Holland.

Leas Pavilion.—Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—Mr. D'Arcy Clayton's concert party, "The Gipsies and their Jester," are delighting large audiences here this week. Mr. Eric Davidson is a good baritone vocalist; Miss Barbara Antoine and Miss Elsie Wood sing well and score successfully; Miss Florence Crofts shows remarkable skill, both in singing and accompanying; and Mr. Will Gane (the jester) is heartily enjoyed and warmly appreciated.

Victoria Pier.—Manager, Mr. Robert Forsyth.—Appearing here are Mendel, the blind pianist, who gains great applause; the Evalos create much laughter with their comic juggling; Professor Hulbert is an expert ventriloquist; Mr. Henry H. Moore as an entertainer is excellent; Mr. E gives an original turn; Stacey and Williams are deservedly applauded; Mons. de Lile is a talented illusionist; and last, but not least, Kardoe, the handcuff king, was received with every sign of appreciation.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, United County Theatre, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Not in the history of this house has a more enthusiastic welcome been given to any artist than that accorded to Marie Loftus. "Singers, past and present," brings out the best that is in this gifted comedienne. H. O. Wills, comedian, is also a huge favourite; Webb and Branston please immensely with a couple of duets; Albert Letine is responsible for a life-like impersonation of a comedienne; Mack Ollive (assisted by Daisy Baldry) presents the whistling scena, "The Candy Store" from The Belle of New York, and runs Miss Loftus close in the race for popularirty; the Bros. Zampa, one-legged acrobats, are exceptionally smart; and Harry Zetter, an eccentric dancer and comedian; the Prinellas in a dainty farmyard scena, entitled "A County Firtation," and the "living" pictures make up a strong bill.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. J. Hartwell Kirby's company in Man's Enemy provides the fare at this house. Mr. Kirby fills the rôle of Count Lanski with distinction; Mr. Norman A. Overton has a suitable part as Harry Stanton; Tom Drake has a capital representative in Mr. T. Weldon Atherstone; Messrs. Fred Owen and Frank Hedley look well after the comedy rôles; Miss V. St. Lawrence gives to the part of Sarah Drake the right amount of heartlessness; Miss Clare O'Sullivan is a graceful Miss Lisle; Miss Evelyn Geldard portrays Mrs. Saunders successfully; and Miss Eve Reed in the part of Polly says many funny lines.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphreys.—This theatre was opened on Monday after a vacation of some months, during which the interior of the house has been redecorated and re-upholstered with magnificent effect, while extensive alterations have also been made at the principal entrances and front of the building. The opening night was an event of some local interest, as it marked the completion of a scheme for the widening and general improvement of the upper part of Hope-street, and on this account was graced by a large and representative audience, which included many of the magistrates and members of the Town Council. A very suitable attraction for the occasion was found in Mr. George D. Day's company in The Bondman. Mr. Frank Cooper (who takes his original part of Jason), in speaking a few words of thanks, said he never saw the play go better. Mr. Henry Doughty appears in the rôle of Michael Sunlocks, and his conception of the part left nothing to be desired. The important part of Greeba was in the hands of Miss Ida Phillips, who gave an exceedingly touching portrayal; the Farmer Fairbrother of Mr. Adam Alexander was a dignified figure; Mr. Edwin Palmer gave a highly characteristic assumption of the Grandfather; Mr. Gilbert York's Father Ferrati was an excellent study; the Marshal of Police (Mr. W. R. Leigh) was another well-filled part; the Dr. Boni of Mr. Edward Gee and the Testa of Mr. Charles Medwin were outstanding impersonations; Mrs. Edwin Palmer made a pleasant Mrs. Fairbrother; the children were attractively represented by Master Frederick and Miss Rosie Lee, other parts being cleverly played by Mrs. Lee and Miss Dorothy Garth.

Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is here with The Christian. The part of Glory Quayle, as played by Miss Daisy Scudamore, is a pleasing and painstaking effort, and Mr. Frank Beresford gives a finished and artistic performance as John Storm. Mr. P. Gedge Twyman is seen to advantage as Brother Paul, while Polly Love is well sustained by Miss Dorothy Milne. Other parts are competently filled by Messrs. Bert Conway, Arthur E. Maskell, Miss May Weir, and Miss Molly Hayden.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Anthony.—Mr. Bulmer's company is here with Sentenced for Life. Mr. R. Brancepeth-Nevill acts with dramatic effect in the part of Wallace Stillwell, while the hero, Roy Stillwell, is tellingly presented by Mr. Conrad Heywood. The villainy is powerfully brought out by Mr. William Bradford as Captain Derrick, while the good-hearted Parson Orris is finely portrayed by Mr. Terence Hyde. Mr. Harry Cooke, as Percy M'Gentle, though dressed as a parson, is not severely clerical in character, as he keeps the audience in roars of laughter all the time he is on the stage. Mr. Harry Pyne Warburton and Mr. Reg. Oldroyd, as convicts, also contribute a fair share of the fun. The ladies' parts are all pleasingly rendered by Miss Maud Warburton as Adele Gray, Miss Mabel Tremere as Kate Rennel, Miss Mary Dalby as Lady Stillwell, and Miss Kitty Huntley as Lady Gray. Other parts are well filled by Mr. Howard Keane as a Blackmailer, Mr. Archie Scar as Duffey, Mr. Win. Matherson as Warder Blake, Mr. Fred Dalby as George Wade, Mr. H. Walton as Warder Curran, and Mr. Hugh Faulkner as Sir George Gray, R.N.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch. — The Soldier's Wedding is played by Mr. Walter Melville's company. Mr. Wingold Lawrence acts with excellent effect as the hero, Private Jack Brown; and a most sympathetic and engaging heroine is found in Miss Jessie Winter as Nancy Lee; Mr. Beresford Whitcomb plays the good-hearted old Colonel Graham to the life; villainy is well represented by the Julie de Beauvrais of Miss Marie M'Aulay and the Charles Courteney of Mr. Raymond Wood; Miss Georgie de Lara acts with much feeling as Peggy Munroe, and her son Teddy is amusingly played by Little Albert; Mr. Fred Yarnold gives a touch of character to the old farmer, Nathaniel Lee. The humour of Mr. A. Gambier Melford, as Tommy Spratt, and Miss Ettie Carlisle, as Lizzie Walker, was most heartily enjoyed. Mr. Frederick Biron, as the aggrieved husband David Munroe, ably sustained his part. Miss Maggie Burton, as Mrs. Hatherton, and Mr. D. J. Hennessy, as the Auctioneer, added their quota to the success.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Miss Ida Millais's company is here with No Man's Land. Mr. Henry Herne, as Harry Oaklands, is powerful and effective; Mr. Herbert Cecil, as Silas Moore, acts the part of the crafty solicitor most ably; and Mat Marsden, by Mr. Villiers Stanley, is a most vigorous portrayal; Mr. Henry Carlisle, in a dual rôle, Captain and Gilbert Bathurst, is alert, stern, and sympathetic as required; Mr. Alf. Byron, as Thompson, provided ample light comedy; and Mr. J. Weston, as Capt. Spencer, is well suited. As Mary Bathurst, Miss Ida Millais wins many encomiums of praise, while the other characters are suitably represented.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. F. Marriott-Watson's company, in A False Wife, the play which proved so successful at the Royal Princess's last week, is now here, with Miss Florence E. Florence in the leading part.

Empire.—District-Manager, Mr. Sam. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners. — A decidedly novel turn heads the bill this week, in the whip business of Mr. Fred Lindsay. Ella Shields contributes several clever songs in her own dainty style; Brown and Le Clercq revive Black Justice to the evident enjoyment of the audience; Manning's Entertainers prove as funny and smart as before in their clever speciality; the Martinecks give a novel show, in which one of the couple impersonates a lay figure with great fidelity; Eva Hope appears in several scenes from Dickens; Stanley Brett sings well; Eida and Falco give a combined dancing and Ju-jitsu act; and Cribb and Cribb ably deputise for an absent turn.

Zoo-Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—La Vivandiere, presented by Isabel Derry and company on a very complete scale, and in four scenes, serves to interest the house for a good part of the evening. Miss Derry is very effective in the name part, and is well supported by a capable company. Two fine steeds take part in this realistic production. Vanando, ventriloquist, is excellent, and his turn much away from the beaten track; Seener and Fridkin's Russian singers and dancers are delightful in their native songs and dances; Harry Rochez, with his ponies and dogs, presents a performance which is remarkable for skill and intelligence; Rosa Loader, as the musical slavey, quite captivates in a merry and bright vocal and pianoforte recital; Lyster and Cooke, musical experts, are well received for a novel turn, in which some curious instruments are employed. Other attractive entertainment is provided by Sid Bandon, character comedian; Rudge Whitworth, society entertainer; and L. W. Harris, as comedian; and the pictures.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—After a lengthy absence, R. G. Knowles is again in Glasgow, and gathering his many admirers around him. His latest songs and patter are quite in his best style, and he revives several old favourites when requested. Pasquali Brothers are a very smart and neat couple of head-balancers, with a number of striking novelties in their business. Another first-rate turn is that of Natalia and Diana, whose feats on the trapeze are really wonderful. Harry Rogerson gives his "tired comedian" business, with a burlesque drama introduced; and Del and Hal appear in a short sketch, The Doctor's Deputy; the selections of Baker and Balfe on the xylophone are much enjoyed, and the man is a smart dancer; George Steeley and Jenny Dowton give a burlesque potpourri; Leah Arden contributes several clever chorus songs; and Mark Leslie scores as a coon vocalist and dancer.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—The old Glasgow favourites, the Sisters Hall, again appear in their ever popular songs, and are responsible for a capital little turn. Mahatma, assisted by Professor Steen, submits some marvellous second-sight impressions, and completely mystifies the audience. An excellent turn is that of Harry Radford and Mlle. Valentine, whose comedy juggling is interesting, edifying, and extremely amusing. The mock melodrama, That Dreadful Detective, as produced by Fred Moulle and E. D. Nicholl's company, is without doubt one of the funniest shows before the public, and the efforts of the artists receive the applause so well merited; Farr and Farrland are clever comedians, who give a fine and humorous turn; the three Sisters Tree are smart, and their efforts are appreciated; while a dainty little turn is that of Mill, May and Theresa in their Japanese scena; Walter Emerson is a comedian above the average in several ways; and Andie Burn, comedian, and Sam Vincent, acrobat, add to an A1 programme.

Coliseum.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The top turn is entrusted to Harrison Brockbank and company in a nautical sketch, reviving the Old Sea Chanties, or songs of the sea. They are well-trained singers, and the audience derive much enjoyment from their selections. Another item of merit is the performance of the Carmos, Austral's herculean and novelty jugglers, who were specially favoured for their wonderful feats. Other notable turns include John Donald, in his Scottish scena, A Merry Nicht; Spry and Austin, the popular vaudeville artists; Ajax and George, gymnasts and wire performers; Cribb and Cribb, eccentric comedians; Percival, comedy pianist; the Jackson Family, clever instrumentalists; three Cape Girls, comediennes and dancers; and the Bioscope with interesting pictures.

Gaiety, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. A. Cowe.—At the head of the bill are Abel and Welsh, whose names alone are a guarantee of an excellent turn. The Sisters Clifton are duettists and dancers of a good order, and are immensely popular; James Brady, of the old "Brit." fame, has a capital reception, and has to answer several several encores; Miss Jessie Fraser is a pleasing soprano; and Bedford and Mars are responsible for much merriment; another turn deserving of special mention is Glennie's Marionettes; Alpha is smart as a hoop manipulator; and a capital all-round programme terminates with the latest films on the Bioscope.

Britannia.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Will Hawthorne is a pawky Scotch comedian, and takes very well in good songs; and the two Robsons are in favour for a rollicking comedy turn, in which they dance smartly; Ray Thorne and Lilie Benson are respectively warm favourites; they each sing well, and feature dancing, top boots in the latter instance; Lil Dresden is a character singer of note, with a pleasing voice heard in several songs. The Bioscope is a big draw here, and this week's pictures are full of amusement and interest.

GLOSSOP.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spencer.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in Honour Thy Father is here this week. Mr. F. W. Evelyn as Gabriel Garth submits a good portrayal of the character; Mr. Edwin Turner makes the rôle of Jack Halyard stand out conspicuously; Mr. Howell Travis as Duncan Bly acts very well; Mr. Claude Merton in the dual parts of Job Merry and George Bloggs, gives a good reading; Miss Violet Hammersley earns plaudits as Lilian Garth; and Miss Kate Neuton as Gertrude Garth presents a finished representation. Miss Winnie Donovan as Mercy Merry is pleasing; Mr. Kenneth Black as Ned Pennycomequick, Mr. Fred W. Graham as Mike Copplestone, and Miss Lizzie Jacobs as Poppy Cornleigh supply the comedy relief; and the remainder of the company render material assistance.

GLOUCESTER.—Palace.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Messrs. Hodson Lowther and company present a laughable sketch, Barmaids; and Kelly and Agnes, in The Tramp and the Soubrette, do some clever dancing and tumbling. Miss Mabel Sinclair gets a rousing reception for her clever ventriloquism; the Czar Troupe of Russian dancers are very successful indeed; Norris and Butler introduce a comedy act, Going to the Meet, which is meritorious, and duly recognised; Musical Silvo plays some sweet-toned instruments and wins applause; Carl Howard, comic conjuror, pays a return visit; Lily Foy, comedienne, sings a low comedy number; Billy Ross and company appear in a boxing sketch; and the concluding item is the Bioscope.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—The theatre was reopened after the usual summer vacation by Mr. Valentine Beadon's company (under the direction of Mr. Sidney C. Cranston) in the drama The Best Must Win. Mr. Edward M. Heanley gave a powerful rendering of the villainous Gaston; Mr. Sidney C. Cranston's distinguished manner was well suited to the part of the hero, Paul Dumaresq; Mr. Harold Turner submitted a highly amusing portrayal of Juan Minos; and Mr. Herbert Woodin kept the house in roars as Jacquis. Mr. Val Beadon is a capital Sabretache, and Miss C. Desmond, in the dual rôle of Lucille and Thérèse should be congratulated on her spirited acting. Miss Daisy Humphreys in the rôle of Denise Dumaresq quickly won favour by her earnestness; and Miss Madge Palmer made a vivacious Suzette.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company is here this week with the farcical musical play The Dairymaids. Miss Mabel Younge is excellent as Lady Brudenall, whose nephews, Sam and the lieutenant, are capitally played by Mr. Clifford Segler and Mr. Richard Adams; Mr. Arthur W. Ashdowne is effective as Captain Fred Leverton; Dr. O'Byrne finds an amusing exponent in Mr. H. Langdon Bruce; and Mr. John Osborne as Joe Mivens is ludicrous in the extreme. Peggy and Winifred are charmingly represented by Miss Vera Vere and Miss Dorothy Ward; Miss Amie Grey is a fascinating Helene; and Miss Maude Denny a quaint Eliza.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—A return visit is being paid by Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux's company with The Walls of Jericho, and public interest in the play is as keen as ever. Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton gives an earnest virile presentment of Jack Frobisher, and Miss Edith Cuthbert as Lady Alethea is a fascinating modern "smart" woman.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—The Lukushima Troupe of Japanese give a wonderful display of acrobatism; the Mohammed Troupe of Morocco Arabs whirl and twirl and bewilder with their somersaults, one of the younger members showing extraordinary agility; the Selbinis give a sensational cycling show; and other artists complete an exceptionally strong programme.

Britannia Pier.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—The Five Vernons, xylophone experts, are paying a return visit here, and are warmly received; Sydney Lee, the Gay Deceiver, astonishes his audience with his wonderful sleight-of-hand, and achieves a marked success; W. L. Cockburn, bass vocalist; J. B. Selph, actor-vocalist, in scena The Veteran's Dream; the Jollions, in vocal scena, The Spider and the Fly; and the Fimans, in their screaming comedy, The Fire Station, all contribute items that are greatly appreciated. Mme. H. E. Angler's Ladies' Pompadour Band, with its excellent soloists, still remains a pleasant feature in the programme.

Wellington Pier Pavilion.—Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge. The Rustic Scholars provide an amusing and enjoyable entertainment of dance and song; Master Ashley Vincent contributes a clever ventriloquial act; Messrs. Lenten and Bertram supply a capital thought-reading entertainment; a laughable sketch, The Man in Possession, is played in true comedy fashion by Mr. Gus Blake and Miss Maude Granby; and Herr Delikat's band contributes in brilliant style selections of music.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. E. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company is here this week with Sunday. Miss Nita Faydon's finished acting in the title-rôle was all that could be desired. Mr. Leonard Pagden acquitted himself with distinction in the dual rôles of Colonel and Arthur Brinthorpe; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas is good as Tom Oxley; Towzer, Davy, Jacky, and Lively are respectively and creditably impersonated by Messrs. William H. Brougham, Sidney Rennel, Alex. Alves, and James Hussey. Miss Maud Ashley as the nun, and Miss Rosalind Ross as Mrs. Naresby also deserve mention.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessees, The Greenock Empire Syndicate; General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—An excellent programme is submitted here this week, the premier position being taken by Ike and Will Scott, who had a cordial reception; Lloyd's Gondolier Glee Singers are much applauded for their fine operatic selections; Fred. Horsfall is highly successful as a humorist and mimic; the Wallys are particularly smart jugglers; and Sidney Dolf (in a speciality act), Barney Cox (ventriloquist), and the pictures, as usual, complete the programme.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry. — The Turner Opera Company is here. The week opened with Maritana, and Mr. J. W. Turner as Don Cæsar delighted everyone, his voice ringing as true and clear as ever; Miss Christine Gomez sang the music allotted to Maritana with admirable charm and taste; Miss Jessie Dennis repeated her former success as Lazarillo; Mr. John Ridding's interpretation of Don José won complete approval; and Mr. Tom Griffiths was thoroughly satisfactory as the King of Spain. Tuesday was devoted to The Waterman, preceded by the first act of The Daughter of the Regiment; whilst the operas staged on the remaining nights were Faust, The Lily of Killarney, Il Trovatore, and The Bohemian Girl. Besides the ladies and gentlemen already mentioned, those who took prominent parts in the several operas were Miss Sarah Williams, Miss Grace Parish, Miss Beatrice Hill, Miss Maud Esdale, Mr. Kelson Trueman, Mr. G. Keeley, Mr. F. Clarke, Mr. P. Newton, and Mr. Richard Cummins.

The Palace. — Proprietors, The Palace Theatre and Buffet, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Alfred Graham's Premier Juveniles are a smart lot of youngsters, and give a bright entertainment, comprising singing, dancing, and comedy; the Four Robertys are a quartette of clever equilibrists, and also accomplish good juggling; the Musical Schafers give a pleasing instrumental speciality; Sergt. Mumford appears in a novel military drill on the wire; Major Moss and Son contribute good vocalism; Bertha Stuart is a successful Scottish character vocalist; and others appearing are the Melroses, in a comedy sketch; Ethel Loftus, comedienne; and the Henris, jugglers.

GUERNSEY.—Theatre St. Julian.—Lessee, Mr Edward Marris.—The boards were occupied on Monday by Miss Loie Esmond's company in The Sorrows of Satan, a good house being attracted. Mr. Edward Neville acted Prince Lucio with praiseworthy earnestness; Mr. F. D. Howard displayed ability as Geoffrey; Mr. E. Ramsdale was successful as Lord Lynton; Mr. Fred Cherry made a diverting Morris; Mr. Charles Ninian did good service as Amiel; and Charley Grimbes was in the hands of Mr. Fred White. Miss E. St. Barbe proved well suited as Mavis Clare; Miss Rose Neville consistently played Lady Sybil; and Miss Loie Esmond infused the necessary amount of colour into the part of Diana Chesney. Sherlock Holmes is also in the bill for the week.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Peter's Mother is being played here by a company under the Hutchison management. A more delightful leading lady than Miss Violet Ley it would be difficult to conceive. With a picturesque and commanding stage-presence she plays excellently. She was well supported by Mr. Henry Renouf, who created a deep impression as John Crewys; no less successful was Mr. E. F. Meads as the priggish Peter; Mr. Townsend Whitling was a popular physician; and Mr. Ernest Rusten a dignified Sir Timothy. Chalk and Cheese precedes the chief piece.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—An effective battleship act is presented by Brinn, who plays with shrapnel shells; a dramatic sketch, The Light in the Window, is well staged by Fred Winn's company, with Mr. George Cockburn in the principal rôle; Shirley, Liggins, and company are harmonious coloured folk, who sing old-time melodies; Sylvesta, a wizard; Jack Monks, a tenor; the Mezettis, Dan Filmer, and Blanche and Zena all present original and interesting business.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—The star item here this week is furnished by Mr. Arthur Watson and Flo Stanley's burlesque company in The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, brimful of bright comedy; Lottie Stone's talented ballet adds to the success. A clever boxing travesty is well given by the Bros. Ashley; the possessor of a fine voice is Lilian Lowe, which she utilises advantageously; From School to Stage affords scope for the Simms, the dancing in particular being good; Harry Milton, Dutch comedian; Lang and Beale; and Bert Weston, raconteur, are also in the programme.

HANLEY. — Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Vivian Edmonds and Miss Mary Austin's company are paying a welcome visit in that stirring drama, Women and Wine. The piece is nicely mounted, and is admirably enacted. Miss Cissie St. Elmo contributes a clever and intelligent impersonation as Marcel Rigadout, her performance throughout being capital; as La Colombe, Miss Joan Pereira makes the most of the part, and is highly successful; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds once more proves himself an actor of exceptional ability, his portrayal of Dick Seymour being a splendid piece of acting; Miss Violet Sims is a charming and sympathetic Mary Andrews; Mr. J. Milne Taylor as Hugh Seymour is a character-actor of a capital order, his representation of the blind man being decidedly clever; Mr. Edwin Kesby does well as Calaban; Mr. Fred W. Goddard as Alphonse Beaudet is well placed; and Messrs. William Manning and Harry Harrop are seen to advantage in the respective parts of Professor Sauter and Charles Sauter; Miss Ethel Vinroy does well as Janet Marlow. Other parts are in good hands.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—Roland, the illusionist, heads the bill with his truly wonderful performance; Daisy James returns in her latest songs, which are admirably rendered; Harry Nelson scores a huge success, and is, without doubt, a clever comedian; Helene Martin is a vocalist of extraordinary merit. This lady has a really fine voice, and uses it admirably. The Sisters Julian are a pleasing pair of duettists and dancers; the Albano Troupe, in their musical act, are much appreciated, their contributions being excellent; Nada Moret, dramatic vocalist, provides a novel turn, which is heartily applauded; G. W. Hunter's songs and patter cause much amusement; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux show, as usual, some clever and interesting pictures.

Makes the Skin as Soft as Velvet.—Beetham's "La-rola" preserves the Skin from the effects of the sun, winds, and hard water. Entirely removes and prevents all roughness, redness, irritation, tan, &c., and Keeps the Skin Soft, Smooth, and White at all Seasons. Invaluable for the Complexion, Delightfully Cooling and Refreshing after golfing, cycling, motoring, tennis, boating, &c. Gentlemen will find it wonderfully soothing if applied after shaving. Bottles, 1s., 1s. 9d., and 2s. 6d. each, of all Chemists and Stores. M. Beetham and Son, Cheltenham.—[Advt.]

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—This week Mr. Martin Harvey and company are paying their annual visit. On Monday and Tuesday The Breed of the Treshams was in the bill. Mr. Martin Harvey gave his usual clever performance of Lieut. Reresby, and was applauded to the echo; Mr. Charles J. Cameron was excellent as Viscount Dorsington; and his son, Clement Hungerford, had an able exponent in the person of Mr. Chas. Glenney. Mr. Fred Wright, sen., was all that could be desired at Colonel Bagshaw; Mr. Philip Hewland was excellent as the revengeful Capt. Stanhope; Mr. Leonard Craske was one of the features of the play, he was most excellent, and his bright and boyish performance was the subject of general admiration; Miss Coleridge gave a sweet and sympathetic performance as Margaret Hungerford; and Miss N. de Silva appeared with her usual success in the part of the boy Batty. The piece was beautifully mounted and dressed, and the stage was under the direction of Mr. H. J. Loveday. Wednesday and Thursday The Corsican Brothers; Friday, A Cigarette-Maker's Romance; and Saturday, two shows of The Only Way.

The Kursaal.—Musical Director and General-Manager, Mr. Julian Clifford; Secretary, Mr. Eldrid.—The band here has been increased to its full numbers for August and September, and now is heard at its best. Mr. Julian Clifford is to be congratulated on having gathered together forty-five musicans of the first quality. The attractions for this week include Miss Palgrave Turner and Mr. Chas Tree, vocalists, and Mr. David Beveridge, reciter. On Wednesday Mr. Edward German was announced to conduct a programme of his own works. A display of fireworks in the evening is to follow.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The programme is this week headed by the Mayfair Comedy Quartette, whose vocal and comedy entertainment is much enjoyed. Miss Agnes Molteno's splendid voice charms all, and her scena, "And Old-time Story," is fully appreciated; the patter of W. G. Wesley keeps the audience in one continued ripple of merriment; the mimicry of Lily Sharplin is indeed clever; harmony is agreeably contributed by the Paragon Trio; and old favourites are represented by the talented Sisters Russell and Vowles and Bryan. The Pathé Frères' pictures are very interesting.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr Charles E. Scutt.—On Monday Miss Ellen Terry and company opened a three days' visit here with Mr. Bernard Shaw's romantic play, Captain Brassbound's Conversion. Miss Terry filled the rôle of Lady Cecily Waynflete with much charm of manner, and the crowded house accorded her unstinted applause again and again; the Captain had a splendid representative in Mr. James Carew; the Scots missionary was cleverly played by Mr. Story-Gofton, and his convert, Felix Drinkwater, was well defined by Mr. George Elton. A good impersonation of the staid and dignified Sir Howard Hallam was played by Mr. Rudge Harding; Mr. Frank Powell as the Cadi and Mr. W. T. Lovell as Captain Kearney proved praiseworthy respectively. Other minor parts were in safe hands. The success of the opening night has extended throughout the visit, and the cordial and kindly receptions Miss Terry has received must be most gratifying to the eminent actress. On Thursday and for the remainder of the week Mr. George Dance's company played The Catch of the Season.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Vivian Fisher; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The names of an excellent series of artists appear in this week's programme, which is opened by Sam Mitchello, the eccentric comedian; the Bros. Mills are smart society gymnasts and ring performers; Miss Sheila McNeil sings some pleasing Scotch ballads, whilst her patter is very amusing; the special Bioscope films, How to Cure a Cold and Crime on the Railway, are remarkably effective; The Roadside Tinkers, Olive and Owen, introduce some telling duets in their little sketch; an attractive comedy soubrette, Miss Lizze Daniels, vocalises in a sprightly manner; Miss Maude May Murray exhibits some graceful evolutions in her electric dance act; Geo. Brooks puts plenty of healthy vigour into his comic songs, and receives great applause; Mlle. Lucretia has an excellent voice and a charming style of rendering her songs; and the burlesque artists, Newham and Latimar, create great fun.

Pier Pavilion. — Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—An accomplished band of operatic and comedy entertainers, under the designation of "The So-and-So's," are crowding the theatre, and go through a very interesting programme, their songs and other lyrical pieces embodying much that is mirthful and pretty; Mr. H. Quiningborough introduces some humorous songs; the vocal efforts of Miss Maude Davis are well received; and Miss Annie Lang is a skilful dancer as well as vocalist. Excellent ballads are rendered by Mr. Stuart Alexander; Mr. Ernest Thiel at the piano with some amusing songs, and Miss Margery Bride, who has a pleasing style of singing, complete half the programme. After the interval Mr. C. H. Charlton introduces his "magic kettle"; Miss Jessie Broughton, contralto vocalist, at the piano; the Japanese Yosan Family, five in number, exhibit some marvellous acrobatic feats; and Payne's Bio-photoscope conclude a successful evening.

Beach Concert Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Blackmore.—Mr. Wallis Arthur's company continue to attract large houses. Miss Marie Schultz is vivaciously attractive, and Miss Edith Blanchard renders her songs commendably.

St. Leonards Pavilion Theatre.—Pier-Master and Entertainment Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Henry Arthur Jones's comedy, The Liars, presented by Mr. A. Austin-Leigh and his talented company, are drawing large houses here this week. Mr. A. Austin-Leigh sustains the fine character of Col. Cir Christopher Dering in a true and manly spirit; a convincing interpretation of the explorer, Edward Falkner, is given by Mr. E. Brampton; the jealous and suspicious husband, Gilbert Nepean, is a fine character sketch by Mr. H. G. Mason; Freddie Tatton, a highly-amusing part, is well taken by Mr. A. J. Harding; Mr. W. P. Wells sustains the waiter at the Star and Garter in a creditable manner. An excellent study from life is displayed by Miss Emmie O'Reilly in the rôle of the widow, Mrs. Ebernoe. Both Miss Mabel Archdall and Miss May Saker are charmingly natural in the respective parts of Lady Rosamund Tatton and Lady Jessica Nepean. Their cousin, Dolly Coke, shows good style, Miss Belle Travers giving an exceedingly effective portrait. The reception accorded the drama is quite enthusiastic.

HOYLAND.—Metropole.—Lessee and Manager, Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Geo. R. Baker.—This theatre reopened on Monday night to a crowded house with Mr. James Hare's company in A Destroyer of Men. Mr. James Hare shows to advantage in the triple rôle of Karl Mischla, Herr Rung, and Uno. As Count Starevitch Mr. C. P. Wentworth is very good; Mr. Chas. Bickell is a manly Michael Mischla; and Mr. Chas. Coventry as Fedor Strellitzke is good. Messrs. Hill Cremer, Arthur Swain, and Alfred Minns, as Paul Starevitch, Colonel Linievitch, and Sergeant Kranz respectively are capital. The comedy element is well sustained by Mr. Ross Warren as Coco Tatchoski, ably assisted by Miss Alice Buckland as Nina Pattakake. As Vida Ravel Miss Emmie Barton is all that can be desired; and Miss Irene Clifford displays great histrionic ability as Olga Mischla.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—The Village Blacksmith is the title of the drama staged this week. Mr. Sam Livesey's fine physique is admirably adapted for his part of John Strong, the village blacksmith; whose wife, Kate Strong, is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Maggie Edwards; Mr. Joseph Carter's thorough-paced villainy as Captain Leo brings down howls of execration from the "gods"; adequate support is afforded by the rest of the company, which includes Mr. Edwin Mayden as Marler, Mr. G. V. Campbell as Billy Twigg, and Miss Cassie le Grande as Ruth Parkins.

Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—A well-varied bill includes Donaldson Bros. and Ardel in their acrobatic speciality, Fun at the Zoo; Mr. and Mrs. Royston Dene, in a cleverly-written playlet, entitled My Lady's Chamber; Misses Florence and Lillian, two charming and accomplished musicians; Barney Armstrong, eccentric comedian; Miss Lena Brunton, a capable mimic; the Athos troupe of daring acrobats, and new films on the Bioscope.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Wm. Mollison, that grand actor, is here in a round of Shakespearean and other plays. Choosing Macbeth for his opening performance, Mr. Mollison added to his reputation in his conception of that difficult rôle, his physical attributes combined with his mental capacity making his reading a noteworthy performance. Miss Evelyn McNay was a conscientious wife, and gave a traditional picture; Mr. W. Calvert was a commendable Macduff. The great witch scene was capitally presented. During the week The Merchant of Venice, Bonnie Briar Bush, and As You Like It have been included in the bill.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—My Darling, a capital comedy new to Hull, opened here on Monday. Its musical numbers are very pretty. Joy Blossom, entrusted to Miss Marie Studholme, is daintily represented; as the lover, Mr. Robt. Hale is refreshing; Mr. McArdle keeps the house in a state of much amusement; Mr. Alex Chentrens has a good voice, which he uses very well; Mr. Tom Graves is a comedian of merit; the Daphne Bell of Miss Ethel Negretti is a striking feature of the performance; the Lady Beldon of Miss Alice Barth is well worthy this talented artist. The dressing is very effective and the chorus well blended.

Alexandra Theatre.—Morton's Ltd.—Manager, Mr. G. Morton.—Mr. Montagu Beaudyn's company at this well-known house is responsible for the production of A Beautiful Fiend, which is distinctly to the public taste, judging by the patronage bestowed. Miss Sidney Crowe sustains the reputation for artistic talent which is associated with her name, realising the rôle admirably. A pathetic picture is that painted by Miss Phyllis Brend as the ill-used wife, Nadine; Mr. Oliver Birrell is a striking Ivan Paulovitch, and Mr. Natt Russell as Sergt. Strogoff is equally successful; the heavy rôle of Count Feder Karoteff fits Mr. Harry C. Robinson to perfection, and the rest of the company are good in their respective parts.

The New Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham.—F. V. St. Clair, Carter Livesey, and Lilian Roseberry, and the Three Sisters Jonghmanns' are the three principal turns here. Other artists include Tom Yorke, Frances Hanlon, Keith and Merson, Hans and Lux, and Angelina.

The Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—J. Wright Aitken and company appear in a sensational sketch; Alice Grossmith and Lyall Grant present an amusing trifle, The Chorus Girl and the Call-Boy; Clarice Sefton is a speciality artist of merit; the Sisters Wilfred sing and dance nicely; the Glen Trio and R. Y. MacDonald complete a good bill.

HYDE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company is here with Driven from Home. The play is excellently mounted, and the cast includes Messrs. Francis Everard, Felix Pitt, G. Thorne, Chas. Burdon, Arthur Dudley, Fred C. Imbert, H. Bartley, Harry Cornwall, Edward Finlay, and Misses Muriel Dean, Madge Murdock, Florence Wilson, Susie Bevan, and Lizzie Ingles.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—A Fight for a Throne is being played this week by the company of Mr. Lingford Carson. Miss Elma C. Turner plays well as Princess Esmee; Mr. Sam Arthur presents a careful study of Capt. Jack Fortesque; Mr. John B. Murray is excellently chosen for Nicholai I.; and Mr. Edwin Clarke scores as Sir George Coventry. Messrs. Karl H. Edwards and John C. Harvey are successful respectively as Paul Rodna and Father Ambrose; Mr. Fred Danvers (Tom Ferrett), Mr. Leonard Maitland (Hon. Percy Fitzmaurice), and Miss Evelyn Marrable (Lady Pat) very capably represent the lighter side of the piece. Miss Evelyn Robson gives a good reading of Countess Valeski Lorenski, and the General Rodna of Mr. W. S. Stevenson is a good performance. The rôle of Otto, Prince of Weimar, is cleverly dealt with by Mr. Charles E. Linney.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—This week Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here with The Sin of Her Childhood. Mr. Arthur Traill gives a good account of Thomas Haysel; Mr. W. Summers plays Stephen Haysel forcibly; Mr. Guy Hastings is seen to advantage as the Rev. Alan Gray; and Mr. F. Liston is a satisfactory Capt. John Thornton. Mr. Hugh Brady is quite at home in the part of Barney O'Reilly, being ably assisted by Miss Katie Lever as Eliza Muggins; Miss C. Santley is an excellent Maria Haysel; and Miss Nellie Thorne Hallam a charming Mary Haysel. To Eric Dugdale justice is done by Little Dorothy, and Miss Nellie King is well placed as Hannah Spry.

JERSEY.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. E. Marris.—Miss Elfie Vincent and Miss Maisie Gerrard, Mr. E. Marris' Veroniques, took a benefit here on Monday, and their popularity was proved by the bumper house which assembled to greet them, and the numerous floral tributes they received. On Tuesday Miss Loie Esmond's company appeared in The Sorrows of Satan, Miss Esmond taking the part of Diana Chesney, Miss Ethel St. Barbe the rôle of Mavis Clare, and Miss Rosie Neville that of Lady Sybil; whilst Mr. Edward Neville was successful as Prince Lucio. For Friday night Nana was announced.

Horseshoe Quarry.—Mr. Edward Marris's Pierrots and Veroniques are keeping up their popularity. Miss Maisie Gerrard and Miss Elfie Vincent, assisted by Messrs. Reginald Hamber and James Salter, give several very amusing sketches.

Triangle Park.—The Scarlet Mr. E's and their Jester, Mr. Walter Dowling, opened here on Monday with their well-known refined entertainment.

Oddfellows' Hall.—Mr. C. W. Poole's Imperial Myriorama is paying a much shorter visit here than usual, this being the closing week, and as their performance is immensely popular in Jersey, it is Pictures in the Fire, was repeatedly encored. Miss Nancy St. John was a dainty comedienne; and the Mavilles (marionettes) and the pictures were well received. The Young Lieutenant is the attraction during the latter part of the week.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Amasis is being played by Mr. Louis Calvert's company. Mr. Rutland Barrington has a part well to his liking as the great Pharaoh; Prince Anhotep has a handsome, dashing representative in Mr. Ronald Cunningham; whilst the Princess Amasis is a sweet and charming personage in the hands of Miss Winifred O'Connor, her fine vocal renditions being quite the most enjoyable feature of the evening. The humour of the piece is largely in the hands of Mr. Lauri de Frece as the irrepressible crocodile-keeper, and Mr. Arthur Watts as the ill-fated Ptolemy, and their efforts throughout are provocative of great merriment. Miss Mabel Burgene makes a pretty and vivacious serving-maid; and Mr. John Doran, Mr. George Fox, and Mr. Frank Perfitt are also effective in their parts.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson and company are here with the drama, Revenge. Mr. Hill-Mitchelson himself portrays the important character of the villainous Prince Orloff in a masterly and effective style; Mr. George Daiver gives a fine study of Capt. Vanessa; Mr. William Heilbron as the King acts with ability; whilst Miss Mary S. Smith, Miss Violet Carlyle, and Miss Alice Barber are seen to advantage in the leading feminine parts.

Empire Palace, Ltd.—District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex Galley.—A popular comedian who comes all too rarely is Harry Randall, from whom no less than four songs at each performance are demanded. The turn of the Polnski Bros. secures great appreciation, as also does the sand-dancing speciality cleverly executed by Frank Cumminger; a remarkably smart protean act is done by Mlle. Von Etta; Esta Stella, comedienne, takes exceedingly well; Lina Verdi mimics various music hall stars with considerable success; Conn and Conrad are amusing in a laughable burglary sketch; a dainty dancing speciality by Lottie Govell is well received; and the vocal efforts of Ellis Barrieton are exceedingly praiseworthy.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush. — Messrs. Damerell and Rutland's company in the exceedingly funny sketch, House Full, provide a leading line which is vastly enjoyed. The Markies are presenting an acceptable vocal and comedy act; Barrett and Knowles, comedians, are most entertaining; George Bendon is a big favourite locally; and the Arleys, in gymnastic speciality; Belle Braham, with illustrated pictures; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, vocalists; Lindsay and Hart, comedy duo; and Mollie Seymour, in song-scena, submit capital performances.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—The Three Braggs occupy a prominent position in this week's bill, and their clever and novel acrobatic exhibition is most interesting and enjoyable. Albert Wyndham and company present a dramatic Shakespearean episode in effective style; much hilarity is provoked by the Waldrons, in a mirthful absurdity; Maidie Scott's vocal items are well received; entertaining song and dance are subscribed by the Eight Lancashire Lads; Ted Cowan, the well-known comedian, also does well; another capable comedy artist appearing is Phil Bransby; Winifred Ward wins appreciation for her male impersonations; and George Victor, actor-vocalist, creates a good impression.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Those very popular entertainers, Bella and Bijou, are eminently successful in a new répertoire of good things; Dora Lyric, a charming vocalist, proves most popular; a clever comedy trio, Ross, Taylor, and Elvio, are appearing in a laughable absurdity; the speciality dancing of Dolly Golden is much admired; Auto is clever and amusing in instrumental comedy; a pair of smart acrobatic grotesques are to be found in Ryde and Beeman; and J. H. McCann, comedian and skating speciality artist, is also a successful contributor.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's principal company is here in The Stronger Sex. As Mrs. Van Gerkerken, Miss Emma Hutchison scores a conspicuous success with a portrayal of all-round excellence; Miss Margaret Fareleigh as Mary Barrington enacts the part to perfection; and as the Hon. Warren Barrington, Mr. H. J. Carvill is exceedingly good. Mr. George Rowlands well maintains his high reputation as Oliver Thorpe; and Miss Margaret Cavania does full justice to the part of Joan Forsythe. The entertaining comedietta, Chalk and Cheese, precedes, in which Miss Dorothy Lart as Sybil Raymond, Miss Dorothea Black as Perkins, and Mr. George Rowlands as Walter Raymond appear with success.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—Mr. William A. Armour's company is here in the drama, The Best of Her Sex, in which the part-author, Mr. William A. Armour, is seen to considerable advantage as Philip Farringdon. Mr. Cole Aspinall is very good as the Rev. Stephen Maxwell; Miss Ina Grant is excellent as Ruth Raeburn; Mr. Wilfred Protheroe as Leslie Verney and Miss Dora Price as Vera Delorme are both very successful; Mr. Herbert de Ville is capital as Jake Smith; the humorous element is well looked after by Miss Nell Ingram as Polly Perkins, Mr. Fred Rignold as the Constable Jorkins, and Mr. Horace Buckley as Holy Joe. Miss Lillian Rose deserves a meed of praise as Little Phil.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—The lead is taken here this week by Fred Storey and company, in the elaborately-staged and exceedingly well-played Rip Van Winkle, in which Mr. Storey in the name-part makes a big hit. Miss Lilian Holmes is very good as Gretchen; and as the youngsters, Meeni and Heidrich Vedder, Miss Nora Thornton and Master Hemingway are deserving of the highest praise. Others who give capable assistance are Mr. A. Maitland Stapley, Mr. Keith Fraser, and Miss Edith Cornish. A delightfully entertaining turn is given by the Six Æolians, high-class vocalists and smart dancers; Arabella Allen scores a conspicuous success with her remarkably clever character impersonations from Dickens; Rich and Rich create plenty of merriment with their patter; Dean Bros. are excellent whistlers, and their neat dancing is much above the average; Powell's Marionettes are worked in a manner that delights all parts of the house; the Five Osranis are seen to advantage in a burlesque pantomime act; Elsie Claire sings well; and Elsie Robey is again appearing in her amusing musical comedy act, The Slavey at the Piano. The Bioscope is depicting Carl Hagenbeck's Wild Animal Park at Hamburg, &c.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—A most successful first visit is being given here this week of the sporting sketch, Lord Harkaway, presented by Mr. Frederick Maxwell and company, the chief characters in which are played in good style by Mr. Frederick Maxwell (Lord Harkaway), Miss Louise Biddulph (Grace Deane), and Mr. Charles Levey (Stuart Landon). The realistic glove fight between Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Levey brings down the house. Tod Lowen, a really smart and funny comedian, creates roars of laughter; Bessie Willow, who is possessed of a good voice and stage presence, is popular; Dale and Vale, comedy duo, are clever dancers; the Twin Sisters Edwards are entertaining vocalists, dancers, and drummers; Chris. Baker, a capital comedian, creates much merriment; the Brothers Lester, coon vocalists and clever dancers, are well received. A special feature is Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, with the Coventry Pageant, Carl Hagenbeck's Wild Animal Park, &c.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Mr. Lester Collingwood's company, in When London Sleeps, is paying a return visit. Miss Mabel Scudamore gives a pleasing and impressive performance as Queenie Carruthers; David Eagleheart is finely portrayed by Mr. Edward E. Ashby; Mr. Richard Ferris plays with dramatic force as Captain Rodney Haynes; Mr. Frank Howard does exceedingly well as the Hon. Bertie Broomhead; Miss Lilla Wilde plays with great dramatic effect as Hilda Carode; and Mr. F. E. Thomas admirably sustains the part of Bob Jones. Miss Bella Power is pleasing as Signoria Robertio Jonesio; Mr. Fred Bernerdo deserves praise as P.C. Stone.

LEITH. — New Gaiety Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning is soundly interpreted by a well-selected company here this week. The rôle of Will Mason finds in Mr. Roy Redgrave an ideal representative of the British sailor hero; Miss Rona Merrick makes an effective appearance in the difficult part of the misguided heroine; the villain, James Harcourt, and his female accomplice, Vesta le Clere, are played with all the requisite fiendishness by Mr. Walter Thornton and Miss Nannie Meade; the comic lover business is amusingly worked by Mr. Willie Reid and Miss Marie Kildare as Johnny Walker and Poppy Slater; Mr. Sidney Sarl and Mr. Kenneth Black contribute fine character studies in their respective impersonations of Bill Slater and Richard Fenton; and the pathos of occasional scenes is sympathetically rendered by the Jack and Lucy of Mr. Frank R. Robertson and Miss Hilda Baynton. Minor parts are all capably filled, and admirable stage-setting marks every scene in an interesting performance.

LINCOLN.—Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Eric Longden.—A very strong bill is submitted again, the chief turn being supplied by Mr. Alfred Lester, who, supported ably by Miss Florence Wakeman, presents a real side-splitter in A Restaurant Episode. Nothing funnier has ever been seen at the Palace. The Three Royal Dreadnoughts presented a superb rifle-shooting act, their precision being marvellous; Jack Raè, Bert and Dora, Percy Curry, Salvino, Claude Fieldman's beau-idcal troupe of juveniles, and Raymond's Bioscope all score greatly.

LIVERPOOL.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Excellent business has been done at the principal theatre this week through Mr. Robert Courtneidge sending an able, all-round company to present The Dairymaids. The smart farcical play proved very acceptable, the audiences being kept in a merry mood by the eccentricities of Mr. Harry Dent as Joe Mivens, A.B., and by Miss Sissie Sephton, to whom was given rounds of applause for her delightful Eliza, the maid-of-all-work, the clever little lady being always well to the front both as vocalist and dancer; Mr. E. Statham Staples added largely to the fun with his Sam Brudenell; every praise was due to Miss Edith Blanche for her interesting and carefully-drawn portrait of Lady Brudenell; Mr. Frank Steward realised the part of Lieut. Brudenell; a capital Dr. O'Byrne came from Mr. Percy Marshall; Miss Phyllis Dare was a sweet Peggy, and made the most of her opportunities; Mr. Fred Foster as Lieut. Brereton helped greatly with the fun; the singing and dancing of Miss Gay Cilvani (Winifred) and Miss Beryl Vaudrey (Helene) were much appreciated; Mr. Harry Cottel afforded every satisfaction as Capt. Fred Leverton; and Miss Hetty Chapman realised to its full the character of Penelope Pychase. The chorus, dresses, and scenic effects were admirable.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey have always been assured of a welcome in Liverpool, and this week when they brought their new production, Rollicking Rory, was no exception to the rule. Mr. Mackey made a funny Rory, and his witticisms were followed by incessant laughter; Mrs. Mackey was a charming Rosaleen Ashleigh; Miss Nana Flensburg helped largely with the fun as Rory's wife, and sang "Rory O'More" in a manner that brought showers of applause; Mr. Charles Homer as Desmond made a typical Irish gentleman, and rendered "The harp that once through Tara's Halls" with much feeling and sweetness; a well-drawn portrait of the money-lender, D'Arcy, was offered by Mr. David McFarlane; Mr. Haughton Macaulay did well in the part of Shaun Brady; Madame Constance Bellamy pleased as Mary Maloney, and as Queen of the Fairies, her voice being heard to advantage in "Kathleen Mavourneen" and "Of fairy wand"; and Miss Adele Liddon made a humorous Mrs. O'Donohoe.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Messrs. Polini and Melford's Silver King has proved a big draw here this week. Mr. Fred D. Daviss showed considerable ability as Wilfrid Denver; Miss Adali Barton made a touching and sympathetic Nellie; Mr. Edward J. George as Jaikes carried off high honours, as usual; Miss Flossie Hall Daviss played Cissy with every intelligence; Mr. Arthur Wright was satisfactory as Elijah Coombe; and Miss Mary Simpson did the most possible with Mrs. Gamage.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, The Granville Theatres Company, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company occupy the stage here this week with A Broken Heart, a play of much power and interest. Miss Louise Peach as Mary Barnard plays in a most sympathetic manner; Mr. Harry Cullingford proves a fine John Barnard; and able support comes from Messrs. Charles Vivian, Will Lindsay, George M. Newell, and W. H. Foxwell, and Miss Maud Stuart and Miss Florrie Sorsby. The drama is well mounted and dressed.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The picturesque living statuary introduced by Mr. Albert Toft has been witnessed here by delighted audiences; Matthew Brodie and company, including Miss Dorothea Vivian, give a pleasing sketch, entitled A Drummer of the 76th; a humorous trifle, The Adventures of a Happy Tramp, comes from Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris; the rapid dancing of the Sousloffs is witnessed with wonder; Harry Leybourne displays remarkable powers as a double-voiced comedian; Pauline Viola and Nellie Lloyd present their marvellous jumping Siberian wolf-hounds; that exceptionally clever sand dancer, My Fancy, is loudly applauded; Marie Burnett has some pleasing picture songs; and J. B. Preston, Scotch comedian, also appears.

Tivoli, Ltd.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot; Manager, Mr. Jas. Marks.—A big attraction here this week is the picturesque classical statuary presented by the Seldom's Venus, which is much admired; the cleverly-manipulated D'Arc's Marionettes cause endless wonder and amusement; prolonged laughter is aroused by The Porter and the Parcel, an absurdity for which Howard and Collinson are responsible; Mike Cray, comedy juggler, and his intelligent dog, prove exceedingly interesting; T. G. Atken is a Scotch comedian of merit; and others in the list are Goodfellow and Gregson, comedy speciality artists; Alexander Edwin, vocalist; and Edna Latonne, singer of chorus songs.

Lyric — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Principal here this week are Maurin's Fountains, with a wonderful electric stage spectacle; Jordan and Harvey, also in big type, are funny Hebrew comedians, causing endless laughter by their patter; a neat comedy duologue, The Chambermaid, is presented by Clara Reid and company; the Ramlos submit a clever gymnastic comedy act; Zelda had some musical novelties; as Roman statuary acrobats, the Olmars appear with every credit; Clifton and Gibson contribute largely to the evening's amusement; and likewise in the list are Lily Lassah, a dainty comedienne and dancer; and Oliver Conroy, comedian.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—The always popular Sam Mayo heads the programme this week, and enjoys a rousing reception; an attractive dramatic episode, entitled The Act of Hearts, comes from James Willard and company; Rappo and Ella, graceful gymnasts, afford every satisfaction; the phantom clogs is a dancing speciality by the Delomes; Lilas Poole sings several acceptable pieces; a most entertaining musical act is submitted by the Coes; Mountford and Walsh, speciality artists, prove a real treat; and the list is supplemented by the Three Royal Temples, operatic vocalists; and Will Goodwin, vocal comedian.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The stock dramatic company here have this week presented The Woman in Black. Mr. Cecil Ravenswood made an able Squire Edenbridge; as Frank Edenbridge Mr. Harry Tresham was greatly appreciated; the rascally Captain Edinbridge found in Mr. Sydney Grant a good exponent; Mr. Robert Wilton satisfactorily carried out the work of amusing as Rob Stokes; Miss Beryl Ravenswood played excellently in the title-part; Miss Florence Palmer tenderly portrayed the rôle of Ruth; and the comedy was largely assisted by Miss Florence Cameron as Gwenny Morgan.

Paddington Palace. — Proprietors, Liverpool Theatres of Varieties; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Edwards.—The Penalty of Crime has been given here this week by the stock company. Included among the principal artists were Messrs. Ernest Wingfield, Henry Hesselgrave, Frank S. Strickland, Francis E. Wybert, H. G. Brandon, Miss Gladys Hastings Walton, Miss Lina Nazeby, and Miss Florence Barnes.

Haymarket.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Harry Calden and company still remain here with their well-presented dramatic sketches. This week they have given Innocents; or, A Son's Devotion. The favourite Joe Humreys has come again with his old and new songs, and had a hearty welcome; the Sisters Gaynor, as duettists and dancers, were a popular turn; Little Bobby, a local "gallery boy," afforded a deal of pleasure with his mimicking of vaudeville artists; and the cinematograph showed some remarkable pictures.

Westminster.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The Ottowas, with their smart musical act, topped the bill here this week; Payne Clark, the well-known tenor, rendered several popular pieces; Sadie Seymour sang and danced agreeably; and Bonette and Carri proved a funny pair of jugglers. The Bioscope had some capital pictures.

Olympia. — District - Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton. — The big line here this week is the interesting work of Miss Alice Norton, maker of rubies and sapphires; Maud Rochez causes endless amusement and interest with her clever monkey comedians, the well-trained little animals going through their work with remarkable intelligence; a popular artist, in the person of Lily Burnand, earns a flattering reception for her new songs; Fred Elton delights everybody with his scena at the piano, "On Board an Ocean Liner"; the audience enjoy a hearty laugh at Aunt Matilda, a sketch presented by Frank Elliston and company; the Five Juanitas perform some particularly clever acrobatic work; and also in the list are Mlle. Eldee, with a charming posing performance; Eric, ventriloquist; and Will Cromwell, character vocalist.

Roscommon.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Good business continues to be done here by the stock dramatic company, headed by Mr. Percy Boucher. This week the play given has been Brought to Justice. Mr. Herbert H. Young ably portrayed John Holmcroft; Mr. J. D. Geddes did well as Luke Brierly; the part of Frank Dalton was in the able hands of Mr. A. Wilson Rae; Mr. C. H. Maxwell afforded satisfaction as Bob Lucifer; Mr. Percy Boucher proved exceedingly funny in the part of Jonas Swallow; and of the ladies, Miss Lilian Beaumont did the most with Nell Forester; Miss Enid Wilde was a merry Sally Bluebell; and Miss Flo Russell filled the part of Beatrice Hetherington with credit.

LLANDUDNO.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—For three nights this week Mr. George Dance's company appeared before large audiences in The Beauty of Bath. Mr. Andrew Higginson as Lieut. Richard Allington sings and dances well, and is extremely funny; Mr. Reggie Grey as Lord Quorn and Mr. Bay Russell as Mr. Beverley are good; Mr. Jack Crichton as Sir Timothy Bun dances splendidly; Master Basil Clifford as Lemon Goodge is unusually clever with his impersonations; Miss Edith Cruickshanks as Mrs. Allington deserves credit; Miss Jessie Lonnen's singing and dancing in the part of Miss Truly St. Cyr is greatly admired; Miss Ida Laurie in the part of Mrs. Goodge is well placed; the Hon. Betty Silverthorne is in the capable hands of Miss Gladys Guy. The Little Michus was announced for the remainder of the week.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. A. E. Vaughan; Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—Mr. E. Taylor Platt's London company opened here for three nights with Mr. Bernard Shaw's comedy, You Never Can Tell. Miss Penelope Wheeler as Mrs. Clandon is well placed; Miss Mary Barton plays Gloria Clandon in becoming style; Miss Amy Lamborn as Dolly Clandon is well suited; Mr. Norman Page is Phillip Clandon gives an excellent portrayal; Mr. Edmund Curney as Fergus Crampton gives a good rendering of a difficult part; Mr. Trevor Lowe as Finch McGomas is good; Mr. P. Clayton-Greene as Valentine deserves praise; Mr. Edmund Gwenn (the Waiter) could not be improved upon; and Mr. Lewis Casson (Bohum) is good. Robin Hood was announced for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Pier Head Pavilion.—Local Manager, Mr. A. R. Sutcliffe. — Messrs. Adeler and Sutton have an extra strong cast this week, the bill being headed by Jock Whiteford. Wee Mona and the local manager, Mr. A. R. Sutcliffe, are also included among the cast. Large audiences attend nightly.

Happy Valley.—Mr. W. J. Churchill's Minstrels continue to find favour with all. The White Coons do good business, and have extra attractions this week, one specialist advertised being George Codman, champion bone soloist of the world.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company is paying a welcome return visit in The Duchess of Dantzic, which is handsomely staged and dressed. The principals all work together successfully, and admirable support is rendered by the full chorus and augmented orchestra. Miss Georgina Delmar as Sans Gene submits a highly-finished and very entertaining portrayal, for which she is enthusiastically applauded. Mention must also be made of the admirable representation of Napoleon, presented by Mr. Frank Bradley.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—The Royal Italian Circus is still delighting large audiences. Signor Volpi's performing animals give a wonderful display; and the eccentricities of Nimble Nip, Wee Willie, Piccolo, and Fiori cause endless amusement.

LUTON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. T. Edward Ward has brought his best London company in the latest of Mr. Walter Howard's dramas, Second to None, here this week, and is being received most enthusiastically by good houses nightly. Mr. Jerrold Heather, in the rôle of Harry Wilding, contributes a most convincing impersonation. He is assisted by Miss Ward, whose portrayal of Nell Greystone is especially praiseworthy. Mr. C. W. Spencer admirably personates the character of Sir Reginald, and the same must be said of Mr. J. G. Maine in the difficult character of Horseman. Captain Manning is undertaken by Mr. A. Brandon, who conveys an excellent impression; and some amusing comedy is supplied by Mr. Vane as Lieut. Ballater and Miss Lawson as May. Joe Ruggles by Mr. Carruthers and Private Flutter by Mr. Preece are very humorous.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gattey.—A select and artistic variety company, under the personal supervision of Mr. J. W. Almo, is appearing here for this week. On Monday night a crowded house listened with rapt attention to the many daring feats of the Almo Trio, in their smart comedy bar act, which at the close elicited roars of applause; Will Rain and company, in The Motor Maniac, amused everybody; and Will Onda's combination, in a pantomimical comedy sketch, Hotel Comfort, was most ludicrous. Atroy, society juggler, hoop roller, &c., was a neat and pleasing turn; whilst Violi, lady instrumentalist, was accorded a magnificent ovation. The Almo Royal British Animated Picture Company had a good number of pictures, depicting life in our Army and Navy, and world-wide travels.

MAIDSTONE.—Lessee, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The change of programme this week includes excellent samples of variety, which are well received. Vaughan Williams and company give a very pretty musical mélange, entitled Willie of the Yacht, which captivates the house; Kahn and Kahn mystify everybody by their second sight and magical act; C. Tamamoto, a clever Jap, plays all sorts of fantastic tricks on a perpendicular rope; Ariel and Astarte are entertaining in their skilful acrobatic turn; Prof. Dunning, ventriloquist, goes well; Fanny Robina gives some charming songs; and Florrie Cooper's excellent singing is a strong attraction of the bill. Billie Bint, comedian, is funny; and the Hippograph shows some of the latest films.

MANCHESTER.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A second visit of Tom Jones was heartily welcomed here on Monday by a packed house. With the exception of Mr. Harry Welchman, who fills the title-rôle in the place of Mr. Hayden Coffin, and fills it very successfully, too, in point of appearance and deportment, as well as vocalism, all those who played in the original production are still in the cast. The sweet singing and charming personality of Miss Ruth Vincent as Sophia are beyond praise; equally one may spare inadequate superlatives in appreciating Miss Carrie Moore's rendering of Honour, the maid; while Mr. Dan Rolyat's eccentric impersonation of Partridge provokes laughter all the time he is on the stage. Mr. Ambrose Manning's Squire Western is admirably lifelike and entertaining; and capital humour is added by his trio of servants, Mr. Jay Laurier, Mr. Walter L. Rignold, and Mr. Reginald Crompton. Mr. Arthur Soames as Blifil gives a natural performance; and Mr. John Morley (though having too slight opportunities for the exercise of his splendid vocal gift) moves and looks well as Mr. Allworthy. Miss Dora Rignold has perfected her clever impersonation of Lady Belaston; Miss Marie Daltra is effective as Miss Western; and among others who add to the general vivacity, a word of commendation is due to Miss Cicely Courtneidge. The opera stays two weeks.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company, in When It Was Dark, provide the attraction here this week. Mr. Cuthbert Imrie plays the arch-villain very well; Mr. Edward Valentine is effective as Sir Robert Llewellyn; Mr. F. Tennant gives a satisfying delineation of the Rev. Basil Gortre; and Mr. C. O'Connor does well as Harold Spence. Among the ladies, Miss Beatrice May gives a powerful rendering of Gertrude Hunt; and Mrs. Morton Powell acts charmingly as Helena Byars. Others worthy of praise are Mr. Ernest St. John, Mr. Lionel West, Mr. J. L. Inglis, and Miss Dorothy Hildebrand.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hearn.—The Tom Davis Trio top the bill here, in their sensational motoring act; Honeymoon Baby, a well-played comedy sketch, is also prominent; George Young, a blind musician, plays excellently on the concertina; Rene, the girl Cinquevalli, juggles smartly; and other good turns are J. Hirst, a clever gymnast; Burns and Bentley, very good simultaneous dancers and vaudeville artists; Roy Beavis, the merry magician; the Four Netherlands, singers and dancers; the Lovelaces, in illustrated songs; and Will Freedo, comedian and dancer. The Bioscope pictures are interesting.

St. James's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Manager, Mr. P. Ryan Smith.—Mr. Bulmer this week presents here The Girl Who Went Astray. Miss Chrissie Dunbar plays conspicuously well as Zara L'Estrange; Miss Gladys Hawthorn is quite effective in the dual rôle of Madge and Violet Harvey; and Mr. Fred Lloyd has a good part as Rupert Murdock; while other well-varied parts are skilfully handled.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton's company are here this week in a strong play, entitled A Gambler's Daughter. Mr. Robert Ayrton is fine as Desmond O'Dare, the Irish emigrant; Miss Adria Hill, in a dual rôle of mother and daughter, shines more especially as the daughter, Miriam Grant; Mr. Frank Croft plays the heroic Captain Stanhope (erstwhile Dick, "the weasel") in bold style; and Mr. A. G. Lytton as the unscrupulous Stephen Brand is equally effective. Good parts are also in the hands of Mr. Basil Mitchell, Mr. Harry Bilford, Mr. Alfred Sanders, and Mr. Richard Pitt; while Miss Harriet Loydall successfully contributes much of the lighter interest as Auntie Zeb.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The top turn here is provided by Constant Le Marin, a powerful young wrestler, who challenges the world, and gives nightly exhibitions of his powers, to the usual accompaniment of excitement; Casey's Court, by the Midget Mimes, headed by Bob King as Mrs. Casey, provide excellent fun; Drew and Alders are funny in their Coastguard sketch; J. W. Hall, comedian, is well received in songs and patter; La Belle Nello gives a graceful contortionist and balancing exhibition; and Joe Reichen presents a quartette of highly-trained dogs; while other enjoyable turns are the Coneoran Brothers, musical artists; Chas. Stevens, character vocalist; and Grace Merton, the original street-singer.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Considerable amusement is afforded here this week by Harry Roxbury and company, in that capital absurdity, The Prince of Monte Carlo, the principal parts being ably sustained by Messrs. Harry Roxbury, Edwin Dodds, Fred Davenporte, and Alf. Clegg, and Miss Ethel Bryant. Very lifelike is the performance of the great Harry Lauder on the Chronomegaphone; and Leonard Gautier's novelty, An Animated Toy Shop, with well-trained ponies as rocking-horses, is a smart show. Harvey's American Boys and Girls contribute an excellent turn in singing and dancing; the Miles-Stavordale Quintette give a wonderful and pleasing performance on strings, and are deservedly well received; Lulu Russell, the Californian songstress, sings well, and has a fine presence; Lonnen Meadows and a smart company are first-rate in a screaming farcical tabloid comedy, Kiss Your Father; and George Peeves, comedian, does well in a funny cigar song. Animated pictures, a delightful part-song by the choir, and an illustrated song, "Honey, you are my lady-love," nicely sung by Miss Mildred Timms, complete an enjoyable programme.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tealor Wade.—Little Max Darewski, the wonderful boy composer and pianist, is the great attraction here this week. In addition to playing several selections in his usual masterly manner, he conducts the augmented orchestra, who play the Overture to William Tell. His reception is great. Excellent turns are also provided by Datas, the man of memory; Les Piccolinos, two wonderfully clever midgets; Oakley and James, comedy duo, in a screamingly funny act; Kendrick and Laura, vocalists, popular as ever; Gargany's Trio of marvellous acrobats; A-Bo-Kou, sensational juggler; Susie and Protti, in a clever whirl of dances; Gladys Huxley, comedienne; and Ruby Aston, comedienne and dancer. Sam Mayo, who figures on the programme, did not appear on the night of our visit.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—George Mozart, the well-known comedian, tops the bill here this week, makes a hit with his umbrella song, and causes endless laughter the whole time he occupies the stage; Rose Cambry, comedienne, splendid gowned, with fine appearance, meets with a good reception; and Kitty Clover and company are seen to advantage in a well-received sketch, entitled Mr. There's Hair. Flo Lister, contralto, has a fine voice; Bessie Travis, the musical ventriloquist, is entertaining; the Florias go through a clever slack-wire performance; Millie Warde and Arthur Jenner are good in a musical duologue, When Two Play One Game; Hunter and Travis are exceedingly smart in a comedy novelty; and Huline and Le May are merry musical sports. Raymond's Vivagraph completes.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—The Melody Makers, in their surprising phantom scena, The Burglar's Dream, provide a turn of distinct merit here this week; and the singing of Darren Llewellyn, the Welsh baritone, is excellent. Owen McGiveney gives some clever impersonations of character sketches from Dickens; Angelo is a remarkably smart lightning painter; Keith and Merson's company, in a farcical sketch, Crossing the Alps, are clever and amusing; Marquis and Mignonette do some smart tumbling; the Sages (Will and Jenny) are a pleasing comedy duo; J. W. Gallagher, comedian, is deservedly well received; the Sivanes sing and dance well; and Will Sullivan, comedian, has some good patter. "Mrs. Brown's Troubles" are shown on the Bioscope.

King's, Longsight.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. B. Taylor.—The Frank Bateman company, under the direction of Messrs. St. John Medley and Pringle Roberts, are the attraction here this week, in the sensational drama, No Wedding Bells for Her. Principal parts are excellently played by Miss Lizzie Montague, Miss Doris Lorraine, Mr. Stewart Lomath, Mr. Lincoln Calthorpe, and Mr. Barry Lupino.

Hulme Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Kay.—The Milton Ray's company, including Mr. Arthur Milton, are here this week in Don Quixote, after successful weeks at other Manchester halls. A wonderful performance is gone through by the Juggling Rapoli; Anthony, the "swank" and comic conjurer, provides a capital turn; Lambeth and Robertson are exceedingly good in their Scots Folks' Wooin' scena; and enjoyable turns are also those of Chris Van Bern, eccentric comedian; the Rinaldo Trio, comedy acrobats; Harry Leaton, vocal comedian; and Sadler and Ross, Irish cross-talkers and dancers. "The Stag Hunters" is the Bioscope subject.

MANSFIELD. — Grand Theatre. — Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Captain Cecil Clayton.—After being closed for several weeks for alteration this place reopened on Monday. The seating of the place has been remodelled, with the result that many more places have been provided, and the view of the stage has been much improved. The place has been tastefully redecorated, and the heating apparatus has been reinstalled. The company occupying the boards is Messrs. C. and F. Renad's, in The Swiss Express. Little need be said of the performance of Charles and Frederick, except that they fully sustain their well-known reputation. Mr. Wilfred Brandon as Dr. Gondimar Gull causes a great amount of merriment; Mr. Basil Reynolds is a manly Bob Rollingston; Mr. Alec Wylie, in the rôle of Dudley Green, plays the dude to the life; Mr. Charles Gray is well placed as Septimus Squeeze; Miss Blanche Vernon is an amusing Mrs. Septimus Squeeze; Miss Celestine Brandon is delightfully refreshing in the part of Virginia; and Miss Lottie Stone's Palace Quartette submit some tasteful dances. During an interval on Monday, the opening night of the autumn season at the Grand Theatre, Mansfield, Captain Clayton gave a neat little speech, in the course of which he mentioned that the whole of the work of alteration had been carried out by local labour, a remark which drew forth applause.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Foxwell's company, in the drama, An Abandoned Woman, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Walle Spenner gave a fine interpretation of Captain Herbert Seaton; Mr. George Gormley was at home in the rôle of Sir Marmaduke Seaton; and as Robert Saunders, Mr. Morton Wright was all that could be desired. Miss Edith Blande proved herself an artist of great ability in the rôle of Ninon Malvoisin; Miss May Richardson was a capable Eleanor Deane; as also was Miss Lily Addeson as La Celeste. Miss Edith Deno was a clever and amusing Sally; and Mr. Jim K. Woods a typical Paddy Boyle.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wallis Clark.—Mr. Michael made an excellent choice when he selected as the bill of fare for the current week at this house the popular musical play The New Barmaid. As presented by Miss Violet Osmund's company the production was well mounted, well acted, and generally a success. Miss Osmund proves herself in the part of Dora Heather an artist of exceptional ability; Mr. Alexander Loftus appears as Bertie White, and in that rôle contributes with much success the lion's share of the humour; Mr. James Grant also aids the comedy; Mr. Chas. Adeson makes a capable Mons. Bonsor; Miss Aimee Roberts is a charming comedians, in the laughable absurdity, The Mumming Birds, have caused unbounded merriment and infectious hilarity, and their show is too well known to need criticism; Dainty Maggie Rimmer, comedienne and dancer, has made a pleasing and successful appearance; and Will Driscoll, swell comedian and dancer, has also created a favourable impression. Massona, the clever young juggler, has again secured a full share of well-merited recognition for his smartness; and Chas. Craston, comedian, has had a flattering reception. William Lee and Helen Bentley contribute their amusing comedy sketch, A Friend in Need; and Ingram and Irving, comedians, are also good in some smart knockabout business.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Charles Evans.—Exceptionally good business is being done here, the afternoon and evening entertainments being packed with audiences who have evinced their appreciation of the several turns making up an enjoyable programme by insistent applause. The Selwyns, in their refined vocal and dancing act, gain immediate favour; and the Brothers Idento, eccentric comedy jugglers and bâton manipulators, combine some very excellent fooling with some really smart work. The Brontes create roars of laughter with their comedy duologue Saucy Maud, the latter character being smartly portrayed; Lill Elfreda, as a mimic, has created a wonderfully good impression; Max Merlin, the crocodile demon, gives a clever contortionist show; and Williams and Warden, the cross-talk comedians, who have been making a welcome reappearance, have been as popular as ever. Lilian Rigby, instrumental specialist, has received marked applause for her playing on cornet, posthorn, and sleigh bells; and a well-arranged programme has been brought to a close by Judge's performing cockatoos.

MATLOCK.—VICTORIA HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. James White; Resident-Manager, Mr. Franklin Thomas.—Miss Louie Freear and company, under the direction of Mr. Donald Arthur, paid a visit to this hall on Wednesday, and had a cordial reception from a large audience. Miss Freear's impersonation of Jemima in Snooks was received with great enthusiasm, and the company supporting her was a strong and capable one. Other artists contributing to the programme were Miss Belle Green, Mr. Vivian Foster, Mr. Bennett, and Mr. Brightmore.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—Raffles, presented by Mr. Leonard Boyne, by arrangement with Mr. Charles Frohman, is here this week. Mr. Leonard Boyne gives a brilliant representation of the dashing cracksman; as Curtis Bedford, Mr. E. W. Thomas successfully pictures the smart detective; Mr. Dalziel Heron plays with vigour the part of Crawshay; Mr. Lewis Edgard is highly satisfactory as Harry Manders; and the Earl of Amersteth is pleasantly portrayed by Mr. Arthur Willoughby. Miss Elaine Inescourt submits a praiseworthy impersonation of Mrs. Vidal; as Lady Melrose, Miss Alys Rees is dignified and artistic; and Miss Dorothy Gordon as Marie, Miss Maud Cressall as Gwendoline Conran, and Miss Dorothy Shawe are also worthy of praise.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—A diversified and attractive programme is headed by Ara, Zebra, and Vora, in Indian pastimes; the Ladderites are smart equilibrists; Collin and Irene, clever illusionists and second-sight experts; and other good turns are given by Stelling and his canine comedian; Codge, the whistling street arab; Willard's marionettes; Kate Eplett, comedienne and dancer; the Three Zaracs, and animated pictures.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton. — Mr. E. H. Knight's company is here in The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell repeats his masterly interpretation of Simmonet, the strangler; Mr. W. Curnock plays excellently as Paul Blanchard; Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner is a capital Lorentz de Ribas; the rival detectives, Coucou and Didot, are amusingly typified by Mr. W. T. Riley and Mr. John Brittain; Mr. Herbert Lewis is an interesting figure as Loustalot, the smiler; Miss Marie Fontaine cleverly fills the rôle of Cora Simmonet; the Sophie Blanchard of Miss Florence Trevoir is a sympathetic study; while Miss Maggie Stewart capably sustains the part of Marie Guerin.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—The stirring Russian drama, The Price of Her Soul, is being staged here this week by Messrs. John Shinton and Alexander Greenwood's company. Mr. John B. Shinton gives a powerful interpretation of Lord Mandeville; Mr. Annesley Hely is seen to advantage as Major Skoboloff; Miss Ada M. Ryder gives a capital rendering of the Countess; Olga Lanovitz finds an excellent exponent in Miss Kate Sydney; Miss N. Evelyn Waterworth is responsible for a capable presentation of the part of Mme. Marcovitz; Mr. Archie Gear plays General Lanovitz admirably; Miss Grace Garside does well as Lady Fraser; Miss Elsie Howe is a pleasing Vera; and Mr. W. H. Melrose an amusing Pat Murphy.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Company, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and a specially selected company occupy the boards here this week in The Royal Oak, by Henry Hamilton and the late Sir Augustus Harris. Miss Glossop-Harris, in the rôle of Mildred Clavering, gives a most natural and womanly rendering; Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., acts with great distinction the part of Charles II.; Miss Gertrude Guilbert is a charming Lady Cholmondeley; Mr. Aubrey Mather a capital Dorian Cholmondeley; Mr. Percival Madgwick an excellent Rev. Melchizedek; and Miss Muriel Dale a pleasing Deborah.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—Bob Hutt and company occupy the premier position here this week, and create roars of laughter in their absurdity Welcome Home. Miss Dott Stephens made her first appearance in Middlesbrough, and has a most gratifying reception; Muir Bartlett and company are amusing in a sketch, entitled The Collar-Stud; the Bouncing Dillons are clever gymnasts; and a pleasing turn is given by the Two Bostons. Mr. J. Barlow, who won the singing competition last week, is, with the runner-up, Mr. J. H. Smith, fulfilling a week's engagement, and both artists score a great success.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—Harry Pleon and company provide an excellent sketch, entitled The Club Raid, here this week; and the Gorman Juveniles give a pleasing dancing and singing turn. Some smart tumbling is done by the Martelloni Family; Louis Hardt performs some genuine feats of strength; Gus Harris, comedian, pleases; and other turns are given by Edie King, a clever dancer, and Milner Verren.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. M. Julian.—Mr. Mouillot's company has been appearing with marked success in The Girl Behind the Counter, the musical comedy which was a hit at Wyndham's. It is pretty and tuneful throughout, and the piece goes with a swing. Mr. Ellis Holland is remarkably good as the General, and his Raleigh song and business is perhaps the best thing in the production. Miss Nora Brocklebank is very charming as Minnie Willoughby; and Mr. Arthur Cartwright is an excellent Charles Chetwyn. Other prominent parts are well sustained by Messrs. Howard Cridland, Jules Charmettes, Fredk. Park, A. M. Moore, and W. Emery, and Misses Winifred Knightly, Florence Lee, Ellen Clanford, and Irene Lavington. The chorus is well trained, and the dresses are very effective.

WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. Tom Atkinson.—In the bill here this week are Griff, in all his smart business and clever patter; Lazern, in an original act, Mysteria, which takes well; Jack and Evelyn, with a smart act, Cigarette Papers; Hill and Whittaker, clever Americans, who are true musicians; Brothers Obo, comedians and dancers of repute; Little Agnes Tina, with her life-like mimicries and impersonations of celebrities; Ruby and Lawn, in a pretty vocal scena, with a quick change; the Donatos, the extraordinary monopedes; Dorothy L. Clark, in her latest success, "How would you like to have to love me"; and Effie Stuart, Scotch comedienne and dancer. On Wednesday night Mr. Tom Atkinson took his annual benefit, and had the assistance of several turns from other places of amusement in the town. The festivities included a fancy dress ball, which was kept going until one o'clock the next morning.

CENTRAL PIER.—Manager, Mr. E. Hill.—Lanos and Montes, in their eccentric act, have proved a big success, and Belloni's cockatoos have been another leading item, the birds showing the effect of careful training. Mount and Corelli have a smart duologue, The Master and the Maid; and other turns are the Stanley Four, in their musical comedy, A Broken Promise, Miss Stanley singing "Husbands" with great effect; the Spanish Goldinis, marvellous carpet spinners; Robert Dredge, double-voiced vocalist; the Boston Twins, patterers, mimics, &c.; Chas. Lestree, juggler; and Vera Mayne, comedienne.

WEST END PIER.—Secretary, Mr. J. Bastow.—The variety portion of the entertainment here has been provided by Nellie Ganthony, who has entertained with much charm; Julian Mack, a quaint comedian; Nelson Hardy, ventriloquist and mimic; and Zeta Grey and company, in the musical absurdity, The Lancashire Lass. Mlle. Julia Caroli has been the vocalist of the week.

ALHAMBRA PALACE.—Manager, Alderman John Gardner.—The Six Brothers Luck have been scoring again with their farcical production, The Demon of the Cellar; Mlle. Lumiere has been very successful with her novel act, The Fairy Grotto, in which there are many beautiful effects; Cleland's clever act of "a little bit of everything and nothing in particular" has been well suited to the tastes of the audience; Penstene, assisted by Tsaou-ngo, has introduced many unique conjuring tricks; the Brothers Curran have a funny boxing Act, Taking the Census; Hector and Sultan are a couple of clever comedy acrobats; Miss Frances Lyric is a pleasing comedienne; Morris Harper is an excellent society entertainer; Captain Devereux's dogs continue to delight the audience; and Lottie de Abbey proves herself a smart character impersonator.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. William Greet's company is paying a return visit here in The Earl and the Girl. Miss Florence Wix is a delightful exponent of the Girl; Mr. Robert Hyett is particularly well suited as Dick Wargrave; Mr. Alfred Donohoe keeps the house in a continuous roar by his funny impersonation of Jim Cheese; Mr. Roy Sydney is a handsome and dashing Crewe Boodle; Mr. Bernard Leslie is well suited as Dudley Cranbourne; Miss Lillian Bert makes a bright and vivacious Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Beatrice Anderson is decidedly effective as Mrs. Shimmering Black; and Miss Lena Hicks acts Liza Shoddam to the life. A. Bunker Bliss, Downham, and Mr. Talk have admirable exponents in Messrs. Frank A. Wood, Ernest A. Plumpton, and Sam Lysons.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. Edwards.—Lovers of Shakespeare have been afforded a great treat this week by Mr. Allan Wilkie and his talented company. The répertoire included Hamlet, The Merchant of Venice, Othello, Romeo and Juliet, David Garrick, Sleigh Bells, and Richard III. Mr. Wilkie created a splendid impression on this his first visit to the town by his fine acting. The company included Mr. Alexander Marsh, Mr. Paul Lofett, Mr. Jno. Paley, and Mr. Geo. Munroe, all of whom acquitted themselves admirably. Mr. Marsh as Romeo was a great success, whilst his acting of David Garrick proved a rare treat. As Matthias in the Sleigh Bells Mr. Wilkie fully sustained his reputation as one of the foremost tragedians of the day. Miss Carrie Baillie was the leading lady throughout the week, her graceful acting and exquisite enunciation being as noticeable as ever.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. C. Sutcliffe.—Mrs. Patrick Campbell and her company are here. The Second Mrs. Tanqueray was performed on Monday evening. As Paula Tanqueray Mrs. Patrick Campbell again achieved a great success; in the part of Ellean Miss Stella Patrick Campbell made an interesting and highly-successful appearance; Mr. Charles Garry's study of Aubrey Tanqueray was an able and artistic one; and Mr. Julian Royce as Cayley Drummie, and Mr. Alfred Goddard as Captain Hugh Ardale, successfully take other prominent parts.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—A company sent out by Mr. Arthur Bourchier is here this week in The Walls of Jericho. A fine manly interpretation of the part of Jack Frobisher is given by Mr. Wilfred E. Payne; and equally successful is Miss Dora Hole as Lady Alethea Frobisher, her dramatic earnestness and sweet appealing voice being well suited to the part. Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce is excellent as the Marquis of Steventon; and Miss Elsie Ross lends capital support as Lady Lucy. Hankey Bannister is well played by Mr. E. Spencer Geach, and all the subordinate parts are well filled.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company is here in Two Little Vagabonds. As Dick and Wally Miss Winifred Williamson and Miss Ethel Francis Greene win all-round approval; and the parts of George Thornton and Marion Thornton are exceedingly well played by Mr. Arthur E. Melborne and Miss G. Winter. Mr. T. Lionel Ellis as Bill Mullins and Miss Violet Vivian as Biddy Mullins are very successful.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—A lively entertainment is provided here by Mr. James Bell's company in The Idol of Paris. Miss Annie Bell gives an attractive impersonation of the leading part, and she is supported by a clever company, which includes Mr. Otto Minster, Mr. Sidney Arnold, Mr. Arthur McCulloch, Mr. Norton Shields, and Mr. H. Vivian Thomas.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. P. Wells.—T. E. Dunville, for long a popular comedian with Newcastle audiences, again scores heavily with his whimsical sayings and quaint songs; a capital comedy sketch is admirably acted by Howard and St. Clair; Bert Woodward, steeplechasing cyclist, executes some daring tricks; and the farcical episode, Beauty and the Burglar, as performed by Miss Millie Engler, is very entertaining. The Six Lancashire Lasses maintain their reputation as smart and artistic dancers; Miss Harriet Vernon sings a series of much-appreciated songs; J. P. Ling is a first-class comedian and mimic; Ella Retford, comedienne, proves very popular; and Rezene and Robini give a capital comedy gymnastic turn.

PAVILION THEATRE.—The Barrasford Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. H. Boardman.—Very popular this week is the performance of the extravaganza, Saturday to Monday, by Mr. Fred Karno's company, which includes Mr. Rolando Martin, who is exceedingly funny in the principal rôle. Without ever saying a word, Max Walden, in a fairly long occupation of the stage, keeps the audience vastly amused with his quaint productions of impedimenta from his pockets; Miss Rsie Walters, a sprightly comedienne, scores in her fishing song; and the wire-walking act of Rex Fox is an able novelty in its way. Fred Land and Joe Conway, both excellent comedians; Adams and Ward, clever and comical acrobats; and Mabel Hind, comedienne, help to fill up a capital programme.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett.—The Manxman is presented this week by Mr. Alfred B. Cross's company. Mr. Cross as Pete and Miss Minnie Waterford as Kate Cregeen repeat with success their well-known clever impersonations, and are ably supported by Miss Maud Leslie Cudd as Nancy, Mr. E. W. Cudd as Cæsar Cregeen, Mr. Sydney C. Kearns as Philip Christian, and Mr. Richard Brenan. Other parts are well filled by Miss Maude Aldred as Bella Kelly, Miss Phyllis Noell as Miss Christian, Mr. C. H. Mortimer as Dr. Myhereest, Mr. Smith Neill as Monty Missit, Mr. F. Lynton as Professor Mawley, Mr. Joe Wallace as the Postman, and Mr W. Horgan as the constable. The scenery and effects are very good.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans; Musical-Director, Mr. Walter Ashton.—Supreme in this week's programme is Miss Dora Barrington, a soprano vocalist of high excellence and refined dramatic power. Clara Victor is also most successful with her songs; and May De Rouse, in song and dance, is in great favour. O'Mally and Brown are exceedingly good as cross-talk comedians; and the Ringling trio of American eccentrics give an amusing and clever turn. The Palace pictures are both amusing and interesting; and Vera Dalwood, male impersonator; and Maurice Lee, comedian, also appear.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Mr. Charles W. Poole is here with his Royal Myriorama, supplemented by some good variety turns.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The Woman Who Gambles is being performed here this week by Mr. Morton Powell's capable company. Mr. George Steele acts with distinction in the prominent part of Count Otto Steinbach; Mr. Percy Ballard gives an interesting study of Baron Fratzlaw; Mr. Reginald Fox gains approval as Lieut. Carl Czasterinska; Mr. Ernest H. Clarke presents a good impersonation of M. Stambuloff; and Mr. Fred P. Charlton is a satisfactory Hon. Bertie Bray. As Countess Natalie Miss Lilian Herries submits a clever interpretation; Miss Dora Pass as Cora deserves praise; Miss Lily Malvern makes the most of Stella; and Miss Lillian Rignold is pleasing as Mlle. Zilla.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Two Tates, comedy trampolin artists, are at the top of the bill here; Mr. Arthur Albert, actor-vocalist, is as popular as ever; and Messrs. Conway and Garland, in A Golden Nightmare, are clever; the Calcotts, in their speciality act, are well received.

NORTHWICH.—PIERROT PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Glanmore Jones.—Mr. Alec Payne gives a very clever exhibition of expert roller skating; Miss Gertie Hunt sings very prettily; the Brothers Veno, comedians and patterers, do well in their act, entitled The Handy Men; the Three Sisters Pink are smart acrobatic dancers; and Mr. Jack Rennard is a coon singer of no mean ability; while genial Will Harvey still delights the audience with his minstrel funniosities.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company in Under the Russian Flag is here this week and is much appreciated. Mr. Haddon himself fills the rôle of Capt. Demetrius with much force, receiving well-merited approbation; Mr. Charles Stafford is very good as Ivan Romanoff, and Mr. Jerrold Ord equally so as Michael Romanoff; Mr. Templar Ellis as Alexis Skopolopki is amusing; and Mr. W. Wilson does well as Col. Souveroff. Miss Molly Hackett is vivacious as Ogarita; Miss Marie Rayner deserves praise as Luka Marashla; Miss Beatrice Balfour is worthy of particular commendation as Vera Vassaloff; Mr. Hal Forde as Peter Poulski and Mr. H. Naylor Grimson as Wolf Marischla render admirable assistance.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—A capital programme is given this week. The Turlian Family of risley experts are well received, and their exhibition of precision, strength, and agility is astonishing; Harry Russon excites much mirth in his song, and wins appreciation for his recitation. Austin Lenton and company are amusing in their absurdity, The Bigamist; Fred Mulvey and Minnie Miriam render a funny duologue, entitled The Artist's Studio; Elton and Edwin are clever banjoists, and obtain much applause; Wisper proves an expert juggler; Beattie Bloom is a charming comedienne; and Molly Devon scores as an Irish comedienne; the Hippo. Bio. is very good this week.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The Royal Animated Pictures are in the eleventh week of their stay here, and the interest in them is still well sustained.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production of The Blue Moon occupies this stage this week. As Chandra Nil Miss Marie Wilson makes excellent use of the opportunities which several good songs give her; Miss Florence Imeson makes a splendid Leroy, and sings and dances, and coquettes herself into the good graces of the house in the liveliest possible manner. As Private Charles Taylor Mr. Horace Mills has a most congenial part, and together with Mr. Edward Lewis as Moolraj, has some very funny scenes; naturally, these two are the life and soul of the piece, and their appearance on the stage is always the signal for unstinted applause. The breezy manner of Mr. Jack Cannot is admirably suited to the rôle of Major Collabone; and the appearance and acting of George Mudie, jun., make the part of Bobbie Scott very successful. With an excellent voice, good presence, and careful acting, Mr. Roland Bottomley adds greatly to the success of the play; whilst Mr. Jack Spurling makes an altogether sufficiently dignified appearance as the Prince of Karikhar. Miss Ethel Callanan looks very sweet as Evelyn Ormsby; and Miss Violet Hobson is very capable as Oma; whilst as Lady Brabasham Miss Marie Rignold does well. The singing of Miss Lesley d'Eyncourt is commendable, and all the other parts are in the hands of carefully selected artists. Under the direction of Mr. Ernest Hurman, the various pretty choruses are rendered effectively, whilst the staging and dressing of the piece are all that could be desired.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil are presenting Her Luck in London. Miss Mary Neil has every qualification requisite for the part of Nellie Harborne, and carries conviction by her thoroughly natural acting. She is capably assisted by Stephen Langton, who, as O'Connor, the Irish baronet, plays up to her admirably. Mr. George Heath, as the villainous Lenowen, does well in an undesirable part, and is ably seconded in his nefarious designs by Algie, a character successfully portrayed by Mr. Bruce Chapman. As the curate Mr. Douglas Tremayne is found in a congenial rôle, and the acting of Mr. Tyrone Power, as Stephen Harborne, is highly commendable. Messrs. E. S. Nuttall, Tom Mason, and W. Wroe are to be congratulated upon their clever assumption of the parts of gilded youths, as also are Misses Daisy Moss, Queenie Lamont, and Kitty Gerald in the characterisation of what are euphemistically called "evening stars." Miss Frances Bruce is good as Lillian Harborne, and Miss Pamela Hodson and Miss Florrie Groves also do well in small parts. The remaining members of the cast—viz., Mr. Henry Hope and Misses Marie Clavering and Dora Woodbery—are all capable artists.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Miss Victoria Monks pays a welcome visit here this week, and in new and old songs delights her audiences; Mr. Whit Cunliffe sings, dances, and jokes himself into popularity; Mr. Russell Walleti, as "The Lady in Black," proves as popular as ever, and in Nottingham, his native city, always makes sure of a gratifying ovation; J. W. Rowley is a quaint comedian, and his funny songs and humorous patter cause no end of fun; whilst the screamingly funny antics of Lowell and Lowell, no less than their cleverness as acrobats, evoke laughter and applause from all parts of the house; Launceston Elliott is a wonderful example of muscular development, and in making use of men instead of weights to show his strength makes a novel departure from the beaten track of strong-men shows; Park's Eton Boys are once more with us, and their turn is, if possible, more popular than ever; a very winsome little lady is the juvenile singer and dancer, Hilda Boot, and well deserves the applause she receives; whilst Ella Dean is the possessor of a good contralto voice, which she uses to advantage. The usual Bioscope pictures complete an excellent programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS, CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—The Eve of Her Wedding, presented by Mr. Wilson Benge's capable company, is meeting with a good reception. Mr. Benge in the rôle of George Tremain (the hero) is a favourite; Mr. Chas. Digby makes a good Rudolph Earle; a capital study of Jack Herne is submitted by Mr. N. B. Cannon; a clever portrayal of Dean Clifton is given by Mr. Henry Lloyd; Miss Sadie Smith makes a graceful and pleasing Mavis Leverton; Gwendoline Younger (the American girl) receives a vivacious reading at the hands of Miss Violet Leslie; and Miss Ada Raby as the unscrupulous Renie de Telle is well placed.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's selected London company, in The Coal King, is paying a return visit. Mr. Ernest Rivarz, as Sir Reginald Hartford, gives a capital rendering of his part; Mr. W. P. Mansfield, as Walter, makes the character sufficiently villainous; Mr. Sydney Leyton is a manly Tom Roberts; and Mr. Frank Dalton is a capital Dick Shirley. Miss Dorothy Clifton is a dainty Grace Shirley; the acting of Miss Sinna St. Clair, as Mad Ann, is capital; Miss Winifred Love, as Araminta, and Mr. Alfred Terriss, as Jim Williams, carry well the responsibilities of the humour of the piece.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's Greed of Gold company occupies the stage here this week. Mr. E. J. Preston plays the part of Harry Hood in a forcible manner; Arthur Errol is strongly presented by Mr. A. G. Stratton; the acting of Mr. Bert Fox, as Tom Wolstead, the dumb man, is capital; Mr. Denis Campbell, as Conn Creamer, gets a large amount of applause; Miss Sissy Murdock does well as Patty Mayfield; Mr. S. Bryant is responsible for good comedy work as Cully Snig; Miss Amy Venimore acts Dora in a clever manner; and Miss Campbell makes a capital Mrs. Maxwell.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Max Waldon, female impersonator, is one of the best artists heard here for some time; Marie Santoi and her merry Japs have a delightful musical novelty, which takes well; Ethel Ra Leslie sings some charming songs in a cultured style; the Condensed Opera company are excellent in Maritana and The Bohemian Girl; the Sisters Silcott are a good trio of singers and dancers; Gertrude Martini is a capital comedienne; George Edney, character vocalist, sings well; and the Brothers Stowe perform some smart feats as equilibrists. New pictures on the Dottoscope conclude the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Captain Harris's comedy juveniles are smart in their boxing speciality; the Kyasyas, dental athletes; Mlle. Ameda, a clever lady contortionist; Herbert Adams, with an interesting act known as "Cyclumia"; Jennie Sydney, vocalist and dancer; Leo Cromo, a capital smoke painter and paper manipulator; Metz and Metz, comedians and dancers; and the Dottoscope are also in the bill.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—A Woman's Past is being staged here this week by Messrs. A. Hamilton Warden and Charles V. Sandford's company. Mr. J. Cook Hinton presents a faithful study of David Heath; as Frank Dellannoy Mr. Charles V. Sandford is convincing in all he does; Clement Harper is effectively undertaken and well acted by Mr. A. Hamilton Warden; and Uriah Craven is played with conspicuous ability by Mr. G. Moreton-Williams; Miss Maisie Hanbury plays with consummate skill and pathetic feeling the part of Bessie, a woman who suffers; Miss Nesta Sandford furnishes an excellent embodiment of Clara Darrell; and Dorothy Heath is charmingly presented by Miss Mary Mallalieu. Mr. Philip Nailor as P.C. Bloater, Mr. William Berson as man-servant, Mr. William Munroe as Inspector Spriggings, and Mr. Cecil Dainton as Bob, all render valuable aid.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock.—Heading the bill here this week is Charles Majilton and his clever company of eccentric comedians in the comedy sketch, The Trippers, which causes roars of laughter throughout. An enjoyable musical entertainment is that by Henry Hallam and Josephine Stanton; Cline and Clarke, black and white comedy artists and dancers, provide a clever and most acceptable turn; the part of Bobbie Scott very successful. With an excellent voice, good presence, and careful acting, Mr. Roland Bottomley adds greatly to the success of the play; whilst Mr. Jack Spurling makes an altogether sufficiently dignified appearance as the Prince of Karikhar. Miss Ethel Callanan looks very sweet as Evelyn Ormsby; and Miss Violet Hobson is very capable as Oma; whilst as Lady Brabasham Miss Marie Rignold does well. The singing of Miss Lesley d'Eyncourt is commendable, and all the other parts are in the hands of carefully selected artists. Under the direction of Mr. Ernest Hurman, the various pretty choruses are rendered effectively, whilst the staging and dressing of the piece are all that could be desired.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil are presenting Her Luck in London. Miss Mary Neil has every qualification requisite for the part of Nellie Harborne, and carries conviction by her thoroughly natural acting. She is capably assisted by Stephen Langton, who, as O'Connor, the Irish baronet, plays up to her admirably. Mr. George Heath, as the villainous Lenowen, does well in an undesirable part, and is ably seconded in his nefarious designs by Algie, a character successfully portrayed by Mr. Bruce Chapman. As the curate Mr. Douglas Tremayne is found in a congenial rôle, and the acting of Mr. Tyrone Power, as Stephen Harborne, is highly commendable. Messrs. E. S. Nuttall, Tom Mason, and W. Wroe are to be congratulated upon their clever assumption of the parts of gilded youths, as also are Misses Daisy Moss, Queenie Lamont, and Kitty Gerald in the characterisation of what are euphemistically called "evening stars." Miss Frances Bruce is good as Lillian Harborne, and Miss Pamela Hodson and Miss Florrie Groves also do well in small parts. The remaining members of the cast—viz., Mr. Henry Hope and Misses Marie Clavering and Dora Woodbery—are all capable artists.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—Miss Victoria Monks pays a welcome visit here this week, and in new and old songs delights her audiences; Mr. Whit Cunliffe sings, dances, and jokes himself into popularity; Mr. Russell Walleti, as "The Lady in Black," proves as popular as ever, and in Nottingham, his native city, always makes sure of a gratifying ovation; J. W. Rowley is a quaint comedian, and his funny songs and humorous patter cause no end of fun; whilst the screamingly funny antics of Lowell and Lowell, no less than their cleverness as acrobats, evoke laughter and applause from all parts of the house; Launceston Elliott is a wonderful example of muscular development, and in making use of men instead of weights to show his strength makes a novel departure from the beaten track of strong-men shows; Park's Eton Boys are once more with us, and their turn is, if possible, more popular than ever; a very winsome little lady is the juvenile singer and dancer, Hilda Boot, and well deserves the applause she receives; whilst Ella Dean is the possessor of a good contralto voice, which she uses to advantage. The usual Bioscope pictures complete an excellent programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS, CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—The Eve of Her Wedding, presented by Mr. Wilson Benge's capable company, is meeting with a good reception. Mr. Benge in the rôle of George Tremain (the hero) is a favourite; Mr. Chas. Digby makes a good Rudolph Earle; a capital study of Jack Herne is submitted by Mr. N. B. Cannon; a clever portrayal of Dean Clifton is given by Mr. Henry Lloyd; Miss Sadie Smith makes a graceful and pleasing Mavis Leverton; Gwendoline Younger (the American girl) receives a vivacious reading at the hands of Miss Violet Leslie; and Miss Ada Raby as the unscrupulous Renie de Telle is well placed.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland's selected London company, in The Coal King, is paying a return visit. Mr. Ernest Rivarz, as Sir Reginald Hartford, gives a capital rendering of his part; Mr. W. P. Mansfield, as Walter, makes the character sufficiently villainous; Mr. Sydney Leyton is a manly Tom Roberts; and Mr. Frank Dalton is a capital Dick Shirley. Miss Dorothy Clifton is a dainty Grace Shirley; the acting of Miss Sinna St. Clair, as Mad Ann, is capital; Miss Winifred Love, as Araminta, and Mr. Alfred Terriss, as Jim Williams, carry well the responsibilities of the humour of the piece.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's Greed of Gold company occupies the stage here this week. Mr. E. J. Preston plays the part of Harry Hood in a forcible manner; Arthur Errol is strongly presented by Mr. A. G. Stratton; the acting of Mr. Bert Fox, as Tom Wolstead, the dumb man, is capital; Mr. Denis Campbell, as Conn Creamer, gets a large amount of applause; Miss Sissy Murdock does well as Patty Mayfield; Mr. S. Bryant is responsible for good comedy work as Cully Snig; Miss Amy Venimore acts Dora in a clever manner; and Miss Campbell makes a capital Mrs. Maxwell.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—A Woman's Past is being staged here this week by Messrs. A. Hamilton Warden and Charles V. Sandford's company. Mr. J. Cook Hinton presents a faithful study of David Heath; as Frank Dellannoy Mr. Charles V. Sandford is convincing in all he does; Clement Harper is effectively undertaken and well acted by Mr. A. Hamilton Warden; and Uriah Craven is played with conspicuous ability by Mr. G. Moreton-Williams; Miss Maisie Hanbury plays with consummate skill and pathetic feeling the part of Bessie, a woman who suffers; Miss Nesta Sandford furnishes an excellent embodiment of Clara Darrell; and Dorothy Heath is charmingly presented by Miss Mary Mallalieu. Mr. Philip Nailor as P.C. Bloater, Mr. William Berson as man-servant, Mr. William Munroe as Inspector Spriggings, and Mr. Cecil Dainton as Bob, all render valuable aid.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Douglas F. Bostock.—Heading the bill here this week is Charles Majilton and his clever company of eccentric comedians in the comedy sketch, The Trippers, which causes roars of laughter throughout. An enjoyable musical entertainment is that by Henry Hallam and Josephine Stanton; Cline and Clarke, black and white comedy artists and dancers, provide a clever and most acceptable turn; the Cecilias, lady instrumentalists, meet with a hearty reception; Sam Lowenworth and Charles Cohen are a couple of decidedly smart and original comedians; Fenton furnishes an excellent and versatile drawing-room entertainment; and Bessie Bains, comedienne and dancer, is applauded.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—His Dishonoured Wife is this week staged here by Messrs. Chas. H. Phelps and Harry Tilbury's company. Mr. Chas. H. Phelps as Frank Lindon, the village blacksmith, plays his part very well; and Mr. Horatio Sinclair, as Lord Devant, "a disgr

Brown) keep the house in roars of laughter with their absurdity, The Captain's Daughter; Horace Sade evokes applause for his characteristic dancing; Edwards and Espinosa are a clever couple, their dancing and violin and banjo solos being extremely artistic; Carney Brothers appeal to the audience in their duet, "Gold, Gold, Gold"; Howard and Wallace give a humorous sketch entitled Taming a Wife; the Wakeman Quartette render some excellent vocal selections; the pictures illustrate the kidnapping of a Gipsy Bride by motor-car, with the subsequent pursuit by Bohemian friends, and the customary vengeance.

RAMSGATE.—Amphitheatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Large and appreciative audiences were the rule at the Amphitheatre on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings, when Baron H. Harriss's company staged in first-rate style The Prince of Pilsen. Miss Sophie Harriss made a great hit as the American widow, Mrs. Maddison Crocker; and Mr. Harry Kilburn sustained in thoroughly clever fashion the rôle of the Cincinatti brewer, Hans Wagner. Mr. Frank Crimp, in the title-part, sang baritone solos, and acted in a manner which calls for complimentary reference; Mr. Bernard Russell gave a capital interpretation of the vacuous Earl of Shrimpton; Mr. S. Lindon Lang sustained admirably the part of Lieut. Tom Wagner, of the U.S. Navy; and the Sergeant Brie of Mr. Charles Clyde called for complimentary reference. Miss Connie Leon was charmingly chic as the French maid, Sidonie; and Miss Minnie Muir filled the part of Nellie Wagner creditably. One of the most popular items in the show was the "Gibson Girl" turn by Miss Kitty Albert. For the three last nights of the week Mr. Bowman had booked Mr. Herbert Ralland and company in the ever-welcome La Poupée.

Royal Victoria Theatre.—Proprietors, the Ramsgate Corporation; Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company produced The Cingalee at the Royal Victoria Theatre and Pavilion on the first three evenings of the week with notable success. The feature of the production was the impersonation of the amusing Baboo lawyer, Chambhuddy Ram, by Mr. Tom Payne. Miss Aimee Roberts sang sweetly and acted with great charm as the Cingalese girl, Nanoya, and the same description is merited in the cases of Miss Lydia Flopp as Peggy Sabine, and Miss Coral Mansell as Lady Pat. The clever dancing of Miss Violet Hope as Angy Loftus was much admired; Mr. Milroy Cooper filled in an eminently satisfactory manner the part of the dignified native noble, Boobbamba; Mr. Frank Sutton was sufficiently peppery and effective as Sir Peter Loftus, Judge in Ceylon; Mr. Wilfred Heath sang finely as the Hon. Harry Vereker; and Mr. W. J. Austin did excellently as Bobby Warren, a plantation overseer. Chorus, scenery, and general ensemble were all marked by a high standard of merit. The attraction arranged for the last three evenings of the week was Mr. Chas. Macdona's company in The Country Girl.

READING.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode.—This is the last week of the summer variety season. The regular dramatic season will be commenced on Monday next, a succession of the best touring companies being announced. For the closing vaudeville week an excellent programme is presented. The Bros. O'Brien give a daring and clever performance on the horizontal bar; Curwen and Belle, burlesque artists, appear with success in their sketch, The International Club; the Soho Trio, in their song and dance scena, provide an excellent turn. The other items include Lily Eyton, character vocalist; Alpho, in a clever ventriloquial performance; Emil and Ediss, banjoists; Johnny Walker, new style comedian, and the Imperial Bioscope.

REDHILL.—Market Hall.—Proprietors, Market Hall Co.; Secretary, Mr. A. Simmons.—Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell, is presenting Her Love Against the World, from the Lyceum, London, at this hall. The production is well staged, and the costumes are elegant. Miss Margaret Savill as Princess Iris is strong, carrying the interest of the audience from start to finish; the Nello of Miss Marjory Armstrong shows a thorough conception of the character; Mr. Alec Alexander as Eric, Earl of Strathmere, is rewarded with repeated and merited applause; whilst well-deserved hisses greet the stage villainy of the Prince Ulric of Mr. Henry C. Cooper; other well-presented characters are Prince Othmar, ably done by Mr. R. S. Trelawney; Prince Maurice, by Mr. Maurice Yorke; General Gessler, by Mr. James Chippendale; the Heinrich Pimpernickel of Mr. Chas. A. Baker is a good piece of comedy work, evoking much amusement. Mr. Frank Etheridge is the business-manager and Mr. G. C. Brooks the musical director.

Public Hall.—The National Animated Pictures are delighting large audiences at this house. The subjects are quite up-to-date, including all this year's principal sporting events. The view of the Niagara Falls is certainly a triumph in photography. At intervals during the programme vocal selections are charmingly rendered by Mme. Stuart Clare.

ROCHDALE.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The Girl Who Lost Her Character is the attraction here this week. The play is admirably staged, the scene where the wronged girl smashes the furniture being intensely realistic. Mr. Charles Whitlock ably portrays the Rev. Robert Everton; Mr. Edward Lloyd is heard to advantage in the dual rôle of Jock England and Private Johnson; Mr. Frank Adair cleverly impersonates the unscrupulous Captain Geoffrey Caversham; Mr. Geo. Mitchell is well placed as James Sutton; and Mr. Geo. A. Asquin creates much amusement in the rôle of Dick Punch; Miss Joan Ellis sweetly enacts the part of Rose Seymour; Miss Nell Burton is lively and vivacious as Lucy Vere; and Miss Ethel Bracewell acts with distinction the part of Molly Vernon.

Circus and Hippodrome.—Lessees, Messrs. J. and J. Jackson and J. White; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, sen.—This popular place of amusement opened under new management on Monday evening with an attractive bill of fare. Lotto, Lillo, and Otto gave a clever exhibition of trick bicycle riding; Mexford and O'Neill amused the audience greatly with their witty patter; Celeste submitted a sensational performance of balancing on a slack wire. Other artists appearing include Stelling and Wright, vocalists and buck dancers; Mexican Mac, sharpshooter; Miss Ada Cerito, comedienne; Charles Carrell, comedian; Edwards, song illustrator; and the Circus Biograph.

Empire.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—The Geni Family make their first appearance here this week with an exceptionally clever acrobatic performance, the audience enthusiastically applauding their efforts; Lily Lonsdale is a vocalist of power, culture, and refinement, and her selections were received with much appreciation; Will and May Lannon contribute a clever dancing act on pedestals; Ernie Myers keep the audience in roars of laughter with his humorous patter songs; Marlow and Manton, in Other People's Babies; the Darnton Sisters, vocalists; and the Bioscope complete the programme.

SALFORD.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The Heathen and the Christian is being presented here. Miss Lois du Cane had a good reception on Monday when she undertook the part of May Berresford; Lord Allendale is well presented by Mr. Ernest G. Batley; Miss Ethyle Murray makes an impression as Mira Sampson; Mr. Harold B. Lewis plays well as George Berresford; comedy is in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Carrington as Bob Lamb Gentle; and Miss Rose Leyton as Becky. Lung Hi is a good performance by Mr. Sam Harcourt; Mr. Gerald Turner as Admiral Freebold and Mr. Fred Waring as Joshua Sampson give good support.

Regent Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—A thoroughly enjoyable programme is headed this week by Lady Mansel and her juveniles in A Concert Rehearsal. The Arthur Lloyd Trio have a smartly-acted comic sketch, Little Charlie; very clever illusions are performed by Picitt and Lizette, in The Crazy Cook; Goodman, burlesquer of vaudevilles, is very comical; Ernest Rees, droll comedian; Princess Pauline, comedienne; the Haverleys, song illustrators; Sisters Love, duettists and dancers; Terry and Bentley, refined comedy artists; Maudie Ford, comedienne and dancer; and Johnny Danvers, comedian and dancer, also appear.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—"The march of the married men," by Arthur Rugby, is very funny; an acceptable musical item is provided by Preston Holmes; Moon and Morris are exceedingly smart dancers and clever comedians; B. Troba is an expert juggler; Denton, Roscoe, and Galley (three colliers) get much applause for their singing; and other clever turns include Perrette and Mona, in Teasing the General; Allen and Hall, comedians and patterers; the Two Dixons, bâton swingers, banjo, and song and dance artists; and some excellent pictures on the Bioscope.

Stretford Pavilion.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney Weatherilt.—Mr. George Ward, comedian and dancer, is paying a return visit; and among the other turns are the Brothers Leo (Tom and Bert); Miss Emily Hardy, contralto vocalist; Miss Eugenie Glenn, soubrette; Miss Mabel Wrey, serio and dancer; and Albert Edwards, solo pianist.

SALISBURY.—Victoria Park.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. F. D'Alton Tebby; Manageress, Miss Jessie D'Alton.—These popular entertainments are attracting huge crowds nightly. The chief attraction is Miss Jessie D'Alton, who sings "In the Twilight," with a chorus of children, in her bright and winning manner. Miss Beattie Witham has several new songs, which are eagerly listened to; Miss Flora Macdonald's numbers are worthy of high praise; Miss Lillian Ramsdale is very bright, and dances in a finished manner; Mr. Will Studmore, as usual, captures the audience with his comic songs, &c.; Mr. Albert Laurence provides a strong turn with his female impersonations; and Mr. Anderson Arthur sings well, and his jokes are amusing.

SCARBOROUGH.—Londesborough Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Waddington and Son; Manapany is here this week in The Belle of Mayfair. ger, Mr. J. T. Carpenter.—Mr. Milton Bode's com Miss Queenie Finnis as Julia Chaldicott is highly successful and sings well; Miss Agnes Tandy in the rôle of the Princess acts admirably; as the Maid Miss Veronica Brady makes much of her part and dances well; as Sir John Chaldicott Mr. Harry Parker proves exceedingly funny and works hard; Mr. Haddon Cave as the Earl does well; Mr. Fern Ponds sings nicely; Mr. Gwyn Alwyn is full of life and spirit.

Spa Theatre.—Proprietors, The Cliff Bridge Co.; Manager, Mr. Fras. Goodricke.—When Knights Were Bold is here this week. Mr. Nelson Keys as Sir Guy de Vere sustained his responsibility with great success; Miss Emile Polini played in fine style the part of Lady Rowena; Miss Marjorie Chard as Miss Sarah Isaacson had a rôle that suited her exactly; Isaac Isaacson is in the able hands of Mr. Augustus Symonds; Mr. Wm. Lockhart as the Rev. Peter Pottlebury, and afterwards as Peter the Monk, does exceedingly well; Mr. Charles Ommaney as the Hon. C. Widdicombe is excellent; and Miss Lena Flowerdew as the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave has much charm and ability.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Garside; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—Mr. and Mrs. Kimberley's company is here. Mrs. Kimberley as Cora Lee acts powerfully, and is seen to decided advantage; Mr. Arthur Pringle as Henry Thornton deserves praise; Mr. Clavering Craig as Capt. Deane does well; Mr. G. Fulford as Capt. Temple is clever; as Doreen Illingworth Miss Violet Langley acts well; and Miss Isa Lyndon as Queenie Deane plays efficiently.

The Aquarium.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—Canard, the "man on time," introduces novelty here; Mlle. Frederica's terriers are on a return visit; Staffo, comedy juggler, is very funny; Maston, mimic, is full of ability; the Cymbros sing well in duets and are well received; the Venola Brothers, comedy gymnasts, give a most exciting turn, and are great favourites; Mlle. Aladina and her trained cockatoos deserve the appreciation they receive; De Henau paints pictures cleverly with his toes; Mlle. Marie Levantes' orchestra of ladies have entered on their sixteenth week, and as a combination of solo instrumentalists are very strong indeed.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Geo. Zalva.—The success of The Village Wedding, or Tramps Abroad, is remarkable; Dan Gregory, musician, gives a clever and refined entertainment; Harry Friskey, juggler, is retained, and is as popular as ever; the Kauvars, equilibrists, furnish an attractive act, one of them finishing by balancing a trap on his head; Evaniso is a clever basin spinner, and does many wondrous feats; the Musical Palmers give an entertainment full of life and flavour; Mlle. Convere and her cakewalk horse are still retained on the bill; and Hinton and Wootton contribute a diverting and novel exhibition of football on bicycles, and show great ability.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Messrs. Elliman's No. 1 company, under the superintendence of Mr. C. Elliman, is paying a first visit to Seaham this week with A Heart's Desire. A powerful interpretation is given of Lord St. Ives by Mr. Frank V. Fenn; Mr. Arthur D. Leyland is a distinctly capable Eric May; Mr. S. Claydon's abilities as a comedian are displayed to advantage in his portrayal of the Hon. Bertie Beresford; Mr. A. Armfield depicts the villainy of Luke Forrest in an effective manner; Coombes is humorously drawn by Mr. Eddy Vane; Miss Shirley Dalton stands out prominently as Oiya; Elsie Beresford is delightfully played by Miss Amy Dalby; Miss Ella Seaton wins favour as Gwendoline; and as Julia Miss Dolly Strathmore merits approval. The drama is admirably staged.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Charley's Aunt is again being played here by Mr. Brandon Thomas's company. Mr. Thomas gives a finished and natural rendition of the character of Sir Francis Chesney; Mr. Sydney Compton makes a characteristic Brassett; Mr. Spenser Trevor repeats his humorous impersonation of Lord Fancourt Babberley; and Miss Amy Harpway and Miss Grace Russell are pretty and animated as the two girls. The curtain-raiser is The Lancashire Sailor.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The stock season, under the experienced direction of Mr. Charles Draycott, has proved a successful venture at this historic house, and the old favourite dramas have met with applause. On Monday Mr. Lingford Carson's company appeared in The Heart of a Hero, in which Miss Muriel Thompson and Mr. Charles Draycott again delighted their numerous local admirers, and plenty of comic relief was provided by Mr. Will White, assisted by that chic comedienne Miss Eva Norman. The drama was effectively mounted. The revivals this week are Boucicault's famous play, The Octoroon, and Tom Taylor's great moral drama, The Ticket-of-Leave Man.

Alexandra Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—A great favourite with Alexandra audiences is The Poor Must Live, which was again enthusiastically received on Monday, the performance of Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company being quite up to the mark, the leading characters being represented by Miss Edna Clare, Miss Katie Norriss, Miss Sara Blumenthal, Miss Wybert, and Messrs. John Cullen, R. W. Griffiths, Frank Lyndon, Edwin Firth, Edward Rawlinson, Alex. Taylor, Newton Pearce, Richard Clifton, James Bainbridge, and C. H. Barclay.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The star turn this week is La Milo, in her classical poses. Other clever entertainers are the lively and humorous Miss Peggy Pryde, the daughter of the incomparable "Vital Spark"; Rosa and Lewis, talented transatlantic entertainers, who are loudly applauded; the Eight Empire Girls; Mr. Mark Merry, comic singer; Miss Rhoda Paul, in a vocal scene, with an artistic background representing Waterloo Bridge and a fine view of the Embankment by night; Mr. Harry Cadle's company in The Casey Court Battle, a screaming burlesque; and the three graceful Sisters Moulier, in daring feats on the triple bars.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, The Vaudeville Syndicate; Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—Engaged here are Carlotta de Yonsen and company in the favourite sketch, The Dandy Detective; Mr. Fred Lawrence's company in My New Landlord; Bryan and Lawrence, comedy entertainers; Dick Lomas, the well-known impersonator of the monkey tribe; Miss Mabel Le Roy, serio; and the elegant Sisters Nadine, duettists and dancers. Some excellent animated pictures conclude the programme.

SHREWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—The Span of Life is played here by a company under the direction of Mr. Arthur Carlton. Mr. Arthur Chisholm works hard and successfully as the hero, Richard Blunt; Mr. Sanderson Moffat acts conscientiously and well as the villain of the piece, Dunstan Leech; Mr. Walter Dale is a lively and capable Nutty Brown; Mr. Lion Ainsclift merits commendation as Joshua Gurnett; Mr. Chas. Noel is a capital Inspector Ferguson; Mr. J. Petersfell makes a picturesque and competent Azrek; and the Stebbing trio of acrobats introduce some sensational and clever novelties into the play. Miss Ella Wilmer makes an effective heroine as Kate Heathcott; Miss Kitty Russell is vivacious and talented in the comedy part of Shrove Tuesday; Miss Phillis Hamilton is successful as Mrs Jelf; and as Cecil Blunt Miss Phyllis Graham sustains a trying rôle with considerable credit.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—The Kursaal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—Lincoln and Warren entertain most loyally as trick cyclists and unicycle experts; some capital singing by Mr. W. H. Stevenson gained a reception that was well earned; the Sisters Lavender, burlesque actresses, vocalists, and dancers, contribute very satisfactory items; while Mr. Charles Ashdown (comedian vocalist) and Miss Madge Bryce (ballad vocalist) gain honours. Onyx Duo, lady quick-change artist, acquits herself creditably in After the Ball; the Four Herberts, the jolly Californian farmers, in their knockabout entertainment, please immensely; and the operatic scena, entitled Under the Shamrock, is well produced by Helena Sleath and Charles Aldin. More amusement is found in the Café Chantant, where a capital programme has the services of Miss Madge Bryce, Miss Helena Stewart (Scottish soprano), Mr. J. Douglas (comedian and champion bâton spinner), and Mr. J. W. Maxwell (versatile comedian, dancer, and one-armed juggler). Many new films are shown on the Bioscope.

Pier Pavilion.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—Mr. Charles Carey again provides the attraction for this week, and on Monday and Tuesday his capable company gave a thrilling presentation of Trilby. A large audience gave this popular play a hearty reception, while the dance, as a speciality, by Miss Madge Lacey was a notable feature well received. The title-rôle had in Miss Rosemary Rees a clever and studious impersonator, who won golden opinions from all; Miss Loudolph Barrett was a suitable Mme. Vinard, her talented efforts being greatly appreciated; Mr. Edwin F. Fysher as Talbot Wynn was decidedly good; Svengali had a masterly characterisation from Mr. Carey; and Messrs. Bruce Lindley, Arthur Goodsall, Ben Rosenthall, Charles Swinburne, and Philip Durham were exponents worthy of mention. On Wednesday and Thursday The Blue Monkey was successfully portrayed; and for Friday and to-night (Saturday) Little Lord Fauntleroy is being again produced.

Empire Theatre.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Highly creditable performances of See-See were given on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday by Mr. George Edwardes's company. Mr. Tom Redmond was an able exponent of Cheoo; Mr. Alec Worcester, in the rôle of Yen, sang well; Mr. Tom Nelldon as Hang-Lee made a popular success; Mr. Fred Epitaux did well as Hoang Wang; Miss Gertrude Parker as So-Hie contributed special dances in tasteful fashion; Miss Nina Carlton, who was responsible for the part of Mai-Yai, evoked the heartiest enthusiasm by her powerful and refined singing. The title-rôle was attractively presented by Miss Mysie Devine. On Thursday The Prince of Pilsen commenced a three nights' engagement.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—For the first three nights of the current week Mr. George Dance's principal company has occupied the boards here with the popular musical comedy, The Little Michus, played and staged in capital style. The principal character of General des Ifs was undertaken by Mr. Foster Courtenay with the grotesque humour which was highly diverting, and created much merriment; the title-rôles were played by Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Gracie Sinclair with charming piquancy and artlessness, their vocal numbers being artistically rendered; Bagnolet had a pleasing and clever representative in Mr. Gilbert Childs; Mr. Alfred Drinkwater is a commendable exponent of Aristide Vert; Miss May Young was excellent in every way as Mme. Michu; Pierre Michu was very ably depicted by Mr. W. Benson; Mlle. St. Cyr was brightly and vivaciously portrayed by Mlle. Majorie; and the chorus and orchestra under Mr. Jean Desormes acquitted themselves very satisfactorily. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings Mr. George Dance's principal company presented, for the first time at this theatre, The Beauty of Bath.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company appears here this week in The Power of the Cross. The diabolical and fiendish Baron Curzola is impersonated in powerful style by Mr. George A. De Gray; Mr. Henry Danson as Gerald Fairfax, and Mr. Alexander J. Haviland as Dr. Leslie Fairfax, both acquit themselves in an excellent manner; Miss Marie Menzies is seen to great advantage as the heroine, Margaret Seton; some powerful acting is displayed by Miss Amy B. Ellis as Rita Lascelles; the Irish adventurer, Timothy O'Dowd, is hit off capitally by Mr. John S. Chamberlain; Mr. A. Hall Menzies is good as Benjamin Hawke; Blanche Kingsley and Dolly Gray are both well played by Miss Phyllis Vaughan and Miss Etta Turner.

Empire Palace Theatres.—Proprietors, the South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Thompson.—Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten is paying a return visit. The school sketch is brimful of fun, and the children sing and dance artistically. Boswell's Circus is full of entertainment, and well received; Will Cornish contributes a good musical turn; G. C. Doughty, assisted by Phillis Atherley and Lesley Adair, provides a good comedy interlude, Captain Cupid. Other good items include Annie Casey, comedienne; Chas. Chard, popular comedian; Ruby and Elsie Redfern, lady banjoists; and the Bioscope.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—A double bill forms the attraction here this week, When a Man Hates and The Mockery of Marriage, both plays being presented by Mr. W. Graham Arthur's company. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday the former piece held the boards, and in it Mr. Arthur filled the rôle of Pietro Danelli in a thoroughly painstaking and conscientious style. Miss Mamie Stuart displayed sterling abilities as Olga Gwynne; as Paul Mr. Herbert M'King gave a highly efficient and interesting interpretation; Mr. Sylvester Stuart portrayed with success the Rev. Lawrance Hastings; and the like may be said of Miss Mabel Liston as Lettie. Miss Jennie Hallworth provided ample humour by her bright and attractive performance of Dolly Dimple, whilst as Peter Simple Mr. Fred A. Lewis was equally amusing.

STAFFORD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Miss Louie Freear and company were here for Monday, and drew a crowded and appreciative audience. Miss Louie Freear received a most flattering reception to all her songs, but for "Twiddley bits" she had a thunderous ovation. The child impersonations of Miss Belle Green were both amusing and clever, and quite took the favour of the audience. The representations of characters from Dickens by Edwin Bennett were character studies of a master artist. The sketch Snooks, of which Miss Louie Freear was the life and soul, was productive of roars of laughter. For the remainder of the week, Miss Winifred Maude and company present The Sins of a City and The Stowaway. The company includes Mr. M. Carlyle, Mr. L. S. Harrison, Mr. Arthur T. Ellis, Mr. Victor Du Cane, Miss Marie Lyons, and Miss Jenny Hackett.

STALYBRIDGE.—Grand Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—A most interesting turn here is contributed by Henriquetta Maude, the clever New Zealand girl, who is making a tour round the world. Les Blancs, triple bar performers; Wat Tyler, in a dramatic scena, The Deserted House; Blarney and Kennard, patterers and dancers; Hyatt, juggler; the Tysons, speciality entertainers; and Sahib Fasola, the Indian fakir and wonder, are also strong attractions.

ST. ANNE'S-ON-THE-SEA.—Pier Pavilion Theatre.—Lessee of Entertainments, Mr. H. Leslie.—The famous Zancigs and party gave two performances here on Wednesday, the 21st. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday Mr. Thomas Sidney and company presented The Marriage of Kitty. Mr. Sidney was clever as the solicitor, John Travers; Mr. Edgar Kent made a capital Sir Reginald Belsize, Miss Mary Thorne a charming Kitty, and Miss Russell a clever Mme. de Semiano.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—The Lady Slavey was presented by Mr. Robert Crossman and company. Mr. W. T. Thompson is extremely funny as Roberts; and Vincent A. Evelyn has an able representative in Mr. Edmund Cooper; Mr. Kimo Johnstone is a humorous Major O'Neill; Lord Lavender is amusingly given by Mr. Frank Henderson; Miss Rita Presano makes a capital Flo Honeydew; and Miss Winnie Volt is most charming as Phyllis. The chorus is one of exceptional excellence.

Empire.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—The delightful vocalism of Lydia Yeamans has been much enjoyed here this week, and with the able support of Mr. Fredk. J. Titus, has commanded much appreciation. Herr Fritz is a clever illusionist; satisfactory applause is bestowed upon Nancy Renshaw, negro comedienne and bone soloist; Caselli, banjoist, is entertaining; the tabloid drama, The Fight in the Forge, given by Mr. C. Woodley Hulse and company is interesting and sensational; and others appearing successfully are Welda and Wynne, jugglers, dancers, and tumblers; Little Maudie Ray, comedienne and dancer; and Will Peplow, comedian mimic and trick instrumentalist.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Hippodrome Theatre.—General-Manager, Robt. A. Nicholson; Assistant-Manager, Geo. Stainton.—Nancy Sikes is the title of a sketch presented by Miss Georgette Thierry and company here this week. The principal characters are ably sustained, and the sketch is greatly appreciated. The Wedburns are a funny pair of patter comedians; Tom Lloyd causes great amusement with his humorous songs; Miss Renee delights her audience with her musical act; Fred and Maud Vypond, great favourites here, are both interesting and humorous; Miss Madge Allan is a dainty comedienne and dancer; and interest is centred in the act of Atlas and Vulcana, society athletes, who display great athletic skil. The pictures are very humorous.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Jack Pleasants causes great amusement with his quaint and droll style of humour; Lily Currie, a pleasing vocalist, creates a good impression; the Okito Family astound the audience in their Chinese magical act; Otto and Olga are funny as mock operatic artists; and Stidder and Dunbar are greatly appreciated in their musical scena; Young Casey is very popular as a local boy whistler. The pictures conclude a capital programme.

SWINDON.—Queen's Theatre.—Business-Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Macdona's company is here in The White Chrysanthemum, in which Miss Lillian Hubbard is delightfully winning as Sybil. She is supported by Miss Harriet Fawn as Betty Kenyon and Miss Blanche Astley as the American heiress, both meeting with decided success. As Lieut. Reginald Armitage Mr. Victor Kahn was excellent throughout, and Mr William Hartigan was splendidly suited to the part of the Admiral, making a great hit with his topical song; while Mr. Erskine Lang was capital as Lieut. Chippy Belmont. Of the clever work of Mr. Frank Weir, as the Chinese Cook, it would be difficult to speak too highly, while Mr. Herbert C. Walton, as Perky, was responsible for some very rich fun. A smart chorus and augmented orchestra were ably conducted by Mr. Hubert Boggetti.

Mechanics' Institution.—Secretary, Mr. H. J. Southwell.—After a successful week of grand opera in this large hall, there is being staged that popular domestic drama, A Mother's Love. As the Rev. Paul Wingate Mr. Robert Gilbert puts in some good work, and Miss Cecile Anson is particularly clever as Winnie Wingate. The comedy part, in the hands of Mr. Charles Carte, is capital.

THE A.U. REFORM PARTY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—The A.U. Committee continues its deprecation of Press criticism, declaring it has done harm, and prevented people from joining. Most of us are familiar with the anecdote about Socrates, who when asked by a disciple to advise him whether to marry or not, replied, "Whichever you do, you'll repent it." The philosophic habit of looking at "both sides of the curtain" is impossible. Endeavouring to be impartial, I opine that but for the moral suasion of the Press correspondence, the Committee's habit of expelling members, and refusing admittance to would-be members, would have increased instead of ceased, the minimum wage would have been shelved, and the Committee would have said, in effect, "The Union was originally intended for a trade union, but let us disguise the fact as much as possible."

Members committed an error in electing candidates whose views were unknown. The result is a square peg in a round hole—a reactionary hen sitting on democratic eggs and hatching indescribable birds who can't swim, and are afraid to fly. How many of the Committee are there who can, in the privacy of their inner sanctums, assure themselves that their views are democratic? How many, for instance, if they had had the chance, would have voted for the return to Parliament of the Actors' Union trustee, Pete Curran, the democratic Member for Jarrow? The Committee atmosphere pulsates with repetition of "the last thing we must talk of is a strike." The unsophisticated err if they imagine I am yearning for a strike. I am all in favour of the "moral suasion" business. Given a good sound innings, it may prove effective in obtaining a minimum wage—but not without a strike fund. The gentleman who calls at an unreasonable hour to borrow the spoons is unimpressed by "moral suasion" if your poker or other reserve weapon of defence is manifestly only a "prop"; but he will listen earfully, and evaporate submissively through the window if convinced that your weapon could wield retaliation, outweighing the benefits he has been "morally persuaded" to relinquish.

And, without enmity to managers, it must be admitted that the interests of artist and manager are not inimical. From the following it will be seen that the National Union of Journalists—a body of professional men whose first rule reads—"This society is a trade union"—clearly recognise this: "So far from being assured of a complete identity of interest between employer and employed, the National Union of Journalists regards the two parties as bargainers on the two sides of employer and employed, with all the advantage the employer possesses when the supply of labour is in excess of the demand." Paternal persons implore me to desist from believing that actors will ever unite to obtain a minimum wage; yet, with all the reverence due to the obsolete and antique, I still opine that when once actors realise that it can be done, they will, unless they are a race apart from the rest of mankind, form into line, and use their strength for a general uplifting of the profession. The effect of a minimum wage will be a circle of improvement—better artists, better shows, larger receipts, increased terms to travelling managers. It must be remembered that a few years ago many people, especially in small towns, sought the arms of Morpheus at sundown, whereas now, with improved gas and electric light, and increased facilities for getting about, they attend theatres; and that, whereas once the crudest acting satisfied the amateur theatre-goer, experience has made him critical. He has acquired the term "dud," and knows where to apply it. The majority of managers are not to blame for the existing rate of salaries. There isn't an artist in the Union, or out of it, who, if he took out a company to morrow, would pay artists more than the lowest salaries they could be induced to accept. Or, if he did, the competition of his fellow-managers would rapidly land him at that stage of financial depression known as being "in the cast." Under a minimum wage managers would, instead of as at present engaging the cheapest artists, turn their attention to securing the best talent obtainable at the minimum wage. To those artists who write, asking me if I would advise them to join the Union at present, I say "Yes" most emphatically; join, and induce others to join, and, when members, use your influence to establish the objects of the A.U. Reform Party, i.e.—

1. Amalgamation with the A.A. on a trade union basis.
2. The accumulation of a fund by means of which to obtain a minimum wage.
3. Committee of both sexes.
4. No interference with the work of the V.A.F.

Yours faithfully, NORMAN TOWERS.

The big Brooklyn theatre, known as the Montauk, is now undergoing the process of removal, whole and entire, from its present position to a site some 200ft. away, in order to allow of a new thoroughfare being made. On Monday the Montauk was undermined, and allow to rest upon a sort of raft of steel beams. Rollers were laid down, and the theatre is being pushed along slowly and imperceptibly upon its temporary base. The most difficult part of the work will be when it comes to swinging the theatre on to the new foundation. It will then be a case of jack-screws against jack-screws pushing in opposite directions, until a half-circle is completed and the last resting-place is found. The contractors anticipate that the removal will occupy three weeks.

A performance of Jacob Gordon's well-known play of Man and Devil was again given on Monday by the Feinman Operatic and Dramatic Company, at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end, when an enthusiastic audience welcomed once more the masterly impersonation of Mr. Sigmund Feinman as Herschele Dubrovner; while Mr. Boris Rosenthal as Uriel and Miss Cecilia Feinman as Zipenu deserve all praise for their excellent portrayals of somewhat difficult parts. During the week, Love and Poverty, Jews in Morocco, Thirty Years in Siberia, The Jewish Hamlet, and Deborah (with Mme. Diana Feinman in the title-rôle) have been played. The many improvements instituted add greatly to the comfort of the audience, who are attentively considered by the general-manager, Mr. J. Gordon, ably assisted by Mr. Fred Brown.

The attractiveness of Madame Butterfly, so charmingly sung and acted by the Moody-Manners company at the Lyric, has exceeded all expectations, and many are the music-lovers who have gone disappointed away owing to the fact that the house was sold out. During the Moody-Manners company's coming tour, Madame Butterfly will be given all over the country, and those who live in the most remote places will have an opportunity of making acquaintance with one of the best of modern operas.

The Kennington Theatre will have a great attraction on Monday, Sept. 9, when Mr. Wentworth Croke will present Hall Caine's stirring drama, The Bondman, from Drury-lane, with all new scenery, dresses, and effects. No expense has been spared in securing a first-class company, Miss Grace Chalmers being specially engaged to play the part of Greeba. Hall Caine's popular play, The Prodigal Son, which is also being toured by Mr. Croke, will be the attraction on the same date at the County Theatre, Kingston.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your notice of The Cingalee at Margate you credited Miss Aimée Roberts with the part of Nanoya. It was played by—Yours faithfully, Alys Collier, Victoria Theatre, Ramsgate, Aug. 26.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Comic Opera entitled
"LA POUPEE."

It was with feelings of pleasure that we revived acquaintance with La Poupée on Monday evening—pleasure that was shared in by a large audience, who fully appreciated the daintiness of this melodious and really comic opera. The programme reminded us that it is in its eleventh year of popularity. From the reception at the King's this week there should be many more years of prosperity in store for it. The company has been slightly changed since the last visit, but every character is well sustained, and reflects credit upon Mr. C. P. Levilly. Mr. W. H. Powell's Hilarius is very mirth-provoking, and the eccentricities of the inventor gain hearty applause; as Lancelot Mr. F. Maxwell Stewart acts admirably, and sings very satisfactorily; Mr. Ernest Torrence is a tower of strength as Father Maxime, his rendering of the songs allotted to him being admirable, and gaining several encores; Mr. Leon Simkin and Mr. Arthur Gibbons are excellent as Loremois and Baron Chanterelle; Balthazar is capably performed by Mr. Vernon Reed; Miss Stella Gastelle is again to the fore in her original part of Alesia. Time has only added to the charm of her impersonation, both in singing and acting, and it is superfluous to say that Miss Gastelle's success is complete. The apprentice Henri is dashingly played by Miss Kitty Cavendish; and Miss Dulcie Garland makes a handsome and effective Mme. Hilarius. The chorus contains many excellent voices, and Mr. Harry Rushworth well controls the orchestral forces.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

"UNDER TWO FLAGS."

The visit of Miss Ida Molesworth's and Mr. Mark Blow's company with Under Two Flags to Holloway has aroused much interest among local playgoers. For one thing, the famous novelist of whose work this play is a dramatisation has been very much in the public eye of late by reason of what was thought to be her distressful condition, and the fact that "Ouida" was granted a pension by the British Government. Another reason is that the play itself has long since received the hall-mark of public approval. The production under review is in every sense eminently satisfactory and pleasing. The six scenes are beautifully mounted and staged, and in the telling of the story the acting is realistic throughout. Of course, the chief laurels are won by Miss Molesworth and Mr. Blow. The former acts with a freshness and buoyancy in the character of Cigarette that her female warrior seems far more vivacious and rollicking than the male kind. Mr. Blow, as Bertie Cecil Royellieu, maintains a gentlemanly dignity and a quiet assumption of manner which appears to fit in well with the authoress's ideas. Mr. Roy Jackson is, of course, the bad person in the play, or rather the principal bad person, for there are two of them. His Colonel Chanteroy is a realistic study—vigorous and vicious. It would be difficult to find a lady more gentle and engaging than the Princess Venetia of Miss Edith Coleman, who is to be complimented on a graceful demeanour and carriage. Whenever Mr. Harry Benson is to be found in a cast it may be fairly well inferred that there is choice comedy in the near neighbourhood. In the present instance Mr. Benson creates roars of laughter by his ludicrous antics as Rake, the valet, whose sweetheart, Lavinia, assists somewhat in the fun-making, this character being played with much zest and spirit by Miss Kitty Douglas. Other capital impersonations are given by Mr. Charles Brooke as Lord Royellieu; Mr. Dermot Fitz-Gibbon as Barklie Royellieu; Mr. Austin Milroy as Lord Rockingham; Mr. Reginald Huntworth as the Marshal of France; Miss Joan Stern as Countess Olga, and Miss Madge Stevens as Lady Beatrice Guinevere. Mr. A. C. Holmes is the experienced stage-manager and Mr. G. M. Montannini the acting manager for the company. Mr. J. Murray Herriott attends with great care and courtesy to the conduct of affairs in front of the house.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Play entitled
"THE SORROWS OF SATAN."

Mr. C. W. Somerset and company are proving a big attraction here this week with the well-known play, The Sorrows of Satan, and there is no doubt about the intense interest of the story as presented on the stage, the theatre being filled on Monday with a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Somerset repeats his fine performance of Prince Lucio, a most carefully-considered piece of work, and one that cannot fail to create a deep impression. Mr. Somerset is ably supported by an excellent company. Miss Agnes Russell gives a striking impersonation of the unhappy heroine, Margaret Foster, and plays with much pathos throughout; Mr. Cameron Carr is a clever Crafton Lisle, playing with much polish and distinction; Paul Carruthers, the young man whom Prince Lucio tempts, and with such sad results, is ably depicted by Mr. Marmaduke Wetherall; Mr. E. Lionel Brocknor is good as Lord Adolphus; and Mr. H. Newman does well as Peter Wurrell; Miss Geraldine Somerset makes a delightful Clartenax Cholamdy, and is a great favourite owing to her vivacious and winning manner; Miss Polly Marshall gives a clever character-sketch of Mother Wurrell, the old woman with a thirst; Miss Helen Russell, a charming Lady Delila, acts the great scene in which Delila discovers who Prince Lucio really is, in a most dramatic way and with tremendous power; Miss Florence Nelson scores a big success as Lady Dragnette; little Miss Iris Farsayth displays much intelligence as the child, Mary Foster. The play is followed by a French vaudeville, The Glazier, which serves as an excellent spirit-reviver after the sombre story which precedes it. It is a capital piece of comedy of the most boisterous order, but it compels laughter, and Mr. Somerset proves his versatility as Jacob; while Miss Somerset again charms everyone, and contributes a very pretty dance. Both plays are well staged.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Comedy, entitled
"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

Mr. Arthur Hardy's principal company is appearing this week in the delightful fantastic comedy, Beauty and the Barge, which was wont to keep all London in a roar when first produced at the Haymarket and New Theatres. It almost suffices for a flying visit to the seaside to obtain a glimpse of the graceful garden and seascope at Coastham, and of equal beauty is the open meadow near Hedge End, where Captain James Barley gets so severely sat upon by all and sundry. As the genial old barge master, Captain James Barley, of the "Heart in Hand," whose youthful exuberance ill consorts with his grey hairs and reverend appearance, Mr. Blake Adams acts with a thorough appreciation of the comic possibilities of the part and a delicate perception of character. Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu represents the enterprising and resourceful young lieutenant, Seton Boyne, who exemplifies the precept that "youth will be served" in excellent fashion. Mr. Artherling Farrar as Herbert Manners does well. Mr. Walter Pemberton is highly diverting as the choleric old Major Smedley, and Miss Mona Robin is well in the picture as the diplomatic and deprecatory Mrs. Smedley. Mr. Fred Knight is grotesquely amusing as Tom Codd, Captain Barley's first mate; Mr. Horace Kenny gives quite a clever character sketch of the lovelorn Augustus, the "head cook and bottle-washer" on board the good ship "Heart in Hand"; Mr. Charles White is vastly entertaining as John Dibbs, gardener at Smedley's; and Mr. and Mrs. Porter, of the "Old Ship" inn are quite safe in the skilful hands of Mr. Ewart Drake and Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite. Miss Dido Drake is a fascinating little scapegrace as Ethel Smedley, and Miss Mary Pemberton is an agreeable Lucy Dallas. Miss Kate Osborne is intensely droll as the languishing property-owner Mrs. Baldwin. The pièce de resistance is preceded by Cosmo Hamilton's Jerry and a Sunbeam, in which Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu scores as Jerry Corbet, and Miss Mary Pemberton is a taking Mary Bellasis. Mr. Blake Adams is general-manager, and Mr. Atheling Farrar stage-manager for Mr. Arthur Hardy.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, August 26th, the Drama, entitled
"IN THE SHADOW OF NIGHT."

Representations of Mr. James Willard's fine drama, In the Shadow of Night, are attracting full houses at the Dalston Theatre this week, the acting all round being most creditable to the members of Mr. Willard's company. Mr. George Harvey, as Squire Allington, who is shot in the first act, represents the rôle with dignity. Gordon Allington, the squire's son, has a manly representative in Mr. H. Dobell Lyle. Mr. Charles Clifford plays Clifford Yorke, the relentless villain of the piece; and nothing is wanting in the portrayal of the thoroughly heartless, but at the same time gentlemanly villainy of the character. Jake Grudgewell, a poacher, is represented by Mr. William Hayward, who gives a characteristic rendering. Other life-like sketches are provided by Mr. Cecil Raymond, who is really admirable as Joe Jackson, a rural postman, and the Rev. Nathaniel Hope, a rector; Mr. James Ingledew as Farmer Woodstock, and Mr. Ben Richards as Jim Bates, a London cabby. Special commendation must be given to Miss Nina Westerleigh, who as Violet Kingston, the squire's ward, combines a pleasing presence with careful acting. Miss Tina Shaw makes a vivacious Molly Woodstock, the farmer's daughter; and Miss Phyllis French interests many as Bob, a little tramp. Included in the cast are also Messrs. J. H. Mann, J. H. Butt, Albert Plant, Richie Bell, Daniel Rowe, and W. Ford. Mr. Herbert Belmore is stage-manager.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

Mr. Bert Coote's Company in
"THE FATAL WEDDING."

Kennington Theatre patrons have been amply catered for this week by Mr. Bert Coote's production of Mr. Theo. Kremer's play, The Fatal Wedding. The story is familiar to most playgoers, and is admirably worked out by a company which is strong in every part. In the third act there are a number of specialities, including songs and dances by the Misses Hettie Kelly, Lily Wohlmann, Marie Wilson, Dot Jeffries, Dorothy Pain, Shirley Sparks, and Master Tom Grice.

The part of Howard Wilson, a wealthy clubman, is ably impersonated by Mr. Cecil A. Melton; and Mr. Charles Locke quite maintains his reputation as Toto, a French butler. Miss Gertrude Harrison scores a complete success as Cora Williams; and Miss Ethel Kay is excellent as Mabel Wilson. Mr. H. W. Hatchman portrays the character of Robert Curtis to a nicety; and the rôle of O'Reilly, the policeman, is well impersonated by Mr. Frank Ashley. Mr. J. Newton gives a clever sketch of the Rev. Dr. Lanceford; and Mr. Cyril Melton is good as Peter Schwartz; Miss Marie Wilson wins encomiums as Jessie; Miss Hilder Mahlert is very good as Frank; and Miss Dorothy Pain deserves praise as Molly. The children's chorus elicits warm applause.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"TWO LITTLE VAGABONDS."

After some considerable time this favourite play is paying Islington a return visit. Time does not appear to diminish the public interest in the drama, which is attracting a large amount of attention. Mr. Wilson Coleman as George Thornton acts a somewhat vacillating rôle with care and success, and is to be commended. Mr. Douglas Cecil as Captain Darville is also responsible for a good performance; and John Scarth finds a good portrayer in Mr. Joseph Bandon. Mr. John F. Traynor as the Gaffer is the objectionable, cowardly bully to the life. Messrs. Frank Gordon and Fred Archer as Dido Bunce and the Coughdrop lend adequate support. Mr. Edmund Cuthbert as Leeson is good in a small part. Miss Violet Ellicott as Marion Thornton is altogether admirable as the much-tried mother, and is entitled to much praise. Miss Mabel Ormonde as Barbara Scarth is very good, and makes a pleasant impression. Miss Marjorie Murray as Dick gives a capital study of the more reliant Boy, and gains much applause. Miss Josie Belham as Wally depicts the weaker Boy with skill, the death scene being particularly good. The remaining smaller parts are all in good hands, and dresses and scenery leave nothing to be desired.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Fredk. Melville, entitled
"HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

Mr. Fred Melville's play, Her Forbidden Marriage, was presented at the Shakespeare Theatre on Monday evening, and met with great success. Like all Mr. Melville's plays, the piece is one that appeals strongly to the hearts of popular audiences, and the various scenes, although not highly sensational, are of such thrilling interest that on several occasions the audience was completely carried away by their feelings. A very capable company has been engaged, and their interpretation of the play won complete satisfaction. A leading feature is the completeness with which the piece is staged, the elopement scene, in which there appears a motor-car and horses, drawing forth rounds of applause from the crowded house. Mr. Henry Lonsdale is well suited to the rôle of the hero, George Maddison, and his resolute and powerful performance make a deep impression. Mr. Louis Hector merits praise for his forcible and convincing acting as the villainous Charles Devereux; and Mr. Leonard Maxwell capably sustains the part of Geoffrey Broughton. One of the successes of the evening is Mr. De Vere, in the rôle of Timothy Tutfutt. Mr. De Vere has a style and method entirely his own, and his rendering of the part is evidently to the taste of the audience, who laughed heartily at his eccentricities. Mr. Henry Hare is effective as Sir George Lancaster; and a humorous sketch of an old rustic is given by Mr. Phillips. Miss Gertrude Bonsor invests the part of the heroine, Lucy, with a deal of grace and sweetness, and her acting reaches a high plane of excellence in the more passionate scenes. Miss Gertrude Hunt cleverly depicts the vindictive and selfish nature of Lady Lancaster, and meets with distinct success. Miss Sybil Hare is a sprightly Patty Lovejoy, and contributes largely to the humour of the piece; Miss Nellie Fletcher plays the part of the Mother Superior in a manner that is thoroughly in keeping with the character, and delivers the lines allotted to her with agreeable enunciation. Mr. Roland Yorke is general-manager for Mr. Fredk. Melville, and Mr. E. de Hague Body is acting-manager for Messrs. Bennett and Bennett.

THE WEST LONDON.

"A WARNING TO WOMEN."

Mr. C. Watson Mill and his well-balanced company met with a very favourable reception in Marylebone this week, and their success was thoroughly deserved. As Shaun, a wandering minstrel, Mr. C. Watson Mill put in some very effective work, his picturesque appearance greatly adding to the excellence of the portrayal. Mr. William Vane made good use of his opportunities as Fergus McNaughton; Mr. Sidney Denton was dryly amusing as Lord Eversleigh; Mr. Henry Rutland's elocution and bearing well became him as Squire Kennion; Mr. Arthur Beverley enacted the Rev. Emmanuel Wallace with due fervour; Mr. Henry P. Kennedy scored as Mike McQuade; and Mr. Richard Vane as the mysterious stranger, Dr. Marcus Dread, had a thorough grip on the house from start to finish by reason of his well-thought-out and earnestly-delivered efforts. As Hildred Miss Rosalind Tate made a deep impression with her life-like representation of dull, sullen despair; Miss Ellen Beverley did well as Molly O'Moore; Miss Grace Barton was delightfully bright and pleasing as Sheila Kennion; Miss Edith Rutland was by turns pathetic and gay as Miles O'Moore; and Miss Ruth Zillwood brought her well-known talent to bear with much realistic effect on the part of Moira Kennion. The play was well staged and mounted.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Drama, entitled
"THE SIN OF HER CHILDHOOD."

Following on the successful season of melodrama inaugurated on Bank Holiday by Mr. F. W. Melville at this pretty house at Brixton, this week was presented The Sin of Her Childhood, and a large house assembled on Monday evening and gave the deeply-interesting play a cordial reception. The drama is well mounted, the scenery being exceptionally good, and the company gives a vigorous interpretation of Mr. J. A. Campbell's play. Mr. J. Nelson Ramsey is excellent as the Rev. Alan Grey, delivering his lines with much impressiveness, and proving highly popular with the audience. Mr. Edward Thane is a smart Captain John Thornton, and his military bearing and manly determination to circumvent the villain is a feature of the play. Mr. E. W. Coleman is irresistible in the part of Barney O'Reilly, his quaint dialogue and laughable antics proving a delight to the house. Miss Madge Yates loyally assists in keeping the fun going as Eliza Muggins; Mr. Bensley Evans is sufficiently callous and wicked as Stephen to arouse the hisses of the audience, and gives a powerful delineation of the traitorous brother; while Mr. Herbert Goddard is a true-hearted yeoman as the farmer. Miss Katharine Clarke as Mary wins all hearts by her admirable acting, and throughout the play displays dramatic gifts as the unfortunate victim of a brother's treachery. Miss Olive Lanty is a ferocious Maria Haysel, and brings out well the vindictiveness of the character. Miss Maud Harris is capital as a staunch little waif, and sings prettily in the second act. Miss Elsie Tezzard as the poor little victim of Dr. Grainger's treachery is good; and the remaining parts are all well played. Mr. R. W. Allum still efficiently looks after the comfort of his numerous patrons; and the capital orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Edwin Moss, admirably renders the incidental music, and plays some excellent selections during the entr'actes.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

Mr. Walter Melville's combination in A Girl's Cross Roads is attracting large and appreciative audiences here this week. All the parts are capably filled, and the mounting of the play leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Hilda Beverley in the part of Barbara Wade, described on the programme as "a picture from life," gives a vivid portrayal of a woman sinking to the depths of degradation through the influence of drink, and her death scene in the last act is terrible in its realism. Mr. Charles Franmore as John Meadows is a typical old farmer, and the scenes of his wasted sympathy over his erring daughter was made very pathetic. Mr. Wilson Gunning makes a manly hero, and is ably backed up by Mr. Cyril Vernon as Dr. Weston, his friend. Miss Isla Garnet Vayne as the sorely-tried heroine, Constance Cornell, is sweet and gentle, and forms an agreeable contrast to the wickedness of Nelly Meadows, the farmer's daughter, a part convincingly played by Miss Florence Kelsey. Mr. Gerald Jordan makes the most of his opportunities in the part of Cuthbert Lumley, and evokes many hisses from the virtuous "gods." Mr. Fred Ingram and Miss Fay Garnet Vayne as Toby Tarvey and Tilly Vane respectively score heavily in their "comic relief."

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Drama, in Five Acts, by W. G. Wills, entitled
"A ROYAL DIVORCE."

The Royal Divorce company, under the management of Mr. W. W. Kelly, opened here on Monday to a large audience. In spite of the number of years which have elapsed since this piece was first produced, it still retains its great popularity, and proves as great a draw now as it did years ago. This is not to be wondered at when the strength of the company, employed to give the representation is considered. Every artist engaged is fully competent in his or her part, and the excellent interpretation secured is worthy of high commendation. As Napoleon, Mr. Frederick Victor proved himself to be possessed of much dramatic ability. He played throughout with great intensity and feeling, and in some of his scenes with Josephine his acting reached a high standard of excellence. An efficient exponent of the part of Talleyrand was found in Mr. Tom Robinson; and Mr. Frank Stone did full justice to the part of the Marquis de Beaumont; a capital picture of General Augereau was supplied by Mr. W. T. Elworthy; Mr. St. George Frere was all that could be desired as Marshal Murat; and Mr. George Hudson as Grimaud, the drunken innkeeper, acted well, and did all that was possible with the part; Mr. C. Jackson was well placed as Lord Keith. Miss Leah Marlborough assumed the rôle of Marie Louise with much dignity, and made the most of every opportunity; whilst much praise is due to Miss Clara Earle for her charming and winsome impersonation of Stephanie; Miss Ethel Love, a clever little child actress, skilfully undertook the duties imposed upon her in the character of the little King of Rome, and played throughout with every sign of success. Special mention must be made of Miss Beth Elliott as Josephine, who worked hard and well in the rôle. She gave full play to the various emotions, and thoroughly deserved the applause which from time to time rewarded her efforts. The minor parts were all in safe hands, and the staging and mounting of the piece were everything that could be desired.

TERRISS THEATRE.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Drama, entitled
"THE LITTLE BREAD-WINNER."

So interesting a play, acted with such excellence, should draw large houses, and those who attended at the comfortable little theatre in Rotherhithe this week were well repaid. The interest in this clean and wholesome play starts with the rise of the curtain, and is well maintained throughout the performance. The company work in perfect harmony, with the result that the piece is thoroughly appreciated in all parts of the house. As Lord William Dorrington, the old Quaker, Mr. Eric Campbell looks and acts the part to the life, and gains the applause of an audience who were by no means in sympathy with his narrow-minded views. Mr. Ashley Page acted in his usual talented fashion, as the hero, and always has the people with him, the cheers he evokes being a constant tribute to his skill. The part of Joseph Prior could scarcely have been in better hands than those of Mr. J. C. Aubrey's, who gave an artistic, consistent, and finished performance. Miss Marion Denvil as Margaret Daventry acts with rare sympathy, and plays a very difficult part with considerable grace. Little Maud Harris wins all hearts as Megg, and Bridget O'Flanaghan raises many a laugh. Miss East Robertson comes through a trying ordeal as Kate Cherry with flying colours, and nothing but praise can be given to the acting of Messrs. Chippendale, Sargent, and Miss Mattie Everett.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

"HIS MAJESTY'S GUEST."

Mr. Fred Karno's clever company are always sure of a very hearty welcome at Peckham, and last Monday a large house assembled to greet the first visit here of His Majesty's Guest. The piece, a shortened version of which has been for a long time very popular on the music hall stage, is full of rough-and-tumble fun of the most uproarious description, and pretty music and bright dances are not forgotten. Perhaps, indeed, at the theatres a few more musical items would enhance the already great popularity of the production. Mr. George Hestor is the life and soul of the performance, his Sergt. Lightning being a very quaint and diverting performance, his numerous quips and unexpected pranks causing shouts of laughter. Mr. Frank Morton as the stolid and unscrupulous Lord Easem supplies a splendid foil to Mr. Hestor, and he uses his fine voice to great advantage in several musical items. Miss Leonora Castelle looks very charming as Lady Maud Easem, and plays her rôle with much dignity and grace. Miss Edith Ager makes a dainty little Dolly Miffin; and an exceptionally good performance is supplied by Miss Kitty Brunton as the strong-minded Miss Manley. Mr. Sid Kearns is amusing as the foolish Mr. Minks; Miss Florence Dooley scores well as Miss Mackerel; Mr. Charles Usher as the fussy little Mr. Miffin, and Mr. Geo. Denham as the German doorkeeper, Fritz, give good character sketches. The famous "Six Little Burglars" is a musical item which goes as well as ever. In the first act a very clever acrobatic entertainment is supplied by the Misses Harry Howe, S. Bolton, and Tom Manardo. The scenery and effects are all that could be wished, and the whole production is received with much enthusiasm.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

"IN HOLY(!) RUSSIA."

Under the direction of Mr. J. Rice Cassidy, the above drama is attracting large audiences to the Fulham theatre. The chief part of the play, that of Renée Rubinoff, an escaped convict from Siberia, is sustained by Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy, who takes the part with admirable distinction and power. She is ably supported by Mr. Cassidy in the rôle of Col. Richard Forrest, of the Guards, whose part embraces not only the dramatic, but also the comedy element, in which latter he has the help of Mr. J. Cuthbertson as his servant, Mickey Nolan, and great amusement is the result. Of Renée Rubinoff's persecutors, the chief is Catska Lavokki, a spy in the Russian Police, a character excellently taken by Miss Florence Creagh; the part of Catska's confederate, Michael Natolski, is filled by Mr. G. Lawton; Mr. F. Lloyd's impersonation of Baron von Pleve, the Chief of the Russian Police, is admirable; Mr. Rolf Leslie handles the rôle of Count Gregori Petrolski, the "friend of the Russian people," with commendable skill; whilst Mr. C. Rovenelli is seen to considerable advantage as the Nihilist leader, Laurice Steragoff. Other well-played characters are the Sir Harry Beresford of Mr. F. Copeland, the Tsar of Russia enacted by Mr. R. Cockroft, and the Mrs. Richard Forrest by Miss A. Dudley. The whole production is under the personal supervision of Mr. Cassidy, and reflects great credit on his powers as stage-manager.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Aug. 26, was presented the Drury Lane Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE BONDMAN."

The management of this theatre must be congratulated on an excellent and most interesting eek. Hall Caine's remarkable play holds the audience firmly, and it is capitally interpreted by all concerned. Miss Grace Chalmers is an attractive representative of Greeba, and does full justice to all the important scenes. Mr. Cecil A. Collins acts powerfully and well as Jason; Mr. Arthur Bawtree as Michael Sunlocks retains the interest of the house to the end; Mr. H. C. Lanceley is very good as Adam Fairbrother; Mr. W. H. Rotherham gives a fine character study of Father Ferrati, and earlier in the play acts Grandfather with marked success; Mrs. Fairbrother is excellently embodied by Miss Madge Lanerton, as is Martha by Miss Lilian Mayne and Christian Anne by Miss Beatrice Whitney. The two Callon girls are well represented by Miss Florence Hunt and Miss Julia Willis; Miss Gertrude Helene is a very winning Mona; and Master Arthur Clarence plays intelligently as Danny. The remainder of the long cast is in capable hands, each artist contributing his best to the general excellence of the performance. The scenery, dresses, and properties are all beyond criticism.

A CORRECTION IGNORED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—You will no doubt be aware that in the Grand Magazine of June last a sensational article appeared, entitled "An Actress Who Failed," and in the July number a further article called "The Stage and its Morals." The first article was of course full of, to put it politely, terminological inexactitudes and exaggerations. The second article was padded not only with extracts from religious papers, but revived the gist of the interview with a distinguished critic, printed in Great Thoughts of December, 1897. It has been brought to the notice of the Editor of the Grand Magazine that a full apology and withdrawal of the article in Great Thoughts was written by the distinguished critic, and that this apology appeared in the Daily Telegraph of April 7, 1898, and a copy was sent. The Editor of the Grand Magazine having quoted various religious papers was further reminded of an article which appeared in the Christian Globe, written by the late Dean Farrar, called "Church and Stage." The Editor of the Grand Magazine has ignored all this, and we can draw our own conclusions.—Yours faithfully,

"QUICKSANDS."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Having seen the announcement of the forthcoming publication of Mr. J. A. Steuart's new story, "Quicksands," may we trespass on your courtesy so far as to ask you to allow us to state that a new four-act play by us, bearing this name, is to be produced by Mr. Wright Lorimer in the United States on Thursday, Sept. 5, and Mr. Frederick Harrison has very kindly lent us the Haymarket Theatre that we may give a copyright performance on the same date as the American production.

As the arrangements for our play have naturally been made for some time it is obvious that the matter is merely one of coincidence. As, however, the name of our work has already been extensively advertised throughout the American continent, we beg to be allowed to make this statement in order that if our play is produced in London—as it will be if it is successful in America—no question of either our having wilfully appropriated Mr. Steuart's title or of our right to its use may then be raised.—Yours faithfully,

ALICIA RAMSEY.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The Scarlet Patrol, the latest aspirant for the favour of lovers of musical comedy, has much to commend it, and its reception at Kingston-on-Thames was certainly of a flattering description, due to the wealth of action, colour, and general hilarity with which the comedy abounds. The story, as far as it could be gathered at one sitting, may be briefly described as follows: In Boston, U.S.A., there is a ladies' club, known as the Amazon Club, the members of which are banded together to resist the attacks of young men with matrimonial aspirations. The president of this club is a certain Miss Amazon North, a young lady who has just come into possession of an island in the Pacific, where the laws are totally independent of those of any outside nationality. In coming into her inheritance, however, Miss North learns from her lawyer, a certain Phineas Fogey, that she can retain possession of it only on condition that she marries a young aristocrat named Lord Robert Cumberland, whom she had never seen, and that if she marries anyone else, the island and all its rights and privileges pass to the said Phineas Fogey. Actuated by self-interest, and abetted by his frivolous clerk, Nicholas Quiller, the lawyer encourages the girl in her natural antipathy to a sweetheart sought to be foisted upon her, and when she announces her intention of proceeding to the island, which, by the way, is known as Zillaree, Fogey persuades a good-looking young man, representing himself to be a journalist, who had shown a penchant for the mistress of the island, to proceed there, too, in the hope that a marriage would follow, and that, the conditions being broken, he would thereby come into the property. Much takes place on the island of Zillaree. The ladies of the Amazon Club, who accompanied their president thither, take over the duties of the male police force, and become known as the Scarlet Patrol, by reason of their scarlet petticoats. Though their acts would not be countenanced in Boston, they are allowed to do almost as they like in Zillaree, and, as a result, there are many amusing situations and two equally amusing trial scenes. In the midst of all this, Miss North and Robert Leveculey, the young journalist, manage to come together, and the result is that they plight their troth, the lady believing that he is a commoner, and that in marrying him she will lose her inheritance. When this becomes known to the scheming Fogey and his clerk, they insist upon the lady renouncing all her claims to the island, which she readily does, but her lover and her trust are rewarded, and Fogey and the clerk are dumbfounded, when the so-called Leveculey announces that he is, after all, Lord Robert Cumberland, and so saves the situation.

Though the story is supposed to be concerned with the fortunes of these two young people, they are by no means the chief characters in the play. Principal honours are awarded to Mr. Arthur Stigant, who plays the part of the lawyer's clerk, Nicholas Quiller. Mr. Stigant is very seldom off the stage, and his drolleries were undoubtedly one of the chief factors in the success of the production. In this low comedy work, he received valuable co-operation from Mr. St. John Hamund, one of the authors, who essayed the part of the lawyer Fogey, and acquitted himself with distinction. Mr. Leonard Russell, who appeared as an Irish Inspector of the Boston Police, was also a conspicuous figure in the play. With a truculent humour and a rich Irish brogue he soon established himself as a favourite amongst the riverside audience. Along with these mention should be made of a Bond-street tailor, named Cooper, impersonated by Mr. Fred Rolph, who introduced into the part numerous personal quips and oddities that invested it with more than a passing interest; Johnny, a coloured boy servant, a part filled by Mr. J. H. Bishop with success; and Myra Myrtle, a young lady in a scarlet dress, holding a post of command in the Scarlet Patrol, a part that was portrayed by Miss Elise Cooke in a manner that won her friends in every part of the house. Though they had comparatively little to do, Mr. J. S. Durant as Lord Robert Cumberland and Miss Reydon Dallas as Amazon North both gave excellent renderings of the parts allotted to them.

Musically, The Scarlet Patrol is above the average of many recently-produced musical comedies. The score is tuneful throughout, whilst several of the numbers are quite of the "catchy" description. Some pleasantly-sounding airs are wedded to the songs allotted to Miss Cooke and Miss Dallas, each of whom possess voices of more than ordinary excellence. Two of these, "The girls in the scarlet petticoats," and "She knew him for a shark," sung by Miss Cooke, are amongst the gems in the collection. They were loudly redemanded. It is impossible to speak too highly of the efforts of the chorus, about forty in number, which gave evidence of most careful and painstaking training.

The play was also produced with much care in the matter of costumes and scenery, in each of which respects nothing was left to be desired. It was produced under the personal direction of Mr. Herbert Cottesmore; whilst Mr. St. John Hamund acted as stage-manager and Mr. E. Percy Rogers as his assistant. An augmented and efficient orchestra was ably conducted by Mr. Mark Strong.

CLUB FOR TOURING ACTORS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Referring to this matter in The Era, I may say that there is a club being formed in this town now for touring actors (the Irving Club), which has already for members Miss Ellen Terry (Mrs. Carew) and Mr. James Carew, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier (Miss Violet Vanbrugh), Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. Charles Santley, Sir Anderson Critchett, C.V.O., Sir Chas. W. Mathews, Sir Edward Moss; also local names, Sir Peter Walker, Bart., and Mr. E. K. Muspratt. The premises, I believe, will be in London-road, or near it.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES G. WEIGHT.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

The scene of extraordinary enthusiasm on the last night of Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's season of Gilbert and Sullivan opera at the Savoy Theatre astonished even those who realised the gradual growth of the popularity of the company which has been appearing at the Savoy Theatre. We print elsewhere the pleasant, pithy letter in which Mrs. Carte describes her misgivings when contemplating starting her season. The success of the last performance was completed by a cleverly-contrived "surprise"—the introduction of a scene from The Mikado. The only disappointment was that the popular and much respected manageress was not able to be present to receive the well-deserved tribute which awaited her from the delighted house.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree has returned from Marienbad, where he was the object, in common with other members of the profession, of Royal honours. The eminent actor is busy with rehearsals for his tour, which will begin on Monday, Sept. 9, at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, with Colonel Newcome. Both the Irish and Scottish capitals will be included in a tour lasting eleven weeks, in the course of which seven towns will be visited.

Mr. H. B. Irving produced The Lion and the Unicorn, a one-act play, written by Mr. Laurence Irving and Mr. Tom Hesslewood, at the Theatre Royal, Bolton, on Wednesday. A notice of the production appears in another column. Mr. Irving plays the part of Charles II., and, as the character is treated from a humorous point of view, his impersonation forms a strong contrast to that of Mathias in The Bells, which is the second part of the double bill. Mr. Irving is also appearing on his present tour as Charles I. in the play which the late Mr. W. G. Wills wrote for Sir Henry Irving. Thus he is not only playing a part rendered famous by his father, but he is acting both father and son—Charles I. and Charles II.

Mr. Arthur Collins, who is unhappily suffering from an acute attack of gout, is nevertheless giving undiminished attention to the production of the autumn drama at Drury Lane. After considerable discussion with the authors of The Sins of Society, the manager of the National Theatre has decided to end Messrs. Raleigh and Henry Hamilton's new play in a happy manner. It was felt that after four acts of suffering the audience would welcome forgiveness for the poor woman who is more sinned against than sinning, and prefer remorse and repentance to seeing her in the dock. Consequently the curtain will fall on Thursday, Sept. 12, to the strains of the Wedding March. In the new piece Messrs. Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton satirise the follies of society folk, and have made one of the scenes the occasion of a dog dejeuner, where a number of fashionable women bring their pets.

The sensations of The Sins of Society will be added to by the introduction of wireless telegraphy. We have seen the invention exploited on the boards of a Metropolitan music hall, and also turned to dramatic uses at a suburban theatre; but in the Drury Lane production Marconi's system will be utilised with startling effect, and will no doubt come as a novelty to myriads of playgoers. The chief exponents of Messrs. Raleigh and Hamilton's new drama will comprise Mr. Albert Chevalier, Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Julian L'Estrange, Mr. Austin Melford, Mr. Oscar Adye, Miss Constance Collier, Miss Fanny Brough, Miss Adrienne Augarde, and Miss Lucy Sibley.

Miss Olga Nethersole was among the passengers who sailed by the White Star liner Cedric on Thursday from Liverpool for America. Miss Nethersole will start her tour at San Francisco, and will reach New York at the beginning of next year, opening her season there with an adaptation of Paul Hervieu's play, Le Reveil, entitled The Awakening, the original production of which took place at the Comédie-Française last year. The three leading rôles will be played by Mr. Robert Ingleton, Mr. Frank Mills, and Miss Nethersole. Among others included in the company are Miss Adeline Bourne, Miss Katharine Stewart, Miss Molly Pearson, Miss Laura Hansen, Mr. Lawrence Grant, Mr. Langhorne Burton, Mr. Robert Bolder, and Mr. Lionel Belmore.

"The Gay Gordons" will descend upon London on Wednesday, Sept. 11, when Mr. Seymour Hicks's newest play will be produced at the Aldwych. The music is composed by Guy Jones, and lyrics are furnished by Arthur Wimperis, C. H. Bovill, and P. G. Wodehouse. The openings of the acts, which are always such ingenious features of Mr. Hicks' productions, will be supplied by Henry Hamilton, that to the first, which represents a moor in the Highlands on the 12th, being taken from a poem by Mr. Hamilton illustrative of "The Dawn of Day." Act. II. is laid in a tent in the Gardens of Meltrose Castle.

Mr. Seymour Hicks will find an outlet for his effervescent humour in the part of a Gordon Highlander, and Miss Ellaline Terriss will shine conspicuously as the daughter of an American millionaire. Mr. Fred Emney will have the rôle of a Punch-and-Judy man, Miss Zena Dare will appear as his daughter, and the cast will be completed by Messrs. A. W. Baskcomb, William Lugg, Lawrence Caird, Cecil Kinnaird, Kenneth Maclaine, Arthur Royd, Mervyn Dene, J. C. Buckstone, and Will Bishop, and Misses Rosina Filippi, Sidney Fairbrother, Barbara Deane, Katie Butler, Vera Morris, and Georgina Delmar.

A fund has been organised for the benefit of the widow and four little children of the late Mr. David Christie Murray, whose family have been left without means of support. The aim of the fund is to help Mrs. Christie Murray over her difficulties during the next year or so, after which it is anticipated that her talents as pianist and accompanist may suffice for her support. Mr. Richard Butler, the editor of the Referee, to whose columns the late journalist was a valued contributor, is the treasurer of the fund.

Miss Lena Ashwell will re-open the Great Queen-street Theatre, which she has renamed the Kingsway, on Wednesday, Oct. 9, with a play by Anthony P. Whatton, entitled Irene Wycherley. The company engaged by Miss Ashwell includes Messrs Norman McKinnel, Henry Vibart, Denis Eadie, and C. M. Hallard, and Misses Muriel Wylford, Frances Ivor, Beatrice Forbes Robertson, Gertrude Scott, Christine Silver, and Dorothy Brunt. Miss Ashwell has also acquired the rights in The Greater Love, by James Fagan; Blind, by Edward Knoblauch; The Whip Hand, by Keble Howard; His Own, by Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland; a new and as yet unnamed play by St. John Hankin; and two plays by German and two by American authors. The policy of numbered and reserved seats in all parts of the house will be pursued at the Kingsway.

Mr. J. E. Vedrenne has completed negotiations for the lease of the new theatre at the corner of Shaftesbury-avenue and Wardour-street, which is to be called the Queen's. The theatre will be opened on Oct. 1 with a four-act comedy by Mrs. Madeleine Lucette Ryley, in which Miss Ellis Jeffreys will play the leading part. Mr. Vedrenne is anxious that it should be understood that the taking of the new Shaftesbury-avenue theatre is in no way concerned with the enterprise in which he and Mr. Granville Barker are engaged at the Savoy Theatre.

"The Midnight Wedding," the play by Walter Howard which has filled the magnificent Lyceum Theatre to its utmost capacity, was withdrawn in the height of its popularity on Wednesday evening to make way for The Christian, which will be produced to-night. It is to be hoped that further success is in store for Messrs. H. R. Smith and Ernest Carpenter, whose plucky enterprise has had the result of bringing back prosperity to the historic house.

Mr. Martin Harvey's announcement that he intended to put the Scriptural play, Great Possessions, into his regular répertoire has evoked an extraordinary number of letters from practically every town on his tour expressing satisfaction at the prospect of witnessing this unique play. As these letters continue to arrive, and are so pleasantly explicit in their expressions of satisfaction, Mr. Harvey has decided to give the play on several occasions in each of the big cities instead of playing it only as a répertorial item.

Mr. C. Herbert Workman, the well-known comedian, who was responsible for much of the success of the recent revival of Savoy opera, has forwarded to the Actors' Benevolent Fund a further sum of £1 6s., obtained by means of his autograph. Mr. Ian Maclaren has also sent the Fund a sovereign obtained from a similar source.

Miss Clothilde Graves's new play, The Other Side, the production of which will be a feature of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal's forthcoming tour, is a comedy-drama in three acts, the scene being laid in an old riverside cottage in Berkshire. Miss Graves has chosen for the main theme of her story a certain famous society divorce case, and in her last act all the characters involved in the cause célèbre are brought together in the parlour of the cottage in question, where a happy ending is contrived. In the piece Mr. Kendal appears as a celebrated barrister, counsel for the petitioner, and Mrs. Kendal plays the part of the heroine.

Monday, Sept. 16, will see the reopening of the Savoy, fitted with a new stage, and with the seating and upholstery renewed. Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker will start their season with Bernard Shaw's comedy, You Never Can Tell, in which Mr. J. D. Beveridge will make his first appearance as the waiter, and Mr. A. E. George will assume the part of Fergus Crampton. In other respects the cast will differ little from that of the previous revival. The Devil's Disciple will be given on Monday, Oct. 14, and will be succeeded six weeks later by Cæsar and Cleopatra, described as "a history in four acts by Bernard Shaw," in which Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott will be seen in their impersonation of the title-rôles.

The new series of the Vedrenne-Barker matinées begins on Tuesday, Sept. 24, with a new comedy in three acts, entitled Joy, by Mr. John Galsworthy, the author of The Silver Box. Oct. 22 will witness the presentation of Professor Gilbert Murray's translation of "The Medea of Euripides," and Tuesday, Nov. 19, will be marked by the production of Mr. Barker's new play, upon which the title of Waste has been bestowed. The piece is in four acts, and deals with the interesting subject of political life.

Mr. Forbes Robertson will bridge the interval which must precede his appearance at the Savoy by a tour of the provinces, beginning at Blackpool, on Monday, Sept. 9, Leeds, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Birmingham, and Dublin being also included in the itinerary. Hamlet, Cæsar and Cleopatra, Mice and Men, and The Light that Failed will be embraced in the répertoire.

An heroic action on the part of a young actress is to be placed to the credit of Miss Decima Chatteris, a member of Mr. Seymour Hicks's My Darling company, who succeeded in saving the life of a sister actress at Eastbourne last week. Miss Blanche Vaudon, who was bathing on the dangerous coast near Beachy Head, was carried out of her depth, and was sinking, when Miss Chatteris courageously went to her assistance and brought her back to shore, supporting her under the arms all the way. Such a feat on the part of a lady cannot be too highly extolled, and Miss Chatteris is to be warmly congratulated on her bravery and skill.

The name of Herbert Darnley is alone sufficient to guarantee any new venture, but, apart from this fact, this go-ahead manager's new play, A Mother's Sacrifice, should just hit the mark, dealing, as it does, with the vital question of what a woman should do whose husband ill-treats her, but does not give her the chance to get a divorce. There is, of course, a decent fellow who would give his life to protect her and her child, but she chooses to remain in her misery rather than injure her child's good name. With Miss Louie Adair as the Mother, and Mr. Cecil Klein as the "decent fellow," the cast promises to be a strong one. The attractiveness of the piece will be increased by Mr. Darnley's Dots, who will, for the time, forsake their music hall triumphs and play important child parts in the new drama Mr. Darnley is indeed a busy man!

The recent death of Fred Locke, the well-known pantomime author, has revived interest in the appeal made on behalf of his wife and family. The hon. treasurer of the fund, Mr. J. G. Crichton, 9, Bridge-street, Glasgow, acknowledges with thanks the receipt of the following additional sums:—Lionel Rignold (third subscription), 10s.; J. G. Crichton, 10s.; Chief Officer Neil, Clan Line, 5s.

Little Doris Trevelyan, Mr. Claude Trevelyan's niece and pupil, a child actress-vocalist of remarkable talent just entering her teens, has, in competition with adult candidates, lately won the first-class certificate of the Society of Arts for singing. Her trial songs were Handel's "Rejoice greatly," Mozart's "Porgi amor," and Purcell's "When I am laid in earth."

The revival of The Christian at the Lyceum Theatre is coincident with the arrival of Miss Ola Humphrey, one of the most successful interpreters of Glory Quayle, the chief character in Hall Caine's play, in America, and quite recently in Australia. Miss Humphrey, who is of Franco-American parentage, is over here on a holiday, this being her first visit to England.

Mr. H. A. Saintsbury will shortly tour (by arrangement with Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory) in Mr. Grant Allen's new play, A Knave of Hearts, returning later to the Maundy-Gregory management for his romantic drama campaign.

At the fall of the curtain on Monday evening at the Camden Theatre, Mr. C. W. Somerset, who is appearing this week in The Sorrows of Satan, came forward and announced that the Rev. T. C. Collins, a well-known clergyman, who was present at the performance, would like to address the audience, and give his views on the play, and on theatres in general. The reverend gentleman spoke in the most eulogistic terms of the play and the actors, and said he felt that such plays could not help doing good. He had not visited the theatre before, but had during the evening wandered all over the building, and he heartily congratulated the Camden Town residents on possessing such a beautiful theatre, so admirably managed. The speaker was listened to with marked attention, and was loudly applauded at the conclusion.

The Hutchison tours, which embrace leading London successes, are realising the highest expectations of their enterprising promoters. During a successive season at Brighton with Peter's Mother, The Stronger Sex, and The Freedom of Suzanne, no less than 33,000 persons were attracted in three weeks to the West Pier, the first week drawing 12,000 people, the second 10,000, and the third 11,000. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison both have important parts in the different plays, for the success of which they are in a large degree responsible.

Mr. Lucombe Searelle, who recently returned to this country from America to see after the production of the Scriptural play, Mizpah, of which he is part author, has met with a very serious accident from which grave consequences may arise. While descending a long flight of stairs on Tuesday he tripped over an untacked carpet, and fell to the bottom, sustaining severe injuries. Three ribs are broken, the hip-bone has been injured, and a lung has been so affected that it is feared pleurisy may set in. Mr. Searelle has also sustained a nasty cut on the forehead and slight concussion of the brain. The invalid is staying at 8, Palace-crescent, East Molesey, and his nurse writes that he is, without doubt, the pluckiest patient she has ever had under her charge, and that she feels confident he will pull through.

Miss Emil Leslie, who made such a marked success as Katherina in Mr. Clive Currie's recent production of The Taming of the Shrew, has been engaged by Mr. F. R. Benson to share the leads in his No. 2 company.—Mr. A. Conybeare Gough, so long connected with Monsieur Beaucaire, having played the principal comedy part, Rakell, over six hundred times, has been engaged by Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry for their autumn tour of The Scarlet Pimpernel.

"Mrs. Ponderbury's Past," the merry farce which is having such a remarkable run at the Vaudeville, has been secured by the enterprising management of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison, by special arrangement with Sir Charles Wyndham, who, before leaving for Switzerland, decided to place the entire provincial and suburban rights of this play in the hands of Mr. Hutchison.

Mr. James Mavall, who was stage and business manager for Messrs. Morell and Mouillot when The Geisha was first performed in Bournemouth, in 1896, has been appointed manager of the Bournemouth Theatre, and took over his duties last week.

Mr. Clarence Sounes terminated his first variety season at the Theatre Royal and Hippodrome, Aldershot, on Saturday last, and put on His House in Order with Mr. Geo. Alexander's company on Monday. Next week The Bondman will be staged, and an excellent list of bookings has been secured for the autumn dramatic season, after which Mr. Sounes will again revert to varieties twice nightly for a winter season, commencing in December.

Mr. Mayor-Cooke has just concluded his 250th performance in his original part of Prince Ulric of Ravensburgh, in Mr. Walter Howard's Lyceum success, Her Love Against the World.

A case which might well form a thrilling ending to a Drury Lane melodrama was heard at the Richmond Police Court this week. It appeared that on Sunday night last Mr. Hilarion Cornelly-Joye was motoring in company with Lord Haldon and Mr. Pitt Hardacre between Kingston and Richmond. At the base of Petersham Hill the motor skidded, and swerved in the direction of an old man with a barrow, who apparently failed to notice its approach. With remarkable courage and presence of mind Mr. Joye sprang from the front of the motor and pushed the man into the curbway. Unfortunately he was caught by the splashboard, and both he and the old man were hurled to the ground.

Mr. Joye himself was rendered unconscious for two hours, and the old man, whose name it transpired was Montague, was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain, but under the care of the house surgeon of the Richmond Infirmary, both were restored. At the Police Court the Magistrate exonerated Lord Maldon, who was driving, from all blame, and complimented Mr. Joye on his gallantry, which the Bench considered had probably saved the life of Montague. Mr. Joye, it may be added, sustains the part of Duff Wynterden in Mr. Charles Macdona's production of Doctor Wake's Patient.

Cordial congratulations are offered to Mr. Kenelm Foss and Miss Elisabeth Gilson, who were married at a registrar's office on July 1. Mr. Foss' most recent appearances were as the old gambler in The Prodigal Son at the Adelphi and as Hawk in Prunella at the Court. Mrs. Foss has distinguished herself at His Majesty's and the Adelphi.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" will have a more extensive setting on its transference on Monday to the Adelphi, where the greater space afforded by the stage will enable the interior of Mrs. Wiggs' kitchen, which forms the scene of the first act, to be enlarged, so as to give more room for the rejoicings at the wedding of Miss Hazy and Mr. Stubbins. The scene of a railway siding, of which a freight car is a feature, will also be extended, and the increased accommodation will allow of the introduction of an automobile, in which Miss Lucy and Mr. Bob will take their honeymoon trip.

Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren and their company will start their third tour with the late Wilson Barrett's favourite play, Claudian, at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Maclaren have toured the piece for two consecutive years with the greatest success. The future bookings, which comprise many of the best money-making towns, run well into next year, and give every promise of the continued success of this fine play.

Miss Paul, who had the distinction of playing Beatrice in Dante with the late Sir Henry Irving, is going on tour with The Night of the Party, Mr. Weedon Grossmith's Avenue Theatre success. The company will visit all the chief provincial centres, including Brighton, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Manchester, Liverpool, and Birmingham.

Mr. William Rose will shortly be touring the drama, The Road to Fortune, which has already achieved success. Special new scenery is being painted by Mr. Banks, of the Imperial Theatre; new costumes are being executed by well-known London costumiers; and everything is being done to bring the piece thoroughly up to date.

Miss Louie Adair has been engaged by Mr. Herbert Darnley to star in his new production, A Mother's Sacrifice.

Mr. Hubert Druce commences a tour on Sept. 9, at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, of The Pocket Miss Hercules, Mr. J. Storer Clouston's screamingly eccentric farce. Those sterling artists Miss Ruth Mackay and Mr. Stanley Cooke have been engaged for the principal parts. In the advt. which appeared in our last issue the name of Mr. Stanley Cooke was printed as Mr. Stanley "Moore"—a regrettable error. Managers, please note.

The Moody-Manners company gave another performance in English of Wagner's Tristan and Isolda at the Lyric Theatre on Tuesday, when Mme. Fanny Moody and Mr. O'Mara were replaced by Miss Enriqueta Crichton and Mr. Charles Carter, both of whom gave admirable performances. Miss Crichton made a very dramatic Isolda, and sang remarkably well, and Mr. Carter, despite his obvious nervousness, distinguished himself greatly in his love duet. Mr. Dever was again an excellent Kurvenal, and Miss Toni Selter repeated her fine impersonation of Brangæna, Mr. Magrath once more proving an eminently satisfactory King Mark. The members of the orchestra, under Herr Eckhold, acquitted themselves to perfection.

Miss Sophie Harriss, exacting though her duties be in connection with The Prince of Pilsen company, nevertheless finds time to take an active interest in the management of a number of charitable institutions. In the course of her motor journey from Folkestone to Worthing the other day she encountered General Booth on his missionary travels. At the close of his address at Worthing the following afternoon the General asked, "Well, did I plead well?" "That is my answer," was the reply of Miss Harriss, as she handed a substantial subscription to the venerable evangelist.

Mr. Desmond M. Raleigh will open his season at the New Theatre on Monday with the four-act play, by Horace Annesley Vachell, entitled Her Son. The work has been entirely rewritten since its production at the Playhouse last March, and as the piece now stands it resolves itself into a duel between Dorothy and the Actress for the possession of the hero and child. Deviating from the usual entr'acte music, Mr. Raleigh has arranged to give only high-class light music by a specially-selected septette of soloists, under the direction of Mr. Frederick Rossé. A number of the original cast have been secured, Miss Winifred Emery playing her former part of Dorothy Fairfax. Mr. Kenneth Douglas will appear by permission of Mr. Cyril Maude, and the cast will also include Misses Suzanne Sheldon, Florence Haydon, Emma Chambers, and Florence Harwood, Master Bobby Andrews, and Mr. Cecil Burt.

Mr. W. H. C. Nation, who made an energetic bid for public favour last year at Terry's, is again taking up the reins of management, and will reopen the Scala Theatre on Oct. 26. Mr. Nation will rely for his attractions chiefly upon a new drama founded on a serial story which appeared in the Covent Garden Magazine when under his editorship; upon a new comedy adapted from the French; and upon a new musical extravaganza of a satirical character, in which several songs by Mr. Nation himself, either original or imitated from the French, will be included.

Mr. T. Edward Ward has just completed arrangements with Mr. Watson-Mill, the author of A Warning to Women and The Eve of Her Wedding Day, for the production, next Easter, of a new play, to be called The Love of the Princess, a modern romance written in Mr. Mill's happiest and strongest vein. The play promises to outrival the big financial hits already secured by this young and successful playwright. The production will be the most costly ever attempted by Mr. Ward.

The Marquis De Leuville, who is well remembered for his compositions, both poetic and musical, can boast of the biggest, curliest, and glossiest silk hat in London. The size of the chapeau is 7, and although the height of the crown and width of the brim is astonishing, it does not look at all out of place on the head of the owner. This is accounted for by the fact that the Marquis de Leuville stands 6ft. 2in., is 46in. round the chest, and weighs 17 stone.

Miss Julie Temple, famous for her portrayal of Bridget in The Fatal Wedding with Mr. Bert Coote on four separate tours, has been engaged by Mr. Herbert Ralland to impersonate Mrs. Deborah in Mice and Men for a few special weeks, beginning Sept. 9, at Brighton.

Mr. Norman V. Norman is taking a great deal of trouble over the production of Mr. Sheridan, the mounting and dressing of which will be very fine. The play should be as successful in the provinces as it was in London, as it promises all the essentials that appeal to the taste of the modern playgoer.

Great preparations are being made at the Opera House, Wakefield, for the production on Monday of Mr. Frank M. Thorne's new play, The Woman Pays. An excellent cast has been engaged, and magnificent scenery painted by Mr. Egerton, and judging from Mr. Thorne's previous productions, a great success may be anticipated.

Messrs. Savery and Pigott have, by arrangement with Mr. F. R. Benson, secured the services of Mr. W. H. Quinton as producer for them of The English Rose and The Harbour Lights when those pieces go on their spring tour. Mr. Quinton, who has been Mr. Benson's stage-manager for the last three years, will be remembered for the good service done by him for years at the Court Theatre when working for Mrs. John Wood and Mr. Arthur Chudleigh.

Miss Adelaide Ross Ford has been specially engaged by Mr. Charles Macdona for the part of the Gipsy in Doctor Wake's Patient.

A boom on a big scale in romantic costume plays of The Three Musketeers type may shortly be expected from Mr. J. Maundy Gregory who has already arranged for the following:—H. A. Saintsbury's "Dumas" plays, King of the Huguenots, A White Feather, Friend of the People, Sword of Flame, and Chicot the Jester. Mr. Maundy-Gregory feels that the country is now ripe for real romantic drama well done.

Mme. Clara Butt and Mr. Kennerley Rumford were officially received on landing in Melbourne by the Mayor, and were enthusiastically welcomed by an immense crowd. The tour of the favourite vocalists in Australia will last till next spring, when they will return to London in time for the season.

Mr. William Bailey has again commissioned Mr. G. Brydon-Phillips to provide the Christmas annual at the West London Theatre.

The Moody-Manners' brilliant season at the Lyric will enter upon its last week on Monday, when Faust will be performed, and will be repeated at the matinée on Saturday. Madame Butterfly will also be given twice, namely, on Wednesday and Saturday evenings; and La Bohème, Tannhäuser, and Lohengrin will be in the bill on other nights. The novelty of the week will be Nicholas Gatty's one-act opera, Grey Steel, which was produced in March last year in Sheffield. It will be given on Friday evening in conjunction with Pagliacci.

The Irving Theatre, Seacombe, reopens for the season on Monday with Our Flat, which will be given for the first three nights, the rest of the week being taken up with The Gay Lord Quex. Mr. James Kiernan has arranged an attractive series of performances, and a season of prosperity should be in store for this beautiful theatre, which is admirably appointed, and has been equipped with new stock scenery and properties.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Miss Terry and the "Tots."

Mr. Alfred C. Calmour writes to the Daily Telegraph:—Your correspondence on the subject of "Slack Mothers" reminds me of a phrase in a letter written to me by my friend Miss Ellen Terry, and which I am sure she will forgive me for quoting—breathing as it does the very essence of maternal affection: "I am down at Winchelsea all alone with my grandchildren. The little tots make me long to be young mother again, with all its trials and tribulations, and all the great blessings which go along with it."

The Speaker on the Stage.

Mr. Lowther, the Speaker of the House of Commons, when at Cambridge was a keen member of the Amateur Dramatic Club, and during the Canterbury Week, under his nom-de-théâtre of Lowther R. Cade, won laurels behind the footlights as one of the Old Stagers when Mr. Charles Brookfield was one of their number.

Often a Parson.

Mr. Austin Melford, who will play the Rev. Martin Hope in Sins of Society at the Lane, seems to have played a good many clergymen. It was during the twelve years that he was leading man with the late Wilson Barrett that he made such a success as the Bishop in Hall Caine's play, Ben-my-Chree, as well as Favius in the Sign of the Cross at the Lyric, and as the Holy Clement in Claudian; then came the Rev. Harold Wilson in Tommy Atkins at the Pavilion, and Father Ferratti in The Bondman. Curiously enough, by request of the ship's captain, Mr. Melford read the lessons during the voyage from Australia.

A Liberal Offer.

Mr. Arthur Prince, the ventriloquist, is fulfilling an engagement at Hammerstein's in New York City. Apparently, however, there is one individual who thinks the act might be improved, and Mr. Prince has received the following letter from him:—"Mr. Arthur Prince,—Dear Sir,—I am blessed with the power of ventriloquism, and would like very much if you would take me in hand, as I believe I could be of valuable services to you in your line of business. I can imitate quite a lot of things, and have a very good voice. Dear Sir I think with this combination, we could fake the entire world, for I could be on the stage as one of your images, and I could carry on quite a lot of mischief while you are proforming, and the public would not for one moment believe it is I who is doing all this, for the American people don't beleave a colord man can do any such things, and that's where you would win a greater fame.—Freternally yours."

Shakespeare and the Deceased Wife's Sister.

The House of Lords on Monday last passed the third reading of the Deceased Wife's Sister Bill. The Royal Assent is now only needed to make this much-discussed measure the law of the land. Many noble lords had much to say on the matter. This is what Shakespeare thought of the question. He declares, says a contemporary, that the union of a woman with her brother-in-law is "an act that blurs the grace and blush of modesty; calls virtue, hypocrite; takes off the rose from the fair forehead of an innocent love, and sets a blister there; makes marriage vows as false as dicer's oaths"; and that the whole universe "is thought-sick at the act."

An "Imitation Englishman."

Mr. Richard Harding Davis, the playright, recently went to see a performance of his comedy, The Yankee Tourist, at the Casino, Asbury Park, New York. Mr. Davis occupied a box with a party of friends, and presently thought he had reason to complain of Walter Rosenberg, the acting-manager of the Casino. The latter requested Mr. Davis to step outside the theatre and talk it over. On the "broadwalk" the pair clinched, and before they broke away several light blows were struck.

Mr. Davis retained as a slight mark of the encounter a cut on the upper lip, which he attributed to a diamond ring worn by his opponent. According to Mr. Davis, he and his friends occupied one box in the theatre, and another had been engaged by him for others, who were late in arriving. Just before the curtain rose strangers entered the vacant box and began to make themselves at home. Mr. Davis remonstrated, but they insisted that they were in possession, and refused to go, so he sought Mr. Rosenberg.

"I went to the box office, where Mr. Rosenberg was standing," said Mr. Davis. "At his first words, which were anything but complimentary, I naturally bristled up. I asked him what he meant by speaking in that manner. His retort was more than I could stand. I have my own ideas of the ethics of names called by another, and I must say that I resented the one that he used in speaking to me." "What name did he call you?" asked the reporter. "He called me," said Mr. Davis deliberately, "an imitation Englishman. So I hit him."

The Destroyer in Drama.

The Daily Chronicle reminds us that Attila, King of the Huns, the subject of Mr. Binyon's new play, has been made to figure more than once on the stage already. The famous "Scourge of God," so-named, became the subject of a tragedy, by Corneille, produced in 1667; an opera, by Verdi, performed first in Venice, 1846; and an epic poem, in twelve books, by W. Herbert, London, 1833, the latter having an historical preface on the career of Attila from the time of his defeat on the Catalaunian plains in 451 till his death in 453.

Hot-Iron Notes.

MM. Messager and Broussan, says our lively Paris correspondent, have decided to open a singing class at the Opera, where young artists will receive the necessary finishing touches, this class to be directed by M. Jean de Reszké. M. Broussan may be congratulated on this innovation, which will be certain to find imitators in other countries. M. Broussan, himself an admirable singer, has often pointed out to me that singers who at the Conservatoire competitions or at special auditions really were very good, proved most unsatisfactory the moment they had to sing an entire rôle. "The whole secret," said M. Broussan, "is that, with very few exceptions, the débutant or débutante is only imperfectly taught." As to M. de Reszké, an expert in the matter of voice production, he is very hard—not to say cruel—on the prize pupils of the Conservatoire. "They do not sing," he says, "they shriek, as if someone burned them with a hot iron. Somehow or other they imagine that the bigger the voice the better, and managers confirm them in that foolish idea. During the last Conservatoire competitions I have waited in vain for a 'pianissimo' or a 'mezza voce.' But no; I came to listen to singers, and I heard 'howling dervishes.' Take, for instance, Werther—a rôle of restrained passion, of sadness, a part that has to be sung 'mezza voce.' The young tenors should know this, or their teachers should knock it into their heads. But no; they bawl their part, in order to show what a volume of sound they can produce. Last year I had a pleasant surprise. At a dress-rehearsal I heard a tenor sing delightfully, keeping his voice well under control. I applauded with all my might, and returned the following evening to listen to this rara avis. Oh, horror! This time he positively bellowed, and I ran out of the house."

"FIANDER'S WIDOW."

A New and Original Comedy, in Three Acts, by Sydney Valentine and M. E. Francis (Mrs. Blundell), produced at the Garrick Theatre on Wednesday, Aug. 28.

Mrs. Fiander .....MISS MIRIAM CLEMENTS
Mrs. Belbin .....MRS. CHARLES CALVERT
Betty .....MISS ELFRIDA CLEMENT
Susan .....MISS MAUD WYNTER
Isaac Sharpe.. .....MR. SYDNEY VALENTINE
Richard Marshall .....MR. H. NYE CHART
Sam Belbin .....MR. ARTHUR ELDRED
An Artist .....MR. SCOTT CRAVEN
Andrew Burge .....MR. VICTOR WIDDICOMBE
John Hardy .....MR. FRANK LACY
Abel Hunt .....MR. EDWARD RIGBY
Job Bundy .....MR. CHARLES DALY
Richard Cross .....MR. FRED NEERI
A Carpenter .....MR. LEONARD CALVERT

Since the days of The Squire and Far From the Madding Crowd we have not had too many "truly rural" plays. At the bottom of the heart of the play-going public, which is chiefly urban, is a deep love for the country, its "ways," its oddities, and its humours. This fact will account for the favour with which Fiander's Widow was received at the Garrick Theatre on Wednesday evening. In Mrs. Blundell's story the leading character, Rosalie Fiander, holds much the same position as did the heroine of Mr. Pinero's famous play. She is the widow of a dairy-farmer, who died leaving her in charge of the property. Elias Fiander's old friend, Isaac Sharpe, a sheep farmer, had no need of feminine assistance, and was, indeed, suspicious of the "sex." Rosalie is still young and pretty—so pretty that an artist who once saw her asleep in a cornfield painted her portrait, and made a great success with it at the Royal Academy. But beauty alone cannot rule a pack of lazy agricultural labourers, and Rosalie feels the want of a male ally in working her farm. Of course, "Fiander's widow" is a very desirable match, and she is besieged by suitors. Amongst these is an undertaker named Andrew Burge, a solicitor's clerk called Samuel Cross, an auctioneer named Wilson, and John Hardy, a grocer's assistant. But the only suitable applicant for the post is Isaac, who is a confirmed bachelor, one of those quaint "originals" who are only to be found in our rural districts—kindly, conscientious, and cautious. When Rosalie's difficulties become too great, she practically proposes to Isaac, who, pitying her position, accepts her as his wife. Then Isaac's nephew, Richard Marshall, returns from America and falls in love with Rosalie; and a struggle in them between love and honour begins. Rosalie cannot bear to break her promise to Isaac; and yet she cannot bring herself to abandon "love passages" with Richard. After much hesitation and embarrassment, the knot of difficulty is cut by Isaac, who is really delighted to find that the two young people have "a-took the notion" of marrying each other so nicely.

Mr. Pinero's aspiration in the case of The Squire was to bring the scent of the hay across the footlights; and Mr. Sydney Valentine and Mrs. Blundell have succeeded in giving their audiences the sense of the fresh, simple, quiet life of the Dorsetshire dales. Fiander's Widow makes no claim to thrill with sensation, or to shake the sides with "screaming" situations. It is only a delightfully true and humorous picture of country character drawn by one who is evidently well acquainted with the life which she depicts. Possibly the authors will see their way to certain cuttings which may make the piece play a little closer. Judicious compression wherever the talk seems to need it will greatly improve it as a whole; and hand in hand with this should go an attempt on the part of the artists to take certain scenes a little more briskly. Fiander's Widow is so charming in its comedy, so sweet and clean in its characterisation, so free from artificiality and clap-trap, that it certainly should not be allowed to make a less complete appeal for want of a little tactful revision and condensation. The play is one of the prettiest and most artistic things of its kind that have been seen of late; and full chance should be given it of making the success it so thoroughly deserves.

Certainly, every advantage is given to the piece by the acting. Miss Miriam Clements's rare beauty and adaptable dramatic gifts were shown in the character of Mrs. Fiander. It was only the other day that we had Miss Clements playing an audacious artist's model; now she is seen as a simple Dorsetshire farmeress. Her tact and instinctive skill are really remarkable; and there is really no saying what she may not do when the opportunity arrives. Her Mrs. Fiander is an altogether delightful impersonation. It is impossible to resist its charm, its tender womanliness, and its gentle grace. Perhaps there was a little too much refinement and not enough rusticity in the reading; but, after all, Rosalie is not an Audrey, and the spread of education in the rural districts at present is rapidly increasing. But the mainstay of the performance is certainly Mr. Sydney Valentine's Isaac Sharpe. This fine character actor has not for some time had such an opportunity of displaying his powers. The dry humour, the good-natured shrewdness, the solid good sense of the man were shown by Mr. Valentine in the most agreeable and amusing manner. It was a performance of a masterly and meritorious kind; intensely artistic, never exaggerated, and in the highest degree interesting and effective. Mr. Valentine's dialect was employed with excellent ease, and it was never dropped, slurred, or forgotten. He realised the character in the most able and expressive way; and his Isaac Sharpe will be remembered as one of the very best of Mr. Valentine's many creations. All who are familiar with Mrs. Charles Calvert's personality and style can imagine how irresistibly droll she was as a village charwoman. Her Mrs. Belbin was irresistible. Nothing could be funnier in its way than this quaint and curious embodiment, full of originality, oddity, and experienced art. Mr. H. Nye Chart played Richard Marshall with excellent judgment and discretion. He is personally well adapted to the personage, and he acted the rôle with all the necessary expressiveness and with commendable tact and earnestness. Fiander's Widow is fertile in opportunities for "small part" people; and the opportunities were, in each instance, taken full advantage of. Mr. Arthur Eldred as Sam Belbin was thoroughly characteristic, and had evidently studied the rôle thoroughly. Mr. Edward Rigby as Abel Hunt supplied a well-considered and ingenious interpretation. Mr. Charles Daly's Job Bundy was a genuine bit of work, and deserves to be warmly praised; and Mr. Fred Neeri as Richard Cross contributed a clever and highly creditable sketch, which told in spite of its slightness and subordinacy. Miss Elfrida Clement and Miss Maud Wynter were bright and "bonnie" dairymaids, and did full justice to their tasks as Betty and Susan; and Mr. Scott Craven showed ability and intelligence as an Artist. A capital performance was given by Mr. Victor Widdicombe as the undertaker, Andrew Burge. Mr. Widdicombe is an excellent actor, and made the most of his chances. Special praise is due to Mr. Frank Lacy for his excellent interpretation of the character of John Hardy. In a production of this sort the scenery, of course, counts for much and Mr. R. C. McCleery gave us some of the prettiest products of his expert and facile brush, both the farmhouse sets and the cornfield of the last act being very sunshiny and highly artistic stage pictures. The first item on the bill was A Pair of Knickerbockers, with those clever and agreeable artists, Mr. Charles Goodheart and Miss Pamela Gaythorne, as the two Melroses.

"THE HYPOCRITES."

A New Play of English Country Town Life, in Four Acts, by Henry Arthur Jones, played, for the first time, at the Hicks Theatre, on Tuesday, Aug. 27.

The Rev. Edgar Linnell .....MR. LESLIE FABER
Mr. Wilmore .....MR. J. H. BARNES
Lennard Wilmore .....MR. VERNON STEELE
Mr. Viveash .....MR. ARTHUR LEWIS
Sir John Plugenet .....MR. CHARLES V. FRANCE
The Rev. Everard Daubeny..MR. ALFRED BISHOP
Dr. Blaney .....MR. CECIL BROOKING
Goodyer .....MR. FRED GROVE
Mrs. Wilmore .....MISS MARION TERRY
Rachel Neve .....MISS DORIS KEANE
Helen Plugenet .....MISS VIVA BIRKETT
Mrs. Blaney .....MISS HENRIETTA WATSON
Mrs. Linnell .....MRS. LESLIE FABER
Patty .....MISS IRENE CLARKE

Mr. Charles Frohman may be warmly congratulated upon the result of his enterprise in securing the English rights of The Hypocrites for the Hicks Theatre. Excellent accounts had reached us of the career of the play in America, and the extraordinary reception given to the piece on Tuesday placed its triumphant success in England beyond a doubt. The Hypocrites is one of the finest—if not the very best—play that Mr. Jones has ever written. To say that it is full of interest is not to say sufficient in its favour. It grips the audience irresistibly soon after its commencement; it holds them magnetised and enthralled till the end of the third act, on which the drop falls amidst a wild outburst of cheering and applause. The last act is perhaps the best possible solution of a problem which is full of difficulty, and the whole drama is constructed, arranged, and written with masterly strength and skill.

The scene of the first act is the boudoir of Mrs. Wilmore, at the Manor House, Weybury, a small country town. Mr. Wilmore is the lord of a mortgaged manor, and he and his wife have arranged a marriage for their son, Lennard, with Helen Plugenet, a rich young lady, the daughter of Sir John Plugenet, of Plugenet Court. Helen is sensitively high-minded, especially with reference to love and marriage, and she begs Lennard to make full confession to her of any other female claims upon him. He is embarrassed and reticent; and well he may be, for he has seduced, under promise of marriage, an innocent young girl named Rachel Neve. She has become pregnant, and she comes to Weybury to try and see Lennard, under pretence of getting employment as a drawing-mistress.

The curate of Weybury, the Rev. Edgar Linnell, is sternly conscientious. A girl of loose morals has had a child by a respectable young man whom she has entangled, and the pompous and tyrannical Mr. Wilmore is determined that they shall marry, or that the young man shall be turned off the land. The curate points out that the proposed marriage would probably be unjust and injurious, and declines to assist it, much to the anger and disgust of the lord of the manor. But Rachel Neve, spraining her ankle, is received at Linnell's house, and the curate comes to the knowledge of her condition and of her seducer.

If Lennard's fault becomes known, it is probable that Helen Plugenet will break off the engagement, so it becomes the object of everyone interested in the marriage taking place to suppress the facts. A conspiracy of contradiction is formed, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmore, the son—who at first confesses his sin to the curate, but afterwards, at his mother's instigation, "faces it out"—and Mr. Viveash, a country solicitor, the object being to deceive Sir John Plugenet, who is anxious that the matter shall be cleared up. An informal inquiry is held in the Manor House library, the curate being put on his trial for slander. Rachel has been persuaded by Mrs. Wilmore to sacrifice herself and save Lennard by denying that he was her seducer, and she is induced by the solicitor to put her denial into writing. The letter is handed to Sir John, who is completely convinced, and the curate is as absolutely overborne and discredited. But the whole edifice of deception is overturned. Brought face to face with Lennard, and overcome by the strain, Rachel falls into his arms, and the young man, his resolution broken down by his love and pity, confesses the truth.

The last act is taken up with an attempt by Mrs. Wilmore to persuade Rachel to give up Lennard for his own good, but Linnell comes to the support of the wavering girl, and finally gets Mrs. Wilmore to see that any other arrangement except the one adopted would be a mistake in the end.

The acting was worthy of the play, and that is saying a good deal. Mr. Leslie Faber looked the handsome, intellectual, sensitive Edgar Linnell to the life. The mildness, mingled with firmness, which indicated the Christian and the gentleman, the earnestness, power, and vigour of the man, and the agonised suffering of the martyr, were all to be found in Mr. Faber's fine impersonation; and the sustained intensity of his acting, the ease and dignity of his bearing, and the tenderness of his treatment of the pathetic passages, completed the effect of his admirable characterisation. Mr. J. H. Barnes gave a very vigorous and emphatic embodiment of Mr. Wilmore, and his make-up and attire were altogether excellent. Mr. Vernon Steele handled the critical rôle of Lennard Wilmore with great tact and discrimination, making the uncertain youth sufficiently objectionable, yet not putting him beyond the bounds of reform and acceptance. Mr. Arthur Lewis was especially acute, natural, and sharply-polished as the cynical lawyer, Mr. Viveash, and contributed a rendering of remarkable ingenuity and merit, which made its mark from the first, and left a very vivid and favourable impression. Mr. Charles V. France supplied a crisp, firm, and well-balanced embodiment of the high-minded and impartial Sir John Plugenet, and made the most of his opportunity in the third act. Mr. Alfred Bishop as the Rev. Everard Daubeny was just the silly, self-indulgent, "pottering" old parson required by the text; and Mr. Cecil Brooking was entirely satisfactory as Dr. Blaney. Mr. Fred Grove did useful work as the butler. Miss Marion Terry's natural sweetness and bright charm were in strange alliance with the warped morality and misdirected affection of the worldly-wise mother, and she put the deepest and most touching expression into her depiction of the harrassed and distressed woman in the third act, when she is driven to extremes, and is desperately resolute to attain her ends. Mrs. Wilmore's scorn and contempt for her husband were very finely expressed, and, altogether, though the contrast of Mrs. Wilmore's character and Miss Marion Terry's identity was puzzling to her many friends and admirers, the result was curiously artistic and effective. Miss Doris Keane, though she pitched her voice at times too low for the size of the house, gave an affecting and sympathetic portrayal of Rachel Neve, her simulation of physical weakness and bitter sorrow being full of delicacy and feeling; and Miss Viva Birkett was a charming representative of Helen Plugenet—natural, simple, and sincere, and with a style and appearance well suited to the part. Miss Henrietta Watson hit off very neatly and cleverly the acid and artful Mrs. Blaney; and Mrs. Leslie Faber's neat handling of the character of Mrs. Linnell made it noteworthy and acceptable; Miss Irene Clarke being smart, spirited, and distinct as Patty. Mr. Walter Hann's scenery was excellent, and the three interiors were well and solidly furnished.

The reception of The Hypocrites was, as we have said, wildly enthusiastic. The play, interested, delighted, and excited the audience immensely. It is certain to draw full houses at the Hicks Theatre for many weeks to come.

"THE LITTLE JAPANESE GIRL."

Play, in One Act, adapted from the Japanese by Miss Loie Fuller, incidental music by Mr. John Crook, and produced at the Duke of York's Theatre, on Monday, Aug. 26.

The Princess .....MISS JANE MAY
The Prince .....MR. EDWARD SASS
Gen .....MR. PERCIVAL STEVENS
A Little Japanese Girl ....MISS PAULINE CHASE

The dramatic autumn season may be said to have commenced at the Duke of York's on Monday with the transference thereto of Brewster's Millions, the gaiety of which had previously attracted large audiences to the Hicks Theatre. What is good enough for Shaftesbury-avenue is not likely to lack patronage in St. Martin's-lane, and the return of Mr. Gerald Du Maurier, who, as Monte Brewster, spends thousands nightly with a business aptitude and a bonhomie that are irresistible, was enthusiastically welcomed by a crowded house, among whom the popular actor numbered many personal friends. The "Welcome Home" of the "Little Sons of the Rich" to Mr. Du Maurier, who returned to the cast on Monday after a holiday, had of course a special significance, and though the four-act comedy started nearly five-and-twenty minutes after the advertised time, there was but little impatience exhibited by either gods or pit, and laughter and merriment ruled.

The new curtain-raiser to Brewster's Millions is a translation from the Japanese by Miss Loie Fuller, who hitherto has been known mostly as an exponent of the serpentine dance on the variety stage. The little piece is a thumbnail tragedy, woven round the fate of the little Japanese girl of the title, who, on arrival at a pretty miniature village—an idealised stage picture of the willow-pattern plate—finds the toilet accessories of a Princess, who, with her attendant, Gen, is away on a mission of mercy. The little maid puts down her heavy burden, and finds great delight in rearranging her hair before a looking-glass, and in utilising the extraneous aids to beauty. She would like to look like a Princess, and quite succeeds in doing so when she dons the kimono which the Princess carelessly threw aside on her departure. The Prince returns, and, catching sight of the figure in the gorgeous silk cloak, rushes to the conclusion that it is the Princess, who has already favoured his suit. He makes an avowal of his passion. Receiving no reply from the girl, who hides her face, he departs in anger. Gen, the girl's real lover, then comes, and immediately penetrates the disguise, and the two have a real spoony time. On Gen's departure the Prince returns, and no answer being given to his renewed protestations of affection, he loses control of himself, and, in a frenzy, stabs the timid little maid in the back. With the return of the Princess he discovers his terrible mistake, and is overwhelmed with remorse. On the pathetic death of the little girl the curtain falls. The dialogue is mostly in pidgin English—of the sort that might be used by the Chinese laundrymen in San Francisco, but the little piece loses nothing of its tragic intensity in the hands of Miss Pauline Chase, who, besides realising the pathos of the title-rôle, dances with wonderful grace and charm. Mr. Edward Sass, a stern and unflinching Prince, shares in a dance with the Princess, a part played with cleverness by Miss Jane May. Mr. Percival Stevens is quite adequate as the attendant, Gen. Mr. John Crook's music has illustrative qualities which make it a valuable adjunct in the dramatic scheme, the significance of which is accentuated by the appearance of two Japanese attendants with lights in front of the special curtain illustrated with Japanese characters.

MRS. CARTE AND THE SAVOY.

Mrs. D'Oyly Carte writes:—

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I ask your courtesy to be permitted, through the medium of your columns, to express to the public and to all those who have generously supported the revivals at the Savoy, my grateful appreciation of the satisfaction they have shown at my efforts to serve them during the season which is now ending?

The experience of well-nigh thirty years, during which I have been daily in the closest touch with these operas and their requirements, has made me realise my great responsibility, and the great difficulty there always is in reaching the highest standard of perfection. The manifold intricacies in the management of so complex and exacting an undertaking; the thousand-and-one-details, all of which compel the closest consideration; the disappointments, the anxieties and worries which are entailed by a Savoy Opera Season, could not have been surmounted by me unless I had been helped by a sympathetic and encouraging public, who have made it a real pleasure to serve them, and have made one's work a work of love.

In reviving these operas at the Savoy pecuniary considerations have not influenced me. My aim has been to give the public the best possible production and the best possible representation, and to achieve that end no expense has been allowed to stand in the way.

The Press have as a rule enabled me to thank them. It is, I know, always most difficult for a critic to avoid the good and easy "copy" to be obtained by recalling the pleasures of the days long gone by and shedding a tear over the past. There never yet was a revival where the disparagement of the present as compared with the past did not occupy a considerable space in the Press. The enthusiasm of the audience may be unbounded, the laughter hearty, and the appreciation unmistakable—what is all this to the critic who remembers "good King George's glorious days," and finds that everything and everybody were so much better when he was younger? I sympathise with him. In my weaker moments I, too, can feel like that, for "the weakness is so strong." Indeed, the knowledge that, no matter how good the representation given by my company, they would have to stand the steady fire of the criticism of every "laudator temporis acti" nearly made me abandon my original idea of a London season. But, had I given way to such feelings the public would not have had the revivals at all.

I am glad I resisted this weakness, for I can gratefully say that my artists have worked their way by their merits into the hearts and affections of thousands of the London public, to whom the performances have unmistakably given the greatest pleasure.

If my present plans are allowed to be consummated, I hope to open my next London season on about April 27. Events have moved kindly in that direction, for The Mikado has been permitted to be played, and Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker have placed the Savoy at my disposal for a few months. While The Mikado will naturally occupy a very prominent place in my season's bills, I hope again to revive a few of the other operas in the form of répertoire which I have found so popular during the past eight months.

It only remains for me to again add my warmest and most heartfelt thanks to all Savoyards who have given me such splendid support and cheered me by their kindly letters.—Yours, &c.,

HELEN D'OYLY CARTE.

Savoy Hotel, W.C., Aug. 23.

To the Editor of The Era.—Sir,—I notice that in the report in The Era of the last week of the performance of Mr. Charles Macdona's Cingalee company at Margate and Tunbridge Wells you made special mention of Miss Aimée Roberts in the part of Nanoya. The part in question was undertaken at both these towns by Miss Alys Collier.—Yours faithfully, JOHN C. MAZDEL.

THE REAL "HAMLET."

AND HOW IT SHOULD BE STAGED.

By PERCY FITZGERALD, M.A.

It may be said that none of us have ever seen the true Hamlet performed, though we have had some crude and dreary attempts at setting out the whole play before us. What has been exhibited to us for generations has been a "hashed-up" selection of the more telling portions of the play. It having been settled—a settlement that nothing can shake—that it is a one-man piece, that can "show off" a distinguished performer in the most effective way, the knife and the scissors and the blue pencil have all been used recklessly, to clear away the surrounding brushwood, so as to let the performer stand out distinct and unimpeded. The intricate story, the doings of other characters, have been remorselessly abolished, except where they forwarded the interests of the central figure. Thus have we lost an amount of striking things which actually increased the potency of this very figure. It is a revelation for those who have studied the play in its entirety what a solemn, moving tragedy it is, how deeply interesting and how profound and dramatic is the share the assisting performers take in Hamlet's destinies. How few know, for instance, that the King had arranged for the assassination of his stepson long before the last attempt in the fencing scene; and who knows that this was planned in desperation because the first attempt had failed? Who, again, knows of Hamlet's attempts to conceal Polonius's body—a symptom of madness? But, no; these things are counted excrescences and in the way. We must have the one dramatic figure—"Ma femme et cinq poupées." In these papers I propose to show what the real drama is, and how it should be treated. But it is not very difficult to set forth some natural, elementary principles of Shakespearean representation, nor would it be difficult to furnish a pure and correctly classical performance of one of Shakespeare's plays, which should be in perfect harmony with the poetry and characters. But it must be admitted that the obstacles in the way of reforming managers are enormous and well-nigh insuperable. The old hidebound traditions and practices of the stage and the debased taste of the audiences are in the way. Until it is accepted that the large and generic word, "The Stage," stands only for what it literally means—that is, is merely a raised erection to make prominent those who are interpreting some exciting picture of human character, we cannot look for any respectable performances of Shakespeare. En attendant, however, there may be efforts of a negative sort—the abolition of what should not be—even if what should be cannot be secured. Just as in the restoration of some fair old church much is gained if there is reserve used, and the existing features are simply repaired or strengthened.

After all, it is clear there must be some legitimate system or fashion of putting Shakespearean plays upon the stage. There ought to be certain principles of representation, limits to adornment or setting off, which can be ascertained by thought and study. In the present system there are no laws or limits whatever. It is all happy-go-lucky. The manager—rather, the manager-actor—"rough-hews" the bard as he may, does what he likes with the scenes, adds and super-adds whatever he thinks will "set off" the play most, and put it in touch with the present day. And yet we may firmly believe that, after careful study and earnest thought, it would be quite possible to reach certain fixed principles that would regulate our dealings with these great plays and characters. It is to be done by the process of conscientiously seeking for what the bard himself intended in his situations—what his meaning and intentions were.

But I can fancy our modern stage-manager saying:—"My Gawd! All this is truly Utopian. It may be a very excellent arrangement; but the thing would be as long as one of the Ring operas, and take, say, six hours. You would clear the house. We must get on. Come to the 'osses—come to business." This is true and practical enough; but this treatment should be not "cutting"—that is, omitting—but compression. There should be a process of compression that will retain everything, but in an abridged form. An idea, for instance, takes some forty or fifty lines; it should be skilfully compressed into half-a-dozen. Every incident should be there, though any amount of words may be sacrificed. This, or something of the kind, is the true principle.

A great difficulty in these reproductions is how far must compression, omission—"cutting," in short, go. We may now speculate how the enormous length of scenes, dialogues, speeches, &c., was dealt with in the early days. The great writer must surely have thought and intended that all that he set down should be presented, for he would not have meant that so much of it should go to waste The truth was that audiences were well accustomed to length in all things, and were schooled to follow the slow and gradual development of character. There was plenty of leisure then, and interest was excited by good declamation, which brought out the meaning of each line. Now it is rarely that we hear a passage given so as to be intelligible.

In the old Covenanter times the congregation could listen with relish to sermons hours long, and without their attention flagging; so it must have been with the speeches on the stage. Even nowadays the French can tolerate the rather long-winded declamation of Racine and Corneille. But it all comes round to this: Any passage in Shakespeare will be acceptable and followed if it be given with skill, intelligence, due emphasis, melodious accents, sympathy, and force. As these elements are not present, we must perforce cut away all such passages as so much "top hamper." Further, as folks are waiting impatiently for the processions, tableaux, &c., the long speeches are so much delay, and must be "cut" out.

The present system of setting forth Shakespeare might be indeed considered a sort of "raree show," or even a variety entertainment. For, let us think of this—the volumes of commentaries on Shakespeare from a library; the various passages, even to a single precious line, have had pages and pages of discussion devoted to each; a single word often seems as though made of gold. And yet in these public performances all this precious matter is reduced to common everyday prose. The sentences are delivered indistinctly and in a hurry; there is no thought of emphasis or contrast, or bringing out in subtle meaning. The real objects are the huge, painted structures, "sets," dances, processions—things, in short, to be looked at, with the result that the words are merged and overpowered, and cannot assert themselves.

Again, it is always understood that to present Hamlet properly and according to tradition we must adopt a sort of stilted, pedantic system of elocution and bearing. We must recite, declaim, growl, or vociferate and stride about. All such things would disappear if the players could only persuade themselves that they were ordinary men and women concerned in a terrible and momentous tragedy—if they would but put emotion and passion and warmth and nature into all they say and do. Some of Hamlet's soliloquies are of great length, but no one complains, because they are so interesting, and the powerful efforts of the actor make them more interesting still. But it is not the length nor the obscurity that is in fault; it is the lack of intelligence, training, and understanding in the recitation. Our players, alas! have little or no elocution, no emphasis, no contrast, no power of search for the meaning. Milton himself, in such hands, would be ineffective. This system suggests the clerk in "Pickwick" who was reading out the affidavits, running words into each other—"sohelpyou God. You must get change." And, indeed, who has ever heard a sentence of Shakespeare delivered so as to bring out the full, entire meaning? And rarely have we heard it illustrated by natural and appropriate feeling or passion; and finally, so as to leave a satisfactory impression, still more rarely even heard every word of the sentence. On the contrary, the meaning is too often distorted by the ignorance of the reciter, who cannot reach to it, or fails by his helplessness, to give it expression. The result is that all is dark and incomprehensible to the spectator. How many a time have we listened to some lord or cardinal reeling off a discourse, say a hundred lines long, and which it was literally impossible to follow, or find out what he meant? I suppose there is no such prodigy of long-wordedness as Molière's Le Misanthrope, with its interminable speeches and dialogues. You can hardly read it, but you can study it. It seems intolerable, but in the hands of the Française company how illuminated it is. Everything that is said is heard, understood, and said in the best way possible. So intelligent is the expression given to each sentence that you are perforce attracted and led on to the next.

The vulgar conception of Hamlet is the actor's Hamlet—that is, one great central character, round whom are grouped a number of inferior figures to set him off, making a sort of ring whenever he chooses to declaim. But crowd the tapestry with surging, agitated figures, assume the picture of a distracted Court, seething with intrigues, murder in the air, mysterious revenants from the other world, how infinitely more striking will be the position of Hamlet. It is not enough that there should be conspirators working against him, but that these should be of power—desperate men. We have heard the ancient joke of the part of Hamlet being "omitted by desire"; but with the full text there would not be an altogether hopeless residuum, but a full, abundant chronicle.

There is so much variety in these Shakespearean manifestations that we may wonder that all the thought and ingenuity of managers should not be expended in presenting them in, at least, a plausible way. This should be based on the principle of making those to whom the Ghost shows itself exhibit a natural feeling of terror and bewilderment.

There has never, or rarely, been sufficient thought given to the opening scenes of Hamlet, which take place on "the Platform before the Castle," and, later, on "a more remote part of the Platform"—the platform being the terrace on which cannon are placed. One can hardly imagine anything more poetical or favourable to ghostly feeling—the gloomy waste of stone wall stretching away, the parapet, the shadowy towers beyond, the blue haze as dawn draws near, the peculiar, faint tinkle of the clock in the town beyond or in the courtyard of the fortress. There might be a cold moonlight, so as to cast the shadows of figures on the terrace. This terrace, too, should be a long stretch or promenade, and a lonely one. And here is usually the mistake, that there is little attention paid to the scale of things, it being attempted to squeeze into the small area all the substantial portions of a castle. This quite dispels illusion. The ghost might be seen coming down for a long distance, first afar off, then drawing near slowly and gradually, and unseen by the officers. But how much of the effect is due, not to such things, but to the ghostly character of the situation. Let us take the opening passages—the relief of the guard, so mysterious and awesome in the reading, and upon which so much depends in the preparation. But who that has seen it has ever found it properly interpreted, or in any fashion but the most literal, matter-of-fact, and prosaic fashion? The players, generally fifth- or sixth-rate persons in the cast, seem to take for their models the common sentries they have seen relieving guard, and bark out their calls and replies in their blunt style. "Stand!" "Unfold yourself!" "Long live the King!" Francisco and Bernardo are all one to them, so is the question and answer, the doubt and assurance. It is merely one soldier taking the place of the other. And yet, how much more could be made of the situation—what graduated mystery, and sense of some expected horror could be conveyed in every word, so as to lead up to the one image that was in the minds of all!

The whole of the scene that follows is foreshadowed. Francisco is pacing "on his post"; dreaming it may be—then roused by the sound of the steps he actually challenges the other, actually fancying that he himself is on duty! The factionary naturally says: "Nay, answer me: stand," &c. Now what a début is here, and how effectively it could be worked! The guard, weary and expectant, the slow approach, the starts of both, the looking round of Bernardo in alarm. This conveys that both were full of the ghost—dreading its return—quite unmanned and "upset" as it were. They had not got over the visitation. What real acting there could be, and how different from the mere give-and-take replies! Francisco, glad to get away and not in the secret, compliments his friend on his punctuality. He says that he is "cold and sick at heart"; and Bernardo is just as eager that he should be gone. He had "come on the stroke of twelve," and bids him get to bed at once. Bernardo eagerly asks: "Have you had quiet guard?"—that is, "Have you seen anything?"—to which the other carelessly replies, "Not a mouse stirring." Then Bernardo, somewhat impatiently: "Well, good-night," and bids him, if he should meet Horatio and Marcellus, tell them to hurry. They presently appear, he saying "I think I hear them." Then another challenge. It must have been exceeding dark, for they cannot see each other, and ask "What, is Horatio there?" which shows that faces could not be seen.

Now in all this is there not a vast deal that is poetical to be suggested, with finesse and due deliberation? It is a little play in itself; but who has ever seen it played so as to convey the idea of these things? But all that the stage manager requires is that these subordinates should speak up distinctly, and like officers on guard. The suggestion of "graduated horror" or "growing sense of mystery" he would dismiss with an emphatic "All rot! Never mind that."

The fashion in which the ghost first appears is usually of a literal and practical kind. A man, often of a stout, robust build, is seen to stride across the stage in an affectedly solemn way, and pass out at the wing. Now, one could fancy a great deal being made of this—an indistinct apparition, not a shadow, moving in an uncertain way, now pausing in a sort of hesitancy and gazing sadly on the soldiers. I could imagine his being unnoticed for some moments; then one of the party seeing him, would, awe-stricken, touch his comrade, and as silently point to the apparition. Then it would glide out as it came. Hamlet's later "Angels and ministers of grace defend us," and the speech that follows, have been worked by the tragedians for "all that they are worth." Their idea is a sort of agonised and gasping expression of astonishment, which shall be in contrast to the previous tone of easy conversation.

Again, there is an idea of attacking the spirit, for Marcellus asks, "Shall I strike at it with my partisan?" and Horatio encourages him to do so. They are turning hither and thither—one says "'tis here," the other "'tis here." And then Marcellus, still looking round wildly, says "'tis gone." In all this there is a vast deal to be developed by careful study and rehearsing.

LONDON.

Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., presided at the usual weekly meeting of the Actors' Union, held at the Bedford Head Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. Among those present were:—Messrs. S. Braithwaite, Arthur Bawtree, Richard Cowell, P. Trounsell, D. Gunn Murray, Oswald Marshall, F. F. Loyd, L. Paget, Cecil G. Calvert, Jack Collinson, C. L. Delph, H. Tripp Edgar, Frank Gerald, Reginald Van Ramsey, E. G. Rae, Arthur St. John, R. M. Taylor, Mrs. S. and Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, Mrs. E. L'Estrange, and Misses Mary Bessle, Florence Creagh, Chalmers, May Conrade, Maud Dagmar, Gladys Ffolliott, Adelaide Gracey, Nelly Howitt, Kitty Marion, Agnes Paulton, Isa Patterson, and Kate Sabine.

The Chairman, in his opening remarks, said that in reference to a case in which an actor had been ill-treated, and the Committee had been urged by a meeting in Manchester to take up the matter, it had been very carefully considered by the Committee, who had come to the conclusion that it would be better to stick hard and fast by their rules, which would prevent their fighting the case, as the abuse for which it was sought to obtain redress occurred before the member in question joined the Union. In regard to another manager, who was deducting ten shillings from the salaries of members of his company under the new Compensation Act, the subject was being brought before their solicitor, and counsel's opinion on the legality or otherwise of such conduct was being taken. Speaking about the duties of members of the Union, he (the Chairman) desired to urge upon his hearers the necessity of getting new members; and whenever they persuaded an actor to become a member, they should induce the new member to do as they had done. He understood that a postcard had been sent to various members of the profession, containing the following message:

Heaven Helps Those Who Help Themselves.
Actors' Union Reform Party.

Are you interested in actors organising? Do you agree that the Actors' Association and the Actors' Union should unite on trades union basis to obtain a minimum wage? If not, can you suggest a better way of improving the theatrical condition?—(Signed) Norman Towers.

After the loud, derisive laughter which greeted the reading of this notice had subsided, the Chairman intimated that no comment was necessary, and he would not waste words upon it. They had now a membership of 499, and he hoped that someone would come forward to change that into an even number. One of their latest members was going to America for the purpose of making inquiries into similar organisations over there, and to interest American actors and actresses in the British Union.

Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, after mentioning that Mr. Frank Gerald had been appointed by the Actors' Union to represent that body at the Trades Union Congress, said that Mr. Gerald had been very strenuous in promoting the interests of the Variety Artists' Federation, and a testimonial dinner was to be given in his honour on Sept. 15 at the Criterion. It was to be hoped that all Unionists who could attend that function would do so. The tickets for the dinner were 5s. each. He thought that it would be a good thing to welcome "portable" actors and actresses, as well as the members of the chorus. The latter certainly needed the help and protection of such a Union. It was a fact that many chorus girls were paid no more than 18s. a week. That was a disgusting state of things. However, it was pleasant to be able to say that some managers were co-operating with the Union. In Germany there was a really admirable Actors' Union, which arranged for a minimum wage, an old-age pension, medical attendance, widows' and orphans' fund, rich fund, and a provident and loan fund.

Mr. Frank Gerald remarked that the V.A.F. had decided to follow the lead of the Actors' Union, and be represented at the Trades' Union Congress. He desired to point out to his brother and sister members that by their joining the Congress they were taking the initial steps towards being represented in Parliament. They would have a voice in the election of the Parliamentary Committee. Speaking personally, he would tell them that his career as a music hall artist was now at an end, and he intended to return to his old love, the legitimate stage. He was going to work his very hardest for the A.U., and his services were always to be considered at their disposal.

Mr. Oswald Marshall and Miss Gladys Ffolliott also spoke, and a vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the proceedings. Several new members joined.

A meeting was held at the Salisbury Hotel, Manchester, on Tuesday, with Mr. Harry Paulton in the chair. Among others present were Messrs. Francis Chamier, Orlando Barnet, Chas. Gartt Norton, R. B. Drysdale, Ed. Valentine, Frank Tennant, Lawrence Wensley, Ed. St. John, and Miss Violet Chamier.

The Chairman, in opening the proceedings, regretted that he was again compelled to allude to the most unjustifiable attacks on the Union which kept appearing in the Press under various noms de plume. He denied that the committee was blown this way and that by different sections of opinion in the Union, and stated that, as was well known to its traducers, the rules were already drawn up, passed, and in the hands of the Registrar of Trades Unions. He then recapitulated the objects of the Union—objects which have never been swerved from for one instant since the original programme was issued. In conclusion, he again impressed upon his hearers the complete unanimity of opinion which reigned amongst the members of the committee and the members of the Union.

Mr. Francis Chamier said it was a striking instance of the quagmire into which the traducers referred to by Mr. Paulton had fallen that, although one of their chief reasons for maligning the Union was that it extended protection to actors playing in sketches, they were now calling for a Reform party on the lines suggested by Mr. Morland, who was himself at that time playing in a sketch and belonged to an association which extends protection to its members playing in the halls.

Mr. Lawrence Wensley and Mr. Orlando Barnett also spoke. Mr. Jas. Weekes, Mr. W. Champney, and Mr. Ralph Lynn were nominated for membership.

The additional sums received for the Arthur Verne fund have been C. H. T., 2s. 6d.; F. T. (Preston), 2s.

Mr. Jas. B. Lloyd has been appointed acting-manager of the Theatre Royal, Bolton. Mr. Lloyd was formerly connected with the Theatre Royal, Leamington Spa, the Aquarium Theatre, Great Yarmouth, and the Grand Opera House, Liverpool, and has also served in the capacity of manager for Mr. Henry Dundas.

The baby ostrich at the Crystal Palace Ostrich Farm continues to be a great source of attraction to visitors. A number of eggs have been incubated since the installation of the farm at the Palace, but without success, and similar efforts have been made by fanciers elsewhere in the country with like results. The ostrich at home—that is to say, at his home in the Crystal Palace grounds—is just as interesting as the ostrich in his native wilds, and visitors should on no account miss this interesting sight.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The Bioscope Operators' Association have applied to the London County Council to afford facilities for the examination of operators of animated picture machines, and to issue certificates to those competent to operate such machines, only those having such certificates to be employed in halls or theatres licensed by the Council.

The matter is under the consideration of the authorities. If the County Council will not undertake to adopt the suggestion it is proposed that the Association arrange for examinations and issue certificates to those who are proved to be competent.

The Arbitrator has now issued his ruling on the point brought before him by the National Association of Theatrical Employés as to the right of the men reinstated on March 11 to be paid the rate fixed by the final award. The men are to be paid, the ruling being in favour of the claim made by the Association.

A committee meeting of the Bioscope Operators' Association was held on Tuesday at 29, Wellington-street. The meeting adjourned till Tuesday, Sept. 10, when all members in London are earnestly requested to be present. Rules and full particulars will be forwarded on application to the Secretary, Thos. C. Weedon, 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

The third annual picnic of the staff of the Star Theatre, Liverpool, was held last Sunday at Chester, the company numbering upwards of seventy. Leaving Birkenhead in char-à-bancs the picnickers drove through many picturesque localities of Cheshire, and sat down to an excellent dinner at the Olde Pyed Bulle Hotel, Chester. Boating on the Dee and other forms of amusement were indulged in, and after enjoying a most appetising tea, all returned home, having had a charming outing. Mr. Harris Fineberg, proprietor of the Star, was, unfortunately, unable to join the company. The arrangements were satisfactorily carried out by Messrs. G. Bowden, G. Bennett, H. Clayton, J. Price, T. A. Tallon (secretary), W. McTaggart (treasurer), and W. Conroy (assistant secretary).

THE TRADE UNION CONGRESS AND THE PROFESSION.

On Monday next the fortieth meeting of the Trade Union Congress will commence in the Assembly Rooms, Bath, at which nearly one and three-quarter millions of Trade Unionists will be represented.

This Congress will be distinguished, so far as the theatrical and music hall professions are concerned, by the presence at the Congress of every trade union connected with these professions.

The rank and file of the delegates from the many hundreds of trade unions will be attracted by the title of the first union in the alphabetical list of delegates already issued. "The Actors' Union" heads the list. Among the youngest and the smallest, its title will, beyond doubt, strike the imagination of manual workers, and the more thoughtful among them will probably see in the presence of the Actors' Union the first sign of a movement to bring the dramatic art into its true relation to the great mass of the people. The Actors' Union is sure of a warm welcome from the Congress, and it may rely on the support of the unions with whom it comes, for the first time, into contact.

The following societies will be represented:—

The Actors' Union: Mr. Frank Gerald, delegate.
The Musicians' Union: Delegates, Mr. J. B. William, Manchester; Mr. J. W. Duys, Bath.
The National Association of Theatrical Employees: Mr. W. Johnson, London.
The Artists' Protective Association: Mr. Harry Mountford.
The Variety Artists' Federation: Messrs. J. O'Gorman and M. Bailey.

The total number of members of these societies exceeds 7,000. The Artists' Protective Association is a new society, of which Mr. Frank Gerald is secretary and Mr. Harry Mountford chairman. The principal officials of the National Alliance will, therefore, meet in Bath, and it is not improbable that events there will lead to the formation of another alliance between all the above societies on a more definite and permanent basis than the National Alliance. It will be a mistake to assume that the present differences which arose among these societies at the conclusion of the late music hall war are likely to continue. Had the Variety Artists' Federation not affiliated itself with the General Federation of Trade Unions and the Trade Union Congress the present differences might have become more and more serious; but now that all the societies are allied through the Congress, and will shortly be allied in a closer manner through the Federation of Trade Unions, they will be in duty bound, to the Trade Unions movement, to help one another.

The present situation in Manchester has forced the variety artists to realise that their only hope is in the trade unions in any dispute with managers over matters within or without the scope of the Award. It is a pity, in many respects, that the V.A.F. leaders did not realise this fact before they seceded from the National Alliance and left their allies—the musicians and stage employees—in a manner not altogether above criticism.

It is desirable that bygones should be bygones, not only between managers and these societies, but between the leaders of these societies. Every reason adduced in favour of combination can be urged with greater force in favour of a Federation of combinations, more especially those pledged to trade union principles.

The actor and the artist will find that the Trade Union Congress is a force against sectionalism in any trade, industry, or profession, and the unions that want its help or the sympathy of the general movement must have a clean slate in its relations with kindred societies.

All these societies have learnt much from the recent dispute; if they now learn from the Congress the necessity for unity among themselves their advent into the Trade Union Parliament will be made worthy of remembrance.

"PAWNBROKING."

Sketch by Hilton Frances, produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, Aug. 26.

Solomans Gluckstein .... Mr. Hilton Frances
Little Willie ..... Master Russell
Smith ..... Mr. Walter Richards
Mrs. Moppit ..... Miss Marie Jonquil
Mrs. Armstrong ..... Miss Edith Colona
Miss Desmond ..... Miss Elsie Cooper

A very good set represents the interior of Solomans Gluckstein's pawnbroking establishment, where a number of characters are seen wending their familiar way to "Uncle's." First comes Miss Desmond, a new casual pledgee, followed by the regular Mrs. Armstrong, the objectionable and dissipated Mrs. Moppit, and the precocious "kid," Little Willie, all of whom have their tale to tell to the ever-patient pawnbroker, Solomans Gluckstein, who, contrary to the custom of his trade, gives them the amounts they request on the articles produced. This parade of the ordinary Monday morning's routine at a pawnbroker's is really the vehicle for a rough and tumble pugilistic encounter between the disreputable virago, Mrs. Moppit, and the buxom British matron, Mrs. Armstrong, who engage in an exciting contest. All the company did their level best with the material at their command, and the sketch was very well received.

DEATH OF RICHARD MANSFIELD.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Richard Mansfield, which took place at New London, Connecticut, on Friday. Mr. Mansfield, who was born in Heligoland in 1857, acted first in England and later in America, his early essays being almost exclusively in comic opera. He became a member of A. M. Palmer's Union-square Theatre Company, 1883, playing Baron Chevrial in A Parisian Romance. Principal parts: Prince Karl in A. C. Gunter's Prince Karl, 1886; Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde in Russel Sullivan's dramatisation of Stevenson's novel, 1887; Andre Rossini Mario de Jadot in his own Monsieur, 1887; King Richard III., 1889; Humpy Logan in Master and Man, 1890; Mr. George Brummel in Clyde Fitch's Beau Brummel, 1890; Don Juan in his own Don Juan, 1891; Emperor Nero in Russel Sullivan's Nero, 1891; Tittlebat Titmouse in his own dramatisation of Warren's Ten Thousand a Year, 1892; Arthur Dimmesdale in Joseph Hatton's dramatisation of Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter, 1892; Shylock in The Merchant of Venice, 1893; Captain Bluntschli in George Bernard Shaw's Arms and the Man, 1894; Don Pedro XIV. in Louis N. Parker's The King of Peru, 1895; Rodion in Charles Henry Meltzer's Rodion the Student, 1895; Dick Dudgeon in George Bernard Shaw's The Devil's Disciple, 1897; Eugen Courvoisier in J. I. C. Clarke and Meridan Phelps' dramatisation of Jessie Fothergill's novel, "The First Violin," 1898; Cyrano in Edmond Rostand's Cyrano de Bergerac, 1898. Amongst his published poems were "Blown Away," a nonsense book for grown-up children; and amongst his plays Ten Thousand a Year, and Don Juan.

VICTORIA HALL, WALTHAMSTOW.

This popular place of amusement, originally known by its present name, afterwards as the Victoria Theatre, and for several years as The King's, has now reverted to its original designation, and the new management is making a bold and successful bid for favour. Thoroughly overhauled in every corner of its interior, with an entire installation of new seating, and, generally speaking, improved in every conceivable direction, the familiar house presents as cosy and comfortable appearance as the most fastidious could desire. In accordance with almost universal usage, it is run on the two-houses-a-night system, and at popular prices. The wisdom of this policy is evidenced by the crowded state of the auditorium at every performance, including a weekly matinée on Saturday. The energetic management rely largely on the attractive powers of the unfailing Bioscope—a form of entertainment that is held in the highest esteem by the local public. When we add that the particular bioscopical films employed are Raymond's, it is equivalent to saying that they could not be improved upon. No fewer than eight of the thirteen numbers comprising this week's programme are filled by the pictures, and the subjects, ranging "from grave to gay, from lively to severe," are loudly and emphatically applauded. In two cases we have an "illustrated song," the first being "Sweet Adeline" and the second, "Just for the sake of society," the solos being admirably rendered by Mr. Wensley Russell, whose fine voice is heard to great advantage. Mr. Harris Finberg is highly successful in a series of costume recitals, including a capital rendering of the part of Svengali in Trilby, a bold and dashing representation of King Henry V., and an exceedingly clever imitation of Mr. Charles Warner's great delirium tremens scene in Drink. Mr. Finberg might easily make a name for himself on the "legitimate" stage. A decided hit is made by Fredy and Carman in a musical novelty act, which proves greatly to the liking of the audience. The musical-director, Mr. H. McDermott, gives a charming pianoforte rendering of the beautiful waltz from The Merry Widow.

Master E. Frisby has been secured by the Stoll management, and will make his first appearance on that circuit at Glasgow next in "Starlight" and "The Old Cross Roads," published by Francis, Day and Hunter.

Last Saturday a fête was held at Mansfield, and was a great success. The most interesting item was the parachute descent by Capt. Clayton, the managing-director of the Grand Theatre. This gentleman is well-known and deservedly popular. About 6.30, with a cloudless sky, his enormous hot-air balloon (capacity 120,000 cubic feet), shot up to a height of 8600ft. At that height the parachute was detached, and after a fall of 416ft. it opened and sailed gracefully to earth about two miles from the start. A motor-car was handy, and bore the Captain back to the fête ground, where he received a tremendous ovation.

A new entertainer who has attracted considerable attention of late in Loughton and several other places in Essex is Mr. Cowan Firth. Besides possessing a fine and highly-cultivated baritone voice, which is heard to great advantage in the best class of music, the newcomer has a special talent for Yorkshire dialect impersonation in the John Hartley style, and chiefly comprising tales from that author's books. Mr. Cowan Firth is undoubtedly an artist who should make a distinct mark in the near future.

A highly-attractive programme is again provided for next week's Café Chantant at the Crystal Palace by Mr. Bannister Howard. It includes the Brothers Idento, in an eccentric juggling speciality; Cissy Astbury, a charming comedienne and dancer; Bert Danson, eccentric comedian; Sadie Mitchell, buck and clog dancer; Duncan and Brasque, in their duologue, A Society Butterfly; and Challis's dogs, in their acrobatic and boxing exhibition.

Miss Madge Beresford, a chic comedienne and a recruit from the theatrical stage, is at the Empress this week scoring heavily in a couple of numbers entitled, "She hadn't been an actress very long," and "That's a girl." Both of these numbers prove themselves excellent vehicles for Miss Beresford's abilities, and her dainty manner and pleasing voice add considerably to their scoring power. Managers desirous of securing a "reliable" turn would do well to secure this artist's services, for which already numerous applications have been made.

In addition to the three proprietors (Messrs. Graham, Russell, and Bentley), the programme this week at the West Cliff Gardens, Clacton-on-Sea, includes Miss Emilie Hayes, soprano, and Mr. Sidney Gandy and Miss Inglefield. Mr. Bernard Russell took his benefit last Saturday, when a record house resulted.

Miss Elsie Claire, at the Palace, Leicester, on Monday night sung for the first time, with great success, a very catchy chorus number, entitled "Josie from Jersey," written by James Wilson and composed by Henrie Jaxon, and should be a big pantomime number.

At Bournemouth T. J. West's Pictures are filling the Shaftesbury Hall twice daily, and meeting with record success. The films are up to their usual high standard of excellence. The Scottish Court conjurer, André Letta, supplies new business; the Stoneleys (Ernie and Susie) are two clever child musicians. The cinematographer is Mr. G. Hastings Philp. Miss Louie Dennison providing the incidental music and accompaniments. Mr. Fred Smith is the local representative, and the entire entertainment is ably managed by Mr. T. W. Kingston.

THEATRE ROYAL, GRANTHAM.

Mr. J. A. Campbell, the new proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Grantham, has made important improvements in the house at an outlay of £500. In the colour scheme, crimson and white have been utilised with excellent effect. On each of the side walls white columns, picked out in gold, have been fixed, together with tapestries and bevelled glass mirrors. The borders are of a harmonising hue. The ceiling has been painted a flesh tint, and from the centre is suspended a oxidised silver electrolier, in place of the arc lamp formerly used. On the wall at the rear of the circle, or balcony, two electric lamps have been placed, and one has been fixed above the steps leading to the balcony. The stage is refitted with new lamps, and the lighting generally has been thoroughly overhauled. Upon the slopes of the ceiling are inscribed the names of famous composers and authors. In the large entrance leading to the pit and pit-stalls, the "barked" walls have given place to white panelling. Just inside this entrance there are a couple of glass-topped swing doors, which will effectually prevent draughts, and similar provision has been made in the balcony entrance, the doors here being covered with red baize. The new set of stalls, immediately facing the stage, will now be approached by a passage leading off the circle entrance. On the ground floor a gangway has been constructed on the right-hand side, to correspond with the one on the left, so that the pit-stalls can now be reached from either side. The partition at the back of the pit has been lengthened, and a door made therein, through which the pit patrons will pass immediately on emerging through the doorway in the entrance-hall. One of the principal features in the improvements is undoubtedly the heating apparatus. Special attention has been given to this, and a very satisfactory result is anticipated. The pipes run through the whole of the theatre, upstairs and down, and are connected with five "Princess" radiators. The heating is amenable to regulation, and a test has fully proved that the apparatus is equal to any emergency, so that during any part of the season an even temperature can be maintained. The boiler, a "Junior Robin Hood" pattern, is situated underneath the stage; and every precaution has been taken to guard against fire. Under neath the stage, also, three new suites of furniture have been provided for the artists. The stage is exceptionally spacious, the measurements being fifty feet from side to side and thirty feet from back to front. The scenery has been painted by Mr. Alfred Maurice, and the same gentleman has also put on canvas an excellent picture of Belvoir Castle, framed in gilt, which is to be used as the "drop scene."

"THE LION AND THE UNICORN."

King Charles II. .....Mr. H. B. Irving
Colonel Blood .....Mr. Frank Tyars
Lieutenant Parrot .....Mr. Tom Reynolds
Mr. Edwards .....Mr. C. Dodsworth
Marjory Edwards .....Miss Gwladys Wynne
Barbara .....Miss Muriel Alston

The "historical farce" consists in an attempted solution of one of the events of English history which has never been satisfactorily cleared up, namely, the robbery of the Crown jewels from the Tower of London by Colonel Blood. The story is closely followed, involving as it does the appearance of Charles II. at the house of the Keeper of the Jewels in prosecution of his amours. A novel idea is introduced by the authors in making the King apparently a party to the robbery, although His Majesty is the ultimate destroyer of the plot. The outcome is unique, the impudent and daring Colonel Blood being granted a substantial pension and lodgings in high quarters, the King evidently believing such a rogue to be more useful as a friend than as an enemy.

The farce is both light and humorous, and abounds in exciting incidents, the principal artists being heartily applauded. Mr. H. B. Irving took the part of the Merry Monarch in true regal style, his witticisms coming trippingly off the tongue. Mr. Frank Tyars was cool, daring, audacious and resourceful as Colonel Blood, and well deserved the praise he received; Mr. Tom Reynolds as Lieut. Parrot was intensely amusing in his disguise as a woman; and the other characters in the hands of Mr. C. Dodsworth and the Misses Gwladys Wynne and Muriel Alston left nothing to be desired.

A QUOTATION.

To the Editor of The Era.

Sir,—Can you, or any of your readers, kindly tell me whence the undermentioned comes? I may state that, though it has a decidedly Shakespearean flavour, I cannot find it in any of his works; neither can I discover it in any reference books of well-known quotations:—

"Guard well thy music,, ne'er let it fade,
For 'tis a gift bestowed thee by the gods
Wherewith to stir the hearts of men to nobler purpose."

—Yours faithfully PERCY ASHDOWN
3, The Maisonettes, Holland-street,
Clapham-road, London, S.W., Aug. 26.

At the Operetta House, Clacton-on-Sea, Mr. W. F. Jury's animated pictures still fill the bill.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—Your correspondent for King's Lynn omitted my name from his report last week of The Sorrows of Satan, in which I play the principal comedy part.—Yours faithfully, Fred Cherry. Opera House, Jersey, Aug. 29.

At Clacton-on-Sea Palace a good variety company this week is made up of Ray and Calden, comedy artists; Les Rallis, in their novelty, The Artist and His Monkey; Madge Daly, comedienne; Les Valdos, eccentric motor busmen; Johnny Worman, comedian; Harding and Preston, with their cross talk and comedy turn; Alice Maple, comedienne and dancer; and Edgar Berte. Caban's Circus and Norton Greenop's Lunar Sextette still perform in the grounds.

Not only have the charming Sisters Jonghmanns sung Mr. J. F. Lambe's delightful song, "Queen of old Samara," for no less than twenty-two consecutive weeks, on tour, but from Great Yarmouth, Scarborough, Douglas, Brighton, Southend, Whitley Bay, and in fact every seaside resort of note throughout Great Britain, come daily reports that this charming number is absolutely the rage. Needless to say, the Monte Carlo Co. are its publishers.

Grand combined concerts will be given on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings in the centre transept of the Crystal Palace by the band of H.M. Coldstream Guards and the great organ. Lieut. J. Mackenzie Rogan, Hon. R.A.M., will conduct, and Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock will preside at the organ.

Mr. Will Oliver, "Spot," starts on Tour on Monday, the opening night of the Hippodrome, Darlington. There will be quite a gathering of agents, many being interested financially in the undertaking, of which Signor Rino Pepi is the managing director.

GEORGE CRAMPTON (Wilson, North Carolina).—There were two performances of a version of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" at the Imperial Theatre, London, S.W., on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, March 16, 1907 (see our issue of March 23). The allegory was produced by Mrs. W. Hadley in association with Mr. Nugent Monck. The music, composed and arranged by Dr. K. Vaughan-Williams, included several solos and part-songs adapted from traditional melodies. The tableaux were arranged by Mr. Frank Dicksee, the Royal Academician. You might get more information concerning the production by applying to the secretary of the English Drama Society, 20, Regent-street, London, S.W.

C. J. KNIGHT.—Miss Zena Dare played the heroine Angela when The Catch of the Season was first produced at the Vaudeville. Mr. Seymour Hicks appeared with her in the part of the Duke of St. Jermyns. Miss Ellaline Terriss afterwards took up the part, and it was also played by Miss Phyllis Dare.

CURIOUS (Newington Butts).—When the Coburg Theatre commenced its winter season on Dec. 26, 1821, the audience found themselves for the first time reflected in the much-talked-of looking-glass curtain. The Coburg changed its name to the Victoria on Monday, July 1, 1833. A looking-glass curtain was again resorted to as an extra attraction in September, 1834, with Rama Sanee, a juggler, to perform in front. We have no record of its removal. Saturday, Sept. 9, 1871, was the last night of the old Victoria, when the performances were for the benefit of Joe Cave, the last lessee of the house. Mr. Cave might be able to inform you. He is now a brother of the Charterhouse, and his address is The Charterhouse, Aldersgate, E.C.

E. H. HARDING.—When we saw the lady she performed over the stage. We have no record of her career, so we cannot say what she may have done.

AFTER a protracted absence through illness, Mr. J. W. Chapman, the genial and popular managing-director of the Doncaster Theatre, visited the theatre, and was the recipient of many expressions of warm congratulation. Mr. Chapman assured his friends that he was rehabilitated in health and vigour, but the improvement in his eyes, though progressing, was very tardy.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Aug. 26, the Drama, in Four Acts, By Arthur Shirley and Sutton Vane, entitled

"TWO LANCASHIRE LASSES IN LONDON."

Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company in Two Lancashire Lasses in London, a piece originally toured as A Path of Thorns, is the attraction at the Theatre Royal this week, and is playing to capital audiences. An excellent company has been selected for the interpretation of the piece, which has necessarily undergone slight alterations, and under its present very appropriate title it should meet with much success on the road. Mr. Herbert Pearson plays very convincingly as John Edmunds, an inventor, and makes the character exceedingly interesting. Mr. E. Rayson-Cousens as the Rev. Frank Selby acts with a quiet dignity and effectiveness which is most acceptable; Mr. Arthur Eiwn handles the rôle of the rascally Jonas Deane with much power and incisiveness. Mr. Edward Chester submits a grim and well-defined sketch of Jim Price, whose accomplice, Rattey Gabbitt, is portrayed on sound lines by Mr. Walter Wichlow. Constance and Nellie, sisters from Lancashire, are two widely-contrasted characters, and each receives adequate treatment. That of the misguided Constance is exceedingly well delineated by Miss Rosslyn Vane, whose fine stage appearance admirably suits the part; while Miss Ada D. Hatchwell's performance as Nellie leaves nothing to be desired, and in the Jago Court scene her acting has the true ring of pathos. Miss Marguerite Trevosper plays with womanly feeling as Bessie Edmunds, but has not much scope, and Lucy is most intelligently rendered by Miss Elsie Forster. The lighter side is principally contributed to by Mr. Cris Mason as Samuel Hallett, a volatile Lancashire lad, and Miss Evelyn Shaw as Jane Adelaide, Sam's better half, these two providing a fund of humour and being highly popular personages in the piece.

MESSRS. JOSEPH WILLIAMS, LTD., are betimes with their numbers for pantomime season 1907-8, and in their guaranteed successes—for which "free" permissions well be granted on application, with the exception of a few towns reserved at 1 guinea each—includes sentimental and humorous selections. A comic duet for two men is to be found in the number by Mr. E. Barnett, under the title of "Our 'ands and 'arts." "Two little Sabots," with words by that graceful writer of lyrics, Fred E. Weatherly, and music by Lionel Elliott, should be secured at once by principal girls who make a speciality of dancing. The song might be advantageously developed into a scena, and its success should be unquestionable. Mr. H. G. Pelissier, of the Follies, who wields a versatile pen, has a tuneful number, "I want somebody to love me," which should be most effective for principal boy. "The Curate and the Maiden" has been made popular lately at the Palace by Miss Jennie Johns. There are other selections in the nine numbers published which will justify their introduction into pantomime by the catchiness of their refrains and their humour. Messrs. Williams are sole agents for "La Kraguette," a popular and sensational French dance by Justin Clérice, and their vocal edition of this number, entitled "Margaretta," should prove an excellent novelty for Christmas productions.

THE RETURN OF MR. JONES.

The first English production of The Hypocrites at the Hicks Theatre on Tuesday evening was important as marking the return to the London stage of a dramatist of a superior class. The history of the theatrical renaissance in England is practically that of the careers of Mr. A. W. PINERO and Mr. H. A. JONES. The way of the dramatist in this country is a hard one. As long as he confines himself to telling an interesting story and developing individual characters he will find a public ready to admire and support him. As soon, however, as he becomes in the smallest degree subtle, as soon as he attempts to touch the great social questions of the day sincerely and thoughtfully, his clientèle falls off, and he often becomes soured by failure. All the intellect which is in the modern French drama expended in playwriting is put in this country into novel-writing. Our stories have become depressing, deep, and serious. We have novels dealing with Socialism, novels dealing with the relations of the sexes, novels dealing with the atrocities of the tinned meat trade, novels dealing with all, or most of, the questions which are important to the future of the nation. It is not only that our dramatists are not as well equipped intellectually as our novelists. The comparative failure of The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith may, indeed, be partly attributed to the fact that Mr. PINERO had not got up his subject; but similar fate fell to Letty, in which he analysed with real skill and knowledge the position of a modern business girl of refined tastes, and Iris, in which he drew the difficulties of a modern woman with her character sapped and softened by the habit of self-indulgence, and with her natural instincts at war with her surroundings. An ingenious and charitable explanation of Mr. PINERO'S extraordinary outbreak in A Wife Without a Smile was that it was a deliberate "slap in the face" to the play-going public; but Mr. PINERO showed his good sense by returning to first principles and writing His House in Order. He has, indeed, been admirably reticent and reserved. Whatever his secret aspirations may have been—and after the success of The Second Mrs. Tanqueray they must have been high—he has never complained, sought sympathy, or tried to explain himself.

Mr. H. A. JONES'S temperament is entirely different. He has gone on the principle so thoroughly understood and so spiritedly practised by Mr. BERNARD SHAW, that it is of no use to give the public a good article unless you advertise it. Between 1883 and 1894 Mr. JONES poured upon the world a series of essays and lectures on the drama. In the preface to the publication of these Mr. JONES remarked:

"I can well understand and sympathise with the feelings of impatience and resentment which these essays and lectures have aroused in many quarters during the last ten years, and I have always known that there was much worldly wisdom in the advice of the many friends who have so constantly urged me to hold my tongue upon the subject of the drama. It is a shrewd instinct in the public mind which prompts it to suspect that in matters of art the same great law prevails which it so constantly finds true in matters of morals—namely, that talking and doing are in inverse proportion to each other."

He wrote article after article in the Nineteenth Century and the New Review, he lectured to Playgoers' Clubs and National Sunday Leaguers; and he delivered an inaugural address at the re-opening of the City of London College. In spite of all these efforts, Mr. JONES'S experience has been the same as Mr. PINERO'S. The two plays in which he has come nearest to writing literature were quasi-failures. The Crusaders was a thoughtful and slightly cynical satire on modern philanthropy; and Michael and His Lost Angel was a noble attempt at a drama of sexual emotions. The peculiarity of Mr. JONES'S practice was that, on the principle that good wine needs no bush, he made very little fuss about these really honourable flights; whereas he almost foamed with indignation and earnestness over a clever but inconsequent piece like The Case of Rebellious Susan and an odd excursion into supernatural drama like The Tempter.

The great charm of Mr. JONES is his fertility. He has poured out plays, prefaces, and essays with a profusion which has been really marvellous, and his latest lecture at Harvard, U.S.A., in which he denounced the shortcomings of the English stage, is still fresh in our memories.

The London stage has hardly seemed itself without Mr. JONES. He is an enlivening, an inspiriting, and a vitalising influence. Mr. SUTRO, with all his merits, hardly fills the place of the author of Mrs. Dane's Defence and so many other plays. Mr. CHARLES FROHMAN'S success with The Hypocrites shows the enterprise and good judgment of that astute and experienced manager. Mr. JONES'S recent productions in England had been less successful than might have been desired; and he had got a little out of fashion with managers and audiences. The Hypocrites replaces him on the platform of success and popularity. Misled by "advanced" critics, some of our dramatists have forgotten that, putting aside a demand for certain technical improvements, no real change has taken place in English audiences. Human nature still reigns supreme; a strong dramatic situation excites and delights stalls, pit, and gallery; and as one generation, blasé and wearied, loses its taste for the primitive emotions, another arises to vindicate their influence, and to utterly disregard realism, analysis, and everything outside the eternal passions and interests of "old-fashioned" drama.

"THE GAYEST OF THE GAY;" OR, THE LIFE OF A WOMAN."

Drama, in four acts,
by Arthur Shirley and Eric Hudson, produced at the Shakespeare Theatre, Liverpool, on Monday, Aug. 26.

Jack Latimer	MR. ERNEST OWTTRIM
Hubert Steele	MR. LEONARD YORKE

Nurse Agnes	MISS LIZZIE MADDOX
Nurse Burns	MISS MARY HARDACRE
Kate Latimer (afterwards known as Belle Bascombe) / Susan Meredith (her Twin Sister)	MISS LAURA WALKER

The above new play, which was produced for copyright purposes at the New Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, some months ago, has now commenced its tour, supported by a well-selected company, and mounted in a lavish manner. Briefly, the story, which is most interesting, describes how Kate Latimer, a miserably married woman, is lured from the paths of virtue by Hubert Steele. Her twin sister, Susan, bears a remarkable facial resemblance to her, and Steele, believing that his paramour is about to desert him, kills Susan under the impression that he is getting rid of his associate. Kate discovers the mistake, and resolving to amend her ways, takes up the good work of Susan, who had been a charitable hospital nurse. Eventually Steele is overtaken by justice, and a reconciliation effected between Kate and her husband.

In the dual part of the sisters Miss Laura Walker displayed much dramatic power, her acting throughout being consistently fine; Mr. Leonard Yorke lent excellent support as the rascally Steele; Mr. Ernest Owttrim played the erring and repentant Jack Latimer with an ability which reflected every credit upon him; Mr. Henry Belding proved a worthy Barney O'Brien, the old servant of the Latimers; and praise is due for good support to Messrs. Dennis Bryan (Jack Howland); Alfred Grenville (Hon. Frank Draycott); and William Holl (Percy Palgrave); Miss Helen Richmond (Doris Daintree); Miss Eleanor Winter (Flossie Esmonde); and Miss Kate Francis (Mrs. Gray). The four acts should certainly be cut down somewhat, so as to allow of the drama, which has every promise of proving a success, being over earlier.

THE Royalty Theatre, Chester, which has recently been devoted to variety on the two-houses-a-night principle, will revert to its original state for the next four weeks, during which dramatic plays will be presented. The list of attractions include Mr. Lewis Waller's company in Robin Hood and several popular musical comedy combinations.

KING EDWARD, who has made several visits to the theatre during his stay at Marienbad, went on Thursday to a café-chantant, where a performance was being given by a Viennese variety company. So indecent, however, was the character of the performance that His Majesty, after listening to one or two items of the programme, showed his disgust by leaving the theatre. As he walked out of the Royal box, closely followed by the Duke of Teck and several invited guests, the King uttered the words, "It is horrible! It is appalling!" The Royal box was scarcely empty when the English and Americans, realising what had happened, added their protest by leaving the building.

AMONG the plays which Mr. Feinman, the administrator of the new Yiddish theatre, established at the Pavilion, Mile-end, has secured, is a one-act piece dealing with the massacres of the Jews in Russia. This play is to be translated from the English version, which will be produced shortly at a West-end theatre, and is entitled In the Name of the Czar. The authors of this play are Miss Carmel Goldsmid, who has recently travelled in Russia, and Dr. L. Haden Guest.

The story centres round the love affairs of Ted Daunton, a sailor. Ruth Lingley, his sweetheart, has waited nine months for his return, when news is brought that his vessel has been wrecked and all on board lost. Ruth's father, who is under the control of Basil Cunningham, alias Mordaunt, forces Ruth to marry this man, whose only object is to gain possession of the estates of Seaborne Manor. Mordaunt already has a wife, Octavia, abandoned some years before. This woman, having left her husband some time previously, had a little baby girl, Nancy. The child, now grown in years, accompanied by her father, Phylocrates Jenkins, quack doctor, &c., make their appearance at Seaborne Manor, hungry and weary, and are befriended by Ruth. In the meantime, Mordaunt has heard of the escape of Daunton from the wreck, and so hurries forward his marriage with Ruth. On their return from the wedding ceremony they are met by Daunton, who is accused by Mordaunt of betraying Octavia. Daunton demands proof. Octavia now comes forward at Mordaunt's bidding and accuses Daunton as her betrayer. Then Jenkins, the man Ruth has befriended, comes forward and denounces Mordaunt as his wife's betrayer. Ruth's father, enraged at the indignity put on his daughter, which nothing can alter, as Jenkins had already divorced his wife and the marriage between Mordaunt and Ruth is binding, attacks Mordaunt, and is seized with a fit of apoplexy and dies. Ruth refuses to live with her husband, and is a wife to him in name only. Daunton comes to say a long farewell, is surprised by Mordaunt, and concealed by Ruth in her bedroom with the door locked upon him. Octavia begins to grow troublesome to Mordaunt, and warns Ruth against her husband. Mordaunt discovers the locked door, and, recognising Daunton's voice, orders Ruth to open it. She at first refuses, but complies when she sees that her husband is about to break it open. As Daunton rushes out, Mordaunt is stabbed in the back by Jenkins, who was concealed in the room for the purpose of his own revenge. Mordaunt accuses Daunton of attempting his life, and is backed up by Octavia, who falsely swears she was a witness to the deed. Daunton is sent to prison for two years. Ruth, who has left Mordaunt, and is now without a friend, finds employment in a pawnbroken's shop in the East-end of London. After two years Mordaunt finds her out, and denounces her to her employer; he then plans abduction, but fails. Meanwhile, Mordaunt has become infatuated with Nancy, Octavia's child, and sends Octavia to tempt her to her ruin. Octavia is astounded and mortified when she learns that it is her own daughter whom she has been tempting to ruin, and now turns on her paramour. Daunton, who has now returned from prison, learns for the first time that Octavia was a divorced woman when Mordaunt married her, and consequently that Ruth is quite free to marry her sailor sweetheart, Daunton. When the truth is revealed, Mordaunt attempts Daunton's life, aided by a gang of London roughs and pickpockets, but is defeated by Daunton in a desperate fight. Preparations are now hurriedly made for the marriage of Daunton and Ruth. Mordaunt makes another desperate attempt to abduct Ruth. Nancy arrives on the scene, and Mordaunt threatens to take her life. Her mother, Octavia, in attempting to save her, is stabbed in the back by Mordaunt, and concealed in a coal-cellar. Daunton now comes and overpowers and disarms Mordaunt, who is charged with the murder of Octavia and left in the hands of justice. Everything now is ready for the marriage of Ruth and her faithful lover, Daunton.

There is plenty of comedy introduced into the various scenes, and the humour, if a little crude in places, sufficiently balances the more serious parts of the play. The drama, taken as a whole, is decidedly above the average of this class of play. The dramatic situations are also well worked out, and afford scope for some excellent acting. Judging by its reception, Mr. T. Arthur Jones may be congratulated on achieving meritorious results from his work, and on the excellent way in which his company interpreted the play.

Mr. Jones undertook the rôle of Ted Daunton, which he carried through most successfully in his usual unassuming and quiet manner. Mr. Edwin J. Collins made a distinctly effective villain as Basil Cunningham (alias Mordaunt), his acting being at all times good. Mr. Hyland O'Shea deserved well of his audience for his hard work and excellent comic business as Tommy Neccles; while nothing could have been more natural and humorous than the highly-successful portrayal of Duddle Topwash by Mr. David Hamilton. Mr. Albert H. Clarke was adequate as Robert Lingley; and Mr. W. S. Parkes, with a little more force, would be well suited as Phylocrates Jenkins. Mr. Robert Sawin (business manager to Mr. T. Arthur Jones), in the small part of Sharpey, showed by his smartness that he possesses undoubted ability as an actor. Mr. Dick Everton was well up to his work as Davy Phillips; and Mr. Robert A. Felton made the most of Ginger. Of the ladies, Miss Kate Froude scored a distinct success with her forcible rendering of Octavia, a character for which she seems admirably suited. Miss Lucy Murray had plenty of "go" as Kitty Topwash; and Miss Ivy Clarke sustained the part of Nancy with commendable grace and ease. Miss Marie Daventry played with a delightful charm and sympathy as Ruth Lingley, a difficult and trying rôle, which contrasted well with, and threw into relief, the part of Octavia. The acting was good all round, and the piece went without a hitch. The scenery was pretty and attractive, a particularly good set being used in Act 1, representing the action of the waves and the throwing up of the surf on the shore. Some original incidental music has been contributed by Mr. W. C. Pike, Mus.Doc.

MR. JULIAN CLIFFORD'S benefit concerts at the Harrogate Kursaal are announced for Sept. 7th at 3 and 7.30, when a very attractive programme has been arranged, including the Hon. Mrs Julian Clifford, Mr. Ben Davies, and Madame Alice Gomez.

MR. G. S. KING, the popular manager of the Metropole, Devonport, we are glad to note, is about again after a long and tedious illness. Mr. King was the recipient on Monday of hearty congratulations.

MR. C. P. LEVILLY'S company, in that most charming of comic operas, La Poupée, will be at the Marlborough Theatre next week. It is worthy of note that this musical tale of "The Doll" has had a continuous run for the past ten years.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Association was held at 10, King's-street, Covent Garden, on Tuesday. There were present Mr. Kenyon Musgrave (chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Miss Wynne Matthison, and Messrs. Cecil Brooking, C. F. Collings, F. Grove, Roy Horniman, Fredk. Morland, and C. B. Rivington (in place of secretary).

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The hon. solicitors reported they had written letters to members, had interviews with four members, and had given advice in each case.

Miss Rose Mathews was unanimously elected a member of the Council to fill the place vacated by Miss Clare Greet.

The CHAIRMAN read the report of the Provincial Meeting Committee, which was as follows:—

The expenses of the meeting held at Manchester on Oct. 13, 1905, were as follows:—

Shorthand writer	£1 1 0
Typewriter	1 13 0
Fares	1 10 0
Expenses at Congress	1 0 0
Hotel bill	3 6 6
Postage	2 2 1½
Telegrams, expenses to Liverpool, and petty cash	1 19 6
	£12 12 1½

This amount does not include any expenses for printing, which were probably entered only in the general printing account.

The committee believe that a meeting could be held at very much less expense.

The committee recommend that if a meeting be held this year at Manchester, or elsewhere in the provinces, it should be made the occasion of a declaration of advanced policy on behalf of the Council.

That resolutions be submitted to the meeting (1) insisting on the need that actors should organise as wage-earners to protect their own interests; (2) advocating a Trade Union policy for the A.A., with the object of ultimately raising the salaries of the worst paid in the profession.

The committee consider that such resolutions would express the objects for which the A.A. was founded, and that these objects should be brought prominently before the profession.

The committee further recommend that the Council should endeavour to obtain a chairman for the meeting from among the artists playing in the town in which the meeting is to be held; that one principal speaker should be invited to support the resolutions; and that the resolutions be moved and seconded by members of the Association, if possible by members of the Council.

(Signed) C. F. COLLINGS.
WYNNE MATTHISON.
FREDK. MORLAND.

It was proposed that the report should be adopted, but, after some discussion, an amendment—"That the adoption of the report should be postponed until next Tuesday and a whip be sent out to the absent members of the Council requesting them to attend to consider the clause as to whether a Trade Union policy is to be advocated by the Council"—was carried.

The chairman read a letter from a member, in which he stated he had recovered his basket from the railway company.

The chairman read a letter from Mr. Spencer Trevor, tendering his resignation from the Council on account of prolonged absence from town. It was agreed that the secretary should write to Mr. Trevor, stating that the Council accepted his resignation with extreme regret.

The chairman read a letter from Mr. George Lyttleton re "minimum wage," and the secretary was instructed to acknowledge the letter, thanking him for same, to explain the circumstances as to why he had not received the answer to his previous letter, and to ask him to submit his scheme to the Council for their consideration.

The chairman read letters from house-agents, including Messrs. Howard and Hodges and Redfern, with regard to sub-letting the premises, and upon the advice of the hon. solicitors it was agreed that no answers were necessary.

The chairman read a letter from the Rev. Donald Hole with reference to the Actors' Church Union lodging-house register, and it was agreed that the secretary should write and thank the rev. gentleman for his communication, and say the Council would be glad to take the recommendation of the chaplain of the town, in place of two members, if the landladies wished to advertise in the A.A. Lodgings Book; and if this proposal was agreed to by his committee, the Council would be obliged if he would furnish them with the list of chaplains in order that the secretary might supply them with copies of the lodgings forms. The secretary was instructed to point out that the reason why the Council did not see their way to agree to the proposal incorporating the A.C.U. and A.A. lists was that it would be giving certain landladies a free advertisement, and consequently unfair to those who already pay a fee. The secretary was also directed to ask for a copy of the A.C.U. lodgings list when ready.

The secretary reported there was no meeting of the Commissioners' Committee, Miss Rose Mathews only being in attendance.

No reports of the Finance and General Purposes, Library, Minimum Wage, Social, and Special Committees were presented, there having been no meetings since last Council.

Two former members were reinstated, and Jas. Benedict Butler, Alice Maude, and Claude Fleming were elected.

END OF THE SAVOY SEASON.

The last night of Mrs. D'Oyly Carte's season at the Savoy Theatre was one of the wildest enthusiasm. The performance began at four o'clock in the afternoon, and lasted till eleven, with an interval between a quarter to seven and eight. The entertainment opened with the first act of The Yeomen of the Guard, in which Mr. C. H. Workman and Miss Clara Dow especially distinguished themselves. Then followed the second act of The Gondoliers, in which Miss Jessie Rose was strikingly successful; and Mr. Workman as the Duke of Plaza-Toro and Mr. John Clulow as the Grand Inquisitor were heartily applauded. After the interval, the curtain rose on the second act of Patience, in which Mr. Workman scored highly as Bunthorne. A scene from The Mikado followed as a surprise, Mr. Workman again distinguishing himself as Ko-Ko and Miss Louie Réné being a capital Katisha. The National Anthem was then sung by the whole of the company. When at last the curtain descended there were loud calls for Mrs. D'Oyly Carte; but, to the great disappointment of the audience, that lady did not appear. In answer to a demand for Sir W. S. Gilbert, Mr. François Cellier, to whose admirable conducting the season owes so much of its success, came forward, and stated that Sir William was not in the house. To the strains of "Auld lang syne," sung by the audience, the house was slowly and regretfully vacated.

MESSRS. H. LAZARUS AND SON have won golden opinions by the carpets, linos, draperies, chairs, music stands, and seating covers which they have supplied to the new St. James's Theatre, Long Eaton. The colour scheme is in blue and gold, and the seating accommodation is 1,200. The interior of the house presents an extremely dainty and artistic appearance, and Messrs. Lazarus deserve great credit for their share of the work.

"HER MARRIAGE VOW."

Gilbert Carlton	MR. EDWARD L. GARSIDE
Ned Benton	MR. GEORGE BEVERLEY
Daffy Dan	MR. J. FORBES KNOWLES
William Walters	MR. JOHN W. RYDER
Larry Leary	MR. DAN RYAN
Ebden Chubb	MR. WILFORD BAILEY
Jim Burke, nicknamed Surly Jim	MR. WALTER WILBY
Jenks	MR. JOHN HERDMAN
Hester Norton	MISS NELLIE SHIRLEY
Almira	MISS ANNA BEAUMONT
Maggie Clare	MISS NELLIE GARSIDE
Kate Walters	MISS RUTH SHEPHERD

An up-to-date drama of a highly sensational character is furnished in the above play. The opening scene depicts the living room of a comfortably-off working-class family named Walters, the father of whom is an engine-driver, with a daughter named Kate. She is secretly married to the villainous gentleman, Gilbert Carlton, who, however, is under the impression that the ceremony was a bogus one. The arrangement of the wedding was left partly in the hands of a half-wit named Dan, who was in the villain's power! Dan, who loved Kate secretly, arranged a real wedding, after which Kate wishes to make a public announcement of the event. Instead of which, with the assistance of one Hester Norton, the heiress of a rich railway magnate, with whom Carlton is in love, the villain induces his wife to leave home. Ned Benton, a telegraph operator on the line, is accused of having ruined Kate, but the half-wit turns the tables upon Carlton by giving the account of the real wedding.

The scene is then transferred to a swell suite of rooms in the Hotel Republic, Boston, where Kate is kept practically a prisoner by her husband, who brutally informs her that his marriage with her was a mock one. Ned Benton now comes upon the scene, and declares his love for her. Carlton and the heiress enter, and the latter describes Kate as an abandoned woman, but Dan, the half-wit, discloses the fact that Kate is in reality Carlton's wife.

The third act is located at an elaborately set-up and effective portion of the railway line, where the schemers plot the destruction of the wife and Ned Benton. In the meantime Carlton has endeavoured to drive his wife to insanity, but fails, and Kate takes refuge at last in the old signal box, where her father finds her and takes her home again. Carlton and his confederates seize and bind Benton, now a signalman for the time being, and tamper with the signals in order that the train in which Kate and her father are passengers may be wrecked; but an American girl (Maggie Clare) comes to the rescue of the hero, who breaks out of the signal-box in the very nick of time and turns the points to enable the express trains to pass in safety.

The fourth act brings us once more to the old home, where we find Kate is suffering terribly from the effects of her persecution. Carlton arrives, accompanied by an asylum attendant, and armed with a doctor's certificate for her committal as an insane patient. Kate again escapes. Eventually Dan meets Carlton, and a fight takes place between the men, during which the half-wit overpowers Carlton and throws him over the precipice into the ravine below, thus releasing Kate from "Her Marriage Vow."

The company chosen by Messrs. Garside and Knowles is a strong and capable one. Mr. Edward L. Garside as the gentlemanly schemer, Gilbert Carlton, plays with acumen and power, and secures abundant interest for the part. Mr. George Beverley is a manly Ned Benton; and a sound character study is that given by Mr. J. Forbes Knowles as the half-wit, Daffy Dan; Mr. John W. Ryder is all that is requisite as the engine-driver, William Walters; and Mr. Walter Wilby is sufficiently in evidence as Surly Jim, the signalman; Mr. Wilford Bailey (a sterling actor of the old school), adds to his many successes as the retired trader, Ebden Chubb; Mr. Dan Ryan is amusing as the Irishman, Larry Leary, and proves a step-dancer of no mean order; Mr. John Herdman is adequate in the minor rôle of Jenks, the asylum attendant; Miss Ruth Shepherd has an exhaustive and trying rôle in Kate Walters, which she sustains in a manner that stamps her as an artist with considerable histrionic ability; Miss Nellie Shirley has a rather unthankful rôle as the lover of Carlton, but manages to survive the ordeal with satisfactory results; Miss Anna Beaumont is admirable as Almira; and last, though by no means least, Miss Nellie Garside is to be highly commended for her bright and vivacious rendition of the amusing part of Maggie Clare. The staging is on lavish and fully adequate lines.

NEW THEATRE AT LONG EATON.

On Thursday evening the new theatre, known as St. James's Theatre, was formally opened by Mr. Mouillot's Blue Moon company. Long Eaton is a rising town of about 18,000 population, between Derby and Nottingham, and is the centre of an extensive lace-making business. Recently factories have sprung up rapidly, the most up-to-date machinery having been introduced, and the old home, Nottingham, has been left in the lurch, but the "market" is still in the old spot. The new theatre has been erected on the most approved system by Mr. Lindsay Edwards, who manages the Loughborough theatre, and the site is in the centre of the town, facing the main thoroughfare to Derby, with the back premises reaching to Oxford-street. There is a fine entrance, with stairs to the right and left to the dress and upper circles, and the pit is available from the centre, and the gallery from the entrance to the left. There are numerous exits, and provision has been made for the use of hydrants in case of fire. The scheme of colour is red, with decorations of red, pale blue, and gold. The upholstery and carpets, especially manufactured, are of two shades of peacock blue and old gold. The lighting arrangements are by gas and electricity. The seating is put down at 1150, but 1250 can be provided for: pit 450, orchestral stalls 78, pit stalls 50, dress circle 102, upper circle 144, and gallery 500. The stage is 35ft. by 48ft., with a height of 44ft., and all the approved apparatus has been introduced, with a safety curtain. Half-a-dozen dressing-rooms, fireproof, heated, and fitted up with hot and cold water, are behind and underneath. At each side of the stage is a box for special visitors. An emergency exit from the gallery can be used when necessary. Wood block flooring has been laid in the pit. A permanent band has been engaged, under the conductorship of Mr. Wilhelm Russell. The building is heated by the low pressure hot-water system, with forty-eight radiators, and a special feature will be the absence of draughts on the stage. Behind the circle are refreshment bar, cloak-rooms for both sexes, and lavatory conveniences. Beautiful work is to be seen at the entrance, the front elevation being an attractive design in pressed red brick and stone dressings; a central gable with two slightly projecting turrets on either side form a distinctive feature. Mr. C. R. Ross, of Long Eaton, is the architect, and Mr. Frank Martin, Stapleford, is the builder.

Mr. Mouillot's Blue Moon company had a great reception on the opening night. The band played the National Anthem on the curtain rising, and Mr. Edwards delivered a short speech, which was well received. Miss Nellie Lomas made herself a great favourite.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

A NEWSPAPER placard in Manchester on Tuesday announced a threatened music-hall strike. The artists will hold a mass meeting at the Manchester Palace on Sunday night. This meeting will be addressed by Lancashire members of Parliament, and the V.A.F. will be represented specially by Mr. Monte Bayly, the secretary. The trouble is with the management of the Manchester Tivoli.

MR. G. R. ASKWITH was consulted at the offices of the Board of Trade on Thursday by Messrs. Wal Pink, Joe O'Gorman, W. H. Clemart, and Monte Bayly, representing the Variety Artists' Federation, in reference to the form of contract adopted by some London managers. It is alleged that certain clauses in these contracts do not comply with the terms of the model form which is part of the Award, and a meeting with the managers for consultation will probably be arranged by Mr. Askwith next week.

IN the not very distant future the Grand, Islington, the Terriss, Rotherhithe, and the Standard, Shoreditch, are to be run on variety lines. The changes will probably take place at Christmas, and the entrepreneur who is to accomplish them is Mr. Walter Gibbons, whose recent acquisitions —the Prince's, Poplar, and the Grand, Woolwich— have justified his confidence in their drawing power as music halls.

MESSRS. KLAW AND ERLANGER, who are booking up many of our leading attractions on this side for their advanced vaudeville circuit in the States, desire it to be known that their only authorised representative, holding their full and absolute authority to sign contracts in their name, is Mr. Alfred E. Aarons.

IT was orginally intended that the new Empire ballet should be founded on a famous comic opera; but now, we are given to understand, it is to be a very up-to-date production, and will first see the footlights at the end of September. Though it will avoid the classicism of Orfeo, it will not be without an admixture of ancient incidents.

MR. FRED FARREN, who will produce the new Empire ballet, has been a leading figure in the productions at that house for some years. He was a pupil of the late Miss Lizzie Claremont, with whom he toured, that excellent actress playing the part of the female baby farmer in Human Nature, and little Freddie appearing as the kidnapped boy. After much versatile work young Farren came to the Alhambra, afterwards transferring his services to the Empire, where his eccentric dancing and his comedy are very highly valued.

MR. and MRS. ALFRED BUTT have been greatly enjoying their motor trip through some of the prettiest country in France, and are now staying at Boulogne. The popular managing-director of the Palace Theatre returns to his duties on Monday.

MR. JOSEPH WILSON has been spending a quiet fortnight with Mrs. Wilson and family at the quiet little village of Chideock, where he has a cottage. It is a restful little place, about ten minutes from the sea and close to the sleepy old town of Bridport. Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Cotton (Miss Ada Reeve) have a charming house at Chideock.

IN the new Alpine spectacle that is to be produced shortly by Mr. Frank Parker at the Hippodrome there will be a wonderful stage realisation of the sport of tobogganing and ski-ing. Mechanical ingenuity will again play a large part in the show, but the inventive faculty of the clever stage-director will be able to surmount all difficulties.

A STORY will be woven round the spectacle, and tragedy will be very much in the air when a fight occurs on a mountain above a glacier between brothers, one of whom is the successful suitor of a fräulein beloved by both. A special engagement by Mr. Parker is that of Rudolf Bernet, the mountain guide whose face and form are familiaf to visitors to Grindelwald. The fight will be followed by "the avalanche," which is to be the title of the piece. The catastrophe will be realised by moving snow, and a mountain lake will burst.

MR. LESLIE STILES is announced to sing at the Palace on Monday a song of his own composition, entitled "The regimental kiddy." The most popular "Kiddy" of the kind—on the boards at any rate—was Bootles' Baby, a play adapted from John Strange Winter's story of that name, and produced at the now defunct Globe. The play should make a good sketch. We recommend the notion to Mr. Hugh Moss, who so cleverly adapted the piece for the stage.

MR. HYMACK, who concludes a three months' London season on Saturday, opens at the Apollo, Paris, for a short engagement on Monday next. This will be Mr. Hymack's only Continental appearance this season, as he is fully booked on the Moss-Stoll tour, and for America under the management of Mr. Percy G. Williams. Mr. Hymack has disposed of the Continental rights of his act (except the city of Paris) to Mr. H. Werner Reider until the end of 1908.

THE South London Palace is about to undergo renovation, during which the entire hall will be redecorated and the seating renewed. Operations have already been begun behind the stage, where new scenery has been provided and an elegant drop-curtain representing London Bridge in 1891, has been hung.

THE Variety Artists' Federation will be represented at the Trade Union Congress at Bath, commencing on Monday. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, Chairman of the Federation, and Mr. Monte Bayly, the General Secretary, are the delegates. Mr. Frank Gerald will represent the Actors' Union.

MR. LEONARD ROSSON will on Monday commence a series of return dates with his smart sketch, The Girl from Biarritz, at the South London. He will be supported by a strong company, including Mr. Leslie Vyner and Miss Eileen Concanen.

DURING Mr. Blyth-Pratt's absence on a holiday the duties in the front of the house at the Oxford devolve upon Mr. A. L. Edwards, the assistant acting-manager and treasurer. Mr. Blyth-Pratt is at Dinard.

MESSRS. H. AND M. RAYNE, the well-known theatrical outfitters, recently commenced an action for libel against the Performer, but further proceedings have been stayed by the proprietors of that newspaper agreeing to pay all costs and to make a public apology.

MISS MAY CLIFTON and company produced on Monday at the Middlesex an entirely new Japanese scena. The attractive production includes four new songs, which met with a rousing reception. Miss Clifton, with her fine voice and charming style, scoring heavily in "The Nightingale" and "Mimosa San," two numbers especially written and composed for her by Mr. Howard Hartman. She was ably supported by Mr. F. E. Jonge and Mr. Hartman, who shared in the success. The scena is elaborately staged and dressed. Miss Clifton and her company are at the Empire, Camberwell, next week.

THE opening of the Peterborough Hippodrome will not be on Monday. It is postponed on account of licensing difficulties.

MR. CLIFFORD KING, late of the Duchess Palace and the Putney Hippodrome, has been appointed manager of the Opera House and Hippodrome, Burton-on-Trent.

THE King's Theatre, Edinburgh, is to be reopened early in September as a variety house, under the auspices of a management hailing from Glasgow. A novel feature of the enterprise is the initiation of two shows on Saturday evenings only.

THE Palace Theatre, Cork, will be reopened on Monday under the management of Mr. T. F. O'Brien, with the following strong variety company:—Minnie Cunningham, the Itrams, Charles Coverdale, the Carlyles, Maude Vera, the Comerfords, Fred Arthur, and E. Hoggan-Armadale and company in a sketch, founded on the Erckmann-Chatrian story of The Polish Jew.

MANY improvements have been effected, and nothing that could in any way add to the comfort of patrons has been left undone on the part of the management. Indeed, under the able direction of Mr. O'Brien, whose long association with the Opera House should make him admirably fitted for his post, there seems every reason to anticipate that the season will prove a success. His appointment is proving a most popular one with patrons of the Palace.

MR. T. P. DUIGNAN, who has so successfully acted as manager of the Blackpool Hippodrome in the last few seasons, is taking a well-deserved benefit on Sept. 11, when a full and strong programme is to be presented.

AT the Opera House, Jersey, on Monday night, when Miss Elfie Vincent and Miss Maisie Gerrard, the "Veroniques," took their benefit, Mr. Edward Marris offered a two-guinea and several consolation prizes for the last line to the following limerick:—

There were once two "Veroniques" gay,
Who for twelve weeks in Jersey did stay,
To-night can be seen
How successful they've been,

The two-guinea prize was won by Mr. A. Ereant with the following line:—

Glance around you—what more need I say?
And as there was hardly a vacant seat in the Opera House, what wonder that he won the prize?

THE New Hippodrome, Darlington, will open its doors to the public on Monday. Signor Pepi, of the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, and Tivoli, Barrow-in-Furness, is the managing-director. Marie Loftus heads the bill, and the exceptional company includes Charlie Williams, Mezetti and Mora, the Three Phydorus, Morney Cash, Vandinoff, Pepiscope, and Mlle. Lumière. The building is a handsome one, with a holding capacity of 2,000. Mr. G. F. Ward, of Birmingham, is responsible for the design and carrying out of the work. Mr. C. Hersee is the acting-manager.

MR. WILLIE FREEAR, that most-travelled of all performers, returned from Panama four weeks ago, and while on a holiday in the Channel Islands was prevailed upon to try his celebrated two-hours' show in Guernsey. His success was so extraordinary that he is now returning to play in Jersey on the 9th and 10th prox., and again in Guernsey during the following week.

IT is with regret that we announce the death of Mr. Arnold Hugh Colmer, manager of the Gaiety, Chatham, which sad event took place at Bartholomew's Hospital on Friday, the 23rd inst. Deceased was well known and highly esteemed by all artists of the profession, for his geniality and courtesy were his chief characteristics.. Deceased was some months ago assistant-manager to Mr. Fred Leighton at the Sheerness Hippodrome, and a sad fact about Mr. Colmer's death is that he had only been married a few months. He had been a manager for nearly three years.

THE funeral took place on Tuesday at the Isle of Sheppey Cemetery, amidst every manifestation of deep regret and sorrow. Floral emblems were sent from the permanent staff of the Sheerness Hippodrome; staff of the Gaiety Theatre, Chatham; artists this week at the Sheerness Hippodrome; the Sheerness branch of the R.A.O.B., of which deceased was a respected member; Mr. Fred Leighton, who was brother-in-law to deceased; and many others.

AT the newly-opened Victoria Hall, Walthamstow, on Thursday evening, the 22nd inst., after Mr. Wensley Russell had announced the names of the winners in the limerick competition, the manager was surprised to receive an envelope containing £3 10s. in gold, and a note from "A Lover of Pictures," with a request that the sum should be handed over to a deserving charity. The management sent the money to the Walthamstow Children's Hospital.

MR. EDWARD HARRISON, resident manager of the Palace and Hippodrome, Halifax, for Mr. Frank Macnaghten, was accorded a complimentary matinée benefit on Thursday (22nd), when several prominent artists associated with the Macnaghten Circuit gave their services, and a great success resulted.

MR. HARRISON, who was originally connected with Mr. Adderley Howard in sketches, formerly managed the Bow Palace soon after Mr. Macnaghten took over that house. Since leaving the East End of London he has looked after Mr. Macnaghten's interests at Leicester, Bradford, Hartlepool, and Halifax. The report that he is coming to the Macnaghten Circuit offices in London is without foundation. He will shortly be seen at a new Macnaghten Palace in Lancashire.

THE Macnaghten Circuit is spreading rapidly in Lancashire, where variety entertainments, with their lightness and brightness, make an irresistible appeal to the toiling factory workers. The new establishment at Warrington opens next month, and Burnley will fall into line later in the year.

CARL AND CARR'S Merry Pierrots are still drawing huge crowds daily at Victoria Park, Plymouth.

MISS ALICE GROSSMITH and Mr. Lyall Grant produced on Monday, at the Hull Empire, their latest musical comedy sketch, The Chorus Girl and the Call Boy, which proved an immediate hit. This amusing little piece, written by Mr. Lyall Grant himself, contains clever dialogue, neat dancing, and tuneful numbers, particularly a very catchy duet, of which a repetition was demanded.

THE name of Jules Keller figures on the memorial tablet erected by the citizens of Salisbury in the beautiful cathedral there in memory of those who lost their lives in the railway accident near that city on Sunday, July 1, last year. The tablet is placed as a pledge of brotherly sympathy with mourners in England, America, and Canada. Poor Keller, whose wonderful muscular development of arms and shoulders may be remembered, was an acrobat who had performed for years on the Continent, in America, and in this country. He was returning from an engagement across the pond to his friends in London when he, with twenty-seven others, met with an untimely fate.

MR. THOMAS BARRASFORD will re-open the Paris Alhambra on Sunday (to-morrow) with a strong and attractive company. His latest acquisition, the Alhambra, Brussels, is to open on Oct. 15.

MR. FRED MILLER, the general manager of the Canterbury, will take his benefit on Thursday, Oct. 24. Mr. Miller's benefit is always one of the most popular functions of the year, and an evening during which all the available "stars" will shine may confidently be anticipated.

THE new premises of the Ladies' Guild, situated at 2, York-street, Wellington-street, W.C., will be open on Wednesday next, Sept. 4. A reception will take place at 2, and last till about 5 p.m. Miss Marie Lloyd, the president of the Guild, will be "At Home" to the friends and members of the Guild, and as this will be her last social appearance prior to her departure for America, she will say farewell. Miss Fanny Brough, president of the Theatrical Ladies' Guild, is also expected. Ladies and gentlemen of either the theatrical or variety profession are cordially invited.

THERE will be a gala performance at the Camberwell Empire next Tuesday—the night of the first anniversary of that house under the régime of the popular Jesse Sparrow and Harry Bawn. Variety in South London owes much to Mr. Sparrow, and his comrades, the Terriers, will muster in force for the purpose of congratulating him and otherwise honouring him.

MISS FLORRIE ROBINA is now travelling with her husband, Mr. Reed Pinaud, and is playing in The Mumming Birds, which is now being presented for the third season at the Folies-Marigny with undiminished success. Miss Robina's burlesque of the ballad singer is received at every performance with yells of laughter.

MR. F. W. PURCELL has in active preparation and will produce, upon an elaborate scale, an original sketch, entitled A Tale of Two Cities, with powerful cast and special scenery, adapted by Ernest Bliss from Charles Dickens's story. The immense success of The Only Way, founded on the same story, on the theatrical boards should be a happy augury for the popularity of Mr. Purcell's venture.

HERR EDOUARD WULFF, proprietor of the famous Continental circus bearing his name, will introduce, at the Hippodrome, on Monday, three horses of his own breeding in an original act, The Three Friends. The Turkish thoroughbred, Abdullah, will be ridden by Mlle. Maude Wulff in a liberty act. This team comprises the "Mattchiche" dancing horse, Furious. Other attractions will include Magantini, the Castilian torero (direct from Madrid), in a realistic exposition of a Spanish bull-fight; the French equestrienne, Helene Girard; Miss Fillis and her acrobatic dog, Spring Charm; the Boccaccio Minstrels; and balloon polo on horseback, the latest creation, under the management of M. Court Tietze. With this change of programme the last week of The Zuyder Zee is announced.

MR. GUS ELEN and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Romaine desire through our columns to thank the numerous senders of kind wires and letters to wish them bon voyage and success in America. They are enjoying a most comfortable trip across on the Baltic.

THE Smythsons, after a most successful run in London, including the Moss-Stoll halls, commence the provincial tour of same next week at the Empire, Cardiff, and continue with the Moss-Stoll firm into 1908 with their latest laughter-raiser, Love Germs.

AT the Alhambra the already strong programme will be further added to in attractiveness next Monday by the appearance of a number of Polar bears, trained by Herr List. Ordinary performing bears are common enough, but the real white variety of the ice-bound Arctic regions is not so docile, and is more troublesome to teach. Harry Allister, a clever character impersonator, and Henry Helme, a chanteur Basque, also come to the Alhambra next week.

PREPARATIONS for the new ballet at the Alhambra are being rapidly pushed forward, the subject being, as already announced, the ever-welcome Cloches de Corneville. For a long time Planquette's popular opera has attracted managers as easily adaptable for a ballet, but hitherto the performing rights of the music in England have been unobtainable. It is only owing to Mr. Alfred Moul, the managing director of the Alhambra, having been the late composer's life-long friend and agent that the tuneful score has been quite recently secured. It need hardly be said that the mounting of the ballet will be on the usual scale of magnificence.

MISS ADA WARD, an actress, some years ago joined the Salvation Army, and preached about the stage. Now we have "Captain" Bailey abjuring the Booth Army Corps and appearing behind the footlights in a sketch called The Musical Nightmare. He is to give this on Monday at the Camberwell Empire, where he will be associated with Miss Minnie Thurgate. The captain's musical soul yearns for the appreciation that was lacking in his comrades, and which he hopes to win as an entertainer.

GUS SNYDER, a trick cyclist, met with a serious accident on Saturday at the Manchester Hippodrome. In the course of the performance he fell and broke his thigh. The poor fellow had not long recovered from a previous accident, in which he sustained considerable injury. The unfortunate performer was one of the troupe run by Bud Snyder.

MISS GLADYS HUXLEY, who is so rapidly coming to the front, is a dainty and clever artist with a style of her own. Last year she played principal girl at Nottingham, achieving the greatest success. This year she plays principal girl at the Coronet.

A CRICKET match took place at Freeman's Grounds, Denmark-hill, S.E., on Wednesday between the staffs and friends of the Camberwell Palace and Empire. A most enjoyable afternoon was spent, many local patrons putting in an appearance. Both teams were well represented, and a close game resulted in favour of the Empire staff, who ran up a total of 155. A return match will take place.

MISS BESSIE BUTT achieved such a success on her first appearance at the Tivoli recently that she has been booked for several return dates at the Syndicate halls, and opens at the Oxford shortly. Meanwhile, her latest song, "Cherries are blooming," is likely to become as popular in the North as it has in town, judging by its reception in Edinburgh. This number is one of the latest on the list of Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

MISS SADIE SIMPSON, who is on a forty weeks' successful tour, will not be returning to London until May next, when she will appear at the Moss and Stoll Suburban Empires.

WHEN in Aldershot last week the Musical Palmers, by kind permission of the management of the Hippodrome, appeared at a special concert given to the inmates of the Royal Cambridge Military Hospital. Their entertainment was most enthusiastically received, and a hearty vote of thanks was given them.

CAPT. J. TAYLOR'S elephants have met with brilliant success at the London Hippodrome, and to-night he finishes his engagement there. On Monday he starts for a very extended tour on the Moss' circuit, and afterwards is desirous to tour the Continent. Capt. J. Taylor's name should not be confounded with that of his brother, who is also a "captain," and an animal trainer. Lockhart's elephants are owned by the former, and the act is probably the most popular pachydermatous show in the world.

JOHN LAWSON is meeting with his customary success this week at the Palace, Sunderland, with a répertoire of five sketches. He is playing to packed houses, in spite of tremendous opposition. Last week, at the Hackney Empire, the business, on the occasion of John Lawson's visit, was phenomenal.

THE event of the Margate season was the fancy dress ball competition, held at the Hall-by-the-Sea on Thursday night. The great building was packed, the audience being the largest seen within the walls for a very long time, and everything passed off most successfully. Competition was keen for the valuable prizes offered, many beautiful dresses being seen. The awards were made as follows:—For the best representation of the Daily Mirror—Ladies: 1st prize, £5, Miss Chapman, Margate; 2nd, £3, Miss Clark, Old Kent-road, London; 3rd, £2, Miss Grace Bunn, Clapham, S.W. Gentlemen: 1st prize, £5, H. Bierling, Margate; 2nd, £3, J. C. Lamb, East Sheen; 3rd, £2, P. Fruin, Margate. Consolation prizes, 10s. 6d.: Miss Booth, Seckingfield, Cheshire; Miss Holway, Margate. The magnificent gardens were beautifully illuminated.

AFTER playing at nine towns in one week Mr. Bransby Williams is finding quiet and rest with his family at his pretty seaside home at Selsey, which in the near future is likely to be a formidable rival to Bangor, a few miles away.

THE benefit of Mr. W. B. Fair, announced for Sept. 5 at the Holborn Town Hall, is for the present postponed. Mr. Fair, who is universally known as the singer of "Tommy make room for your uncle," was one of the first to exploit sketches at the halls, and both the lamented Kate Vaughan and Susie appeared under his auspices as members of the Vaughan family in Charles Merion's sketches. Mr. Merion was at one time manager of the old Trocadero, and we are afraid he did not always obtain the credit he deserved for his numerous music-hall farces and dramettas.

THE Haverleys, the well-known American song illustrators, having just concluded a twenty-nine weeks' continuous run with their well known and entertaining act, have this week started a tour of all the largest provincial halls and theatres, extending to Christmas, when they return to London to fulfil a three weeks' re-engagement with Mr. John Hart and to take up their engagements at the Syndicate halls.

MR. FOWLER THATCHER scored an emphatic success last week in the new sketch, The Major's Middy, at the Empire, Camberwell, and has gone one better this week, being highly complimented by the author, Mr. George Unwin, upon his creation of the old masher in Minnie Palmer's new sketch, The Little Madcap. He seems to be in great demand just now for eccentric old men's parts.

MISS MAYME CANNON should be proud of her experiment at the Canterbury and Paragon during the past week. She immediately caught on, and through her agent, Will Oliver, has been offered several return dates.

MLLE. GHITA CORRI, who has just returned from a most successful summer tour of fourteen weeks, visiting Scarborough, Morecambe, Halifax, Huddersfield, Folkestone, &c., and paying many return visits, has been enjoying a week's well-earned rest, and now opens her autumn season on Monday with her latest song-scena, Character Types, at the Alhambra, Edinburgh.

MR. H. H. FEIBER, who represents the Keith and Proctor interests, arrived in London on Wednesday. Mr. Feiber leaves for the Continent to-morrow.

LONDON'S latest magnificent music hall, the Palace, East Ham, has had a strong programme this week, one of the principal attractions being Miss Minnie Palmer and company in The Little Madcap, a new and very bright sketch written by George Unwin, which has gone splendidly at every performance. The clever little actress is as charming and vivacious as ever, and as Mr. Unwin has written her a part something after the style of Tina in the immortal My Sweetheart, it need hardly be said she revels in it, to the delight of the audience. Miss Palmer, who is extremely well supported by Miss Emma Chambers and Mr. Fowler Thatcher, has had some particularly pretty music written for The Little Madcap.

MR. SHAUN GLENVILLE will make his first appearance as Dame Darling in Miss Zona Joy's sketch of School on Oct. 7. Mr. Glenville has entered into a three years' contract with a well-known theatrical and music hall manager.

DOLLY, AGNES, AND MAUD are in the fourth year of an uninterrupted success as the musical cardboard box-makers, and have been accepted for the Stoll tour. They sail for New York in 1909.

MR. CARL VERNON, illusionist, desires to thank all those who so kindly contributed and thereby assisted Mr. Fontaine (of Les Fontaines), who has been ill:—Mr. J. Carter White, Empire, Cleethorpes, £1 1s.; Mr. T. Allan Edwards, Palace, Derby, £1 1s.; Percy Mayne, 5s.; Frank Coyle, 2s. 6d.; and Emerson and Beanland, Queen's, Castleford, 5s.; total, £2 14s. 6d.

SWAN AND VESTA, the new turn, has been secured for the King's, Edinburgh, and Pavilion, Glasgow. Anything new and refined will always be readily secured.

THE latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra 1 7/8, Canterbury ½, Empire (15s. pd.) 1⅛, Do. (10s. pd.) 1, Lon. Pav. Ord., 4⅛, Do. Pref. 5, Lon. Coliseum 1/8, Metropolitan ½, Moss Empire 4½, Do. 5 p.c. Pref. 3⅞, Oxford 6½, Palace 14/9, Tivoli 5⅛, Var. Cons. Theas. 13/0.

AT the Westminster Police Court on Monday Mr. Norman Berlin, of the Chelsea Palace, in asking for a licence to enable a little girl of thirteen to perform twice each evening for a week, said he felt he ought to mention that the conditions of the licence laid it down that there should be a break of four hours between each performance. Mr. Horace Smith: Why should not I be bound by that rule? Mr. Berlin: We have never had any difficulty on the point before. As a matter of fact, there would be about two hours between each performance by the child; but so long as it is arranged that they leave the hall before ten o'clock it is usually regarded as sufficient. Subdivisional Inspector Reed said this was now largely the custom. The police raised no objection. Mr. Berlin said he had mentioned the matter to an official of the London County Council, who had said that it was one left entirely to the discretion of the magistrates. He took the four hours interval as intended rather to refer to children who might be on the stage in plays for several hours at a stretch, and for rehearsals, and so on. Every care was taken of the children. Mr. Horace Smith granted the licence.

THE final arrangements for the dinner and presentation to Mr. Frank Gerald, at the Criterion Restaurant, on Sunday, Sept. 15, were made yesterday, when the committee met to draw up the programme for the evening. The committee have now secured the support of all sections of the entertainment world, and, in addition, many of the most prominent leaders of the Labour Party and Trades Unions will be present, including Pete Curran, M.P., Will Steadman, Mr. J. O'Grady, M.P., Will Thorn, M.P., Messrs. Harry Gosling, L.C.C., Frank Smith, L.C.C., and Chas. Jesson, L.C.C.

THE Actors' Union, who have appointed Mr. Gerald as their delegate at the Trades Congress at Bath, are taking an active part in ensuring a successful evening, and many members have arranged to be present, while the list of the committee includes such popular favourites as Geo. Chirgwin, Gus Elen, Geo. Gray, Bransby Williams, Leo Dryden, Pat Carey, Chas. Coborn, Herbert Darnley, Leonard Mortimer, and J. F. Preston. The chair will be taken at seven o'clock by Mr. Cecil Raleigh, and tickets (5s. each) may be had from any member of the committee, or from the hon. sec., 29, Wellington-street, W.C.

DR. WALFORD BODIE finished a record week with Mr. Wm. Coutts at the Albert Hall, Swansea, last week. On Saturday night at both houses hundreds were unable to obtain admission, and the stage was covered with flowers and costly presents. A scene of wild enthusiasm concluded by the whole audience rising to their feet and singing "He's a jolly good fellow." Owing to his enormous success he has been re-engaged by Mr. Coutts at the record salary of £250 to come back in a month's time.

M. GUILLAUME LEONE'S orchestration of the song "Lovely Spring" for Mme. Natalia, the celebrated singer, has pleased that lady so much that she has engaged him to do all her arranging for her future engagements. M. Guillaume Leone is acting as chef d'orchestre at the Empress, Brixton, during the absence of Mr. R. Allington, the resident conductor, who is taking a well-earned holiday.

MR. JOHN HENDERSON, whose Under the Maple Leaf is going strong this week at the South London, produces on Monday at the Bedford a powerful sequel to the above called The Land of the West, the locale, of course, being again the Canadian North-West. New and appropriate scenery by Leolyn Hart has been painted. Another Canadian air is being used as a theme for the incidental music arranged by Geo. R. Hatley. Miss Millie Henderson will again portray the modern Western girl, and be her father's principal support. It is satisfactory to note that, as we some time ago predicted, the Maple Leaf is now fully booked for the remainder of this year.

MASTER MAX DARRWSKI, the wonderful boy composer, conductor, and pianist, received a perfect ovation at the Palace, Manchester, when he appeared last Monday. So great an attraction have his performances proved that he has broken all previous records. His playing of "Nelson's Victory," his own composition, and that of Rossini's famous overture, William Tell, was one of the most marvellous ever heard. His rendering of Chopin's Valse in D flat, and an "Impromptu" from the youthful composer's own pen, which M. Paderewski praised so highly, was encored again and again. The leading managers have wired offering fabulous sums to secure the services of this wonderful new "star."

FRED KARNO'S laughable sketch, Suburbia, will be produced at the Hackney Empire next week. As a producer, Mr. Karno has come to the front during the past five years, and his name is regarded as being quite a hall-mark. Hilarity was his first attempt at sketch work, and it was a screaming success from the start. He established an extensive business for the production and equipment of sketches in Camberwell, and gives employment to many hundreds of hands, including scene painters, costumiers, and artists.

MR. CHARLES KITTS, in the same programme, is a capital comedian with twenty years' stage experience. Joining the Gaiety Répertoire Company, playing a round of musical comedies, Mr. Kitts sustained a number of Mr. Seymour Hicks's parts for some time. Three years ago he played Mr. Louis Bradfield's part in The Silver Slipper at the Lyric, and at last he and his charming wife determined to venture their luck on the music hall stage.

PRESIDED over by the genial Mr. E. W. James, who acted as referee, managing-director, and general "boss," the staff of the Ealing Hippodrome took what, it is hoped, may be the forerunner of many an annual outing on Sunday, Aug. 25. Soon after 10.30 Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope was placed in position, and as a well-loaded brake and four horses, followed by two fine motor-cars, generously loaned by Mr. Bishop, of the South Ealing Motor Works, commenced their journey a fine series of films depicting the departure was secured. Another series illustrating the arrival and the incidents of sport in the afternoon was also captured.

THE weather, in this most capricious of all summers, was magnificent, and "Old Sol" never ceased to shine on the happy party until the rôle was taken up by fair Luna herself on the return journey. Mr. C. Hayden, treasurer to the outing, worked like a veritable Trojan to ensure the success of the "beano." On Tuesday evening the films obtained by the Bioscope were placed upon the screen, and were the cause of endless amusement to an audience familiar with most of the actors in the moving pictures.

MR. CHARLES COLLETTE concludes to-night his fifth engagement at the London Pavilion, where, assisted by Miss Joan Derry, he has made a decided hit with his new sketch, Pyjamas. He commences his autumn tour on Monday at the Theatre Royal, Worcester, with Tea for Two and Hard Luck, supported by Miss Joan Derry, and returns to the London Pavilion at Christmas.

MR. EDWIN CROUESTE, the well-known jester, is expected to arrive in England from India by the P. and O. ss. Macedonia, due at Tilbury to-day or to-morrow. During his tour in the East Mr. Crouesté has received very flattering testimonials from maharajahs, governors, and commanding officers of the different provinces and military stations in India, Ceylon, and the Straits Settlements. He is arranging to open in London with a new entertainment.

MR. ROSS GILMORE, comedian, and Mr. Fred Leighton, manager of the Hippodrome, Sheerness, are the latest to join the ranks of the Terriers' Association. They were initiated on Sunday. Mr. Fred Neiman, the well-known ventriloquist, was in the chair, and performed the ceremony.

IN our paragraph last week announcing the death of Mr. Lechmere Livermore, our informant was incorrect in the description of the father of the deceased, Mr. Ernest Sheldon, as late proprietor of the Palaces, Dundee and Aberdeen, and writes to say that that gentleman is still part-proprietor of those establishments and the largest shareholder, and that they are let on lease to Messrs. Rosen and Bliss.

PARIS VARIETY GOSSIP.

THE Parisian off-season is nearly through, and once more signs of activity are noticed amongst the theatres, preparations for the autumn season having commenced. One of the most interesting events will be the revival of The Belle of New York at the Olympia. M. P. L. Flérs, who has made the adaptation, has got together a splendid cast, which will include Miles. Germain Gallois, Lucy Jousset, and Thérèse Cernay, MM. Fugère, Carlos Avril, and Leprince, not forgetting a troupe of English dancers.

THE affairs of the Isolas and Paul Ruez seem at last to have been arranged satisfactorily, and the Isolas have come back to their own. Although no public announcement has yet been made, it is thought that they will place each hall —i.e., Olympia, Folies-Bergère, and Parisiana— under a manager who will nominally appear as director, the Isolas' names not appearing. This course would be necessitated by reason of their directorship of the Gaîté. This being a subventioned theatre, its manager is not allowed to run any private enterprise.

PARISIANA opened on the 24th with a new vaudeville, La Plage d'Amour, by M. Eugène Joullot. It is full of funny complications, and is one big laugh from start to finish.

"GISKA THE GIPSY" is the title of a new ballet-pantomime to be produced by La Belle Otero at the Marigny next week.

A POPULAR revival here is An Evening in a Music Hall, which is now being played at the Marigny by Mr. T. Reed Pinaud and his clever company. Mr. Pinaud has brought over an even stronger crowd than last year, and the show is greeted with roars from the entrance of the naughty Eton boy and his Pa to the overthrow of the Terrible Turk by the Drunken Swell. All the troupe work hard, the principal factors in the success being Mr. Fred Evans in the part of the swell; Mr. Ernie Giles, jun., as the mischievous schoolboy; Mr. Pinaud as the father of the aforesaid imp; Mr. Victor Rowlands as the topical vocalist; Mr. Joe Clark as the conjurer; Miss Lena Pinaud as the saucy serio; Mr. J. Russell as the ferocious-looking wrestler; Messrs. J. Guidrey and W. Roberts as the shining lights of the Squashem Quartette; and Miss Florrie Robina as the vocalist. In Miss Robina's performance there is that little touch which proclaims the artist.

A FINE company will open at the Apollo to-night. It includes Morris Cronin, Morton and Elliott, Hymack, Billy French, Miss Ruby Helder, the Three Tamberts, Francis Wyles' Dog Circus, Roszika Schirmay, La Formarina, Odette Feria, Mlle. Miette, and Tiller's Eight Apollo Girls.

SAM ELTON opens at the Folies Marigny next month. Rastus and Banks are on the opening bill of the Alhambra, which opens on Sunday.

"THE SUNDOWNER."

Jim Otway .....MR. FRANK LISTER
Jack Effingham .....MR. FRANK JOHNSON
Victoria .....MISS CISSIE FARRELL
Jackey .....LITTLE MAY

The Sundowner proved to be a very clever and well-written tragedy in miniature. The scene is laid in the interior of a Queensland farmhouse, where Jack Effingham and his wife (Victoria) and the little boy Jack are seated en famille. In the course of conversation it leaks out that Victoria's first husband, Jim Otway, a noted bushranger who was strung up to a gum-tree by a lynching party, is rumoured to have escaped with his life. Jackey goes out to play cricket, but is warned not to get on the railway line which runs close to the house. Jackey returns, dragging with him a Sundowner, alias a tramp, whom he has found asleep in the grounds, and he is offered food and drink and shelter—and work! During the absence of his host he discovers that Victoria is his wife, and blackmails her for a £20 cheque, which Effingham had given her to cash. Heart-broken Victoria sobs, and her tears bring Jackey to the rescue. Jim Otway then learns for the first time that he is his own boy, and moved to repentance, he gets rid of the boy on some pretence, and leaves the cheque in an envelope. At this juncture, however, the rattle of the mail train is heard, just as Jackey has scrambled over the fence on to the line. Jim Otway saves the child at the cost of his own life, and the curtain falls as Jackey calls the dying man "daddy." The piece was very well acted all round, chief honours falling to Mr. Frank Lister as Jim Otway (the Sundowner) and Little May as Jackey. Miss Farrell and Mr. Johnson, however, were also excellent.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH ANNIVERSARY.

This extremely popular hall celebrated its fourth anniversary on Friday of last week, by two special performances, one at six p.m. and the other at nine p.m. The house was crowded at both shows, which is little to be wondered at, for some ninety turns were on the programme. Mr. B. G. Maclachan, who has during the past year proved himself such an exceedingly popular acting-manager, and whose kindly courtesy never fails, had a very busy evening. His onerous task was shared by Mr. Will Bennet, the Moss Empire's genial and well-known Press manager, and the success of the evening was due in no small measure to their efforts.

Before two immense audiences between sixty and seventy turns actually appeared, and the curtain was not finally rung down until nearly half-past twelve. The excellent company which did duty during the week, and which appeared at both these special performances, consisted of Kate Carney, who was in very fine form, Beatrice Willey, Fred Keeton, O'Malley and Brown, Three Sisters Sprightly, The Violas, S. J. Sheldon, Carina Sisters, the Lukushimas (excellent as ever), and the Bioscope. All the other artists who appeared were "extra."

The "bright particular star" was Harry Lauder. As soon as the audience heard the introductory bars of "I love a lassie" it roared a welcome, and the applause at the conclusion of the song was "great." The other turns were too numerous to all be mentioned, but they included Millie Lindon, who sang as charmingly as ever her little song about the dairymaid; Isabella Dillon, looking very beautiful; Hal Forde and Tom and Marie Motramo, who came from the London Pavilion; Billy English, Lalls Brooks, Clarice Mayne, Alice Pierce, with her clever imitations; Dion Wade; George Mewburn (who sang the charms of "I love a lassie" immediately after Mr. Lauder, which was an ideal way of testing his capability as a mimic), Gwennie Hasto, who dances so well; Joe Elvin, who scored enormously with his sketch, King o' the Castle; Hetty King, Winifred Hare, Ted E. Box, Kate A. Traill, Minnie Mace, the Eight Sunrays, Little Janet, Alexander, Robb Gilmore, Yankee Doodle Girls, Margaret Ashton, Julian Ross; the Sharp Bros. (from the Palace), a delightful turn; and the Two Bostons.

BILLIE BINT, the hustling evergreen, who is as well and as young as ever, has been going strong at the Hippodrome, Maidstone, this week.

MR. CLIFFORD ESSEX is again making a tour of the Isle of Wight with his pierrots, among whom is Miss Kathleen Mayer, the well-known society entertainer, who, with her humorous songs and stories, is largely contributing to the always-assured success of Mr. Essex's party.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

A CHARMING song of the ballad type, entitled "At the old cross-roads," by the gifted Edward Montagu, the author-composer of the enormously popular "Molly Mollyneux" (so successfully introduced in Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, at the Vaudeville Theatre, by Miss Billie Burke and Miss Maudi Darrell), and the famous "King and Sireland" song, will be made a feature at all the forthcoming engagements of the newly-discovered wonderful boy soprano, Master E. Frisby, who will also include in his répertoire that charming march song, "Starlight." Both the numbers are published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

THE extraordinary success of little Max Darewski on the tour he is now fulfilling naturally focuses attention on the gifted little composer's own works. These include some very striking numbers, the most noticeable being, perhaps, the "Le Revé" valse, "England's Crown" (the Coronation march composed for His Majesty's Coronation), "The Kilties," "The Royal Standard" (dedicated to, and played by, the famous Besses o' th' Barn Band), "Nelson's Victory" (descriptive march), and his latest composition, "Fantasia Impromptu," composed for, dedicated to, and accepted by, Mr. Paderewski, and for which the king of pianists gave the youthful composer such high praise. All these are published by Francis, Day, and Hunter, who have the right of issue of all Max Darewski's compositions.

AMONGST the recent acquisitions of the famous Charing Cross-road firm are Mr. George Formby's popular number, "One of the boys," written and composed by R. P. Weston, F. J. Barnes, and M. Scott; "I shan't speak to you any more," a dainty little melody from the pens of Charles Collins and Charles Ridgwell; and the number being rendered now with such complete success by Mr. Jack Pleasants, "I'll be cross, Arabella, I'll be cross," another novelty from the popular song factory of C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton.

MISS DAISY DORMER, that dainty little artist who did so much to popularise the famous "Wooden hut" song, is creating quite a furore at her provincial engagements with Mills and Scott's new song, "Has anyone seen a German band?" This number will undoubtedly be in great demand by pantomime artists, and is, in fact, already "booked" for a round dozen towns. The Star Co. have had quite a rush for copies during the past two weeks.

GEORGE LASHWOOD has been winning fresh triumphs at Douglas, Isle of Man, where the holiday folk have endorsed the opinion of Brightonians and have pronounced "Oh, the merry widow!" the smartest and most melodious tit-bit George has given them since his celebrated "Girl wanted there." The Star Co. will issue this new Mills and Scott hit immediately.

"WE all come into the world with nothing" is the title of a song the Star Co. have acquired from Chas. Collins and W. H. Wallis. This number has recently "come on" to such an extent that the fortunate writers may be quite confident they have one "cert" for the coming season. Messrs. Tennyson and Wallis, L. B. Athol, Harry Marte, Maud Esmond, and others are reaping applause and encores nightly with this big winner.

MISS LILIAN LEA has been specially engaged at a number of prominent halls to feature Mills and Scott's prettiest number, "Primrose." Artists who are looking for a really dainty song cannot do better than secure a copy from the Star Co.

MISS RACHEL LOWE has found another winner in a timely song, entitled "Take me down to Blackpool," which, by a coincidence, was first produced at that celebrated Lancashire seaside resort. It was an immediate hit.

MR. DAVE CARTER, a phenomenal success as a singer of popular ballads at the Canterbury, finishes next week with a four-weeks' engagement at that house. In these days of short engagements this constitutes a record. Mr. Carter has been deputising at the Oxford during the current week, and although he was last turn in a splendid programme, his masterly rendition of "Love me and the world is mine" enthused the audience and kept them in their seats until the finish of his turn.

MISS LIL HAWTHORNE is delighting the visitors to the Stoll suburban houses with her new number "Bye-bye, my sailor boy, Jack Tar." The incidental effects used in the song add much to its success.

MISS LOLA HOLMAN is making a big success with the song "Love me and the world is mine," another Witmark song success.

MESSRS. JOHN P. HARRINGTON and JAS. W. TATE have this week supplied Miss Vesta Victoria with yet two more songs, which she will specially feature in America when she opens in that country shortly. Miss Victoria's American répertoire will almost exclusively be supplied by these prolific authors and composers, as she already has four other numbers of theirs in study. The titles of the two latest are "Temptation" and "Has anybody seen my William Brown?" both being eminently suited to Miss Victoria's distinctive style.

MISS GLADYS MAVIUS, so long associated with the success of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's big winner, "Rosie is waiting," has this week "made good" with another publication issued by the same up-to-date firm, viz., "Any old place where the sun shines," the chorus of which has been sung to the echo by enraptured audiences at all her engagements, and the song bids fair to eclipse even the success of its famous predecessor. The new song is written by Paul Paulton and composed by Arthur Van Dixie.

MISS CARLOTTA LEVEY will produce on Monday Messrs. Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule's march song, "I'm going to try my luck in London." The same author and composer will be vocally represented by yet another artist in the person of Mr. Dave Carter, who on the same night will sing for the first time their charming song of sentiment, entitled "Sweet Bells of Shandon." Both numbers are published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. in their "Sixpenny Successes."

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company have this week made an important purchase in the shape of Mr. George D'Albert's latest "winner." "The ring on the telephone," written and composed by Herbert Rule. Good judges predict that this song will be in every pantomime. The Monte Carlists also publish two other songs which Mr. George D'Albert is featuring, to wit, "Isn't it lovely to be in love?" and "Canoodle in my canoe," of both of which great things are also expected. These latter are by Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule.

MR. HARRY MARLOW is scoring a signal success, on tour, in the sketch, entitled Other People's Babies, with the song written and composed by himself, "Don't start to worry if the sun don't shine," and the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. have this song (which will also shortly be featured by Miss Florrie Gallimore) in the press for early production. The Berners-street firm are also issuing another song, the words and music of which are by Mr. Marlow, entitled "Bayon," the words of which are wedded to an irresistible melody.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE OXFORD.

A new comer to the Oxford is Miss Clara Alexander, the American raconteuse, who, in a simple, natural way that "gets there all the time," tells coon stories, and sings a lilt concerning an old nigger and his mule. Miss Alexander sets the seal upon her success by a capital recitation describing a horse race in the States, and applause rules the house when she finishes. An early arrival among the contingent of comedians is Mr. Nat Clifford, termed the nimble one, whose eccentric movements are laughable; Mr. Will Van Allen, the musical tramp, accentuates his comedy by rags and gags; and Mr. Tom Woottwell's dream song is as funny an item as he has had for some time, and that it is doing him good service becomes apparent during his short but most successful sojourn behind the Oxford footlights. Mr. Wilkie Bard works the customary amusing business with "Let me sing," and also exploits a clever absurdity in "You, you, you." There is plenty of fun in this, and Oxford audiences intensely enjoy the education given in chorus singing. Mr. Fred Earle has not yet found another "Seaweed," but his quaint and original style does much for a couple of songs that cause considerable amusement. Mr. Dan Crawley's experience is of the pleasantest, as his popular items find genuine appreciation in all parts of the house.

The chief comedian of the programme, however, is Mr. Joe Elvin, who is producing at the Oxford King o' the Castle, recently noticed by us when it was given for the first time at a popular house on the other side of the water. Mr. Elvin appears as the lamblike and perfunctory husband of a fashionable lady, who deplores an ill-assorted union. Her brother, who is a doctor, gives the invertebrate one an elixir that endows him seemingly with a giant's strength and restless energy; and the way "the King o' the Castle" turns on his detractors supplies a droll dénouement to a really funny sketch. Mr. Elvin, in a suit several sizes too large for him, keeps the house in roars, and receives adequate support from a good company whose names are given.

Duncan and Godfrey are among the best delineators of coster life and manners that we know, and the success of Me and 'Er and the Baby is both conspicuous and well deserved. Paul Cinquevalli is a delight to watch and Winifred Hare a delight to hear. Little Tich has no greater stronghold than the Oxford, and cheers break out as soon as his number twinkles at the side of the stage. He is admirably fitted with his present répertoire. Mr. Dave Carter has been deputising most successfully during the week. Other names announced on the bill are Miss Annie Purcell; Kelly, Gillette, and Bart, with their acrobatics and fun in a billiard-saloon; Miss Kate Traill, with songs at the piano; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, with a series of attractive films.

THE CANTERBURY.

The front rank of the profession is numerously represented this week at the Canterbury, where Mr. Fred Miller offers entertainment of the highest class. In The King of the Castle Mr. Joe Elvin has a part in which his talent for character delineation is more than ever conspicuous, and his diverting performance as the flabby, invertebrate householder, who gains a temporary infusion of energy by means of a medicated liquid, arouses screams of laughter, and serves to renew the popularity which the famous comedian has so long enjoyed. A star of surpassing magnitude is also found in Mr. Harry Lauder, the incomparable Scotch comedian, who brings his healthy humour from the Caledonian heights to dissipate the dullness of our metropolis, his joviality and drollery in "Rob Roy Mackintosh," and in "We parted on the shore," keeping the large house in uncontrollable laughter. It is only Mr. Lauder who could pass without a pause from comedy to sentiment, and the sight of the ancient mariner who has just been moving the audience to mirth, suddenly breaking forth in a rich baritone in "Rocked in the cradle of the deep," so far from upsetting the gravity of his hearers, wins their reverent attention. Mr. Lauder is induced to give still another song, and delights all with "I love a lassie," in which the assistance of a comely maiden in tartan plaid is invaluable.

The imposing array of favourites is swelled by Mr. Tom Leamore, who, as an attenuated individual in voluminous evening dress sings a nonsensical ballad, every line of which evokes a titter. Still greater hilarity is provoked by his song of "Rufus," which is embellished by a dance, in which the oddest antics imaginable are indulged in, to the great amusement of the audience, who recall the comedian repeatedly. Mr. Will Evans comes in for his customary welcome, and by his effervescent drollery soon proves his ability to sustain a reputation that has lasted over long years. A special feature is being made of a "Limerick" competition, for which the management offer liberal prizes, and Mr. Evans aids the competitors by submitting several specimens of his own, to which the last lines are supplied by members of the audience.

Eccentricity is elaborated to its broadest limits by Mr. Nat Clifford, who sings of the "Grand Hotel"; and Mr. Dan Crawley furthers the fun of the evening by means of a rollicking refrain and a piquant impersonation of an elderly but effusive female. Admiration is gained by Miss Minnie Mace, who is daintily demure in a song with the refrain, "It's you I want." Miss Mace further captivates the audience by the charm of her appearance in her song about "Mr. Dickens and the chickens," added to which is a dance of exceeding grace and neatness. Miss Ethel Bourne reveals some deep notes in her singing of Sullivan's "Lost Chord," and also makes an effective appeal with a love ballad, which is charmingly rendered. A variety of items is presented by Mr. Randolph King, who in the course of his act does a number of lightning changes, his imitations including a French ventriloquist, with remarkable "effects," a coster, and a miser, in which a particularly realistic piece of acting, that gains many cheers, is submitted. Mr. Leo Stormont now devotes his fine baritone to the singing of songs, the incidents of which are pictorially represented on a sheet, and gains great favour. Miss Mayme Cannon, besides doing tricks at the piano, renders in vivacious style "I'll tell Tilly at the telephone"; Mr. Dave Carter, the "Irish tenor," with a number of songs, is very popular; the Seven Wulfrunas are successful in their acrobatic comedy scena, Fun in a Café; and Miss May Henderson, the dusky queen of comedy; Mr. Ambrose Thorne, comedian; and Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope are contributory forces in a strong bill.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

Unstinted support is being given at the South London to Mr. William Payne, whose courtesy and businesslike abilities keep the old-established house high up in popularity. Appreciative audiences are filling the hall this week, and grow very merry over the various items of the programme. The humour of the evening has been largely added to by Mr. Tom Leamore, who on the occasion of our visit appeared in place of another turn, which had been doing duty earlier in the week. Mr. Leamore came on unannounced, but he was immediately recognised and warmly cheered. It is not often that the hit of the evening is made by a deputy, but Mr. Leamore can properly claim to have achieved such a result, and had to give three of his whimsical creations before being allowed to retire. The merriment of the audience is ministered to by Miss Florence St. John in the sketch Quits. Miss St. John plays brightly and with no small sense of humour as the deceived but forgiving wife, and revives memories of her former brilliant triumphs in comic opera by the singing of "Molly Molyneux," the clever song by Mr. Edward Montagu, which has such a lilting refrain. Able support in the sketch is furnished by Mr. William Sauter and Mr. H. V. Surrey, both comedy actors of ability.

A profoundly pathetic effect is created by Mr. John Henderson and company in the sketch Under the Maple Leaf. Mr. Henderson acts with dignity and impressiveness as the "old soldier," and the grief of the white-haired father who has strangled his reprobate son in order to preserve him from the gallows is very affecting. Miss Millie Henderson gives a clever sketch of the young Canadian girl, and the episode wins warm applause. The Great Northern Troupe create their customary effect with their series of Scotch and Irish dances, in the course of which some expert stepping is witnessed. The Highland fling is prettily presented by a trio of Caledonian lasses, and an Irish jig indulged in by the two clever "boys" finds immediate favour. Later the troupe take part in an Irish reel, to which a novel effect is lent by the appearance of a quaint old couple who join with unlimited energy in the revels.

A comely presence and tuneful voice enable Miss Daisy Stratton to gain the affections of the audience, who listen with joy to her singing as a gipsy maiden who is able to execute a dance of great neatness and skill. Mooney and Holbein are responsible for a varied turn in which dancing figures prominently. The comedian of the pair does some particularly difficult steps in the course of a series of dances to the accompaniment by the lady, who plays the concertina and mandoline and sings a song in which allusions are made to the late popular artists Sims Reeves, Charles Godfrey, and Dan Leno. The turn in which patter is also smartly introduced gains great applause. Pictures of a Nurses' Strike are divertingly presented on Ruffell's Bioscope; and Clemart, ventriloquist; Chas. Faning, comedian; and Ted Saunders, mimic, are contributors to an attractive programme.

THE EUSTON.

There is joy among the frequenters of the Euston Palace when the bill is brightened by the unrestrained humour of Mr. Joe Elvin, the Cockney comedian, who has an extensive and peculiar knowledge of the argot of the racing man or the coster, and exploits in his own inimitable way a number of characters which possess a near kinship in their ways on the stage. He is seen at the fine house near the London termini in his latest success, Trespassers, Beware. This concerns the adventures of an amateur oarsman who has lost his rudder, and lands on a riverside terra incognita, where a firm of cinematographists are arranging a series of faked pictures of the murder by Hindoos of a soldier on the banks of the Ganges. When we say that the only Joe dons the regimentals of a swaddy, the fun of the imbroglio may be guessed, and laughter holding both its sides best describes the attitude of audiences twice nightly. Mr. Elvin exhibits all those excellent qualities as a comedian which make him a persona grata to the populace, and his popularity at the Euston is immense. He is well supported by an excellent company.

Miss Winifred Hare, who has charmed us on the comedy opera and musical comedy stage by her clever impersonations of heroines and on the pantomime boards by her dashing heroes, is admirably suited with a fine march song, entitled "Cheer up, Mary." We are not surprised to hear that Mary looks sweeter with the "lovelight in her eye" or that she gives all the necessary encouragement to her lover, who spoons with her with the man in the moon looking on. Miss Hare's singing brings her into complete harmony with the chorus singers aloft, who lift up their voices in a sweet refrain and are quite happy.

Miss Clarice Mayne, who has rapidly reached the position of star, cleverly impersonates a widow who desires another attachment. It is her mimicry, however, which is so popular. She is especially good in one of Miss Connie Ediss's numbers, and exactly realises the mannerisms of Miss Vesta Tilley in "Following in father's footsteps."

Mr. Alec Kendal is exuberant in his patter, and he has a confidential method with his audiences which makes him very popular. Miss Gladys Mavius does exceedingly well in chorus songs; Victor Newman's character impersonations are appreciated; Mr. Bert Brantford possesses the family ability that has brought fame to a near relative; and Vasey and Ramsey, in Jerks the Butler, have a laugh-raising scena that completely answers its purpose. Nothing is better in the bill than Mr. Harry Tate's new version of Motoring, which contains all the fun of the original with some extra whimsical business. Ruffell's Bioscope presents a series of fine pictures of the King's visit to the Dreadnought. Mr Henri Gros is now the managing-director of this house, and the interests of the company are well looked after by Mr. Fred M'Avoy. Mr. Victor Opferman directs a capable orchestra.

THE BRITANNIA.

The programme submitted this week is well up to the standard of excellence that the management of this well-conducted hall endeavour to maintain. The most important item, and one that is evidently to the taste of the audience, is the sketch That Brute Simmonds, adapted by Messrs. Arthur Morrison and H. C. Sargeant from those realistic tales, "Stories of Mean Streets." The company engaged by Mr. F. W. Purcell is an excellent one. The rôle of the brow-beaten and hen-pecked husband, Thomas Simmonds, is most capably undertaken by Mr. Herbert Russell, and could hardly be in better hands, and the audience indulge in hearty laughter at his misfortunes. Mr. George Elliston as Bob Ford is a very fine character-study of the supposed dead husband, and the ingenious devices by which these two endeavour to force the lady upon each other are very amusing. We must congratulate Miss Ethel Stalman upon a very fine performance of the part of Mrs. Simmonds. This lady deserves great praise for her natural impersonation of a very difficult character. The sketch is well mounted, a special scene having been painted by Walter Hann. Capt. Hamilton, V.C., is a well-produced item, capitally played by Whimsical Walker as the soft-hearted burglar, and a very clever little girl, whose name is not given, but who is to be commended for her natural acting and the clear manner in which she delivers her lines. Messrs. Albert and Edmunds and their troupe are seen in one of their well-known knockabout sketches, entitled Neighbours, which gives them numerous opportunities of indulging in the amusing tumbling for which they are so well famed. The methods which the cockney neighbours use to annoy their more aristocratic ones are most mirth-provoking, and keep the audience in a very good humour. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux show some very fine pictures on the screen, notably Those Heavenly Twins, Living Statuary, and The Unskilful Skater. The well-conducted orchestra render some lively interludes during the evening. The courteous acting-manager, Mr. J. McCarthy, and his subordinates assiduously attend to the comfort of their patrons.

QUITE an event is the renewal of the old association between Edgar Bateman, the Cockney laureate, and Gus Elen, the ideal coster. This has taken the form of a new number, "The coster's pony," which is so happily wedded to a lilting melody by the prolific Henry E. Pether that Mr. Elen intends making a distinct feature of this in America.

MESSRS. STAFFORDS, LTD., have just produced a magnificent new six-sheet poster, in full colours, of the fine, big head-portrait of Mlle. Ghita Corri that attracted so much attention when it originally appeared with this artist's biography in our columns a few months ago. Since then it has been sold in thousands by the Rotary Co. as a fascinating postcard in their "Celebrated Singers" series.

VESTA TILLEY'S FAREWELL TO HER MANX AUDIENCES.

The scene was an odd mixture of pathos and comedy when Vesta Tilley, the "idol of two hemispheres," closed her engagement with The Palace and Derby Castle Company by making her final appearance at The Palace on Saturday night. Notwithstanding the fact that many thousands of visitors had left the Island during the day (for Saturday is the great "going home" day), fully five thousand persons gathered in the pavilion to hear the famous variety artist. She was in splendid form, and, notwithstanding the pain she too evidently felt in separating herself from her enthusiastic admirers, she sang no fewer than five songs—"When the right girl comes along," "Jolly good luck to the lass that loves a soldier," "The seaside smile," "Following in father's footsteps," and the evergreen "Algie." After the third song the conductor of the orchestra, Mr. Harry Wood, handed Miss Tilley two magnificent floral offerings, one a token of regard from the directors of the company, and the other from a number of children in Castle Mona Hotel (where Miss Tilley had been staying), to whose happiness and pleasure she had, during her sojourn, contributed in various kindly ways. The young people had attached a written inscription to the bouquet, and had all signed it, expressing their appreciation of the "idol's" kindness; and we venture to say that Vesta Tilley will prize this children's testimony to her popularity as amongst her most valued treasures. When she had retired from the stage, after her fifth song, there were cries of "Speech! speech!"

After the cheers which marked her reappearance on the stage had subsided, Vesta Tilley said: I feel I cannot go away from you without saying how grateful I am to you for your many kindnesses and for the magnificent reception you have accorded to me. I can scarcely find words to express to you how great a pleasure it is to me to come to this beautiful island, where I always meet with such troops of kind friends and so many warm admirers. I am proud if I have been able to contribute to your enjoyment, and I shall ever feel grateful to you for your appreciation of my efforts.

This little speech, gracefully delivered, was received with great enthusiasm, and hundreds pressed forward to shake hands with their favourite. Some of her more intimate friends made their way to her room in The Palace, and her eyes betrayed the emotion she felt at the termination of her visit to Manxland. As she left The Palace she was cheered by hundreds of admirers, who had waited at the gates to bid her a hearty farewell. It is evident that Miss Vesta Tilley's popularity was never greater than it is at the present time. And no wonder, for she is a consummate artist, every character she personates in her songs being a study true to the life.

She left the island in the Empress Queen, which sailed from Douglas at seven o'clock yesterday (Sunday) morning for Liverpool, whence she proceeded on her motor-car for London.—I.O.M. Times.

THE MIDDLESEX.

For a really funny musical act—in which, of course, there is more fun than music—one can heartily commend Pipple from Poppleton, a sketch which is played in the liveliest possible fashion by Mr. Fred Cullane and company. The trifle is set in a riverside scene. Two young ladies, with their gallant punting escort, land, and commence to dance and sing, when they are suddenly interrupted by the eccentric Mr. Pipple, of Poppleton, who rushes into their midst with a fierce bulldog holding on to his trousers. He quickly makes himself familiar with everyone—too familiar, in fact, and one of the girls promptly takes him to task with the gloves. The comic boxing contest causes intense merriment, Mr. Cullane being the life and soul of the sketch. He receives able support from three members of his company. A juvenile comedienne who should be heard of a good deal in the future is Miss Jennie Alexander. This little girl is the possessor of a pretty voice and some ability as an actress. She gives imitations of several well-known artists. Thus, we get a capital idea of how Miss Vesta Tilley sings "Following in father's footsteps," and of how Miss Vesta Victoria and Miss Victoria Monks render some of their favourite numbers. The Sisters Rayman are heard and seen to advantage as duettists and dancers; and Vendome and Chase, the well-known society entertainers, submit a particularly attractive turn. The Donnas Trio cause the spectators to marvel at the daring and skilfulness exhibited in their sensational balancing trapeze act; and Dot Joan is an accomplished and most engaging little comedienne. A pleasing demonstration of national dances is furnished by Mlle. Viviana, who thoroughly understands the art of gracefully tripping the "light fantastic." A couple of comedians who are highly successful in the mirth-provoking line are the Brothers Hayes. They have a smart vocal number in "There's a place," and their sand-dancing is of the neatest and briskest order. The Sisters Melba distinguish themselves as harmonising vocalists, their song, "Is there any room in Heaven," being loudly encored. Miss May Clifton and company appear in a pretty and picturesque Japanese scena, which forms one of the most agreeable features of the programme. Miss Clifton sings in a tuneful and expressive manner, and her rendering of "Sweet Nightingale" and "Mimosa San" quite enchants her hearers. The Gallimore Trio give a hugely enjoyable comedy act; and Mr. Bert Brantford still maintains his reputation as one of the funniest comedians of the day. In a notice of this kind one could not withhold praise from Mr. Brent Hayes, who treats us to a real musical treat with the aid of his banjo. His performance of "The World's March" and "In the shade of the old apple tree" is extremely commendable from a point of view of technique and tone. John Grün Marx, the famous strong man, performs a series of astonishing feats in the direction of weight-lifting, his coup de grâce being the lifting of twenty-five men at one time. Mr. Harry Taft, who is immensely popular at the Middlesex, whistles merrily, sings blithely, and patters jovially. Mr. Sydney Mason and Miss Theresa Moore, and their company, interpret the dramatic episode, The Crimson Blind. Miss Moore as an adventuress and Mr. Mason as a maniac act in strikingly realistic fashion; and they receive able support from Messrs. A. E. Mayne, Pat O'Hart, Syd Leslie, and Frederick Marsden. Three excellent films are exhibited by the new Bioscope.

MR. FRANK COYLE, with his usual good luck, has just secured another big number from the pen of Mr. Aylmer Lee, entitled "The only man in the world," which bids fair to outshine all other successes that Mr. Coyle has sung. It will be an excellent song for principal boys in pantomime.

THE Twin Sisters Anderson have found in "Bill Simmons, or I've got to dance till the band gets through," an excellent vehicle for their smart dancing. The amount of comedy infused into the song by these clever artists finds great favour.

MAURICE SCOTT, the well-known composer, has accepted an appointment in Messrs. B. Feldman and Co.'s professional department. Variety and pantomime artists on the look-out for real winners should write or call on Mr. Scott at the above firm, where they will be sure to meet with their requirements.

Pudsey Feast.

For this capital Yorkshire fair a big aggregation of shows, machines, and fairground novelties foregathered. The big cinematograph shows were Tuby and Sons', Relph and Pedley's, and Farrar and Tyler's. The minor concerns were the freak menageries of Messrs. Westray and Son and Traynor. In the list of machine novelties were Ben Howden and Son's motor-cars and juvenile motors, Relph and Pedley's motor set, P. Collins and Son's racing cockerels, Corrigan and Son's helter-skelter and steam swings, Lieske's big wheel, Waddington's steam yachts, and juvenile motors and ponies by Messrs. Seed and Waugh. The minor varieties, shooters, &c., were provided by Messrs. Radcliffe, Seed, Ackroyd, Rhodes, Roche, Cavannagh, Fisher, Turner, Illingworth, Jacques, Morley, Corrigan, and others.

Bingley Feast.

Here were Chipperfield's menageries, Farrar and Tyler's cinematograph, Randall Williams' (Monte Bros.) cinematograph, and side-shows by C. Relph and Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. H. Waddington's motor-cars and racing chanticleers, Walter Show's steam swings, and Winchester ranges and shooting galleries by hompson, Barker, Jameson, and Blake. The other fun-providers were Cookshaw, Holdsworth, Blake, Powell, Thompson, and others.

Hooley Hill Wakes.

Under the banner of James Hibbert and Sons, this wakes was well catered for. The Stockport firm had the following novelties on exhibition:—The galloping horses, the racing birds, and big boats. Shuttleworth provided overboats, gem horses, and juvenile motors. Winchester ranges, bottle batteries, varieties, and throwing games were by Messrs. Hughes, Rowley, Mulhearne, Sedgwick, Colbert, Griffin, Cottam, and other caterers.

Great Harwood Wakes.

The principal caterers were the local firms of Haworth, Starkie, McCluskie, Smith, Gallagher, Ingham, Stanley, and Taylor.

Hartlepool.

Here were Priest's two capital shows, the performing seals and the freak marvel, the armless lady artist, and varieties by Messrs. Bates, Kitson, and Loughbury.

On the Midland Round.

Studley, Sept. 28; Alvechurch, Oct. 2; Evesham, Oct. 4, King's Norton, Oct. 7; Alcester, Oct. 8; Stratford-on-Avon, Oct. 12 and 25; Henley-in-Arden, Oct. 11.

Stifford's Bridge.

Redditch.

Ediscope and Barnum's living pictures have been at the Public Hall. Showmen and others will find a good stand in the centre of the town of Redditch, viz., the Royal Hotel yard.

Astwood Bank.

Hessey's amusements have been on a return visit with park swings, shooting saloons, striker, cokernut sheets, stalls, &c. A circus would do well here.

Astwood Bank great temperance festival was maintained by Mr. Thomas Scott's three-a-breast jumping horses, bottle battery, aerial swings, striker, cokernut gardens, shooting ranges, &c.; W. Brewer with ring-boards, china bazaars, and walking-stick emporiums; and Ben Embling's fancy stalls. No circus has visited this town this season.

Pershore.

At Pershore Flower Show were Scott's gallopers from Worcester, also swing-boats, shooting saloons cokernut sheets, &c.

Studley.

Studley statute fair will be held on Saturday, Sept. 28. Studley is three miles from Redditch and for miles from Alcester.

The Evergreen Barnet Fair.

Again the enterprising paragraphist has been sounding alarm over the coming death (so these pessimists say) of dear old Barnet Fair. Fortunately the showman is too busy a man to anticipate evil. He has a ready wit to deal with emergencies, and to maintain his business privileges as danger really arises. There are people who imagine that the local authorities, or a noisy group of busybodies, can quite easily abolish a fair. They have only to cry aloud, and the thing they clamour for will be granted. The showman knows better. He knows that the process of abolishing a fair is a long and tedious business, and much more difficult than the unlearned think. So he heeds not the alarming rumours, but takes his show, as usual, fixes up, and behold you, the fair is alive and kicking, and not at all in the throes of dissolution. So will it be with Barnet Fair, 1907. London may go out in its usual crowds; nothing unusual will happen. Next year, about this time, the usual murmurings will be heard. The shows will arrive again, and the fair will be held.

Hillkirk-street Wakes.

The suburb of Manchester known as Beswick kept its annual carnival wakes last week. Scott and Sagar's premier show, the Palace of Delight, with up-to-date animated pictures, Hodgini's circus, Mander's star menagerie, J. Collins's steam yachts, T. Hurst's racing birds, Hibbert and Son's mountain ponies, Wm. Davies's four-abreast galloping horses, George Cornwell, R. Deeks, W. Mercer, and Messrs. Smith, Thwaites, and Cullis were among the crowd of minor amusement caterers.

Brixham Regatta.

From Westward Ho! we have welcome news of the fair at Brixham. Under the expert direction of the well-known Messrs. W. C. and S. Hancock, it was an assured success from start to finish. The Plymouth firm exhibited their superb electric coliseum of animated pictures and two big sets of roundabouts, the motor-cars, and the four-a-breast galloping horses. Prince and Princess Samonda, in their occult demonstration and telepathic mystifications, were, as usual, a big draw. John Laurence and Sons' marionette theatre—one of the most delightful bijou theatres travelling—had a constant stream of eager patrons. John Jones, the West of England variety theatre and living picture exhibitor, delighted crowded audiences and well maintained his hard-won reputation. Prof. Alf. Wright's school of boxers gave an all-round British show. The other machines were Newman's lighthouse (the slippery slope), Ford's juvenile horses, Chapman's big boats and swings, and park swings by Messrs. Hurrell and Smith. Rifle saloons, coker, and throwing games by the Jones Family, the Oldridges, the Whitelegges Family, and Messrs. Locke, Ford, and Chapman.

The White City.

This is the fourteenth week of this city of pleasure, and there has scarcely been a full day's sunshine until now, notwithstanding that the average attendances for the first twelve weeks has been 6,500, and during the last two weeks have shown a considerable increase.

The great attraction this week is the first appearance in Europe of Zipho, the man with a strong jaw, who hangs by his teeth, and slides about 700ft. along a steel wire from a height of about 100ft. over the large lake, into which he drops.

Music is provided by the band of H.M. 3rd Batt. 60th King's Royal Rifles (of whom the Prince of Wales is Colonel-in-Chief), conductor, Mr. James Slattery.

Gilleno's American Circus draws well, and among the new-comers are Mlle. Onra on the wire and the Clown Gilleno, with his comicalities.

One of the most popular rides is the Figure Eight, an improvement on the switchback, the cars on which occupy about 1¼ minutes in describing the figure eight three times. This is almost continuously going all afternoon and evening, and this week it was stated that there was a complaint from the Deaf and Dumb School on that side of the grounds that the noise keeps the teachers and servants from sleeping before 11 p.m Rather comical!

Aylesbury.

Mr. William Taylor has just visited the town with his beautiful Coliseum of varieties. The orchestraphone, which is illuminated with 4,000 coloured changeable electric lights, is the finest that has yet paid a visit to the district, and is the topic of conversation. The vast living caravan also attracted the greatest interest, which is a "perfect palace on wheels." On his next visit Mr. Taylor has promised to devote an entertainment to the Royal Bucks Hospital.

The Fun City, Olympia.

The enormous success of the first Fun City has led the proprietors (The International Fairs, Ltd.) to scour the world of shows for new and startling novelties. These will be seen in all their freshness on Christmas Eve.

Many of the proved successes of the first venture, such as Hale's tours of the world, Sedgwick's grand menagerie, P. Collins's superb machines, Biddell's cinematograph theatre, will be again seen. The new enterprises will include P. Collins's magnificent coliseum of animated and vocal photography, the premier living pictures of the world. Mr. Collins will also add to his list of machines a helter-skelter tower, and several new roundabouts.

American and Continental Shows.

The Assouan Village (by permission of the French Colonial Department) will be a rare demonstration of tribal life and ethnology—the village commune complete—seventy villagers, headed by their chieftain and his family. With them will be found the medicine man, the executioner, and the village craftsman at work. "The human roulette board" (a startling show); a capital Continental circus; a Lilliputian troupe, fifty in number; the Maynes, the Bolesworths, the Bonds, the Peters, the Kingstons, and other well-known metropolitan show people will be found amongst the variety providers and the funsmiths at the next Fun City, Olympia.

TYPICAL MIDLAND WAKES.

Bloxwich Wakes has this year been unique in more senses than one—due to two special influences: fine weather and the limitless enterprise of Mr. P. Collins. On Saturday there was a great crowd on the wakes ground; on Sunday there was a large attendance to hear a sacred concert on the famous mechanical organ of Mr. Collins; it is computed that quite 30,000 paid for admission to the ground on Monday; there was another large concourse on Tuesday; and on Wednesday, when the admission coppers and the proceeds of some of the entertainments were generously set apart by Mr. Collins for the benefit of the Walsall and District Hospital, yet another large muster was seen on the wakes ground.

Probably the greatest attraction at the wakes has been Mr. Collins's monster mechanical organ, costing no less a sum than £2000, which forms a beautiful frontage to a first-rate cinematograph show. It is reputed to be the largest of its kind ever built; it certainly is an extremely large one, which can be gathered from the fact that there are over 1200 instruments in it. At different intervals the organ has been illuminated by hundreds of vari-coloured electric lamps, which continually change in tint, forming different designs at each change, and, together with the rich gold and white frontage to the show, it is an artistic sight, altogether removed from what one is accustomed to meet on a fair ground. It is elaborate in the extreme, and the music it sends forth is exceedingly fine.

The Colonial Prodigies.

Another special feature has been the abnormally developed Westwood children, born in New Zealand to Wednesbury parents; the "Helter-Skelter" of Mr. Collins has also been an innovation to the majority of visitors, and a source of much merriment without any danger to limb; whilst the improvised motor-cars have also commanded much attention and "business."

P. Collins's Generous Gift.

The benefit for the Walsall and District Hospital on Wednesday yielded the handsome sum of £63 16s. 8d.—a contribution that will be exceedingly welcome in view of the increasing expenditure which the enlargements of the hospital have necessitated. Mr. W. D. Forsyth, chairman of the funds committee of the hospital, Mr. R. E. Ledbury (hon. sec.), Mr. F. Eyre, and Mr. Harold Wigg (co-secretary of the hospital) assisted in the arrangements along with Messrs. Jeffries and Humphries on behalf of Mr. Collins; and the committee of the hospital have gratefully acknowledged the receipt of the £63 16s. 8d. What is still more important, we learn that Mr. Pat Collins will in all probability make this benefit an annual one

Tramway Receipts.

The receipts on the Bloxwich section of the Corporation Tramways during the wakes afford some indication of the increased number who attended. From Saturday to Wednesday inclusive, this wakes, the amount was £228 13s. 8d., as against £155 7s. 6d. last year. The following are the figures as to passengers on the section for the past two wakes:—

Saturday	8,257	7,188
Sunday	3,304	3,534
Monday	10,625	7,042
Tuesday	7,022	4,619
Wednesday	6,202	2,884
	35,410	25,267

The above figures prove that showmen are not the only persons who benefit by wakes and fairs, but that hospitals, railways, and corporations tramways get their fair share of it.

Given fine weather, the Darlaston Wakes (advertised in another column), this week-end, promises to be as great a success as the one at Bloxwich. Though wakes and fairs by no means appeal to everyone, the enterprise and grit of Mr. Collins has won for him the admiration of a large section of the public; and it is something to be able to say that Walsall is the headquarters of probably the first showman in the land to-day.

DEATH OF MRS. BEN STODDART OF THE EASTBOURNE MINSTRELS.

Universal sympathy, we feel sure, will go out to Mr. and Miss Stoddart at the sad bereavement they are now suffering. Married twenty-three years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Stoddart have spent all the years of their happy wedded life on the variety stage. Twenty-one years of that time each season has seen them with their celebrated minstrels on the beach at Eastbourne. Mrs. Stoddart has been in failing health for some time past, and succumbed to heart failure on Aug. 20 at their home in Eastbourne. The funeral took place amid many tokens of local sympathy and esteem at the Langley Cemetery on Thursday, Aug. 22. Mrs. Stoddart was the daughter of the late Dr. Tipple, of Baldock, Herts. She was a vocalist and artist of considerable distinction in the profession. She made it her own when she married her husband. The Stoddarts have maintained an unbroken run of twenty-one years as the Eastbourne Minstrels.

Birstall Feast, Leeds.

Here, to help the good people of the village to keep the feast were Crighton's cinématograph theatre, Wm. Murphy's new show, Blakey's dime museum, Goldthorpe Marshall's motors, Harniers's ostriches, William's tunnel railway, Burgin's steam swings, and manual swings by Riley, Proctor, and Cooper, gem motors and horses by Johnson, Hood, and Thomas; rifle saloons, bottle and egg batteries, football games, cokers, and sheets, by Messrs. Holdsworth, Waring, Proctor, Guthrie, Holt, Burgin, Blackburn, J. Moore, Baines, R. Houldsworth, and others.

Long Eaton Feast.

Holland's cinématograph theatre was the big show at this Derbyshire fair. Kitson's school of boxers and Bray's novelty booth completed the show list. The machines were those of the local caterers, Martin and Cox; the shooters and varieties were by Messrs. Robinson, Saunt, Chapman, West, and Martin.

Important Meeting at Oldham.

All members of the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union are requested to take notice of the urgent summons to attend the meeting at Oldham Wakes. See our advertisement columns for particulars.

The original Dahomey Warriors, headed by Princess Fassic, daughter of the late King of Dahomey, have been a tremendous draw to the Rhyl summer attractions, the World's Fair, Palace Theatre, being crowded at every performance. Beah Kindah, the fire king, has caused quite a furore. Mr. Charles Bayley, their energetic manager, gives a nice introduction.

The annual fête and gala organised for the benefit of the Llanelly Hospital was held on Friday and Saturday at Stradey Park. There was an enormous attendance on Saturday. During the proceedings Mr. Henry Studt, who had organised the fête, as he has annually done for some years past, was entertained to luncheon. The health of Mr. Studt was cordially drunk, several speakers paying glowing tributes to his generous services on behalf of the institution

ATTACK ON THE SHOWS AT BARNET FAIR.

BARNET FAIR.

Sir,—The showmen are anxious to maintain their "rights." Most of us would consider the case of these gentlemen to be more justifiable if they provided a cleaner class of entertainment. The "plays" are most degrading and demoralising, and would not be permitted in a permanent building. The rabble that can appreciate such "performances" is the dread of all respectable residents, many of whom go from home during the fair, while others who happen to possess an orchard naturally expect the fruit to disappear before the close of the carnival. The three-half-crown trick and other illegal frauds were freely practised last year, unmolested by the police. As once a resident, and still an annual visitor to the fair, I believe I am voicing the minds of many when I express a desire that this feast of Bacchus may soon be wiped off the almanac.—Yours, &c.,

Aug. 28, 1907. REFINER'S FIRE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY NEWS."

Sir,—Your correspondent, "Refiner's Fire," has all the approved methods of the anonymous critic. He has the "vasty vague" manner. Will he kindly oblige the showmen by being a bit more explicit? I was at Barnet Fair last year, and I saw most of the shows. I join issue with him, and for honesty's sake demand a plain statement. Which show was it where the "play" was degrading and demoralising? Was it the magnificent cinematograph theatre of Thurston and Sons? Was it Biddall's similar show? Was it Hastings and Whayman's theatre of varieties? Was it Chittock's show? Was "the evil thing" found at the entertainments provided by Messrs. Gray, Barker, and Thurston, or Smith and Whittle? Please, "Mr. Refiner," name, name! I speak from inside knowledge of showmen and show-life, and I deny with all the vigour at my command the "vasty vague" allegations of "Refiner's Fire." May I also point out that just the same law—no more, no less—controls exhibitions that move from fair to fair as governs permanent theatres or music halls? Showmen are, in all respects, just under the law as much as "Refiner's Fire." It is altogether (apart from the question of morals) their best business to provide "clean" shows. They have to come again and appeal to the same public year by year. When will men of the type of "Mr. Refiner's Fire" use a little ordinary sense, and perhaps a grain of kindly tolerant charity, towards the amusements of "the other fellow"?—Yours faithfully,

T. HORNE,
Chaplain to the Showmen's Guild.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

On Monday, Aug. 26, was Produced a New Sketch, By Alicia Ramsey and Rudolph de Cordova, entitled

"THE PRICE OF A HAT."

Charles Hammond ..... Mr. John Richter
Alice Hammond ..... Miss E. N. O'Connor
William Davies ..... Mr. Frederick Morland

This trifle by the "Hippodrome authors," as they might perhaps be termed, scored quite a success in its production on Monday. The plot runs as follows:—A newly-married couple are having a quarrel. The wife wants a new hat which she has seen in Regent Street, price ten guineas. The husband says he cannot afford it, and talks of committing suicide because of the heavy bills he is expected to pay. The wife tells him he'd better commit suicide if he wants to, and bounces out of the room, stating her intention of going out at once to fetch the hat. Shortly after the husband notices his wife has left her purse behind, and will undoubtedly return for it, and he also observes a rope with a noose in it hanging from the chandelier in the middle of the room, which some workmen have been repairing. He determines to give her a fright. He hears her coming up the stairs, and standing on a footstool he slips his head through the noose, kicks the stool away, and is left in a more or less awkward position standing on tiptoe. No sooner has he done this than a ruffianly-looking man darts in from the back, and naturally gets a shock on seeing the suspended figure. He quickly, however, discovers the state of affairs, and instead of complying with requests for release he proceeds to "go over" his unhappy victim. Having "pinched" everything of any value that he can lay hands upon, he hears someone enter the house, and "scoots." The wife presently enters. The poor husband by this time is almost in a state of collapse, and it certainly looks for the moment as though a tragedy had taken place. The wife effects a rescue, however, by cutting the rope, and a reconciliation takes place. The performance was good, especially on the part of the lady, and the sketch was well received.

"A SISTER'S HONOUR."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

Sir,—In your issue of Aug. 17 you kindly gave a very favourable criticism of the sketch, entitled A Sister's Honour, produced by Mr. Norman G. Acton at the Canterbury Music Hall. By some mistake my name was accidentally omitted from the programme. I should be very grateful if you could find space for this letter, as the authoress of the sketch was, yours faithfully,

KITTY LOFTING.

His Majesty's Theatre, Barrow-in-Furness.
Aug. 26.

Brock's benefit will take place at the Crystal Palace on Thursday. The firework shows at the Palace were initiated by Mr. C. T. Brock in 1864, and have been carried out solely and without interruption by Messrs. C. T. Brock and Co. ever since that date.

We are proud to say that on the occasion of a grand fête given in Fulham Palace, under the patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress, Mr. Birch's liliputian circus, known as the Royal Midgets, paid their visit, and were highly complimented by the Mayor and Mayoress, who expressed their delight with the little people, and congratulated Mr. Birch on his wonderful exhibition, which proved a great draw to the gala.

Alexandra's hippodrome gave two excellent performances at the Sports Ground, Redhill, on Aug. 22, to good business. The parade presented a natty appearance and augured well for the day's success. The programme was quite up to date, and pleased everyone. Among the "features" thatreceived well-merited applause were:—Noel and Primole's clever "turn" on the flying rings; Sam Anderson, in daring athletic exercises on a barebacked horse; the Three Moxons, in a catchy tumbling and musical pot-pourri; George Knight, a youthful equestrian; Little May, a graceful contortionist; Flossella's troupe of dogs in a marvellous high-jumping and horseback-riding act; Salmon, in new and startling cycling tricks; Phinas and Aida, in a novel balancing act on a revolving platform; Queenie Lolo, a charming lady gymnast, in a well-executed trapeze act; and the performances concluded with a stirring reproduction of Dick Turpin's Ride to York, which greatly delighted the more youthful spectators. The "funny" part of the show was well furnished by Pimple, Hairpin, and Funny Johnnie. The entire production was under Miss Alexander's personal supervision.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen will read in this column news with regard to the best and newest films in the market. Most of these films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their stock, or, anyhow, to get them either by purchase or hire.

Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.

One might well wonder how the famous cinematograph firms such as the Charles Urban Trading Company contrive to produce as many as six and seven different film subjects a week. And the more one wonders the more one philosophises as he asks himself the question, "When will this desire for change give way to a quieter condition of things?" Of course, from the point of view of originality of ideas, and the culture of imagination in relation to business matters, this unquenchable thirst for something new, and again something new, may be said to serve a useful purpose, whatever else it does. And, speaking of the animated picture business, the popularity of this form of entertainment cannot in any sense be regarded as a bad sign, for it indicates an improvement in the taste of the public.

All this, by the way. Now the Urban Company this week have again several capital subjects to offer. One of these bears the title, He Would Be an Athlete. Brown, "the short-sighted cyclist," secured such popularity in his recent escapades that, we are told, his success completely turned his head, and he determined, by qualifying himself as an athlete, to gain further distinction. He attacks every kind of manly sport, from wrestling to football, from boxing to jiu-jitsu, and eventually, in a rigid determination to learn to master a motor-car, he plunges into and disappears beneath the waters of a swiftly-flowing river. His accidents and the treatment he receives from man and beast are faithfully reproduced in a film, which, for hairbreadth escapes, intrepidity and devil-may-care hardihood, will take rank with the experiences of A Short-Sighted Cyclist, which was recently withdrawn after eighteen weeks' consecutive run at the Alhambra.

The Napier Motor Race at Brooklands is a seasonable Urban film, which may be classed as a sensational subject. Indeed, it would not be wrong to describe it as a "thriller." Five Napier cars are seen racing at the speed of eighty miles an hour along the new track at Weybridge. The pictures, which have been taken from a car travelling a few yards in the rear, give the spectators the impression of actually taking part in the race. Fascinating views of the "event," taken from the course, are also exhibited.

In another series, The Foster-Father, humour and pathos are charmingly blended. Affecting dramatic situations and laughable incidents occur in rapid sequence, and the acting, the setting, and photography are of the highest class and most perfect quality. An unmarried cabman discovers a baby left in his vehicle, and promptly takes it to a police station. Here, after some conversation with the inspector on duty, he agrees to adopt the child. His wish is gratified, and he takes the baby to his home, and for several years brings up and educates the deserted child, who grows up into a very charming girl. Subsequently, the mother of the girl recognises her child and endeavours to claim her. Proceeding to the police station with the kind-hearted cabby, she is confronted by the very same inspector who dealt, some half-dozen years previously, with the question of the adoption of the baby girl. In the end, however, the cabby makes a proposal of marriage to the mother, and all ends happily.

Pathé Frères.

The Mortification of a Short-Sighted Sportsman is a humorous subject which has just been brought out by Messrs. Pathé Frères. We are afraid that the sportsman is not much of a "sport," for he is even so ungallant as to mistake a lady's hat for game. That in itself would not be so bad were it not for the fact that the hat in question is on the lady's head, and that the lady is quietly seated in the wood enjoying the peace and solitude and picturesque beauty of her surroundings. To find her hat suddenly shot off her head is a most discomposing experience, to say the least, and, of course, the fair creature does not wait for another sample of the strange marksmanship of the purblind sportsman. She dashes away, screaming, but it is not long before the pseudo-hunter comes upon another victim. In the meantime, and while he has been engaged in these valorous exploits, another man is enjoying the affectionate embraces of his wife, and when he finally returns home, chased by a large crowd, it is to witness the spectacle of an unfaithful act on the part of his spouse. However, he is afforded no opportunity of taking his revenge, for the angry mob break into his house and set upon him, and the intruder, who had previously disturbed the sanctity of his domestic hearth, makes good his escape in the general mêlée. This set of pictures are extremely realistic and well-arranged, and should be much sought after.

Vitagraph Company.

This firm is not behind in the production of interesting and attractive films. This week it is offering an intensely-amusing series, to which has been given the name The Bargain Fiend. Those of us who have strolled through the principal streets in the West End at a time when the great drapers, haberdashers, and costumiers are selling off at low prices the remains of the season's stock, we understand what a crush there frequently is among members of the fair sex to get the best value for their money, or to pick up some choice bit of cloth or some dainty hat at a ridiculously cheap figure. In New York, we believe, the conditions of bargain sales are much worse than here, in that there is greater excitement and more competition. The story of the Bargain Fiend is partly concerned with these interesting functions. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are at breakfast; the wife is eagerly scanning the newspaper, looking over the bargain column. As her husband prepares to leave, she asks him that oft-repeated question "Can you let me have a little money for shopping." Brown, with no very apparent joy, hands over some bills and departs. Mrs. B. hastily dons her hat and we next see her arriving at a department store where a bargain sale has been advertised. There is an enormous crowd of women, young and old, in front of the store. When the doors are opened a scrimmage takes place, which makes a college football game seem tame. Finally they all get inside in more or less dishevelled condition, and are soon seen swarming and fighting round the bargain counter. Mrs. Brown is one of the most strenuous, and when she finally emerges, breathless but triumphant, and loaded down with bundles, her dress is torn, her hat is hanging by one hatpin and she looks as if she had just come out of a very severe railroad accident. She arrives home utterly exhausted, her dress in rags, and a few moments later Mr. Brown also arrives. He is just about to inquire what is the matter with her when the doorbell rings and messengers begin to file into the room, each one loaded down with many packages, which wifey has purchased at the bargain sale. They keep coming by dozens and scores until the entire room is filled with parcels and boxes. At first Brown is surprised, then excited, and at last, becoming desperate, he throws boxes, packages, the parcels out of the window. The closing scene is equally amusing and effective

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—For this week we are favoured with a visit by Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company with the military drama, A Soldier of France. Mr. Milner Noble, who is well know locally, gave a first-class portrayal of the character of Juda's Delara; Mr. Leonard Ardale, as Father Jean, was admirably suited, and the same can be said of Miss Hettie Zillwood as Pauline Lorraine. Plenty of fun was introduced by Mr. David Phillips as Pollyput Jollyboy, and Miss Jennie Clare as Margot. Mr. Edward C. Hobart as Captain Lorraine, and Miss Ethel Clyde as Master Lorraine, contributed largely to the success of the drama.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Stevens and Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Carlo.—A strong attraction in the shape of a first visit of Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche's company in the successful comedy, What the Butler Saw, is drawing excellent houses here this week. Mr. Lionel Rignold, as usual, proves a host in himself; and Miss Ada Blanche pleases one and all by her rendition of Mrs. Barrington; Mr. H. H. Rignold as Abraham Weinstein is full of versatility and resource; and adequate assistance is given by Mr. Charles Fawcett as Jack Barrington, Mr. Cyril Harrison as Sir Charles Foden, and Mr. George Ascot as General Dunlop. Mr. Hornby Warburton is successful as Vere de Bogyns; and Mr. Roy Byford scores as Professor Shale; whilst Mr. Raymond Dudley and Mr. Charles Barnes are commendable as Dr. Clayton and John respectively. Amongst the lady artists are found Miss Eleanor Gilbart (Miss Foden), Miss Jennie Wigney (Nora), and Miss Dorothy Hart (Clarissa Dunlop), who are all fully equal to the demands made upon them. Miss Dora Hunt proves acceptable as Mrs. Fleming-Smythe; and Miss Julie St. George is in evidence as Mrs. Hake; Miss May Hunt succeeds as Sophonisba, and Miss Agnes Ewins and Miss Mona Garland gain laurels as Fanny and Maria respectively.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richard Thornton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Messrs. Garside and Knowles's company produced here on Monday the new play, Her Marriage Vow, a full account of which will be found in another column.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richd. Thornton.—Mr. J. H. Tindle's season of animated pictures continues to be a draw among the dwellers on Wearside.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Rich. Thornton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Taking the lead of an exceedingly strong bill, the great coon artist, Eugene Stratton, is drawing crowded houses at each performance, all his songs being most enthusiastically received. George Kirk's thrilling sketch, Grip, occupies a prominent place, and received a favourable reception; Syd May's capital mimicry is a feature of the bill, and his representation of Hackenschmidt is excruciatingly funny. Johnson and Bert's comedy act, entitled The Queer Customer, is diverting; Carter's Ten San Tan Girls, in all their gorgeousness, dance gracefully; and other contributors are Charles Dillon, eccentric comedian; Frank Lynne, humorist; Frank Darwin, actor-vocalist, and Gertrude Bradshaw, soprano vocalist.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—The great and only John Lawson is here this week in quite a répertoire of "thrillers." Monday was devoted to a clever interpretation of The King's Minister, which was closely followed by an appreciative audience. The Monkey's Paw, Humanity, The Unwritten Law, and Mr. Todd, of London have been played during the remainder of the week. The McConnell trio, vocal comedy sketch artists, are interesting in an amusing musical sketch; Adeline Yohle contributes a couple of well-sung songs in a captivating way that finds favour. The programme also includes Rose and Maidment, the shoeblack and the serio, a couple of smart artists; the Wambras, clever gymnasts and comedy musicians; James Curry, eccentric comedian; Jimmy Shields, one-legged comedian and dancer, and the Palace pictures.

VICTORIA HALL.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Corporation.—The Animated Picture Company is putting on another strong bill, one of the most enjoyable items depicting life on an English man-of-war. The vaudeville entertainment is contributed by the Royal Quintette of International Dancers.

THE PAVILION.—A good series of pictures is being submitted here, the variety element being supplied by John Benson and Rose Waite, comedy artists.

SWANSEA. — THE GRAND.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Brooks and Woodbridge; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Dean.—Are You a Mason? is the attraction here. As Amos Bloodgood, the "mason," Mr. E. H. Paterson acts with rare ability and scores a deserved success; Frank Perry, his son-in-law, is excellently taken by Mr. Howard L. Tracey; Mr. Eric Albury is seen to great advantage as George Fisher, the stockbroker; Mr. G. R. F. Austin took full advantage of his opportunities as Hamilton Travers, the retired actor; whilst Ernest Morrison, by Mr. Erskholme E. Clive was good; John Halton was well impersonated by Mr. Buchan Wake; and Mr. C. W. Hammond was successful as C.E. No. 000. Miss Adelaide Grace is to be congratulated on her magnificent acting as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood; the Mrs. Eva Perry of Miss C. Hamilton also being very clever. Miss Babs Stuart and Miss D. Mackenzie, as Annie and Lulu Bloodgood, were charming; Miss Gwen Clifford as Lotti was one of the successes of the evening; and Miss Rita Narcelli and Miss Ploensgains as Mrs. Halton and Franchon Armitage left nothing to be desired.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—That thrilling drama, Her Lost Self, attracts large houses. Miss Frances Delaval, an actress of great ability, enacts the rôle of Philipine with great distinction; Mr. A. Lubinoff was well suited with the part of Norman Esmond, the artist; Wilfred Daventry, the jealous husband, found an excellent delineator in Mr. Fredk. Scarth; Mr. George Harvey as Paul Kimberley was a great success, as was also Mr. Laud Stillwell as Victor Elsworth; Mr. L. W. Halfpenny made the most of the part of Abraham Cohen, and Mr. Fred Gresham as Tom Flyaway was good. Miss Elanor Glover, in the dual rôle of Lucille and Dorothy, acted with great power; the Rachel Cohen of Miss Rose Vernon Page was a fine character study.

EMPIRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. Mitchell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe.—Herbert Darnley's comedians in the sketch, Moving In, must be voted as one of the best turns of that character seen here; O'Gust is as entertaining as ever. The original Sleedes do not give the audience a dull moment, their turn being a good one; an ingeniously contrived spectacle, E. Rousby's Around Paris, is much appreciated; as is also Ina Lorimer, Scotch comedienne; James Eadie and Cissy Ramsden are a quaint musical duo who achieve success; Gwennie Hasto, fancy dancer; Fred Lincoln, comedian, and the Bioscope pictures complete a good bill.

TONYPANDY.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. S. Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Counsell.—A striking success was achieved on Monday when Her Nameless Child, a play written by the wife of the popular general-manager, and a former resident-manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie, started its winter tour. The company is an exceptionally well-balanced one. Mr. Douglas C. Phelps scores as Anthony Ford; Arthur Ford is capably undertaken by Mr. R. Barrie; Ellerslie Pyne has been retained for the rôle of Lord Henry Woodville; Mr. Harry Clements makes a mirthful Tom Rivers; and as Mongrole, Mr. Frank Eden gives a good rendering. Miss Pattie Hastings as Phyllis Ford wins the approval of the crowded house for her powerful and sympathetic acting; Lady Sybil Woodville finds a capable exponent in Miss Grace Jones, who excels herself in Act 4; Bessie Brooks in the hands of Miss Renie Douglas is an admirable aid to the comedy element; and Miss Mabel Coleman does well as Crayont, a French maid.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—After being closed during the earlier portion of the week for the regatta, the theatre reopened on Thursday with The Adventure of Lady Ursula, with Miss Beatrice Wilson in the name-part and Mr. Norman V. Norman as Sir George Sylvester. Other performances during the week are Mr. Sheridan and the romantic play Robin Hood.

PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, The Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—For the regatta season, Stockham's "Unique" Company has been engaged. Miss Clare Gilbert, who has just returned from South Africa, has a delightful soprano voice, and is frequently recalled; Miss Della Stockham, mezzo-soprano, and Mr. Leonard Brown are also very good. Mr. Willis Crisford is an entertainer of more than usual ability, and the house is kept in roars of laughter by his clever patter. A novel feature of the entertainment is provided in the harp selections by Mme. Stockham, Miss Gladys Stockham, and Miss Della Stockham.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Welton Dale.—Mr. R. Macdonald's company in The Dairymaids has been cordially received this week; Miss Empsie Bowman gives a charming impersonation of Peggy, and Miss Doris Dickens and Miss Annie Heenan as her sisters are equally charming representatives of the young ladies under Lady Brudenell's protection—her ladyship being capitally portrayed by Miss Molly Tremaine; Mr. Gordon Begg gives a truly Hibernian study of the Naval Doctor, while Lady Brudenell's graceless nephews, in the capable hands of Mr. R. Telford and Mr. R. Bottomley, keep the audience fully amused; Mr. Dan Agar as the Doctor's Servant, Miss Maud Lucy as the Maid at the Young Ladies' Academy, and Miss Kitty Kirwan as the Principal of the Academy, are also responsible for some excellent comedy; Mr. Hugh Glendon as the Naval Lieutenant, and Mr. Whyte Wentworth as the Farm Servant, and Mr. Victor Huntley as Captain Leverton also contribute their share to a successful performance. The Sandow Girls find very graceful representatives in the Misses Carrie Lacey, May Truefitt, Muriel Martin and Baby Christopher. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. H. H. Shaw.

TYNEMOUTH. — PALACE-BY-THE-SEA.—Proprietor and Director, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager of Entertainments, Mr. Lindon Travers.—An exceptionally attractive programme is being put forward this week, including pianoforte recitals by Herr Backham. High-class vocalists are found in Miss Irene Ainsley, contralto, and M. Fischer Sobell, baritone; and varieties are headed by the popular and now famous Scotch comedian, Neil Kenyon, who fairly keeps his audiences on the qui vive, his quaint songs and patter being vastly amusing.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company presented the play The Lion and the Mouse for the first time here on Monday, when it attracted a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. Leslie Carter's impersonation of John Burkett Ryder, the lion, is a fine piece of acting; Mr. Gordon McLeod is seen to advantage as Jefferson Ryder; Mr. Alfred Hall is good as James Rossmore; Mr. Herbert Chown is admirable as the Hon. Fitzroy Bagley; and Mr. John Wheatman proves capable as John Whitmore Roberts, M.P.; Miss Maude Townsend makes a dignified Mrs. Ryder; Miss Evelyn M. Read is a pleasing Kate Roberts; and Miss Christine Silver a charming Shirley Rossmore.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Mr. J. G. Grahame, jun., and Miss Zerlina Harrington are highly successful in a sketch, entitled A Daughter of Pleasure; Henriette and Selina delight with a clever musical entertainment; Bert Terrell, Dutch character vocalist, sings well; Wragg and Wragg perform wonderful feats of swordsmanship; Hugh Cedar and Edward Elgar are amusing comedians in "Ye Dayes of Olde," and the Sisters Ford, character vocalists, and Miss Violet Gerald, soubrette, ably contribute.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood. — Alexandre and Hughes, musical comedians, provide a bright and entertaining turn here, and meet with gratifying success; Olgar and Elgar, the singer and the skylark, are capital; Victory Travers achieves success as a vocal comedian; Rossi Ashton gives a clever song-sketching act; Edie Endon is a vivacious comedienne, and and acrobatic dancer, and is very smart; Paulinetti and Piquo are to the fore in their gymnastic comedy act; and John E. Coyle, a popular comedian, comes in for hearty recognition. The American bioscope gives some capital views.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Fred J. Webb and company are appearing here this week with A Night in Armour. Mr. Alex. Mayhew is well placed as James Milbourne; Mr. Fred J. Webb ably portrays the character of Frank Milbourne; the part of Dominic Domina has a capable exponent in Mr. Walter Kenyon; Mr. Geo. Paradise does well as Sternhold Keyes; Mr. G. H. Seaman does justice in the part of Sergeant Bluebottle; and Miss M. Danvers-Smith acts with distinction as Ollie Webb. The celebrated Edin Quartette, in the original nightdress dance, prove very successful.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here this week with The Love That Women Desire. Mr. J. O. Stewart as the remorseless Squire Abingdon acts with dramatic force, and is ably assisted in the heavier passages by Mr. Oliver Rogers as Richard Abingdon and Miss Aimee Grattan-Clyndes as Madge Abingdon, the latter giving a finished study of a most difficult rôle; Mr. John Davidson is a manly Philip Carnaby, and a graceful heroine is Miss Lalla Stanhope as Sybil Thorburn. The humorous element is ably sustained by Mr. John Hignett as Dennis O'Rourke, Mr. J. W. Wilkinson as P.C. Sowerberry, and Miss Winifred Barton as Pattie Swift; Miss N. Griffiths submits a clever sketch of Mariquinha, an Indian maiden; Mr. Hugh Wallace is a typical good-natured cleric; and Mr. J. P. Clinton scores as Dr. Brandreth.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Waters; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—That wonderful Japanese equilibrist Kioto heads the bill here this week, and good business is again the order. Miss Maidie Scott's sketch company meet with approval in '98, An Episode of the Irish Rebellion; Beattie Denvil is a charming vocalist; Burley and Burley are eccentric acrobats; Henri Bekker is a unique conjurer; Allis and Cassatti are clever duettists; Nash and Noel, versatile comedians; and the Ellimans, refined musical entertainers. The pictures are again good.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—Messrs. Battersby and Chesney's company in The King of Crime is being successfully presented here this week. Mr. Henry Bedford's delineation of Ronjarre, alias Gaston Lemaire, is much appreciated; the part of Gandelu is effectively portrayed by Mr. Arnold Bell; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes makes the most of his opportunities as Simon Gandelu; Mr. Arthur Robinson as Louis Mascot, and Mr. Bob Anderson as Mick Maloney, do excellent work in their respective parts; the rôle of Mère Crouchard is characteristically portrayed by Miss Agnes D'Aragon; as Clarisse Miss Grace Henderson leaves little to be desired; Mr. Fay Lonsdale is responsible for the part of Madame Mewrivet; and valuable assistance is given by Miss Grace Evelyn in her representation of Mimi Patenlair; Miss Florence Halton also does well as Henriette.

WEST BROMWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—The first visit of Mr. Frank Bertram and company to West Bromwich in the powerful drama, The Convict's Daughter, has proved a success. Mr. Frank Bertram portrays the rôle of Convict 89 with great ability; Mr. Edward De Vere does well as the banker, Frederick Neville; Mr. Walter Graham makes a hit as Harold; the heavy part of Jasper Thorn is in the capable hands of Mr. Escot Robson; the part of Patrick O'Laragan is humorously played by Mr. Sam Roberts; Miss Lilla Nordan as Betty causes great fun; Miss Maud Beard is a good Marion Thorn; and a word of praise is due to Miss Lillas Deane for her sympathetic acting as Edith Neville.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Albert Withers.—Helm and Cozens, who are paying a return visit here this week, create roars of laughter; Wilman presents a clever musical turn; Nat Travers is well received; Ray Maskell provides a smart vocal and dancing turn; Frederic Neiman causes much mirth with his ventriloquial minstrels; smart songs and patter are submitted by A. G. Sprightly; Mozzetto is successful in his juggling act; the Silver-Toned Quartette score a success in their harmonious renderings of various songs; and James Willard's comedy sketch company, including Little Tony, is much appreciated. The Hippodrome pictures are good.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—A change which is resulting in capital business here is the engagement of Mr. Reginald Dance and company in Raffles. The amateur cracksman is capitally played by Mr. Dance; Mr. Edward Irwin gives a fine impersonation of Curtis Bedford; Miss Katie Yates plays with excellent taste the part of Gwendoline Conran; the important part of Mrs. Vidal is judiciously treated by Miss May Brooke; Lady Melrose has a capable representative in Miss Mildred Orme, and creditable work is done by Mr. Stanley Lathbury as Lord Crowley.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Miss Fanny Wentworth, who tells a good story, sings well and manipulates the piano in capital style. As a society entertainer she is par excellence, and her sketches are very enjoyable. Rell and Butt cause amusement with their novel act, Fun in a Garden; Alf Ripon, the Scottish ventriloquist, is clever; the Russell's, song illustrators, do remarkably well; Emmie Ames has a pretty scena, Emmie's Christmas Tree; Frank Coyle is a popular comedian; Harry Bancroft is a popular actor-vocalist; Mersano, a smart card and coin manipulator; and some humorous pictures are furnished by Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Raws; General Manager, Mr. H. E. Kauffman.—The programme this week includes the Timsons in a capital act, entitled The Burglar's Surprise; Harry Bentley, a clever and eccentric comedian; Yettmah, a smart Japancse juggler; Greener, the singing collier, who renders some fine songs; Cony and Davis, Scotch comedians; Rennie, a good ventriloquist, and the bioscope with a series of smart pictures.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. James Kiddie.—This week Mr. Joseph Bebb's company is here with The Prodigal Daughter. The famous old Drury Lane drama has never been presented to a Widnes audience before, but on Monday evening it proved a decided success; the staging was particularly admired; the acting was of a high order of merit all round; Mr. John S. Haydon was a capable Sir John Woodmere; Mr. E. Clifton Boyne acted with artistic restraint in the part of Maurice Deepwater; the Captain Harry Vernon of Mr. Frederick Harker was excellent; Mr. Lionel Atwill was quite one of the successes of the evening as Julian Belford; Mr. Sydney Lynn deserves praise for his representation of Lord Banbury, and the same remark applies to Mr. Marshall Meade as Dudley Roper; Mr. George Antley and Mr. Edward Lowrie were good in the respective rôles of Tom Blunker and Miserable Jim; Mr. John Belton was well suited by the part of Joseph Gunn; Miss Millie Ford is "starred" in the part of Rose Woodmere, the prodigal daughter, and plays most realistically, winning the sympathy of the whole house; Miss Olive Lloyd as Dorcas Gentle acts winningly, and Miss Marjorie Davenport is good, too, as Violet Woodmere. The introduction of five racehorses in the fourth act gives a realistic effect to the Grand National scene—a very creditable piece of stagecraft.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Company.—In the military drama Her Love Against the World, presented by Messrs. Hallatt and Howard's company, Miss Grace Heywood as Iris, Princess of Idalia, and Mr. Walter Howard, as Eric Earl of Strathmere, play the principal parts with consummate ability and effectiveness, and merit a most cordial reception; Miss Evelyn Hope as Shulah, and Miss R. St. John as Lionel impersonate the respective rôles admirably, and Mr. Mayor Cooke (Ulric) and Mr. Ronald Bayne (Othmar) act well up to the characteristics of the princes named. In lighter vein Mr. H. B. Lewis, Mr. J. F. Millar (brothers Pimpernickle) and Miss Lizzie Lennon and Miss Hettie Ferguson (maids to Iris) create a pronounced impression.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company.—The Four Rios give a daring gymnastic performance; Mr. Gintaro submits an entertaining act as a Japanese juggler, and the Lizette Troupe of acrobats, dancers, etc., in a capital turn, are all cordially received; Barton and Franklin, in musical selections, and Molly Auguarde, vocalist, also receive generous applause. Comedy is strongly represented in Sammy Shields (Scotch humorist), the Bros. Horne (knockabouts), Woolmer Young, Josh Dixon, and Mamie Iris.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—After several months of variety entertainments the Theatre Royal season of legitimate drama opened this week with an admirable presentation of C. M. S. McLellan's powerful drama, Leah Kleschna, by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's selected company. This is a return visit, and the enthusiasm with which it has been welcomed by crowded houses throughout the week testifies to its undiminished popularity. The stars of the company are Mr. William Clayton and Miss Bessie Rignold, appearing respectively as the burglar Kleschna and his daughter Leah. The latter's impersonation of a most difficult character is most convincing, and she quickly gains the fullest sympathy of her audience; Mr. Clayton, too, achieves complete success as Kieschna, a part which affords many opportunities; as the much-admired Paul Sylvaine, Mr. W. F. Grant places before himself a high ideal, and fully realises it. In strongest contrast is the Raoul Berton of Mr. Hamilton Deane, who brings out clearly all the despicable characteristics of a mean, unscrupulous nature; Mr. Campbell Goldsmith is responsible for a clever character-study as Sebram, and Mr. Charles Barrett and Miss Violet Thorold are a bright pair of irresponsibles as Valentine and Sophie. Other parts in capable hands are General Berton (Mr. Henry Nunn), Anton Piaff (Bert Gunter), Johann (Mr. Bernard Rain), Reichman (Mr. Arles Conway), Baptiste (Mr. Frank Bannerman), Mme. Berton (Miss Ethel Russell), Claire Berton (Miss Emmie Wallace), Frieda (Miss May Hammond), Charlotte (Miss Edith Summers), &c. The play is elaborately and magnificently staged.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company are presenting The Belle of Mayfair. Mr. Stephen Hall is very fine as the Earl of Mount Highgate; Mr. S. Ravenscroft does excellently as the Hon. Raymond Finchley; Mr. Sidney Burt as Sir John Chaldicott, Bart, M.P., puts in effective work; Mr. Michael Raven is well placed as Hugh Meredith; Miss D. Fitzherbert as H.S.H. Princess of Ehrenbreitstein, is splendid; too much praise cannot be allotted Miss Grace Mackay as Lady Rosaline Rocklesley; and the Gibson Girl, Miss Constance Stevens, is pleasing as Lady Chaldicott. The company is under the capable direction of Mr. Caffyn Baxter. At the time of writing great interest is being manifested in the visit of Miss Ellen Terry and company in Captain Brassbound's Conversion on Thursday.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager Mr. C. W. Collings.—This week the Gasquoines have remained on, and gained fresh admirers; Cliff and Kean prove themselves smart comedians and dancers; the Sisters Carlton are capable duettists; the Two Daniels, negro entertainers, are distinctly good; while Miss Jessie Harper is a most acceptable turn. The pictures again prove one of the most interesting turns.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The Lady Dandies, played by Mr. Geo. Dance's clever company, has delighted audiences here this week. There is not a weak spot in the company, each artist being of more than average ability. As St. Amour Mr. O. E. Lennon fairly revels in the excellent songs and dances with which the rôle is freely endowed; excellent fun-makers, too, are Messrs. Tom Seymour and J. E. Walker, who as two police agents have ample opportunities, of which they take the fullest advantage; Mr. Ripley Evans possesses a voice of excellent quality, and renders the numbers allotted to Dorlis with much skill; Miss Nancie Rossiter is a dainty Illyrine, her sweet voice being heard to great advantage; Miss Maisie Gay makes a vivacious and charming Lodoiska, gaining many admirers by her excellent vocalisation; and Miss Peggy Primrose is a winsome Egle, and dances gracefully. The mounting of the opera is beyond praise.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—The witticisms of Jake Friedman, who has appeared with unbounded success in Happy Holland during the week, have been greatly enjoyed by crowded houses; Little Ganty, too, has proved a source of much amusement; Mr. J. S. James is an expert banjoist; Miss Madge May proves herself a comedienne of more than average excellence; and Kent and Keith cause much amusement. Talbot and Pearce in a neat sketch, entitled Yoh San, do extremely well; Corelli's comic magic is a diverting item; C. Williams is an excellent negro; and the efforts of the Sisters Bartholomew are applauded.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

Mr. George Gray and company, in The Fighting Parson, provides the principal attraction this week in a bill of much merit. Indelibly stamped as one of the most successful sketches of recent years, The Fighting Parson retains to the full its great popularity, and Mr. Gray's well-known performance in the title-rôle loses nothing by repetition. The Lyons Trio prove themselves expert pantomimists in their amusing scena. The appearance of one of the trio as a yokel is exceedingly funny, and their clever tumbling and dancing evoke rounds of applause. Boyd and Gilfain are a versatile couple, and their high-class entertainment is deservedly popular, the gentleman's fine vocalism and the lady's instrumental performance both receiving their due meed of praise. Mr. Harry Grey, the Australian Nugget, contributes a couple of well-contrasted items, and is equally successful in each. His first entrance is startling, to say the least, being in exaggerated tramp attire to the accompaniment of a shower of bricks from above. He has a lugubrious ditty about a certain "Carrie," this being succeeded by a "dame" song, in which he is remarkably well made-up, and there is nothing half-hearted about the applause at the conclusion of his turn.

The Brothers Egbert established themselves prime favourites in Stratford pantomime some years back, and it is quickly evidenced that they are not forgotten. The idea of their Happy Dustmen scena is one that instantly makes for mirth. In following their vocation one of the twain discovers a huge sack. To play a prank on his partner he gets inside and becomes an animated bundle. The rest can be imagined. The wonderment, then horror, of the other at the antics of the sack, and his dispairing cry "Hurry up, Walter," to his apparently absent partner, being funny enough to compel laughter from a stoic. Their turn is concluded with some very intricate tumbling and dancing, which is in huge favour. Mr. Alf. Chester, at his first entrance, cuts an appearance as a smart member of "the force" strongly reminiscent of the late Herbert Campbell, and his song, "I wonder if the sergeant knows," is in capital comedy vein, this being succeeded by another clever item, "My wife can't get the best of me."

That Mr. George Westland hails from the land of the thistle is apparent at once; his Scotch accent could be cut with a knife. Possessing a clear delivery, a crisp and quaint style, and in a not overdone "dame" attire, he is quickly on the best of terms with the audience, and, interpolating his singing with a fund of racy patter, he fairly brings down the house. Miss Anne Henwick, who comes from "across the pond," enlightens her hearers as to methods of "the real article" in the way of coon singing, concluding by a very smart exhibition of sand dancing, and her turn is keenly enjoyed. The Bioscope pictures this week include a Tour Through Egypt from Cairo to Khartoum, the illustration of which is watched with great interest. The orchestral selection with which the programme opens is always an enjoyable item under the skilful bâton of Mr. Walter Greco, this week's overture including a piccolo solo, "L'Oiseau Mouche," performed by Mr. R. V. Pierson. In the absence of the manager, Mr. T. S. Mayne, the assistant-manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch, is in control, and looks after the welfare of his patrons with customary courtesy.

"A MOTHER'S SACRIFICE."
A Play to draw the women (the men will follow).
A Play to cause argument.
A Play to grip the mind of gallery and stalls.
A Play which asks of everybody
THE BURNING QUESTION.
What shall a woman do who is tied to a blackguard, who, while ill-treating her and her child in every way, is cunning enough to give her no chance to gain a divorce? An honest man, who, by his action will suffer financially and socially, offers to protect her and her child. The woman has proof that this man's love is honourable. She has to choose between a life of torture and degradation, for herself and her child, with the scoundrel who is legally her husband or a life of gladness and sunshine with the man who would give his life to make her happy, but whose protection would bring disgrace upon her child's good name.
WHAT SHALL SHE DO?
The answer is given in the great Play,
"A MOTHER'S SACRIFICE."
"A MOTHER'S SACRIFICE."

in the New, Irish, Romantic, Musical, Legendary Play,
"ROLLICKING RORY."
Made a great hit at St. Helens; re-booked.
Enthusiastic reception Monday night at Rotunda, Liverpool.
The Liverpool Post and Mercury says: Many Irish plays have been seen at the Rotunda Theatre, but it is doubtful if any of them were as attractive as the one produced there last evening. It is entitled "Rollicking Rory," and its reception at the hands of a large audience was very enthusiastic. The story is most romantic and enthralling, some of the situations being particularly powerful and realistic.
A play right away from the ordinary, yet it pleases the gallery as well as the circle and stalls.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT,
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT,
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT,
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT,
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT,
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
The Empire, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

A DARING MAID.

Code Word, CAMELOT.

Mary and her young man are spooning in the kitchen, when suddenly a large case is thrown in through the window. On being opened it is found to contain a smart dress, etc. These fal-fals Mary quickly dons, and she and the young man go off to spend a good time, have dinner, and forget all about sweeping, dusting, &c. As we know, all things must come to an end, and poor Mary is soon compelled to give up the dress. The original thieves are soon discovered, and in their haste deposit the case into the kitchen—hence all the trouble.

362 ft. The Subject, £8 0s. 8d.

WOOD INDUSTRY IN CANADA.

Code Word, CAMELEON.

Interesting and instructive story. The forests; felling the trees; cutting them up; packing them on to barges; taking them down the rivers; and finally sending them off for the different ports. Most novel in character and representation.

545 ft. The Subject, £9 1s. 8d. Tinting 2s.

A PAIR OF BOOTS, PLEASE.

Code Word, COMBAT.

A gentleman, having had his boots stolen, enters a shop and, by a very clever and original trick, manages to get a new pair for nothing. An assistant brings him a pair of boots to try on. He complains that the right boot pinches. "This can easily be remedied, sir." Away goes the assistant to put it right. Our friend now calls a second assistant, tries on some more boots, but this time it is the left boot that pinches, and this second young man goes to stretch the left boot. In the meantime, the purchaser puts on the boots left by the duped assistants and marches triumphantly out of the shop. Most comical.

230 ft. The Subject, £3 18s. 8d.

THE TWO FOWLS.

Code Word, CLUB.

Amusing story of circumstantial evidence. Two boys steal a fowl already cooked and ready to be served. They quarrel, and in their excitement leave the fowl on the road, which a poor tramp picks up. Another fowl is stolen from a shop, there is a big chase, police, shop-keepers, and others all wildly looking for somebody. They come across the poor old tramp quietly munching away at his fowl. He, of course, is arrested, while the guilty one escapes. This is a first-class film.

280 ft. The Subject, £4 13s. 4d.

THE MORTIFICATION OF A SHORT-SIGHTED SPORTSMAN.

Code Word CONGRES.

This is the most killing film of its kind. Imagine a man with a gun who cannot see further than his own nose. He shoots any and every thing but game, with disastrous results.

314 ft. The Subject, £5 4s. 8d.

VICTORIA FALLS, RHODESIA. Important New Edition.

Since the publication of the first series of this most popular subject, we have received from our operators in South Africa 12 additional negatives of thrilling pictures, secured from positions which have hitherto been found impossible.
So important are these new scenes that we have rearranged the series, eliminating the least interesting pictures of the previous issue and adding the recent importations. The rearranged series now furnishes an absolutely perfect range of views of the most enthralling character, with only a slight addition to the length of the whole subject.

MISCELLANEOUS.

APPLICATIONS FOR POSITIONS on the FRONT PAGE of "The Era" should be addressed to the PUBLISHER.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, is, as usual, a happy combination of record, almanac, and literary symposium. The last-mentioned aspect is one that most commends the work to the lay reader. The literary contributions are signed by well-known artists who have contributed personal experiences of remembered incidents, and whose portraits adorn the pages. A touch of pathos is lent to an otherwise cheery publication by the inclusion of stage and music-hall favourites who died last year, one of whom was Mr. J. L. Toole.—Financier and Bullionist., Feb. 6.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
The "Era Annual" for 1907 is now out. It is full of good things, and will be eagerly perused by all who are interested in dramatic and musical affairs and personnel. Portraits of, and original contributions by, several public favourites and managers appear, including Miss Ellen Terry, who tells "How I Spend My Day"; Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Charles Collette, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Matthew Brodie, Miss Constance Moxon, Miss Edith Cole, and Mr. Tom Craven. There is, in addition, the usual store of miscellaneous theatrical information which is indispensable to all who are interested in tage matters.—Liverpool Post, Jan. 26.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
A capital shilling's worth is the "Era Annual," with its valuable lists of new plays produced during the year in London, the provinces, Berlin, and Paris. In contains, also, many readable articles by stage favourites, notably a characteristic contribution, "How I Spend My Day," by Miss Ellen Terry.—Daily Express, Feb. 2.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.
"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.
"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.
"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.
"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.
"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.
"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.
"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.
"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.
"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.
"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.
"The list of plays will be very interesting and useful when published in complete form. The etiquette of the profession apparently still allows of novelists' titles being used by playwrights. Thus, The Master, which will appear in your list as a play by somebody else, is the name of a book of mine; while the new play, Noah's Ark, has the same title as a shorter story of mine."

MR. ARTHUR LAW.
"The publication in The Era of a list of plays produced during the fifty years, 1850-1900, is an excellent idea, and will be most useful to authors who may be in doubt as to their right to a certain title. When it is issued in book form I shall be very glad to possess a copy."

MR. TOM GALLON.
"Your idea seems to me to be a most excellent one. Quite apart from the fact that there is always a difficulty in knowing what titles have been used, there very often arises the question of when and where a play was actually produced—a question difficult to be answered. Actors and authors should alike be grateful to The Era."

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE.
"I think the idea of printing a list of plays produced during the last fifty years an excellent one. It should be of great value to authors."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY.
"The list of produced plays was not merely a happy thought, for the same idea has probably occurred to many, though until The Era carried it out no one took the pains to collect and publish such a truly valuable record.
"Managers, dramatists, as well as would-be authors, will henceforward have a long list of titles to refer to, and there will be neither reason nor excuse for encroaching on pre-existing copyright in play titles. What a lot of trouble it should save us all!"

MR. WALTER MELVILLE.
"I think it shows great enterprise on the part of your journal, and likely to prove most useful and at the same time interesting to the general profession."

MR. ARTHUR MORRISON.
"The list you are publishing will be a most valuable work of reference to everybody taking an interest in the stage, and I have no doubt that when it is published as a book you will find its success warrant you in issuing fresh editions from time to time, with the information brought to date in each case."

MR. J. J. DILLEY.
"The idea is an excellent one, and there can be no question at all of the usefulness of such a summary."

MR. COSMO HAMILTON.
"I think that your new feature is an excellent and most useful one. A list of plays produced during fifty years is interesting not only to the playgoer, but essentially so to the manager and the playwright. They will only have to consult it to be sure that a title has not been used before."

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD.
"My attention has been called to your list of plays produced between 1850-1900. I have no doubt it will prove interesting and useful to many."

MR. F. FRANKFORT MOORE.
"The list of plays produced during the past fifty years, now appearing in The Era, will, I am certain, prove, when completed, extremely valuable to everyone associated with the drama in England. I am convinced—and I have had a considerable amount of experience in this direction—that it will be especially valued by all writers upon stage matters. The advantage of being able to refer at a moment's notice to the criticisms upon the production of various plays in various newspapers must be apparent to everyone. If such a list had been in existence some years ago I would have been saved a vast amount of worry and vexation of spirit. The Era has once again proved itself appreciative of the conditions under which the best interests of the drama in England are maintained."

MR. LOUIS N. PARKER.
"I think your list of plays, produced between 1850 and 1900, will, like the other contents of your paper, be invaluable."

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—The boards of this popular theatre are occupied this week by Mr. Coleman Davies's company in Beneath the Stars. Mr. Jack McCaig makes a manly Stephen Harcourt; Mr. Arthur Vincent gives a good portrayal of Lord Sylvester; Mr. Terry Davies is powerful as the villainous Major Blonson; being ably assisted by Mr. Arthur Prescott as Silas Clipper. Mr. Coleman Davies is an original Jemmy Hopblossom; Miss Esmai Ellys a favourite as Angel Marsden; Miss Eunice Udall is a successful Becky; and Miss Mamie Winter as Pauline Petrowski is worthy of special note.

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. William Greet's company pays a return visit this week with The Earl and the Girl. The part of Jim Cheese is ably taken by Mr. Alfred Donohue, a comedian of genuine talent; Miss Florence Wix plays winsomely and sings effectively as Elphin Haye; and Miss Lina Hicks is successful as Liza Shoddam; Dick Wargrave is very capably presented by Mr. Robert Hyett; and all the other members of the company do justice to their parts. The orchestra, under Mr. W. Stephenson, puts in much good work.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Lady Mansel and her company of juveniles appear with the utmost success in a comedy speciality, A Concert Rehearsal; the McConnell Trio are exceedingly amusing in their vocal comedy sketches; Miss Adeline Yohle is a very pleasing vocalist; Mr. George Antill, comedian, provides an exceptionally funny turn; the Sisters Love are warmly applauded as duettists and dancers; Mr. Harry Zetter is popular both as a comedian and dancer; Mr. James Kurry makes a hit as an eccentric comedian; the Kroney Brothers cause the utmost merriment with their street character act, London's Lazy Coalmen; and Miss Elly Adair and the Two Wiltons are appreciated as vocalists.

Beach Pavilion.—Manager and Proprietor, Mr. David Thomson.—The Pavilion Cinematograph Show proves a great attraction this week; Miss Violet Davidson is warmly encored for her rendering of Scottish songs; Mr. Thomson is in his best vein as a vocalist-comedian; and Miss Minnie Osborne, Mr. Jack Belton, and Mr. Oswald Gray also continue prime favourites with the big audiences. The trio, Miss Davidson, Mr. Thomson, and Mr. Gray, repeat the exceedingly funny sketch, What Right Had He to Bar the Door?

ABERTILLERY.—Theatre Metropole.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom.—Her Lost Self, with Miss Frances Delaval in the leading rôle, is being well received here this week. Mr. A. Ludinoff as Norman Esmond successfully portrays the villain; the part of Wilfrid Daventry is in the capable hands of Mr. Frederick Skarth; Messrs. George Hardy and Lane Stillwell are good in their respective parts; Abraham Cohen and Rachel Cohen are realistically played by Mr. L. W. Halfpenny and Miss Rose Vernon Paget; particularly clever and pleasing is Tiny Carrie Johnson, her songs and mannerisms evoking much applause; Miss Kate Gurney is good as Bridget Malone, as also is Miss Frances Desney as Nan.

Pavilion. — Lessees, Messrs. Tilney; General-Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—Leoni Clarke gives a truly wonderful performance with his cats, rats, monkeys, &c.; Dan Noble, comedian, causes much merriment; a capital turn is given by Stelling and his very clever dog; Ferris and Farnley are good in duo comedy; Minnie D'Aubyn is delightful in her songs and dress; the Four Berlin Belles dance and sing with every success; the Sisters Transfield give a charming musical turn, and are well received; Marie Yorke is vivacious and pleasing; and some good pictures on the Pavilion Bioscope complete.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin.—The Bondman is being presented in a capable manner by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Mr. Cecil A. Collins is a talented actor, and his Jason is one of the successes of the performance; Miss Grace Chalmers is a capital Greeba; and Mr. Arthur Bawtree depicts the rôle of Michael Sunlocks with good results; Mr. H. C. Lanceley is an excellent Adam; whilst as Father Ferrati, Mr. W. H. Rotheram is a great success. Messrs. Norman Wrighton, F. J. Waller, and Scrope Quinton also do well.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. Wm. Greet's principal company is here for the week with The Sign of the Cross. The mounting of the play is on a lavish scale, and the company is a strong one. Miss Gladys Leslie's Mercia is a carefully-studied effort, gentle and forceful as the occasion demands; the jealous Berenice, the worldly Dacia, and the Empress Poppœa find fit exponents in the Misses Lena Gordon, Cissie Carlton, and Mary Newcombe; and a word of praise is due to Miss Dulcie Greatwich as Stephanus. Mr. Cyril Austin Lee is a scholarly Marcus, and makes good use of his declamatory powers; Mr. C. Yoke's Nero commands commendation; and good work is done by Mr. Chas. Aldred as Tigellinus, Mr. J. Wetherall as Licinius, Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio, Mr. H. Jones as Philodemus, Mr. W. Fleet as Farius, Mr. C. Yates as Titus, Mr. R. Chapman as Melos, and others.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son.—Edwards and Espinosa, in their musical and dancing speciality, gain attention for an expert performance; Denton, Roscoe, and Galley, three colliers, show what harmony can be produced by a judicious blend of voices in the singing of homely trios and ballads; the Columbia Coloured Coons please in their Plantation Pastimes; and the Victorias are also sweet singers. Will Sullivan is a really funny comedian and patterer; Saddler and Ross are good as humorous cross-talkers and nimble dancers; Barton and Franklin claim attention as singers and instrumentalists; the Sivanes give an entertaining comedy speciality; the Tom Davis Trio introduce whirling the whirl, or motoring in mid-air, a very sensational act. The pictures are interesting.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bert Lester.—The Trentanovi Sisters are responsible for a clever exhibition on the trapeze here; Jules Kiaro puts in some good work as an equilibrist; a sketch full of pathos and humour, entitled Captain Hamilton, V.C., is given by Mr. Whimsical Walker, assisted by a juvenile; the Brothers Lavelle are quaint comedy acrobats; Mr. Clayton's "Attergraph" pictures include the Lady Godiva Pageant at Coventry and the Maniac Juggler; and a hearty reception is accorded to Walker and May, coloured duettists and dancers. The Sisters Clifton, skipping-rope dancers, and Mr. Ted Thomas, comedian, complete the bill.

Central Hall.—Lessees, Jasper Redfern, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. W. Holmes.—Animated pictures of a varied and interesting character are drawing full houses here, the series including A Sailor's Lass, Child Slavery in Italy, Short-sighted Sportsman, and Just in Time. Variety turns are contributed by the Boston Twins, humorists; Miss Renée Graham, vocalist; Mr. Joe Atkinson, comedian; and Mr. Mack Ollive and Miss Daisy Baldry, in a versatile comedy scena.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is paying a welcome return visit here this week with The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Mr. Charles Whitlock supplies a very effective portrayal of the Rev. Robert Everton; Mr. Edward Lloyd infuses the due amount of military dignity into the character of Jack England; Captain Geoffrey Caversham is skilfully represented as a thorough-paced villain by Mr. Frank Adair; Mr. George H. Asquin as Dick Bunch gets plenty of fun out of the character; Mr. Monson Thorpe is a satisfactory Detective Weathersby; and Mr. George Mitchell enacts with great ability the part of James Sutton, a repentant forger. Miss Ethel Bracewell, in the title-rôle, has much of the burden of the play resting on her, but comes through the ordeal excellently; Miss Lydia Mannington ably portrays Marian Franklin, a London mystery; Miss Joan Ellis is pleasing as Rose Seymour; and Miss Nell Burton as Lucy Vere evokes much merriment.

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, in The Belle of Mayfair, gave two performances here on Monday and Tuesday. Miss Winifred Preece, in the title-rôle, elicited repeated encores for her musical numbers; Miss Denny Fitzherbert, as the Princess, embodied qualities of good acting and brilliant singing; Miss Nancy York made a vivacious lady's maid; Miss Grace Mackay was a typical "Gibson" girl; Miss Constance Stevens displayed ability in the part of Lady Chaldicott; and Miss M. Vernon made a dignified Countess. Mr. S. Ravenscroft gave full effect to the amorous inclinations of Raymond Finchley; Mr. Michael Raven quickly established himself a favourite as Hugh Meredith; Mr. Sydney Burt invested the part of the old parvenu Sir John Chaldicott with rare humour; Mr. Stephen Hall exemplified in a rare degree the irascible qualities of the Earl of Mount Highgate; and Mr. Edwin Oxlee admirably enacted the idiosyncrasies of the foreign count.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Sante's company, in The Life of a Showman, is here. He himself plays Brien Leader in a convincing manner; Mr. Chas. Osborn is a capable Sir Noel Hartland; Mr. Morris Maud a capital Hendrick Marais; Miss Constance Medwyn plays the adventuress Agatha Winter with skill; and Miss Eileen Bamford is a clever and charming Lena Hartland.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Edward Marris's company in the musical play, Somebody's Sweetheart, is here. Mr. Cecil W. Park as Stanton Ashleigh sings and acts admirably, and Miss Norah Melton as the heroine, Lulu, sings and plays quite artistically; Mr. Charles E. Kay makes a successful villain, Stephen Leverton, and is ably assisted by Mr. Percy Maitland as Lem Lee, while Mr. George Brentwood proves a most humorous comedian as Blabbs.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Edgar G. Laban.—Jennie Johns is a clever artist, and wins the hearts of the audiences here; Geoffreys and Benson are clever in Spoofed; Ada Marjutti is a flexible Venus; Syd Herman sings good character songs; and Pete and Minnie Lee supply Scotch humour.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—No more suitable engagement for the Trades Congress week than the exciting play, Leah Kleschna, could possibly have been arranged. Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company has been admirably selected, and in Miss Bessie Rignold, as Leah, is found a leading lady who displays sound dramatic ability and succeeds in creating a vivid impression by her graphic handling of a difficult rôle; another impersonation of intensity and power is that of Kleschna by William Clayton; Mr. William F. Grant is coolness itself as Paul Sylvain. Raoul Berton is well undertaken by Mr. Hamilton Deane; and Mr. Campbell Goldsmid makes a weird Schram.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—One of the finest comedians that has ever appeared upon the Palace stage is undoubtedly Alfred Lester, who, with the support of Miss Florence Wakeman, is winning a legitimate success this week in his latest skit, A Restaurant Episode; Bains and Reed do marvellous feats of acrobatism, combined with plenty of humour; Cambo, the musical monkey, plays upon many instruments pleasantly, and also puts in amusing antics; a new ventriloquist to Bath is Alf. Ripon, who introduces his dummy companion, McPherson, with every sign of favour; the Tally-Ho Trio return to further increase their popularity; Jack Rae, the comedy-gymnast and hat manipulator, is paying a welcome return visit; Bert and Dora, comedy artists, open the programme, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete it.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Mr. Norman Macowan's season in Bedford comes to a close this week, a fact which will be realised with regret by the playgoing public in the town. On Monday night there was a good house to witness A Marriage of Convenience, and all were of opinion that Mr. Macowan is at his best in old-world plays of this description. As the Comte de Candale he was unaffected, but inspiring and impressive, and both he and Miss Violet Sterne had an excellent reception. The latter portrayed the Comtesse de Candale with vivacity, and her manner and tone were charming and refined. Miss Mary Masters gave a piquant impersonation of Martin, a French lady's maid; the Chevalier de Valclos was most successfully presented by Mr. Bernard Copping; and Mr. Murray Hathorn was, as usual, extremely good as a military man. The dresses of the piece were extremely interesting, being a faithful reflex of Parisian life in the middle of the last century. The screen scene from The School for Scandal fittingly brought down the curtain after a most delightful evening. David Garrick is being played during the latter portion of the week.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Thomas Thorne and company, under the direction of M. Russell Rosse, opened here on Monday in Our Boys. Mr. Thorne plays the rôle of Perkin Middlewick in his own inimitable manner, and the success secured on Monday was largely due to his efforts. The rôle of Sir Geoffrey Champneys was quite safe in the hands of Mr. M. Russell Rosse; and Mr. Rex B. Foote acquitted himself with distinction as Talbot Champneys. The part of Charles Middlewick could scarcely have a better representative than Mr. Edward Petley; and a delightful impersonation of Violet Melrose was furnished by the charming Miss Ruby Loncraine. Mary Melrose was cleverly delineated by Miss Edith Vogne; and we have nothing but praise for Miss Rachel De Travis as Clarissa Champneys, and Miss Edith Hesketh as Belinda. The romantic episode The Setting of the Sun forms a capital curtain-raiser. The Guv'nor and Confusion have also been presented.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Miss Cissie Lawson and company top the bill, and have been very successful in their thrilling sketch The Davil's Sunday; Datas exhibits his wonderful ability as a memory man; a feature of the programme is the remarkably clever entertainment provided by Darc's wonderful marionettes; Howard and Collinson appear to advantage in their original absurdity, The Porter and the Parcel, the dancing of the lady being very smart; and Miss Ruby Aston is a charming comedienne and fine dancer. Miss Alexandra Edwin is the happy possessor of a good voice; and also appearing are the Meynotts in their comedy sketch, Semi-Detached; Mr. Harry Webber, dialect comedian; Miss Gladys Huxley, comedienne; and the Palace pictures.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Regals, who top the bill here, have made a hit with their act, comprising many surprising feats of strength; the spectacle, Electra's Bower, by Abdullah and La Superbe, is certainly a beautiful stage picture; Denby and Dent's comedy act is a big attraction; and Picott and Lizette provide plenty of amusement with their illusory act, entitled The Crazy Cook. Carl Rosine's feats of illusion have created much astonishment; and the Sisters Brenton are fine dancers. Also here are Mlle. Rollo, the graceful gymnast; Mr. Bert Kemble, comedian; and the Hipposcope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Miss Ella Shields, the clever coon songstress, tops the bill, and her catchy songs and exceedingly smart dancing, have delighted all; the Jackson Family, great favourites here, play a number of musical instruments to perfection; and roars of laughter greet the amusing sketch Black Justice, presented by Brown and Le Clerq. The Three Cape Girls, long boot dancers, have been accorded a good reception; and Miss Rosa Loader, "the Happy Slavey at the Piano," takes well. Marco, the magician, executes some amazing feats; and also here are Vernando, ventriloquial barber, and the Bioscope.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, appear this week in The Danites, a powerful drama. Mr. Fred Terriss impersonates the leading rôle of Sandy with admirable effect; and Miss Nina Blake-Adams furnishes a capable interpretation of the dual rôle of Nancy Williams and Billy Piper. Mr. Cyril Grier adds further to his laurels by his clever impersonation of the Judge; and Mr. Elmore Frith's interpretation of Hazekial Carter reflects much credit on the able and experienced actor. Mr. Wilford Cheetham's acting as the Parson was remarkably realistic; and Mr. Ed. Smythe as Lumber Tim was admirable in every way. Miss Kathleen Magee as the Widow furnished a clever piece of acting; and Miss Mattie Crawford and Mr. Tom H. Solly were capital as Bunker Hill and Washee. The Alhambra Bioscope, under the able direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett, exhibits a fine picture this week, entitled Algy Becomes an Athlete.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Battersby.—Under the management of Mr. Walter Steele (who also enacts Count Paul Hardiski), Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company is presenting here The Conscript. In the title-part (Karl Truevitch) Mr. Algernon Syms presented a capital study. He is ably assisted by Miss Lilian Rees as Nadia. Mr. W. Cowell Clarke makes a manly Ivan Manloff; whilst Mr. E. Jeffs figures well as the Sergeant of the Guard. Miss Isabel Hunt is a sprightly Wanda, and co-operates well with Mr. Harry Liddle as the Postman.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. Herbert Darnley's company opened here on Monday in The Sandow Girl. In the course of a spirited performance, Mr. Joseph B. Montague is particularly prominent with a humorous rendering of Higgins; Miss Victoria Charlton is in every way suited to the title-rôle, and acquits herself admirably; Miss Hilda Blanche plays Katarina with much acceptance; and Miss Ray Fairfax is well placed as Frau Winkleheim. Col. Klarter is well embodied by Mr. J. C. Graves; Mr. Frank Lennard is an excellent Captain Karl; and Mr. Frank Lilliput as Winkleheim and Mr. Mark Sheridan, jun., as Sergeant Strause are most efficient. Mr. Dudley Powell is musical director.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. G. Clarke.—Miss Hetty King, the popular comedienne and male impersonator, heads a very fine company, which also includes Mr. Hal Forde, the well-known comedian, and the Six Brothers Luck, Ltd., in The Demon of the Cellar. Other excellent turns are contributed by Luigi Salvini, a clever young instrumentalist; the New Macs, patterers and comedians; the Sisters Dorrell, vocalists and dancers; and Miss Lizzie Storie, juvenile descriptive vocalist. The ever-welcome display by Brown's Royal Bioscope is also an acquisition.

Olympian Gardens, Rock Ferry.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton.—A most enjoyable Pierrot entertainment is supported by Miss Mona Vivian (the Child Wonder), Miss Harriet Greene (soprano), Mr. Fred Barnes (comedian), Miss Florence Beech (comedienne), Mr. C. D. Reekie (comedian), and Mr. Forshaw Kershaw (pianist).

The Tower, New Brighton.—Manager, Mr. William Holland.—Mr. John Teller's comedy-ballet Monte Carlo, the Brothers Redmond, eccentric comedians, and the ballet divertissement Wonderland are among the chief attractions here.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Robin Hood is back here, with Mr. Lewis Waller and Miss Nora Lancaster in the chief parts. Mr. Waller's gay and debonair, and withal resolute, investment of the rôle, carries everything before him; and Miss Lancaster as Marian makes a thoroughly ideal representative of the part. Mr. Frank Woolfe is a kingly Richard; the part of Prince John is in the capable hands of Mr. Shiel Barry; Little John has a worthy exponent in Mr. Herbert Jarman; Friar Tuck is very acceptable in the person of Mr. Charles Rock; Miss Dora Barton plays charmingly as Marian's attendant, Adela; Mr. Cecil Cameron vocalises mellifluously as Allan A'Dale; Mr. Owen Roughwood makes a brave Will Scarlet; and Miss Eleanor May as Alison Much is amongst the other serviceable contributors to this charming play, which, by the way, has been much improved since its production last October at the Prince of Wales's here.

Prince of Wales's Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston. — What the Butler Saw is exercising the risible faculties of the Prince of Wales's audiences to the uttermost. Mr. Lionel Rignold as the butler, Pink, is a pattern of comedy, and comes as fresh and popular as ever; Miss Ada Blanche's charming and tireless vivacity as Mrs. Barrington is another welcome feature in the performance; Miss Eleanor Gilbart's study of Miss Foden is cleverly conceived; Miss May Hart is noteworthy in the part of Sophonisba; Miss Julie St. George is well engaged as Mrs. Hake; Miss Mona Garland does admirably as Marie; Mr. Chas. Fawcett acts in a cheery spirit as Jack Barrington; Mr. Cyril Harrison is self-contained and manly as Sir Charles Foden; and the amusing traits of General Dunlop, Abraham Weinstein, and Prof. Shale are all visible in the acting of Mr. George Ascot, Mr. H. H. Rignold, and Mr. Roy Byford respectively. The other rôles are all in good hands.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Sapho, as presented here by Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company, is an engrossing study of Parisian life, which holds the audience riveted to the end. Miss Ada Abbott plays the heroine's part with complete understanding, displaying all the fascinations and cajoleries incidental to the rôle; Mr. Ernest R. Abbott realises the callow provincial to the life, and the after-emotions of the lover are exceedingly well simulated; Mr. Frank Stephens does a lot of good work as Uncle Cesaire; Mr. Weedon Ross is successful as Legrand; Mr. Charles Tring gives an effective portrayal of the felon, Flamant; and the entire cast does well, including Mr. W. H. Garbois as Dechelette, Mr. John Lester as Caoudal, Miss Dorothy Lesleigh as Lucy, Miss Louise Gilmore as Aunt Divonne, and Miss Hetty Jones as Joseph. Mr. Edwin Keene as D'Arac contributes a number of clever musical and humorous specialities.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Tyrant appears here, with Miss Marie Dagmar's and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's powerful company. Mr. Somerfield's assumption of the avenger, Homodei, is a powerful and impressive performance, which compels applause and respect; Mrs. Walter Bentley gives a finished and telling portrayal of Tisbe; Mr. Roy Fortescue plays the tyrant's rôle, Angelo, to the utmost advantage; Miss Margaret Trame acts as the wife, Lady Catherine, in a clever and experienced style; Mr. Edward E. Louis gives an interesting picture of the Prince, Rudolph; Miss Lallah Shelton is very pleasing as Eulie; Miss Vida Hazlewood merits praise as Daphne; and Miss Gertie Reed as Reginella, Mr. Percy Brown as Victor, and Mr. Wilton Drury as Nobbo contribute to the success.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Best Must Win is the attraction this week, portrayed by Mr. Valentine Beadon's company.—Mr. Sidney C. Cranston, under whose direction the play is produced, arouses the utmost admiration with his vigorous assumption of the hero, Paul Dumaresq; Mr. Edward M. Heanley as the Panther, otherwise the Marquis de Marcel, is a powerful character; Mr. Harold Turner shines in a humorous manner as his satellite, Juan Minos; Mr. Valentine Beadon makes much of the old blind soldier, Sabretache; Miss Cicely Desmond combines the rôles of Therese Dumaresq and Lucilla La Flanche with much adaptability and effect; Miss Daisy Humphreys gives a very engaging portrayal of the heroine, Denise; and the comic relief is well served by Mr. Herbert Woodin as Jacques and Miss Madge Palmer as Suzette. The others are also very good.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles. — The Assassin figures here with Mr. Augustine Knight's company. Mr. Knight's contribution to the play as Prince Demetri is a powerful and well-marked performance; Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson shares in the success largely as the young soldier, Ivan Ipanoff; Miss Ella Vane is held in awe and much admiration in the assassin's rôle, Wanda; Miss Eva Trevanna is sympathetic in her acting as Nita, the Prince's victim; the sombre moments of the play are well relieved by the clever sallies of Miss Hettie Senior as the vivacious Connie, supported by Mr. Edward Swinton as the Baron; Mr. Tom J. Taylor as Peter and Miss Marie Robertson as Katrina also being appreciated for their humour. Mr. Theo Balfour, Mr. Edward Fryer, Mr. Edwin Jenner, and Mr. W. Roberts are the other most valuable supporters.

Empire.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—An artistic and unique collection of living statuary is on view this week under the able direction of Mr. Albert Toft; G. H. Elliot, "the Chocolate-Coloured Coon," gives some very pretty songs, and delights all by his graceful dancing; a funny interlude by the Haytors, entitled Cabby and His Fare causes roars of laughter; another little sketch, Beauty and the Burglar, is also cleverly presented by Miss Engler and Co.; Lloyd's Siberian Wolfhounds claim special attention; the "Garden of Girls" are natty dancers; Cruikshank, the clown, is particularly funny; and Happy Tom Parker concludes the bill.

Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—Fred Karno's company leads the way here in Saturday to Monday; Mr. Rolando Martin as the railway porter is very funny; Gus Harris, the Hebrew delineator, appears in a well-written monologue; and the Waldrons, knockabouts, Stewart and Morgan, in a vocal scena, Billy Williams, as great a mirth-maker as ever, the Three Royal Temples, operatic vocalists, P. A. Hope, baritone, and Freddie French, comedian, increase the attractiveness of the entertainment.

Gaiety.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Bella and Bijou are having a good reception here; Chas. Mildare, in a whistling scena, the Four Jumels, in a clever musical act, Florence Esdaile, the Australian Nightingale, Cliff and Kean, comedians, Ike and Will Scott, comedians, and Cissie Curlette, mimetic vocalist, are also in the bill.

Bordesley Palace. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Messrs. Percy Ford and Edward C. Webb's company is presenting The Spy, the chief characters being ably played by Mr. Lionel d'Aragon, Mr. George Hanbury, and Miss Eugénie Magnus. The Casey Court Midgets are making a welcome return visit; Oswald Wiliams, illusionist, in a notable entertainment, is ably assisted by Winifred La Barte and Co.; Harry Anderson, Marie Weston, Starr and Leslie, and Winne Dersan are also entertaining.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—Eden Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company is paying a return visit here in the ever-welcome Chinese Honeymoon. Miss Kitty Clayton is seen in her clever impersonation of Fi-Fi, quite convulsing the audience by her funny rendition; Mr. Leo Kloss performs exceptionally well as Hang Chow; and Mr. Ernest Sefton is diverting with his humorous presentation of Mr. Pineapple. Soo-Soo is charmingly delineated by Miss Lydia Bland; Miss May Davies is an ideal Mrs. Pineapple; and Miss Alma Bolton as Mrs. Brown, "the official mother-in-law," adds considerably to the merriment of the piece. Mr. Frank G. Dunn as Tom Hatherton is capital. Other artists who stand out prominently are Mr. Louis Ashmeade (Chippie Chop), Mr. Lindsay Harman (Hi Lung), and the Misses Madge Davis and Sybil Ross (the Bridesmaids).

BLACKBURN. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Variety holds sway at this theatre, the entertainers being Dr. Walford Bodie and the company of artists. The doctor proves as attractive a turn as ever, his electrical experiments being extremely interesting and amusing, while he has been consulted by many local people whose limbs are crippled, and to whom he has given advice, and treated others nightly on the stage with his "bloodless surgery" method. There is an excellent variety entertainment also, the artists including the Tokio Troupe of Japanese acrobats; Bella Skene, burlesque actress; Little Dollie Robson, child performer; the Musical Acmes; Tom Mills, actor vocalist; Helen Henri, ballad vocalist; and Tom Duriah, comedian.

New Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Mr. Lester Collingwood's company is appearing here in When London Sleeps.

Palace Theatre of Varieties. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—A good entertainment is given by the Three Demons, cyclists on the Devil's table; Harry Bancroft, comedian; the Brothers Ashley; Marba and Verity, acrobatic dancers; Emmie Ames, vocalist; Madoline Rees, comedienne; Metz and Metz, comedians; and the Sisters Morgan, duettists and dancers.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. H. B. Irving has met with the most cordial reception on making his first appearance in Blackpool this week. He is supported by a capable company, with the result that the various plays in which he is appearing have been presented in a very complete manner. As Mathias in The Bells, which was Monday night's attraction, Mr. Irving's acting created a deep impression; Mr. Bernard Limpus did well as Christian, and Mr. Charles Dodsworth assumed with success the part of Father Walter; Miss Gwladys Wynne gave the utmost satisfaction as Annette, and the minor parts were also in capable hands. Charles the First was played on Tuesday, when Mr. Irving scored another success in the title-rôle, and Miss Frank Tyars as Oliver Cromwell and Miss Dorothy Green as Queen Henrietta Maria rendered excellent support. The Lyons Mail was announced for Wednesday.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. George Edwardes' company is again reaping a rich harvest here this week with See-See, in which Miss Denise Orme plays the title-rôle with all her well-known charm and ability, and Mr. Frank Danby is seen at his best as Hang-Kee. Other successes are attained by Mr. W. H. Rawlins, who plays the part of Cheoo, and Mr. Leonard Mackey as Yen. Mr. Mackay's singing is always warmly appreciated in Blackpool. Favourable mention should also be made of Miss Maud Boyd (Mai-Yai), and Misses Sybil Grey, Octavia Barry, and Lilian Hewitson, who appear as Cheoo's wives. The staging and dresses may be described as lavish.

Palace Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Another big programme is provided here this week. Topping the bill is Roland, the wonderful illusionist; then come Harrison Brockbank and company in a nautical sketch; Norman and Leonard Trio in a clever musical turn; Frank Lister and company, who again score a triumph in their dramatic sketch, No. 99; Ruth Molloy, a very clever mimic; Lupino Brothers, eccentric comedians; Brothers O'Brien, comical gymnasts; Johnny Walker, comedian; E. E. Ford, the Australian "Sundowner"; and Harry Rogerson, the "tired" comedian. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope still shows the pictures.

Hippodrome. — General-Manager, Mr. T. P. Duignan.—Visitors here this week are in no wise disappointed with the fare provided for them. Abel and Welch are a pair of exceedingly clever eccentrics, and meet with a warm reception at every performance; Slippere, the blind entertainer, is also well received, and the Avrignys are jugglers of the first order; capital turns are also provided by Annie Cohen, vocalist; Will Toole, comedian; Lottie De Albry, character impersonator; Stanley Four, in a musical act; Alma Obrey, comedienne; George Huntley, with his performing animals, and Bob Baxter, comedian.

North Pier Pavilion.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. James Walker. — A humorous and musical entertainment is provided here twice daily this week by Mr. Sydney James's Royal Strolling Players. Included in the combination are Messrs. Victor Wallace, G. W. Desmond, Sydney James, and Misses Seymour James, Clarice May, and Madeline Rossiter, all excellent artists in their respective lines.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Mr. James Bell has presented, with every success, here this week the drama entitled The Idol of Paris, in which the talented actress, Miss Annie Bell, appears as Flare Flare, a variety star, and scores a success. The company supporting is worthy of every praise.

BOLTON. — Theatre Royal, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. B. Lloyd.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company is here this week, with East Lynne. Miss Julia Kennard displays considerable ability in her interpretation of Lady Isabel; Mr. E. Maule Cole fills well the part of Francis Levison; and Mr. Alfred Beaumont is an effective Archibald Carlyle.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Good houses assemble here at the two shows given nightly by Foreman and Fannan, cross-talk comedians; J. G. Aitken, Scotch comedian; the Sisters Russell, burlesque artists; Dan Conroy, comedian; Les Voces, operatic duettists; the Two Bostons, in burlesque; Marlo, juggler; the Westwoods, in a daring cycle act; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — Muncaster Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The Muncaster Stock Company is this week presenting East Lynne, Mr. Stanley S. Gordon acting admirably as Archibald Carlyle, and Miss Effie Macintosh's Cornelia Carlyle being very effective; Sir Francis Levison as portrayed by Mr. A. D. Adams was praiseworthy; Miss Nina Vaughton's impersonation of Lady Isobel is given with much pathos; and Miss L. Radbourne is good as Barbara Hare.

BOSCOMBE.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—A good bill is put before the patrons of this house, vocal turns being prominent. William Lee, ably assisted by Helen Bentley and company, give a humorous farce; Arthur Croxon, as a mimic, would be hard to beat; the Sisters Aindow present an instrumental turn, which is greatly appreciated; Leah appears to advantage in her song-scena, "Cinderella"; Rosie Archer mimics well-known variety stars in unsurpassable style; the Sisters Wingrove are a pair of charming dancers and duettists; and Pat Rafferty and the pictures are included in the programme.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. James Mayall.—Baron H. Harriss's company is here with The Prince of Pilsen. Mr. Harry Kilburn as Hans Wagner scores a great success; Mr. Frank Crimp makes a fine, manly figure of Carl Otto, singing and acting well; Miss Sophie Harriss repeats her clever performance of the part of Miss Maddison Crocker; Miss Connie Leon as Sidonie, the French maid, is a charmingly clever little artist, whose dancing is encored; Miss Minnie Muir as Nellie Wagner sings her songs daintily; and included in the cast were Mr. S. Lindon Lang as Lieut. T. Wagner, Mr. Bernard Russell as the Earl of Shrimpton, Miss Mollie Wynne as Jimmie; while the excellent rendering of the French waiter by Mr. Ernest Gifford must not be forgotten.

Arthur Slater is a clever whistler; Herbert Clifton, vocal mimic, is enthusiastically received; the Columbia Comedy Trio submit a good humorous musical turn; Horace Wheatley is a capital comedian; Will Goodwin, vocal comedian, merits praise; Ailsa Douglas sings in good style; and the Barrascope pictures are entertaining.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman. — Mr. E. Taylor Platt's company opened here on Monday with You Never Can Tell. Mr. Lewis Casson gave a fine impersonation of Bohun; Mr. Edmund Gwenn submitted a clever character study as William, the old waiter; Miss Mary Barton was distinctly successful as Gloria Clandon; Miss Penelope Wheeler acquitted herself admirably as Mrs. Clandon; Mr. Trevor Lowe as Finch McComas, Mr. P. Clayton Greene as Valentine, Mr. Edmund Gurney as Fergus Crampton, and Mr. Norman Page as Philip Clandon, were well suited; and Miss Amy Lamborn was a delightful Dolly Clandon.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. George Musgrove's company (under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister Howard) is here for the week, with The Belle of New York, the play being excellently staged. Miss Hebe Kneller is pleasing as Violet Grey, both singing and acting the part well; Miss Olive Lenton presents an interesting and captivating study of Fifi Fricot, singing with much expression and dancing in dainty style; Miss Florence Hersee is admirable as Mamie Clancy—she hits off the characteristics of the part admirably, and is an exceptionally clever dancer; Miss Winnie Browne is seen to advantage as Cora Angelique, and in the concluding scene is associated with Mr. J. A. Watts in the Parisian dance, "La Kraguette"; Mr. Ernest Mozar does well as Harry Bronson; Mr. Paddy Duprez makes the most of Ichabod Bronson; Mr. J. R. Tate amuses as Pimpernick; Doc. Snifkins and Kenneth Mugg are satisfactorily taken by Mr. Alfred Sandoe and Mr. Walter Uridge; and Mr. Frank Lawton scores his customary success as Blinky Bill, his dancing, whistling, and bone solo in the second act being much applauded. Several pleasing specialities are introduced, notably a song and dance duet, "A moolight dip in the briny," by Miss Olive Lenton and Mr. Frank Lawton, assisted by the chorus and dancers, and a coon song and dance by Miss Florence Hersee and chorus.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. T. Alty.—A Girl's Cross Roads is being played here by Mr. Walter Melville's company, the drama being both staged and acted well. Miss Hilda Beverley presents a powerful exposition of Barbara Wade, her acting being realistic to a high degree of excellence; Mr. Charles Franmore's study of John Meadows is decidedly clever; Jack Livingstone and Dr. Weston have good exponents in Mr. Wilson Gunning and Mr. Cyril Vernon; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne is highly sympathetic and effective as Constance Cornell; Miss Florence Kelsey acts in a telling manner as Nellie Meadows; Mr. Gerald Jordan is consistent in the unpopular part of Cuthbert Lumley; Mr. Fred Withers hits off a good character sketch of Luke Ramsden; and Miss Fay Garnet Vayne and Mr. Fred Ingram are capital in the comic parts of Tilly Vane and Toby Turvey.

PALACE. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Chirgwin, the white-eyed Kaffir, is here for the week, and proving attractive. Amongst his other specialities, his rendering of the old song, "She wore a wreath of roses," proved to be especially attractive; the Kirbys amuse considerably as comedy and burlesque entertainers; R. H. Douglas is successful as a monologue artist; Claire Greta is a pleasing and accomplished vocalist; the Betsons have a good comedy cycling sketch, A Tramp's Holiday; Nellie Randall is an attractive comedienne; and Les Dicars score with their comedy sporting sketch, Off to the Races. The performance concludes with excellent animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Living statuary is the leading attraction here, the poses of Clito in classical subjects being admirably artistic and effective; the Francis Harold company is presenting an effective dramatic and mystic sketch, The Enemy of Man, Mr. W. J. Mackay acting well as Satan; J. W. Rickaby, comedian, has some amusing songs and patter; Mlle. Yeto does some surprisingly clever acts upon the wire; Terry and Bentley amuse with their singing, dancing, and acrobatic business; Carlotta Levy, comedienne, is highly successful; Johnny Johnston is a versatile musical comedian; Kempton and Murdock amuse with their tramp comedy act; and the performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—Pringle's animated pictures are here for a short season. The variety entertainment includes the Lizzette Troupe of lady acrobats, &c.; the Godfreys, in their musical mélange; and other items of interest. The band is a good one, and the attendance is highly satisfactory.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in Florodora was welcomed on Monday by a large audience. Mr. Fred Eastman as Tweedlepunch was excruciatingly funny; Mr. J. H. Fox well sustains the part of Frank Abercoed; Miss Maisie Ellinger as Dolores was successful with her singing; Miss Edith Housley made a smart Lady Holyrood; Miss Marion Armitage as Angela Gilfain gained much approval for her singing and dancing; Mr. Harold Perry also did well as Capt. Arthur Donegal; Mr. Edmond Russell was "all there" as Cyrus W. Gilfain.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Chung Ling Soo gives a bewildering mystic performance here; the Royal Zerbinis, in The Enchanted Glen, contribute some pretty music; Fred Carey is an original comedian; and Kronin gives some smart impersonations of well-known people. Carozi and Keith are good jugglers; and Keegan and company, in a bicycle absurdity, do some smart tumbling. Bob Hamilton, Scotch comedian, introduces a concertina solo; Kathleen Cogan has two pretty songs; and the Twin Brothers Dean are clever dancers and whistlers.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Martelloni Family, lady acrobats, are loudly encored here; the Marvellous Avolos do smart somersaults from perpendicular poles; Freddy and Carman play on musical instruments exceedingly well; clever dancing is done by the Gilberts; and Mr. F. C. Edwards, baritone vocalist, is loudly applauded. Wild, Willie, and West are very funny; the Three Lancashire Harmony Boys are highly appreciated; and the Empire Theatroscope is admired.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller. — Mr. Fred Karno's company, with His Majesty's Guests, is appearing here. Mr. George Hestor as Sergeant Lightning is a host in himself; Mr. Frank Morton (the possessor of a good voice) is telling as Lord Easem; Mr. Charles Usher (an old favourite here) is natural as Mr. Miffin; and Miss Leonora Castelle (who has a fine presence) does well as Lady Maud Easem.

BURY (LANCS.). — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Manager, Mr. Frank Marks.—A very fine programme here includes La Milo, in her classical representations; other turns embrace condensed versions of The Bohemian Girl and Maritana, by Messrs. Frank Pemberton, Albert Chapman, Vere Vizard, and Evelyn de Lara; Chas. Norton, imitator of popular comedians; Bros. Phillipi, acrobats; Lorna Deane, dancer; Ivey Aberdare, sand dancer; and Halma, a very clever juggler.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—Thompson Wood's Juvenile Stars appear in a musical sketch, entitled A Gipsy's Holiday; the Five Musical Tritons give a good turn; and the Wakeman Quartette; Crossing the Alps, by Keith and Merson's company; Charles Rowen, comedian; and Angelo, lightning painter, are all worthy of special mention.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Penleve.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's No. 1 company is here this week in A Country Girl, which is nightly filling the house. New dresses and scenery, added to sundry fresh numbers, make the play more attractive than ever. Mr. Coningsby Brierley brings down the house as Barry; and Mr. Anthony Gordon does remarkably well as Geoffrey Challoner. Miss May Rawlinson as Marjory, and Miss Nellie Deneney as the Princess, sing delightfully; Miss Poppy Wilkinson is a vivacious Sophie; and Miss Eilaline Thorne a saucy Nan. The company is strong in numbers, and the chorus singing excellent.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Buxton Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—For Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday this week we have Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company in The Blue Moon. A good audience enjoyed the piece immensely, and it was most capably played. Mr. Alfred Clark endowed the part of Major Vivian Collabone with the go so necessary to such a character; and Mr. J. Edward Fraser was satisfactory as Captain Jack Ormesby; Mr. Horace Mauger played his small part of Bobbie Scott well; and Mr. Alfred Burs was greatly appreciated as Moolraj. Mr. Reginald Sivtz was very funny as Private Charles Taylor; and Mr. H. Asheton Tonge acted most acceptably as Prince Badahur. Miss Laura Leycester was well suited to the part of Lady Augusta Brabraham; and Miss Ida Stratbain made Evelyn Ormesby a dainty personage. Miss Clarice Lockstone sang brilliantly as Chandra Nil; and Miss Maud Aston was a sprightly Millie Leroy.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The Lion and the Mouse is again presented here this week by Mr. Walter Maxwell's principal company. Miss Christine Silver delights her audience with her clever rendition of Shirley Rossmore; Mr. Leslie Carter's impersonation of the financier, John Burkett Ryder, is a skilful and painstaking study; as Jefferson Ryder, Mr. Gordon McLeod would be hard to improve upon; the little seen of Miss Evelyn M. Read as Kate Roberts makes one wish for a longer acquaintance with this taking little lady; Mr. Herbert Chown is seen to advantage in his interpretation of the Hon. Bagley; and the parts of Alfred Stott, Whitmore Roberts, and Mrs. Ryder, are all excellently filled by Mr. R. A. Hartley, Mr. John Wheatman, and Miss Maude Townsend respectively.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Her Nameless Child is successfully produced here this week by Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company. The drama is well staged, is full of exciting incidents, and does not fail to win appreciation from large audiences.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The head of the bill here this week is taken by C. W. Somerset and company, in the intensely romantic sketch, The Great Poison Case, and enthusiastic audiences show their appreciation of Mr. Somerset's fine rendering of Dr. Robert Floyd; Miss Agnes Russell is to be congratulated upon her portrayal of Barbara Merrick; and another meritorious piece of acting is that of Mr. Robert Nichols as John Aston; Tom Hern, the "laziest juggler," is also a pleasing feature of the programme, his quiet antics being quite as smart as his clever tricks; the Smythsons present Love Germs, a screamingly funny farce; as a clever conjurer, Cull-Pitt, assisted by Mlle. Adde, would be hard to beat. The Eriks, see-saw equilibrists, Lulu Russell, Californian songstress, Frank Darwin, actor-vocalist, O'Malley and Brown, in their original comedy sketch, You're Still a Friend of Mine, Gertrude Bradshaw, soprano vocalist, and special pictures on the American Bioscope, complete a fine entertainment.

THE PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton. —The Six Brothers Luck have been to Cardiff before, but their increased popularity is this week proved by large audiences. Their funny, farcical absurdity, The Demon of the Cellar, causes unlimited laughter. An entertaining turn is that of Lawson and Namon, the former introducing clever ball-punching and the latter smart trick cycling; Charles Diamond, the world-renowned harpist, and Miss Beatrice, manipulator of the "soprano saxophone," render pleasing melodies; while Bert Coote's Yankee Doodle Girls are exceptionally smart dancers. Others on the programme are Mersano, coin and card manipulator, Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, in a potpourri of musical mélange, Rosalie Jacobi, soubrette, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, with new and interesting pictures.

CARLISLE.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Messrs. A. Hamilton Worden and Charles V. Sandford's company is here this week in A Woman's Past. Miss Masie Hanbury has many opportunities of displaying her exceptional powers in the character of Bessie; Mr. T. Cook Hinton makes a convincing hero; excellent light comedy is capably contributed by Mr. Charles V. Sandford, seconded by Miss Mary Mallalieu, a charming actress. Mr. A. Hamilton Warden displays considerable ability as Clement Harper; and Mr. G. Moreton-Williams and Miss Nesta Sandford make the heavy parts prominent.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—The Selbinis are the chief attraction this week; Miss Daisy James has some good songs, which she renders with excellent effect; the Voldam Bros. work hard in a smart knockabout act; and the Paolias introduce clever feats of strength and classical poses. Nell Brough sings and whistles her way into favour; Harry Fife is a capital comedian; and Edna Latonne, with catchy chorus songs, and some fine pictures by the Pepiscope, complete.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company began a week's visit to this theatre, and on Monday played A Modern Adventuress to a crowded audience. Mr. Charles Draycott, as Pietro Donelli, is all that can be desired; good work is done by Mr. Arthur Mervyn as Harry Delby; Mr. Ernest J. Fare plays Wallace Danton with much skill; Mr. H. Scratchard gives a capital character sketch of the drunken Steve Meredith; Mr. David Donaldson makes the most of his opportunities as Wm. Delby; Mr. Eric Forth is well placed as Walter Beale, a detective; Miss Rosa Mervyn gives a charming performance of Vivette Delby; Miss Muriel Thompson shows great capacity as an actress in the part of Violet Meredith; Mr. Will White creates roars of laughter by his clever impersonation of John Crompton; and he is ably assisted by Miss Eva Norman as Sally Hodges. The Heart of a Hero is billed for to-night.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—Chief amongst an array of good things are Helene and Emilon, graceful and clever gymnasts; George Hyatt gives a really smart turn as a juggler, equilibrist, and hand-balancer; Read and Wright are popular in song and patter; A. G. Spry is a great favourite with his quaint style; The Santeron Wonders give a remarkable exhibition of high jumping; Barney Stuart is appreciated as a mimic; Les Blancs, on the bars, are clever. A successful turn is also contributed by Will Hughes, a boy coon. The Loyal Dominion Company's animated pictures close a pleasant evening.

CHATHAM.—BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Harry Champion tops the bill here, and is proving a big attraction; Phillips and Terry give one of their well-known duologues, which goes better than ever; Jack and Evelyn make a hit with Come into the Office; Lillie Soutter is a pert and pleasing serio; the Onyx Duo please in their quick-change act; Bert Bowden, comedian; and Jennie Hartley, complete the variety turns; while roars of laughter are created by Peter's Pranks, a film which is very clearly projected by means of Lacey's Erascope.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis.—The Three Romas supply skilful feats of strength and hand-balancing; W. H. Downs, the well-known coloured vocalist, gives a novelty act, The Darkey's Dream, in which he is ably assisted by a pair of smart young coons; Sam Dalton scores with "Good enough for me"; Tate and Tate are seen in an amusing trampolin acrobatic act; Lillian Travellie's most successful song is "On the Kerry coast"; the Edisonograph has a capital film, entitled Father Buys a Moke; while Jennie Lee and Gracie Lawn are popular comediennes. On Wednesday Harry Lauder paid a flying visit, and had a very flattering reception.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—The autumn season commenced on Monday evening with Charles Macdona's company in Veronique. Mr. Daley Cooper interprets the whimsicalities of Monsieur Coquenard in a most amusing manner; Miss Mabel Lait is a fresh and dainty Veronique; Mr. Arthur Stroud sings well as Florestan; Mr. Sidney Bracey is good as Seraphin; Miss Elsie Probyn is a charming bride; Miss Roberta Williams convinces as Mme. Coquenard; Mr. Henry Hodgkins takes the part of Felicien in promising fashion; and Mr. Oliver J. Round diverting portrays the peculiar attributes of Loulot the bailiff.

MONTPELLIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Alfred W. Newton.—The Royal Comedy Entertainers are paying a return visit this week. Mr. John Warren and Marmaduke are as amusing as ever; and Mr. Owen Clark, illusionist; Mr. Fred Daniells, humorist; Miss Nellie Webber, vocalist and accompanist; and Mr. Chas. Davis, baritone, are all excellent in their way.

CHESTER.—ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Quite a change of entertainment is supplied here by Mr. Lewis Waller's company in Robin Hood. The title-rôle is ably filled by Mr. Ethelbert Edwardes, whose representation meets with much favour Mr. B. Bellenden Clarke gives a vigorous impersonation of Prince John; Mr. Ernest Gray makes a successful appearance as Fitz Alwynne; Tracey has a suitable representative in Mr. Alex Begbie; Mr. H. Elliot Ball, who appears as Hugo de Longespec, mars an otherwise admirable performance by an indistinct utterance; Mr. Henry Lesmere makes a majestic figure of King Richard; and Mr. Leslie Rea excels in the part of John Little; Mr. C. Bruce Winston, as Friar Tuck, puts in some effective work; the Queen Dowager is cleverly embodied by Miss Madge Devereux; a like remark applies to Adela, as represented by Miss Barbara Hannay; Miss Fyfe Alexander is a delightful Lady Marion de Vaux; the part of Alison being suitably enacted by Miss Iris Lincoln.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hemingway.—Mr. James Hare and company are here with A Destroyer of Men. As Karl Mischla Mr. James Hare is seen to advantage, Count Starevitch being excellently portrayed by Mr. C. P. Wentworth. Mr. Ross Warren humorously undertakes Coco Totchoski, his clever singing, &c., being much appreciated; Mr. Charles Coventry is good as Fedor Streltzki; as is also Mr. Arthur Swain as Colonel Linievitch. Miss Irene Clifford gives an effective impersonation of Olga; Miss Emmie Barton charmingly presents Vida Ravel; and Miss Alice Buckland vivaciously portrays Nina Pattakake.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—The attraction for the first three nights of this week was Mr. E. H. Bostock's vaudeville company, which includes De Gracia's performing elephants; Crosby and Walker, comedians; Franco Midgets; the Netas; Alix Lukos; Will, May, and Theresa; Nancy St. John, comedienne; Conan and Doyle, comedians and dancers, all of whom did well. The boards for the remaining three nights were occupied by Mrs. Ann Hughes's company with the new comic opera, The Young Lieutenant.

COLCHESTER.—HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Mr. John Tiller's company played High Jinks on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and concluded the week with A Trip to Paris. Messrs. Bob Selvidge, Teddy Gibbs, and Barney Dixon form the nucleus of a capital company; Mr. Harold Wardroper cleverly portrays the part of Flash Bill; Miss Jessie Templeton makes a charming Mrs. Dene; and Miss Minnie Cecil is nicely placed as her companion. Miss Lizzie Hay as Mary Ann dances well.

COLWYN BAY.—PUBLIC HALL.—Lessee, Mr. C. R. Chaplin.—Messrs. Adrian Hill and Robert Ayrton's company has this week been presenting The Gambler's Daughter to crowded houses. To the rôle of Desmond O'Dare, an Irish emigrant, Mr. Robert Ayrton imparts a deal of comedy, interspersed with pathetic passages; Mr. Alfred Sanders's Solomon is a clever impersonation of a Hebrew; John Grant, a gambler, is admirably portrayed by Mr. Richard Pitt; as the Weasel, afterwards Captain Stanhope, Mr. Frank Croft displays talent; the heavy lead is in the capable hands of Mr. A. G. Lython; Miss Adria Hill, in the dual rôle of Mildred Grant and Miriam Grant, mother and daughter, plays admirably; and Miss Harriet Loydell, as a negress, is exceptionally amusing.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance. —The attraction here this week is the Anglo-Russian drama, Under the Czar, presented by Mr. Wilson Howard's able company. Mr. Gerald Smythe as Captain Johnson and Mr. Wilson Howard as Nicholas Yersolaff each do justice to their respective parts; whilst that of Zakhar Kovesky is well filled by Mr. William Mathews. Mr. Fred Elvin is a good Paul Ignat; and Mr. R. Merring a creditable Michael Graneviski. Miss Madge Clare is most capable as Zara; and as Siomka Miss Violet Vivienne is all that can be desired. Miss Carlotta Anson well deserves the applause accorded her for her careful rendering of Sonia.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—A vaudeville entertainment is given here this week. Nellie Farrell, singer and dancer, is a capital artist, and her songs and dances are excellent; the Sisters Varley as duettists are pleasing; Martinett and Wallace, coloured musicians, are a clever pair; the Uniques (two ladies and a gentleman) perform wonderful feats on ladders; Harry Carsdale, the human farmyard, brought forth much mirth; Victor Newman gives interesting impersonations; Carl Howard, a crazy conjurer, wins favour; and the American Bioscope shows capital pictures.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The Palace Theatre reopened on Monday with packed houses, and Mr. O'Brien must be congratulated on the splendid programme provided. The theatre has been renovated, and looks very bright and comfortable. The bill contains such favourites as Minnie Cunningham, who contributes capital songs, and delights her audiences; the Carlyles, in whirlwind dances, are very interesting; Charles Coverdale is an exceptionally clever comedian, and, in addition to his songs, gives some amusing patter; the Itrams supply a pretty turn on the trapeze; Fred Arthur, as vocalist and mimic, is inimitable; the Comerfords are clever acrobats; Maude Vera is a dainty coon artist; and last, but not least, E. Hoggan-Armadale (late Sir Henry Irving company) as Matthias in The Polish Jew, supported by a small company, gives a clever performance.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—A second visit of Mr. George Alexander's company in His House in Order is drawing crowded houses this week. Too much could scarcely be said in praise of Mr. Stephen T. Ewart in his intellectual and admirable rendering of Hilary Jesson. He is ably supported by Miss Grace Armytage Noble as Nina Jesson. Mr. J. Edward Pearce is successful as Filmer Jesson, M.P.; the Ridgeley family, Sir Daniel and Lady Pryce, and Geraldine, are capably taken by Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald, Miss Augusta Haviland, Mr. E. R. Holloway, and Miss Blanka Stewart respectively; and Mlle. Lilla Kehr gives a creditable rendering of the French governess.

HIPPODROME THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Lennox Barry.—A varied programme this week includes the Fourteen Black Hussars, a clever musical troupe, under the direction of Mr. Henderson Smith, whose music is very fine; Nat Clifford keeps the audience in a merry mood; Miss Kate Gourlay, Scotch comedienne and dancer, is clever; and Goodfellow and Gregson, comedy sketch artists, are equally good. The other artists are Chant and Chant, the Brothers Durrant, and the Zentrix. The entertainment concludes with capital pictures on the Bioscope.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—A capital programme is being well appreciated here this week. Henry Coutts and company (including Mr. Louis Du Cane and Miss Dot Kemp) head the programme in their quick-change military episode, Outflanked, in which Mr. Coutts is responsible for nine distinct changes, all done with marvellous rapidity; another clever turn is given by Menotti, the Stockholm wonder, who performs the feat of attaining forty miles an hour on a single wire; the Sisters May are successful as duettists and dancers; Olive and Owen give a pleasing comedy act as Roadside Tinkers; Frank Leon, who has won several championships, is a very clever dancer; Sid Brandon is a capable comedian; Paulinetti and Piquo give an amusing gymnastic comedy turn; and Rossi Ashton also appears, the usual pictures concluding.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company, in A Country Girl, has been here for three nights. Mr. Arthur Staples introduced much humour into the part of Barry; Mr. Martin D. Pitts, a popular Geoffrey Chaloner, contributed several good musical numbers; Mr. Bernard Vaughan made a good impression as the Rajah of Bhong; Mr. David Fisher gained favour as Douglas Verity; Mr. W. O. Billington was an effective Sir Joseph Verity; Mr. Fred Carrington a good Granfer Mummery; and the rôle of Lord Anchester was in the capable hands of Mr. Ernest Louis. Miss Gladys Cristol sang and acted charmingly as Marjorie Joy; Miss Gipsy Touzeau made a captivating Sophie; Miss Poppy Dale an ideal Princess; and Miss Blanche Lynn an irresistible Nan. Mr. T. Morton Powell's company, in Honour Thy Father, was billed for the last three nights.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—The Scarlet Patrol is winning approval here. Mr. J. S. Durant is free and easy in the rôle of Lord Robert Cumberland; Mr. St. John Hamund submits a capital character-sketch of the part of Phineas Fogey; Mr. Arthur Stigant keeps the fun at high pressure as Nicholas Quiller; Mr. Fred Rolph is good as Mr. Cooper; Mr. Leonard Russell acts well and sings to perfection as Inspector Jury; and Mr. J. H. Bishop makes a big hit in the character of Johnny, the coloured servant. Miss Reydon Dallas vocalises sweetly, and plays charmingly in the rôle of Amazon North; Miss Florence Linton makes a fascinating Ernestine; and Miss Elsie Cooke is bright and attractive in the part of Myra Myrtle.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James.—The well-known drama, Wep-Ton-No-Mah, is welcomed again here this week. Mr. C. W. Charles as Col. Stockton plays with great power; Mr. Edward Leroy gives a fine portrayal of Manuel Lopes; Mr. Arthur J. Saunders is a capable representative of Captain Franklin; Mr. Guy D. Hackney submits a realistic representation of Chief Ga-ne-Gau; Mr. Alfred Lafolle earns distinction as Sam White; and Mr. Edwin Millens as Carrie Cullen is greatly appreciated. Miss Blanche Leroy ably sustains the rôle of Nellie Stockton; Miss Jessie Hart wins credit in the part of Miss Matilde Sniffles; and the title-rôle is maintained by Miss Go-Won-Go-Mohawk in her usual telling manner.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor, Mr. Walter Gibbons; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—The Howes are giving a smart exhibition of thought transference here, and are warmly applauded; the Sisters St. Julian are high-class harmonising duettists and dancers; the Brontes, comedy duo artists, are extremely amusing; Mlle. Roza's canine hippodrome is well worth seeing; the Resuas Trio are great on the wire and in their balancing act; Queenie May is a clever comedienne; Fred Eustace and company are quite up to the mark in the dramatic sketch, The Amber Light; Lilian Elfreda, mimic, is commendable; and Harry Thurston, comedian, also appears.

PUBLIC HALL. — Messrs. Gale and Polden are giving here, for a short season, an exceptionally high-class series of animated pictures, which include scenes of life in the King's Service afloat and ashore. They are certainly the best of their kind seen in Croydon, and are being much enjoyed by crowded houses.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell. — Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and specially selected company, including Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., are here this week in a repertoire of plays, opening with The Taming of the Shrew. Miss Harris is charming as Katharina; Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., gives a fine rendering of Petruchio; Mr. Mark Draper excels in the part of Baptista; Mr. E. Stuart Vinden is smart as Hortensio; Mr. Aubrey Mather, as Lucentio, is successful; Mr. Robert Borland shows merit in the part of a tailor; Miss Muriel Dole, as the widow, acts well; Miss Gertrude Gilbert, as Curtis, is quite at home in the part; Miss Kate Turner, as Bianca, is good; and Mr. Claude Sykes, as Vincentio, is seen to advantage. Much Ado About Nothing, The Royal Oak, Twelfth Night, and Romeo and Juliet are also in the bill.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—This week Mr. Whitmore Ledger presents Miss Hettie Jeffries' company in A Nobleman of Nature. The title-rôle is admirably played by Mr. Howard Coveney; Mr. Ledger is an excellent Paul Berndoff; Mr. Richard Harris as Michael shows considerable ability; and Mr. David Urquhart is a capable Philip Hampton. Miss Jeffries as Vera gains the sympathy of the audience; Miss Alvina Mining is clever as the Twin Sisters; Miss Dot Russell, a pleasing Polly Bouncer, dances well; and Mr. Dan Mining causes much amusement as Bill Drinkwater.

DERBY. — GRAND THEATRE. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Charles Denley and H. Taylor.—An instructive star turn is provided here this week, namely, a Ju-Jitsu exhibition, presented by Frank Long, Miss Omoya San, and company, whose efforts are highly appreciated The Four Robertys, another capital item, are remarkably clever balancers and jugglers; Little Dando, eccentric comedian, provokes as much mirth as ever; Les Zelovas, acrobatic equilibrists, are deserving of special mention; Alice Maude, a clever child mimic, is accorded hearty applause; the Melroses are diverting vaudeville artists; the Four Sisters Godfrey are pleasing vocalists and dancers; and the Bioscope is also well to the fore.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Mr. Herbert Hollister's company is here in The Lights o' London. Leading parts are most ably sustained by Miss Jeannie Burgoyne (Bess), Mr. C. F. Colling (Harold Armytage), Mr. G. Wallace (Squire Armitage), and Mr. Herbert Morgan (Clifford Armytage). The humorous business is entrusted to Mr. Payne Fletcher.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The Frank Bateman dramatic company is here with No Wedding Bells for Her. Miss Lizzie Montague evoked plaudits by her assiduous and faithful portrayal of Lola Delaspierre. Mr. Stuart Lomath as Frank Hatherleigh acts with distinction and polish. Miss Doris Lorraine worked hard as Doris Fane, and her portrayal is winningly refined and gentle. Mr. Percy Shaw establishes himself as a favourite by his impersonation of the Detective. Drollery of the most diverting type is supplied by Mr. Barry Lupino as Simpkins. As Peggy Miss May Lupino is piquante. Mr. Pringle Roberts as Montague Blair and Mr. Lincoln Galthorpe as Abney Stone are also notable. Miss Ethel Lawrence deserves warm praise for her performance as the old actress, and Miss Nellie Wilson is meritorious as Mrs. Eastman.

DONCASTER.—NEW THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Her Marriage Vow is here. Mr. Edward L. Garside is effective in the rôle of Gilbert Carlton, and Ned Benton, telegraph operator, is vividly presented by Mr. George Beverley. Mr. Dan Ryan represents Larry Leary amusingly; Mr. Wilford Bailey is a satisfactory Eben Chubb; Miss Nellie Shirley is an acceptable Hestor Norton; and a praiseworthy exposition of Almira comes from Miss Annie Beaumont.

DOUGLAS.—GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—Mr. George Dance's principal company, in the musical play The Beauty of Bath, has secured considerable patronage here this week. Miss Gladys Guy acts agreeably as the Hon. Betty Silverthorne, her vocalisation charming all; Mr. Jack Crichton's Sir Timothy Bun is irresistibly funny; Mr. Bay Russell adds importance to the scheme by his impersonation of the actor Bellamy, and the Lieutenant Richard Allington of Mr. Andrew Higginson is gallant and debonair. Master Basil Clifford's work is distinctly clever, and Miss Ida Laurie and Miss Jessie Lonnen are well placed.

GAIETY THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company have been appearing here this week in The Blue Moon with much success. Miss Marie Wilson as Chiandra Nil is picturesque and pleasing; Miss Ethel Callanan, Miss Florence Imeson, Miss Marie Rignold, and Miss Violet Hobson play daintily in attractive rôles; Mr. Edward Lewis is droll as Moolraj; Mr. George Mudie, jun., makes a hit as Bobbie Scott, the journalist; and an undoubted success is also made by Mr. Horace Mills as Private Charles. Other characters are suitably played by Mr. Jack Cannot and Mr. Rolance Bottomley.

THE PALACE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—The Living Art Bronzes of Mme. Clasen appeal to the artistic eye; Les Cleos gain applause, and so do the Sisters Geretti on the trapeze. Mr. Fred Elton can play and sing effectively; Mr. Alf Gibson has caught on well; Miss Madge Grey is clever as an imitator; and the Firnans are smart dancers. Mr. Harry Wood's orchestra is an incentive to dancers, and Vernon's Bioscope still attracts. The special function of the week was Mr. Charles Fox, jun.'s annual benefit, which occurred on Tuesday, when, in addition to the turns already referred to, the following artists gave their services: Miss Helen Charles, the Two Falcons, Mr. Rowland Hill, the Cromwells, Misses Showell, the Imperial Russian Troupe, and the Douglas Male Choir. Mr. Robert Radford also sang, and his appearance was greeted with plaudits.

DERBY CASTLE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred J. Kelly.—The Imperial Russian troupe of dancers gain great applause. In the Bijou Opera House appear Miss Nellie Martell, a bright and vivacious actress; the New York Nippers, smart dancers; those clever acrobats, the Two Falcons; Miss Rose and Miss Florence Showell, duettists of marked capacity; Miss Helen Charles, who can whistle, mimic, and sing with effect; the Cromwells, who rely on an interesting juggling act; and Rowland Hill, a resourceful comedian. Great features here are the dance competitions.

THE HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. F. J. Connor.—The Brilliants, John Irvin, Du Calion, Senorita Rosa Montero, and Miss Pinder, among others, have been warmly welcomed here. Mr. Fred Buxton's Pierrots and Tea Village maintain their prestige. A talented company is engaged.

Mr. Charles Dare's Minstrels on Douglas Head are patronised by thousands of spectators on sunny days. The programme presented is remarkable for its excellence. On Tuesday a benefit was tendered to Mr. Dare, and was largely attended. This clever entrepreneur has now been here for eighte song and dance; Miss Julia Bassett as Mrs. Pamela Bung creates endless hilarity; Mr. Laurence Wensley is in good voice and acts in manly style as Eric Brown; Mr. Ralph Lynn as the Hon. Percy Brassington submits a refined and distinctly clever impersonation; Mr. Walter Champney as John William Bung comes in for much applause; and Mr. J. H. Weekes deserves special mention for his acting in the difficult rôle of Françoise. The chorus is remarkably good.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Peberdy.—The Bouncing Dillons, comedy gymnasts, are being warmly received here this week, their sensational performance being executed with the greatest ease and neatness. A clever turn is that of the Ettenas, globe speciality artists, who are both amusing and attractive; Leonard Barry, in "The Mouchers' Walk," is amusing crowded houses which testify to his popularity; the Three Tivoli Girls are very lively in song and dance. Other excellent artists are the Garstell Trio, instrumentalists and patterers; Sylvene (assisted by Miss Florence) equilibrist; Lilian Devon, comedienne and dancer; Resta Wentworth, comedienne; and Percy Williams, descriptive vocalist. The Empire Bioscope completes an excellent programme.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. George Alexander's company is here this week in John Glayde's Honour. Mr. Philip Cuningham, as John Glayde, gives an earnest and polished representation; the part of Trevor Lerode is capitally delineated by Mr. H. G. Bentley; Mr. E. C. Vaughan as Howard Collingham acts in a careful and finished manner; and a fine piece of character acting is submitted by Mr. Cyril Cattley as Shurmur; Muriel Glayde has a brilliant representative in Miss Auriol Lee, who scores a great success; Miss Beatrice Smith is excellent as the Princess; Miss Dorothy Moore Lane is a good Mrs. Rennick; while Miss Mary Summer makes a sweet and delightful Dora.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam McIntosh.—Ethel Whiteside and Pics introduce plantation melodies and high-class comedy here to the delight of the audience; Gertie Gitana in her songs displays a voice of excellent quality, and her dancing is also smart; Minnie Fenton, a young and talented Scotch comedienne, is enthusiastically received; the Gondolier Glee Singers take well with their nicely-rendered operatic numbers; Webb and Branston are good operatic duettists; Professor Bartle displays ability as a concertina soloist; Harry Wenburn is a first-class comedian; Beaufort is greatly appreciated as a contortionist; and Marie Neilson is a pleasing comedienne and dancer. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, with a new series of pictures, concludes a good bill.

NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P Williams.—Harry Tilbury and company are here in His Dishonoured Wife. Mr. Frank Harvey is successful in his portrayal of Frank Lindon; Mr. Horatio Sinclair, as Lord Devant, submits a good impersonation; Mr. Harry Tilbury is very funny as Mickey Doolan; Mr. A. George Fry's Neil Locksley is a good character study; and Mr. Harrison Weir is excellent as Geoffrey Harvey; Miss Belle Tilbury, as Florence Lindon, acts sweetly and sympathetically; Miss Arline T. George is very good as Alice Harvey; while Mabel Lindon has a good representative in Miss Ivy Rocheforte.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Animated pictures are still the rule here. The dramatic items include The Secret of Death Valley, Two Sisters, and A Woodland Tragedy; while those in the humorous line are Bobby's Birthday and Should Women Vote? Variety turns are supplied by Daisy Devenport, a dainty singer and dancer; R. C. Note, a first-rate vocalist; and Harry Lamb, a local Scotch comedian.

EASTBOURNE.—THE PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—On Monday evening, to a crowded house, Mr. Milton Bode's excellent company commenced a three nights' engagement with The Belle of Mayfair. Miss Queenie Finnis was a dainty and attractive Julia; Miss Veronica Brady as Pincott was a great success, dancing gracefully and singing capitally; Miss Agnes Tandy, possessed of an excellent voice, sang in cultured style as Princess Carl; Miss Nellie Cozens was a handsome and sparkling Lady Chaldicott; Miss Aurelie de Loriere, a graceful and shapely "Gibson girl"; Mr. Harry Parker's well-known droll style was invaluable in the part of Sir John, and he kept the house in roars of laughter. Mr. Fern Pounds was admirably suited as Raymond Finchley; Mr. Haddon Cave was a brisk, refined Mount Highgate; Mr. Gwyn Alwyn worked hard and smartly as Hugh Meredith; Mr. Laurie Lisle vivaciously played the rôle of Comte de Perrier; and Mr. George McCloskie ably undertook the part of Dr. Lawrence. Later in the week Mr. George Dance's company appeared in The Little Michus.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—At the top of the bill are Lennie and Hast, who sing capitally, and have an exceptionally pretty scena, The Sea Nymph; Frank Seely is quite a favourite here; Messrs. W. A. Haines and Alan Borthwick's company appears in a bright sketch, Half a Dollar; Mr. Harry Taft is popular as a whistling comedian; Miss Bertha Winder is an accomplished clog-dancer: Miss Rose Gower, a pleasing and refined ballad vocalist; and the Sisters Harte. Mike Sipple, and new pictures complete the bill.

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE. — Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Bath Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. George Dance's capable and hard-working company is appearing here in The Spring Chicken. Mr. Percival Knight is a great success as Barbori; Mr. Fred Payne, with a funny style all his own, is a most amusing Mr. Girdle; Mr. Harry Averill is a happy and smart Boniface; Mr. A. Drinkwater a suitable Papouche; Mr. Frank Altree a pronounced success as Felix; and Mr. Louis Victor and Miss Lilian Errol are realistic children as Stephen and Emmy. Liberal praise must be bestowed upon Miss Violet Lorraine as Rosalie; Miss Nellie Wigley is a pretty Dulcie Barbori; Miss Nellie Kavanagh an amusing Mrs. Girdle; Miss Poppy Poole a delightfully graceful Baroness Papouche; and Miss Tatty Leonard and Miss Mary Hearn are alluring representatives of La Belle Cissi and La Modiste.

EDINBURGH.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The dramatic season here has been opened this week by Mr. Wentworth Croke with a return visit of The Christian. Miss Daisy Scudamore gives a conscientious and altogether charming study of Glory Quale; and the part of John Storm is ably rendered by Mr. Frank Beresford. The Polly Love of Miss Dorothy Milne is characterised by tragic intensity; Mr. Wilfrid Noy puts realism into his impersonation of Horatio Drake; Lord Robert Ure is consistently portrayed by Mr. W. J. Butler; while Father Lamplugh, Brother Paul, The "Faro" King, and Mrs. Callender find commendable representatives in Messrs. Edwin Ling, P. Gedge Twyman, Bert Conway, and Miss Molly Hayden, minor parts being also adequately filled.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. George T. Minshull.—Mrs. Patrick Campbell, supported by Miss Stella Patrick Campbell and a London company, has been appearing here this week in an interesting repertory. In The Second Mrs. Tanqueray the distinguished actress repeated her wonderful creation of Paula, one of her greatest triumphs. Miss Stella Campbell won full recognition for the merits of her acting in the part of Ellean; Miss Margaret Watson was excellent as Mrs. Cartelyou; and Mr. Julian Royce refreshingly natural as Cayley Drummle; and Mr. Charles Garry played conscientiously the difficult part of Aubrey Tanqueray; while both Mr. James Gelderd and Miss Catherine Dupont were quite acceptable as Sir George and Lady Orreyed; and Mr. Alfred Goddard, Mr. Aidan Lovett, and Mr. Wallace Ashton suitably filled respective rôles of Captain Ardale, Frank Misquith, and Dr. Gordon Jane. Great interest was raised by the production of Hedda Gabler, a play not hitherto seen in Edinburgh, and Ibsen's sombre work received a well-nigh perfect interpretation, compelling the closest attention. Mrs. Patrick Campbell's artistic resources enabled her, in the name-part, to surmount the arduous task of successfully portraying an unsympathetic and cynical woman without any lovable qualities. Mr. Gelderd's George Jesman and Miss Watson's Aunt Juliana were wholly delightful character studies; Miss Dupont gave an admirable impersonation of Mrs. Elvsted; Berta was typically represented by Miss Helen Boucher; and the rôles of the crafty Judge Brach and the impulsive Eilert Lövborg were ably acted by Mr. Garry and Mr. Royce. Magda was also included in the week's bill.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Crowded houses have filled the Empire this week, where the attraction has been Miss Vesta Tilley, whose finished and artistic male impersonations and characteristic songs continue to be marked by all the charm and fascination which have placed this talented lady foremost in the front rank of vaudeville entertainers. There are other good items in an exceptionally strong programme. Mr. Will Cornish gives a pleasing exhibition of skill in his musical bell-ringing; the Carmos perform some remarkable herculean feats of strength and juggling novelties; and the two old favourites, Spry and Austin, provide a popular turn. Mr. Charles Fisher and company appear with much acceptance in their operetta sketch, The Music Master; a somewhat original comedy scene, entitled Captain Cupid, is smartly rendered by Messrs. Geo. C. Doughty and company; Boswell's stage circus illustrates the clever training of ponies, dogs, and a donkey; Miss May Henderson proves herself a lively dancer; Mr. Syd May is successful in imitations of music-hall singers; and the ubiquitous bioscope completes a good bill.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—Considerable enthusiasm signalised the reopening of this popular theatre on Monday evening, after a short recess, during which the house has been brightened and improved. A better programme could scarcely be provided than that put forward by the enterprising manager, and overflowing audiences at both performances showed their appreciation of the bill of fare. Mlle. Ghita Corri delighted her hearers by her singing of favourite Scottish ballads; the vocal contributions of the Three Sisters McQueen were also most pleasingly rendered; Marie Winsome gained great applause for her male impersonations; enjoyable comedy turns were contributed by Belford and Mars, by A. B. Thorne, and by May Garry; Zasma gave a clever gymnastic display; Leslie H. Murray performed some good conjuring tricks very smartly; and the Alhambrascope showed a series of entertaining films.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville; J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Miss Decima Moore and company are here this week in the comedy The Truth, produced under the direction of Mr. Fredk. Mouillot, and is attracting large "houses." Miss Decima Moore is charming as Becky Warder, her winning manner immediately obtaining the sympathy of her audience. Mr. Robert Minsters as Tom Warder is excellent, his acting being characterised by a dignified demeanour which well suits the part. Both Miss Moore and Mr. Minster were recalled frequently. Mr. Arthur Hare does exceedingly well as Stephen Roland, and Miss Maud Renden as Eve Lindon and Hugh Ardale as Fred Lindon ably sustain their respective parts.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Frederick Melville's drama, The Ugliest Woman on Earth, has occupied the boards of this theatre during the week. Miss Beatrice Homer, in the title-rôle, sustains a trying and difficult part with grace, dignity, and artistic skill; Mr. Philip Darien's representation of Jack Merryman was marked by fine elocution; Mr. Leyton Cancellor did well as Hubert Gold; Mr. Leonard Thackeray was effective as Antonio; and Mr. Tubby Edlin purveyed humour in unstinted fashion.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. J. Sneison.—A house crowded in every part accorded Mr. Arthur Carlton's company in The Span of Life a cordial reception on Monday night. The hero, Richard Blunt, is played with vigour by Mr. Arthur Chisholm; while Miss Ella Wilmer is a talented and charming heroine. The Stebbing Trio of acrobats are a decidedly clever troupe their human bridge being a smart piece of work; Mr. Sanderson Moffat as Dunstan Leech earns unstinted applause; Mr. Walter Dale and Miss Kitty Russell are responsible for the humorous element, and are well received.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. George Dance's company opened here on Monday with The Little Michus. Mr. Foster Courtenay as General des Ifs was extremely funny; Miss Alice Coverick and Miss Gracie Sinclair were charming representatives of the title-rôles; Mr. William Benson made an amusing character-study of Père Michu; Miss Mary Young was equally successful as Mme. Michu; Mr. Gilbert Childs added to the general merriment by a capital portrayal of Bagnolet; and Mlle. Marjorie's graceful dancing was a strong feature. Mr. George Dance's company, in The Spring Chicken, came on Thursday.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—"The Gipsies and their Jester" increase in popularity week by week. Mr. D'Arcy Clayton introduces amusing songs; Mr. Will Gane, the jester, is a clever humorist; Miss Barbara Antoine sings in a sprightly manner; Miss Elsie Wood is a skilful vocalist; Miss Florence Crofts affords every satisfaction; and Mr. Eric Davidson has a really fine voice.

VICTORIA PIER.—Manager, Mr. Robert Forsyth.—The renowned Jamaica Choir are paying a welcome return visit here this week, and their performance is of a pleasing nature. Added to this attraction are Blanche and Dracoff, the daring cyclists, who are creating quite a sensation.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—The chief attraction here this week is Astley's American Circus, a "turn" which is productive of much laughter. Halter and Ray, eccentric duettists and dancers, are popular; a great "hit" is made by Cavalli, a ventriloquist with much quaint humour; original Arley's Combination supplies much pleasurable entertainment; Jimmy Shields, the one-legged dancer and vocalist, is to the fore; George Acre, a descriptive vocalist of ability, has many admirers; and Hans and Lux, knockabouts; Rose and Maidment in "The Shoeblack and the Serio"; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope also contribute.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—No Man's Land, presented by Miss Ida Millais' Co., occupies the boards at this house this week. Mr. Henry Herne is a capable Harry Oaklands, Mr. Ernest Percy portrays Mat Marsden with the necessary vigour, Mr. Henry Carlisle in the dual rôles of Gilbert and Captain Bathurst shows much cleverness, Miss Ida Millais is a charming Mary Bathurst, Miss Emma Stockley a diverting Mrs. Poodle, and Bessie Poodle is well portrayed by Miss Dora Hilstrom.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—The New York Picture Co. continues to supply the fare at this house. A feature this week is the depiction of the Coventry Pageant, which has been enthusiastically received.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Mr. Hall Caine's play, The Prodigal Son, is being performed in capital style here this week by Mr. George D. Day's company. The company is headed by Miss Lily Hall Caine, who doubles the parts of Thora and Elin; in the former character her acting is marked by great tenderness and feeling, while in the latter rôle she presents a delightfully girlish picture. Mr. Albert Ward takes the title-part (Oscar Stephensson) and expresses the varying emotions of the wayward son with considerable art; the part of the domesticated brother Magnus is portrayed with fine dramatic power by Mr. Oswald Cray; well contrasted types of character are seen in the Governor of Mr. Lewis Sealy and in the Factor of Mr. James Skea; the Doctor Olsen of Mr. Robert Forsyth is a finished performance; Mr. H. H. Barrington is well suited as the Pastor; Mr. R. D. Brooksmith appears successfully as the Sheriff; and the parts of Finsen and the Casino Director are well represented by Mr. C. Cooper and Mr. Cavers Campbell respectively. Miss Betty Castle gives a spirited and convincing study of the rôle of Helga Neilson; good work is done by Miss Isabel Grey as Anna Magnusson; and Miss Mima Renouf as Margaret Neilson, the other feminine parts being well filled by Misses Rosalie Notrelle, Florence Lovelle, and Florence Manners.

KING'S THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—That accomplished actress, Mrs. Russ Whytal, is back in Glasgow with Tom Taylor's famous play, Clancarty, and large houses testify to her popularity. As Lady Clancarty Mrs. Whytal gives to the part all the pride, nobility, and pathos that it demands; as Lord Clancarty Mr. Acton Bond has a high ideal of the part, and is distinctly fine throughout; in portraying the rôle of the King that able actor, Mr. Stratton Rodney, is very effective; while finer representatives of the parts of Portland, Woodstock, and Spencer could hardly have been chosen than Messrs. Charles Combe, Arthur Burne, and J. J. Bartlett. Miss Mabel Knowles made the part of Lady Betty Noel distinctly coquettish and enjoyable; as Mother Hunt Miss Henrietta Yule deserves a word of praise; and the many other characters were suitably enacted.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—That inimitable comedian, Mr. Edward Terry, and his talented company appeared on Monday and Thursday evenings before large audiences in R. C. Carton's excellent play, Liberty Hall. Mr. Terry was responsible for as capital a representation of Toddy (the old bookseller) as it is possible to conceive, and certainly merited the hearty applause and recalls that were bestowed after each act; Mr. Thos. Holding, who appeared as Mr. Owen, gave the requisite tone to his part, and his acting was superb; Mr. B. A. Pittar was well suited to the role of Gerald Harringay; Mr. Wm. Dexter made an ideal Briginshaw; and Mr. Chas. B. Bedells was a capable Mr. Pedrick. Mr. H. A. Samson was amusing as Hickson; and Mr. Geo. Byrne did well as Luscombe. To Miss Marion Ripley is due a word of praise for her excellent representation of Blanche Chilworth; in Miss Evelyn Ormonde as Amy she had an able assistant, whose reading left little to be desired; Miss Eugenie Vernie's portrayal of Crafer, the third-rate housekeeper, was most effective; Miss Ruth Nightingale did admirably as Binks; and Miss Ella Dixon was responsible for much of the amusement as Miss Hickson. On Tuesday The Magistrate was revived, and Sweet Lavender, The Rocket, and Paul Pry were also announced.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Anthony.—Mr. Bulmer's company is here this week with When Woman Hates, in which Miss Chrissie Dunbar plays Cora Daintry, giving strong expression to the hatred which characterises the part; the hero, Lieut. Fred Rokeby, is ably handled by Mr. Fred Lloyd; while the villain finds an ardent exponent in Mr. Eustace Day as Godfrey Lawton. The old General, Sir Henry Rokeby, is well portrayed by Mr. B. H. Davis; Miss Gladys Hawthorn gives an excellent rendering of the heroine, Marie Rokeby; and Miss May Day pleasingly represents the part of Edith Rokeby. Plenty of comedy is contributed by Miss Eva St. Vincent as Mrs. Potts and Miss Sybil Haughton as Sally Potts; while Mr. Evan Roland as Patrick O'Brien and Mr. Ted Squires as Alphonse Picolot, keep the fun going merrily; a part nicely played is that of the child, Nelly Rokeby, by little Miss Ruby Sutherland; and the less pleasing part of Thirsty Meg is realistically rendered by Miss Gracie Maynard. An agreeable infusion of American humour is imparted by Mr. T. C. Glenville as Colonel Hiram Vancutson from New York; Mr. W. H. Wells gives a powerful impersonation of the truculent Bill Smasher; and other rôles are suitably rendered by Mr. Tom Riley as a Warder and Mr. T. H. Dee as Jim Sniggins.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S. — Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdock.—The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning is represented by a well-selected company here this week. As Willie Mason Mr. Roy Redgrave brings experience and care to bear upon his portrayal; Miss Rona Merrick gives a fine representation of Sophie Coventry, playing with much naturalness; Mr. Sidney Sarl is particularly good as Bill Slater; Mr. F. R. Robertson makes a manly Jack Fenton; and Miss Hilda Baynton imparts grace and feeling to the rôle of Lucy Coventry. Mr. W. Thornton depicts cleverly the evil nature of James Harcourt; while Miss Nannie Meade impersonates Vesta Le Clere in fine style. The humorous element is in no wise neglected. Mr. W. Reid (Johnny Walker) and Miss Marie Kildare (Poppy Slater) having plenty of opportunities, of which they make the most. Mr. Kenneth Black does good work as Richard Fenton. The engagement of this popular play is for two weeks, and on the opening night "house full" notices were on view at all the doors.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. W. Graham Arthurs' company is here this week in The Mockery of Marriage. As the unscrupulous Dick Kenyon Mr. Arthurs acts with due emphasis, and the sorely-tried wife, Alva Kenyon, is played with pathetic feeling by Miss Mamie Stuart. Miss Mabel Liston is well suited as Rose Vernham; Mr. Arthur P. Leo doubles the parts of Jack and Ned Stanley; Mr. Herbert M. King as the bully, Seth Pearce, gives a clever rendering of the part; Mr. Roland Devonport as the old nigger Pete plays well; Mr. Sylvester Stuart as Joseph Vernham is a typical example of the hard-hearted stage parent; and humour is well represented by Miss Jennie Hallsworth as Mary Ann, assisted by Mr. Frank Ogden as the stolid Toby.

LYCEUM, GOVAN.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. R. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden. — The Soldier's Wedding has had a good reception at Govan during the week, and drew good houses. The company, which had been in Glasgow the previous week, is a strong combination, Mr. Wingold Lawrence and Miss Jessie Winter, in the principal parts, being specially well suited.

EMPIRE, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Manners.—Happy Fanny Fields, in her quaint American-Dutch entertainment, has never been seen in Glasgow to better advantage, her merry song, patter, and dancing quite hitting the public taste. In Herman Melot she has a strong opponent for public favour, his marvellous and deft conjuring rousing the house nightly to a high pitch of enthusiasm; Ted E. Box makes a big score as comedian, dancer, and whistling expert, and he proves himself a big favourite; the performance of Richard Corbin's dogs is one to be seen and admired for its admirable display of canine training. Other special turns on the programme include Will Cromwell, character vocalist; Bessie Butt, soubrette and dancer; and Albert German, who is specially good in picture chorus songs; while the Bioscope films are popular as usual. Specially worthy of note is the fine singing and dancing of Carter's Ten San-Tan Girls, who are very warmly applauded.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock.—Resident-Manager, E. H. Bostock.—The most attractive item of this week's bill is presented by Turner and Jacobs, in a sensational novelty, A Motor Match; another excellent turn was that of La Berat, in a wonderful dancing act. The programme also includes John Grun Marx, the modern Hercules; Dot Hardy, character comedienne; the Three Clarions, comedy artists; Frank Lynne, humorist; Le Belle Nello, contortionist; Charles Stevens, character vocalist; Marie Burnett, vocalist; and the Bioscope, with an amusing set of pictures.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—R. G. Knowles still heads the bill here, and the clever comedian is presenting a lot of new business this week; another strong turn is George Leyton, in his Lucknow sketch, for which he has gathered together ten of the survivors of the Indian Mutiny; Jack Pleasants is becoming a strong favourite here; and Martin Conway holds a front place in the regard of the large audiences. The Sisters Warwick, in their agile display; Dorothy L. Clark in several good songs; Raie Walters, in her "Fishing" ditty; Sadie Simpson, Spencer and Marks, and the Calcotts complete a particularly good company.

PALACE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—An excellent all-round company is attracting large audiences. Jack Lorimer, popular Scotch comedian, heads the list, and his rendering of several songs is thoroughly enjoyed; Florence Yamen, coon caricaturist, receives quite an ovation; and other entertaining turns include Barney Noble, comedian; Stella Stahl, comedienne and dancer; the Three Gregsons, in their eccentric act, The Dummy; Will Mitcham, vocal and musical comique; Julia Kent and Alex. Keith, comedy duologue artists; the Alaskas, acrobats; Fred Land, eccentric comedian; the Merrions, comedy entertainers; and the Bioscope, with interesting pictures.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. Sam. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Harry Cadle's latest absurdity, The Casey Army, causes roars of laughter here, and is a worthy successor to the humours of Casey's Court. In a totally different vein is the sketch presented by Fred Winn's company, and entitled The Light at the Window. This powerful little play is well received, and hearty applause greets the acting of George W. Cockburn, Daisy England, Agnes Paulton, and Tom Blacklock in the four characters; Yeotha and Captain G. Grade give an original turn, called Indian Pastimes, which takes well; Gus Garrick's imitations of familiar music-hall types are well done and very enjoyable; Ted and May Hopkins also secure a large share of public favour for their smart Welsh love-making scene; Ben Albert is a quaintly funny comedian; Les Frasettis play well on various instruments; Dora Barrington, Netta Grey, and Master Frisbey each contribute in good style to the vocal part of the programme; and the Bioscope shows some wonderfully realistic films.

GAIETY.—Manager, Mr. Andrew Cowe.—Holland Wilson's novel bicycle race is a big attraction here this week, and their amateur contests are well patronised; the Maros are very funny in a triple bar act; Harry Seaton sings some good songs; the Brooklands have a big reception as comediennes and dancers; and Bessie Stratton, comedienne, makes a good appearance, assisted by a male voice quartette, who sing nicely. A smart sketch by Lytton and Bland includes some clever dancing; the hit of the programme is undoubtedly the funny farce, Frolics in the Schoolroom, by the Reignors. Their fun is fast and furious, while the singing, dancing, and other acts of the company take so well that encores are strongly insisted on. So excellent and enjoyable are the Bioscope films that they are worthy of special remark, and large houses testify to the good fare provided.

BRITANNIA.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Raceford and Elvey, the Hebrew comedians, give a smart turn here; Jack Blair, the boy comedian, is also a great favourite; Alice Peploe's male impersonations are clever; and Sadie Bush as a singer, and Sylvia Spiers in the dancing line, make up an attractive programme.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. F. L. Conyngham's company, in A Mother's Love, is being well received here. Mr. Robert Gilbert as Paul Wingate undertakes the rôle in a skilful manner; Mr. Charles Carte as Mat Ruddock is clever; Mr. Hugh Mewburn as Geoffery Mannering is seen to advantage; Miss Cecile E. Anson wins sympathy as Winnie Wingate; and Miss Mabel Durham as Elaine Mervin plays charmingly; Miss Gladys Lloyd shows ability as Marjorie Wingate; Mr. Robert Lynn (Joe Jackson) and Miss Dorothy Monkhouse (Mary Steuart) keep the house in a happy mood.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Mr. Billy Farrell is at the head of affairs this week, and introduces some neat dancing; Messrs. Ryan and Hall are responsible for a comic acrobatic act and wrestling bout; Miss Lily Flexmore pays a welcome return visit, her dancing being as well received as ever; and Nellie Nora renders a dainty instrumental act. Messrs. Dickenson and Johnson give an interesting swimming performance; Harry Walker, in song and patter, goes well; the Edgar Forrest company, in My Friend the Enemy, have a good reception; and Master Kay, boy vocalist, sings sweetly. J. H. McCann once more appears in his acrobatic roller skate dance, and Mlle. Sylvesto is a smart contortionist. The Bioscope is also in the programme.

GRANTHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. A. Campbell.—Mr. Harold Wantage and company occupy the boards this week with The Pick of the Bunch. Mr. Algernon W. Lee renders the part of Halliwell Menit with much skill, and Mr. Philip Sefton is also very good as Colonel Menit. The humorous rôle of Martin is played to perfection by Mr. Harold Wantage, and Mr. Norman Bower is a typical dude; Miss Sybil Glynn is charming as Nancy, Miss Madge Christopher as Nellie Mather and Miss Eva Ellis as Ruth Gay entertain with their clever songs and dancing; Little Tom Lewis is also good as Tiny Tim; and among the specialities are the Golliwogs and Hydro Girls and Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers, with Miss Mabel Coleman as principal danseuse.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. George Dance's company occupies the boards this week with the musical comedy The Catch of the Season. The Duke of St. Jermyns finds an energetic and clever exponent in Mr. Frank Lincoln, and Angela is sweetly and daintily depicted by Miss Moya Mannering. Mr. Tom Shelford is excellent as the inane Lord Dundreary; Sir John Crystal is well represented by Mr. John Wigley; Mr. Franklin Miles is droll as Mr. William Gibson; and Buckett, the precocious little page, is capitally represented by Master Peter Grata. Lady Crystal and her two daughters are admirably depicted by Miss Ernestine Walker, Miss Doris Greville, and Miss Muff Carew. Miss Louie Bentley is a stately Duchess.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison are presenting the successful comedy, The Stronger Sex. As Mrs. Van Garkerken Miss Hutchison depicts that outspoken, good-hearted lady with much success; Mr. J. H. Carvill is excellent as the Hon. Warren Barrington; and May, his wife, is admirably depicted by Miss Margaret Fareleigh.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—An entertaining programme is provided for the week. The Bros. Leotard do some fine hand-balancing and staircase tricks; the Donatos, the famous one-legged clowns, present some clever acrobatic and chair-vaulting feats; the Arthur Saxon Trio give a capital exhibition of strength and weight-lifting capabilities; Mr. Alexander Prince contributes a fine performance on the concertina; the Glenroys receive loud applause for their expert dancing; the Enrico Martialo Trio submit a wonderful display of juggling and balancing; Rabbit and Pimple cause any amount of fun; and other artists also win favour.

BRITANNIA PIER.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—Les Piccolinos, the versatile midget performers, are topping the bill here this week, and their clever act takes the house by storm. Ryde and Beeman, acrobatic eccentrics, go well; the Two Jays give an amusing turn; T. W. Barrett and the veteran comedian, give a couple of songs quite in his old style; Baddow, the ventriloquist, with his irrepressible "Tim," and George Young, the blind musician, also score well.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION.—Proprietors, Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—The principal attraction for the week is Mr. Treflyn David's vocal quartette, known as "The Merry Peasants," whose talented singing is enthusiastically applauded. Other artists appearing are Messrs. Lenton and Bertram in Mental Telepathy; Little Cliff, comedian; Frank and Free, comedy artists; Lewis Sydney, vocalist; and Professor Lenton, in a conjuring act.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—A Trip to the Highlands is the attraction here. Mr. Wal Croft makes a conspicuous success as The MacMutchkin, and Mr. Willie Scott is an excellent Timmins. Lord Lackington is well played by Mr. Wellesly Smith; Fred is in the capable hands of Mr. Frank Barclay; Sir Septimus Brown-Windsor has a clever and effective exponent in Mr. James Somerville; Dexter is ably represented by Mr. Harry A. Cribben; and as Araminta, Miss Grace Desmond is successful. Miss Isa Bowman is a vivacious and pleasing Miss Winnie; and Miss Nellie Burdette is delightful as Fannie Flounce.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, The Greenock Empire Syndicate; General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Mr. Charles Majilton and company are here in The Trippers, and by their versatility and humour keep the audience in continual laughter. Euston and Pancras are popular in song and dance; Fentoni supplies an entertaining turn; and the Empire pictures conclude a good show.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—Peggy Pryde is a great favourite here, and is enthusiastically applauded for her songs; Otto and Olga submit a clever turn, introducing capital comedy and operatic burlesque; Walker and Lake are amusing with their patter. Other good turns are submitted by Steeley and Dowton, vocalists and dancers; and Allis and Cassati in the same line. The Paviscope pictures are much appreciated.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris.—On Monday Mr. Charles W. Poole's Imperial Myriorama opened here for a season. Their visit is always keenly anticipated, and crowded houses are the rule. Everything is bright, attractive, and amusing. Excellent variety is introduced by Pueblo and Cropp (trick dancers). Ray and Miles (eccentric jugglers), Craig, Rose, and Craig (novelty gymnasts), and Venturini (a clever illusionist), Mr. Cecil Couper is the enterprising general-manager.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Hardie and Von Leer's company, in Two Little Vagabonds, still finds favour here, good houses having assembled throughout the week.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sam Winks.—Those delightful Yankees, Hill and Whittaker, evoke prolonged applause here; Leipzig, coin manipulator, is remarkably clever; the dry humour and smart dancing of the Kimberley Boys is successful; Mr. Edward Lauri and company, including Miss May Beatty, give an exhilarating musical mélange; and Martino, the man frog, distinguishes himself; as do also the Ferganas, expert vaulters, and Harry Meegan.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—This week Messrs. Sidney Dooley and Charles Seymour's company, in A King for a Day, is here; Mollie Woolstenhume pleases her many admirers; Leoni Dixon, Lord, Murray, and Lord, in The Intruder, Lew Towers, and Bennett and Martell, the shipwrecked mariners, together with a superb selection of pictures shown by Raymond's Biotableaux, keep audiences amused.

HANLEY. — ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux's company commenced the tour of My Wife on Monday. There was a large audience, and this delightful comedy was received with much enthusiasm. The piece must become a great provincial success. Mr. Eille Norwood's impersonation of Gerald Eversleigh is most natural and finished; as Trixie, Miss Cicely Stuckey scores a brilliant success, her portrayal of the impulsive, innocent girl being clever in the extreme; Mr. John W. Deverell, as the Hon. Gibson Gore, contributes a clever representation of the young aristocrat, his performance being irresistibly funny; Miss Mary Dibley is well placed as Miriam Hawthorne, her acting being most praiseworthy; Mr. Henry Adnes, in his portrayal of the excitable Baron, is capital; M. Dupre, as played by Mr. A. S. Barber, is a really interesting impersonation; Mr. Willie Hartill, as Davies, plays cleverly; Mr. John Reginald is well-placed as Crocker; as Rene Falandes, Mr. Edmund Hollick is all that can be desired; and Mesars. Reginald Creag

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—There is no reason to suspect that the popularity of The Girl from Kay's is on the wane. Mr. Schofield is the Hoggenheimer, and makes a big hit; as the girl from Kay's, Miss Jessie Fraser is exceedingly chic; Mavis Hope and Mr. Herbert Franklyn, as the bride and bridegroom, are excellent.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wym Miller.—The Brothers Renad, in The Swiss Express, are above criticism, as their pantomime is above reproach; Mr. W. E. Brandon makes the most of Gondimai Gull; as Dudley Green and Bob Rollingstone, Mr. Abe Wyllie and Mr. Basil Reynolds are very funny; and as Virginia, Miss Celestine Brandon is charming; the Palace Quartette are excellent vocalists and dancers.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, MORTON'S, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Power of the Cross is a strong play. The mystery man is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Geo. A. De Gray; and Miss Amy B. Ellis, an artist of much merit, plays the part of the adventuress with skill; as the heroine, Miss Marie Menzies acts the part with conspicuous success.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Harry Pleon appears in an exciting musical dramatic episode, At Large, in which he is well supported by Miss Celia Kent and others. Claude Ginnett's Remounts create much amusement; Mabel Hind is a character comedienne of much merit; Misses Vera Mayne and Fatmah Diard also take well. Other turns include Neuman and Cross and George Ray.

THE EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Appearing here are Hugh Cedar and Edward Elgar in a funny character act, in Ye Days of Olde. Little Frankie makes a bit hit, as also do the Fordyces. Other clever artists include Henriette and Selina, Johnson and Pelham, Sterling and Wright, and the Octro Twins.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company (under the direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland) is appearing here this week in A Clever Impostor. Miss Litchfield figures prominently in the cast, and that she is an accomplished actress is shown by her presentation of the varied character of Nora Grosvenor. Mr. Arthur Page as Captain Desmond well conveys the impression of a manly courageous hero. In the part of Manuel Teixeira Mr. Stuart Cleveland, "a clever impostor," gives a convincing conception of unorthodox villainy. Comic relief is excellently provided by Mr. C. Spencer, a smart Jim Brightside, and Miss Florence Gomer, charming and clever, as Annie Pleasant. Mr. C. Roberts makes a fine Stephen Grosvenor. Miss Isabel Singleton displays much emotional power as Maisie Grosvenor; as Margaret Grosvenor Miss Violet Lesborough is admirable. The company also includes Messrs. A. C. Britton, F. G. Kay, Wm. Waring, Geo. Childers, Thos. Fielding, and D. Tecke.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Under the Stars and Stripes is here, played by Messrs. Cameron and Alexander's company, the rôle of Sylvia Rosmer being well sustained by Miss Stanley Burt. Mr. Edward Avinall is well suited to the part of Jules Vermond.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—This week Mr. George Kirk's company is here with Her Luck in London. Mr. Stephen Langton gives a manly portrayal of Fitzgerald O'Connor; Mr. Heath plays with force as Richard Lenowen; the character of the Rev. Lionel Strong is carefully handled by Mr. D. Tremayne; Mr. Tyrone Power is equally good as Stephen Harborne; and Mr. Bruce Clapham is quite at home in the part of Algie Kircumbrie. Miss Florrie Groves makes a charming Nellie; Miss F. Bruce does full justice to the part of Lillian Harborne; and Miss Marie Clavering is successful as Mme. Gabrielle; Angeline Plantagenet being well looked after by Miss Pamela Hodson; Miss Kitty Fitzgerald simply revels in the part of Maude Gladys Shovepenny, being ably assisted by Mr. Henry Hope as Archer Gerald.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart is paying a visit here this week with Sherlock Holmes. In the name-part, Mr. Stewart proves himself an excellent actor; Mr. Douglas G. Murray is a creditable Dr. Watson; Mr. Norman B. Cannon undertakes the dual rôle of John Forman and Judson; Mr. H. Ryeland Leigh represents the crafty Prof. Moriarty; and Mr. Roy Milton appears as James Larrabee. Miss Celia Gordon is an admirable Madge Larrabee; and Miss Angelina Cunningham a creditable Alice Faulkner. Low comedy is introduced by Mr. Seton Bernard as Sidney Prince and Master Leslie Hall as Billy.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall.—An excellent variety programme is provided here by Mr. E. Dottridge's combination. Miss Georgette Thierry's Sketch Company appear in Nancy Sykes. Mr. Bernard Lieli gives a fine study of Fagin; and Mr. Willie Black is a capital Bill Sikes. Miss Georgette Thierry deserves much praise for her performance as Nancy. Atroy, juggler, provides a smart turn, and the Soho Trio win much applause in their admirable drawing-room scene. Viola, lady instrumentalist, displays much ability, and is encored nightly; Professor Dunning is a clever ventriloquist, and delights the audience immensely; Kahn and Kahn succeed in mystifying all; Maggie Rimmer sings and dances in fine style; May and Arthur, child vocalists and dancers, are great favourites; Little Tim's antics create loud laughter; and Charlie Craston's comic songs are well received.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company is here in A Warning to Women. Mr. C. Watson Mill in the character of Shaun, a wandering minstrel, gives a clever display; Mr. Richard Vane ably portrays the character of Dr. Marcus Dread; while Mr. William Vane is equally as good as Fergus McNaughton, a young Irish squire. Moira Kennion is both prettily and forcibly enacted by Miss Ruth Zillwood; while Miss Rosalind Tate is clever in the part of Mildred.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—The Pick of the Bunch has been presented here this week by Mr. Harold Wantage and company. It is a highly-diverting pot-pourri of novelties, and many of the items were charmingly rendered. Mr. Algernon W. Lee, the possessor of a good voice, capably filled the rôle of Halliwell Menit, the part of his irascible uncle, Colonel Menit, being vigorously portrayed by Mr. Philip Sefton. Miss Sybil Glynn worked hard as Nancy. A dainty pair of actresses were Madge Christopher and Eva Ellis as Nellie Mather and Ruth Gay respectively. As Martin Mr. Harold Wantage did much to keep the fun going; and Mr. Norman Bowyer proved a droll comedian as Dick Seymour. Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers gave a good exposition of dancing, and Little Tom Lewis came in for a large share of attention for so diminutive an actor.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan.—Mrs. Fred J. Kirke's company appeared here on Monday in In Old Madrid. Good work was done by Mr. G. H. Holloway as the villainous Fernando; Mr. E. H. Bertram was a satisfactory Frank Lyndhurst; and Mr. Walter T. Hybert made the most of the comic element. The dancing of the Sisters Gaze was much admired; Miss Lily Seymour and Miss L. Ellis appeared as Martha and Violet respectively.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—The Sleeping Beauty is proving a big attraction this week, being ably presented by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and E. J. Cardwell's company of juveniles. Miss Dolly Dodds appears with much success as the Beauty, and the comic element is supplied by Messrs. Doyle and Gibson and the Bros. Armstrong. Specialities are introduced by Wee George Wood, boy mimic; La Belle Annetti, dancer; and Ida Reenan and Myra Eyton.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. John Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Another capital bill of fare is put before the patrons here, and crowded houses have assembled nightly. The star turn is supplied by Rachel Lowe, comedienne, who has a good reception; the Four Louberts, in a comedy act, Uninvited, cause roars of laughter; and the Sisters Silcott sing and dance nicely. Others who appear are Frances Drew, burlesque artist; Geo. Reeves, comedian; James and Alexander, expert dancers; Sisters Poole, duettists; and the Elvio Trio, in a comedy sketch, Those Troublesome Slaveys. The Hippograph is still an attraction.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Mr. Hart's revival of As You Like It was put on here on Monday, and an enthusiastic reception was accorded the production. Miss Fay Davis is a superb Rosalind, portraying each of the many varied moods of the character to perfection; than Mr. Gerald Lawrence it would be impossible to imagine a better Orlando, and the work of the talented pair is quite the feature of the production. The Celia of Miss Valerie Salberg is full of grace and vivacity; Mr. Harry Paulton as Touchstone plays the part on original lines, and to the evident satisfaction of his audience; Mr. James Hearn is an admirable Jaques; Mr. John Nesbitt as the bainshed Duke and Mr. Francis Chamier as the usurper look and act their respective characters effectively; whilst Mr. Fred Percy as the wrestler, Mr. Ernest E. Norris as the Elder Brother, and Mr. Orlando Barnett as Adam deserve every credit for good work.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Another of Mr. Walter Melville's dramas is the atraction here, The Worst Woman in London being on an early return visit. Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company includes Miss Olga Andre as Frances Vere, the central figure of the piece, and this talented actress makes the most of numerous opportunities; Milford is a capable study by Mr. F. Cass; the heroic Jack Felton is finely played by Mr. George Gaisford; and an effective Vincent Lyle is found in Mr. Paul Barry-Lewers.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Miss Alice Norton's production and distribution of rubies and sapphires at this pleasure palace this week are attracting and interesting full houses; Blake and Amber are a smart comedy pair; James Stewart is again giving his funny entertainment at the piano; Woodhouse and Wells, patter comedians, prove amusing; as also do the Wedburns in a similar line; the Moulier Sisters do clever feats on the flying bars; that fine vocalist Ian Colquohoun adds to a big reputation; Will Poluski, jun., Ruth Lytton, vocalist, and the Five Osranis, in pantomimic absurdity, are also entertaining.

QUEEN'S THEATRE AND VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Sammy Shields, a diminutive Scotch comedian, is high in favour here. Another popular comedian, Barney Armstrong, is likewise a favourite. Oakley and James are seen to advantage in frivolity; Sterling and Love are again appearing with conspicuous success; Roy Beavis is a tricky and amusing magician, and Lena Brunton, vocalist, Jock Campbell, comedian, and Mlle. Renee are also here.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Messrs. Chas. Weldon and Claude Shayler.—Master Max Darewski, the youthful musical prodigy, is a triumphant success here this week as a music-hall turn; Frank Taylor's educated baboons figure in the bill; and an uproarious comedy interlude by Walton and Lester is particularly well received; Mountford and Walsh; Fred and Maud Vypond, in a smart comedy act; Kellie and Agnas; Nash and Noel, comedy specialists; Joe Conway, comedian; Sharp Bros., in specialty; the Delomes, with magic; and the Sisters Tree, duettists and dancers, are also announced.

Jones.—Alfred Graham's juveniles are at the top of the bill here; the Karno Trio have an uproarious sketch; Carl Lynn as a mimic of animals gets a big reception; Les Belles Americaines are song and dance artists of merit; Walter Stanley is doing well; Marlow and Manton are an up-to-date comedy duo; and Jock M'Kay, Scotch comedian, and Marie Blythe, contralto, also contribute

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's excellent company is here in the comedy Peter's Mother. As Lady Mary Crewys Miss Violet Ley wins admiration for her most artistic and clever performance; Mr. Henry Renouf as John Crewys sustains his high reputation; Mr. E. F. Meads does full justice to the part of Peter; Mr. Townsend Whitling is a good Dr. Blundell; Mr. Ernest Ruston a successful Sir Timothy Crewys; Miss Evelyn Shelley a capital Lady Belstone; and both Mr. and Mrs. William Mallalieu, who are so well remembered in Leicester by virtue of the former's long association with the Theatre Royal as manager, play with their accustomed ability as Canon Birch and Miss G. Crewys. Praise should also be accorded Miss Eileen Barry as Mrs. Hewell and Miss Hilda Sims as Sarah. The play is tastefully mounted. The comedietta Two in a Trap precedes.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The Silver King, presented by Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company, is the attraction here. As Wilfred Denver Mr. Fred D. Daviss is to be complimented on an able portrayal; Miss Adah Barton plays sympathetically as Nellie Denver; and Miss Flossie Hale Daviss makes an excellent Cissie Denver; Mr. Edward J. George scores a success as Mr. George Belmore as Corket, Mr. Arthur Wright as Coombe, Mr. Byron Pedley as Baxter, Miss Elizabeth Temple as Olive Skinner, Miss Bessie Jaikes, Mr. L. St. George Lowther as the Spider, Wright as Susie, and Mr. Frank Kingsley as Cripps are all deserving of special praise.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Whit Cunliffe's well-rendered and catchy songs are accorded a great reception; Leicester's oldest favourite, J. W. Rowley, keeps the audience in a roar of merriment; quite an ovation is accorded Park's Eton Boys in their smart and refined vocal entertainment; Lockhart's Elephants, presented by Captain Taylor, display remarkable intelligence; Russell Wallett, the "lady in black," is versatile and entertaining; Lowell and Lowell are amusing grotesque acrobats; Ella Dean renders her song in good style; and the American Bioscope depicts The Band Contest. Miss Ethel Newman, in place of Victoria Monks, is seen to considerable advantage in her monologue The Telegram, which has a flattering reception.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—The principal attraction here is Miss Lois Du Cane, a big favourite, and her company, in the sensational episode Anarchy. Miss Du Cane scores a great success as Ellen Grey, being supported in capital style by Mr. Ernest G. Batley as Gilbert Newton, Mr. Harold B. Lewis as Leonard Grey, and Mr. Bruce Methven as Maurice de Varney. The sketch is well mounted. Daisy Hecks is making a hit with her songs; Will Driscoll is a clever swell comedian; Charles Gardiner, an excellent character comedian; the Zampas, dancers and bâton swingers, are popular; Queenie Hall is a capital dancer; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope stil remains a popular feature.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Rousby.—Miss Ellen Snow and company are occupying the boards here this week with the romantic drama Why Men Love Women. Miss Snow gives a charming impersonation of Violet Livingstone; Mr. Hilliard Vox's Gerald Fielding is marked by exceptional ability; Mr. Gerald Kennedy acts the part of H.H. the Maharajah of Balore in a skilful manner; Captain Staniloff is played with excellent judgment by Mr. Lionel Gadsden; Miss Beatrice Shirley is very effective as Mariel Zoluski; considerable amusement is caused by Mr. Harewood Roberts as Orlando Figgins; and the Misses Nita Owen and Fredra Vaughan deserve praise as Birdie and Bab.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—In Rollicking Rory, Mr. Chalmers Mackey has fitted himself with a congenial rôle, to which his diverting, light-hearted style of acting enables him to do full justice. The members of his company ably co-operate to the success of this new play. Mr. Mackey and Miss Nana Flensburg do well as Rosaleen Ashleigh and Rosie Callaghan; Mr. Charles Horner is happily cast as the hero, Desmond Fitzgerald; with Mr. David McFarlane as Stephen D'Arcy, a thorough-going villain; and the many incidental characters are all capably represented, Mr. Haughton Macaulay's Shaun Brady and Miss Adele Liddon's Mrs. O'Donohoe deserving commendation; while high praise is due to Madame Constance Bellamy, who contributes very delightfully to the vocal numbers, which are introduced by several of the leading performers in the course of the piece.

LINCOLN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne, Seddon, and Ernest Pope.—A very fine performance of The Morals of Marcus was given here on Monday by Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, Mr. C. H. OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—A capital bill has been offered here this week. The Craggs were as funny as ever with Billy; that clever little lady at the piano, Ray Wallace, met with a most gratifying reception; Marie Santoi and her merry Japs were seen to great advantage with their delightful musical novelty, A Japanese Tea Garden by Night; the high degree of training shown by Harry Rochez' ponies and dogs aroused much attention; incessant laughter followed the work of the Three Prestons in The Liftman's Rise; graceful feats on the wire were performed by Wyndham and Kitty; Johnson and Bert submitted a novel act, A Queer Customer; and also in the list were the Sisters Caselli. duettists and dancers; and Elda and Falco, with a Japanese vocal and dancing speciality.

ROSCOMMON.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Percy Boucher and his stock dramatic company continue to do good business here. This week they have given The Ticket of Leave Man. Mr. Herbert H. Young showed ability as Brierly; Mr. J. D. Geddes afforded satisfaction as Dalton; Mr. C. H. Maxwell was the Hawkshaw; Mr. Boucher repeated his old-time success as Melter Moss; Miss Lilian Beaumont was a sweet May; and Miss Enid Wilde proved acceptable as Sam.

LLANDUDNO.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—The D'Oyly Carte Opera company is here for the week, and on Monday appeared in The Mikado. Mr. Leicester Tunks, in the title-rôle, does well, and Mr. Strafford Moss as Nanki-Poo is happily placed; Messrs. Charles R. Walenn (Ko-Ko) and Mr. Fred Billington (Pooh-Ba) supply the comic element in excellent style; Mr. Leo Sheffield as Pish-Tush is good. So also is Mr. Fred Drawater as Go-To; Miss Theresa Rassam is at home as Katisha; and Miss Hope Hastings (Yum Yum), Miss Beatrice Meredith (Pitti-Sing) and Miss Mabel Graham (Peep-Bo) fill the parts of the three sisters in capital style. The Gondoliers, Iolanthe, The Yeomen of the Guard, and H.M.S. Pinafore complete the week's bill.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. A. E. Vaughan; Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—Mr. W. Penrhyn Forster's company is here in The Officers' Mess. Mr. Jerrold Manville apears to advantage as the Major General, Mr. Victor Tollemache performing creditably as Captain the Hon. Claude Melville; Mr. Harry Gregory is well placed as Antonio Wilkins; and Mr. H. Vivian does well as Rienzi Poorpoori. Mr. Edward Kipling is clever as Thomas Rugg; Miss Clara Nicholls as Lady Constantia De Beaune performs with her usual grace; Miss Edith Harmer is a typical Sybil; and Miss Millie Gordon is excellent as Timothy Tiptop. Miss Minnie Dorina dances exceedingly well, and Miss Nellie Sheffield as Rose Smith is vivacity itself.

PIER HEAD PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. A. R. Sutcliffe.—The ever-popular Charlie Harvey is again here, causing the usual roars of laughter; Mr. Tom Stuart is a thoroughly versatile artist; Mr. A. R. Sutcliffe delights the audience in both song and comicalities; Iris Banfield sings well; and Charles Royers is a banjoist of no mean order. Gordon Stamford completes a good bill. Professor Beaumont and Albert Stern's benefit took place on Monday, when the White Coon's performance at the town hall was packed.

LONG EATON.—ST. JAMES'S.—Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. Wilson Benge and his company appear here this week in The Eve of Her Wedding. Mr. Benge takes the chief part of George Tremain satisfactorily; Miss Sadie Smith, as Mavis Leverton, goes through her trying scenes with credit; Mr. Arthur Keand is a typical squire; Mr. Charles Groves. jun.; Miss Adeline Raby, an adventuress; Miss Violet R. M. Leslie, the American girl; Mr. Alexander George, the Parson; Mr. David Beattie, the Italian Police-agent, assist in an excellent performance; while Mr. Charles Digby and Mr. K. Arthur do much to provoke merriment.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here with The White Chrysanthemum, the title-rôle being enacted in a very pleasing manner by Miss Lillian Hubbard. Cornelia and Betty find charming exponents in the Misses Blanche Astley and Harriet Fawn. Mr. Victor Kahn is a typical naval lieutenant as Reginald, while Mr. Erskine Lang is amusing as Chippendale. Mr. Frank Weir scores well as Sir Chow and Private Perks is amusingly portrayed by Mr. W. Westwood.

MACCLESFIELD.—ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company, in the great dramatic novelty, Greed of Gold, opened to a full house here on Monday. Mr. E. J. Preston commanded great respect for his admirable exposition of Harry Hood; Mr. A. G. Stratton frequently elicited applause by his forceful portrayal of Arthur Erroll; Mr. S. Bryant made a typical Cully Ling; and Mr. V. C. Rolfe was dignified as Mr. Brightstone, K.C. Mr. D. Campbell was inimitable as Conn Creamer; and Mr. Bert Fox as Tom Wilstead, the dumb man, held the audience spellbound by his realistic impersonation. Miss Amy Venimore was a charming Dora; Miss Cissy Murdock captivated all as Patty Mayfield; and Miss May Eddie as Cecil was equally a favourite. Miss Annie Bardey was a good Mrs. Maxwell; whilst Mr. A. B. Lyons as Mee Chow, Mr. D. Carr as Markham Keen, and Mr. J. Field as John Hagbey were all factors in a successful performance.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. S. Baskerville.—An excellent bill is headed by Cassac Talma, a clever illusionist, who submits a baffling protean illusion, in which he is assisted by Miss de Forge; the Stavordale Quintette, on a return visit, are as popular as ever; Belrose and De Velin, duettists, have well-trained voices; Mayme Cannon is a smart comedienne, who soon gets on good terms with her audience; Edwards and Dacre submit an amusing sketch, Oh, What a Life! Mackintosh and Royal are clever dancers; and Bertha Norwood, comedienne, and the Bioscope, complete.

MANCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Much pleasure was occasioned to a fairly large audience by the performance here on Monday of My Darling, Mr. Seymour Hicks's latest successful musical comedy. Miss Marie Studholme as Joy Blossom is, of course, the big attraction of the cast, and equally of course her appearance and performance are entirely charming. A great deal of clever and entertaining business is added, however, by other members of the company, notably Mr. J. F. McArdle as Sir Henry Heldon, a characteristically funny impersonation; Mr. J. Robert Hale as the busy and amusing Hon. Jack Hylton; Mr. Tom Graves as Oddy, the hotel proprietor; and Mr. Frank Hector as Sir James Jagg, the latter having also to his name the credit of the arrangement of two extremely good solo dances in Acts 1 and 2. An enjoyable impersonation of Daphne Bell is given by Miss Ethel Negretti; Miss Stanley Ronalds plays well as Sylvaine; Miss Ivy Dene is lively as Lisette, the waitress; Miss Edyth Goodall sings acceptably as Gabrielle Renee; and Miss Alice Barth and Miss Wat Tanner are well suited in the rôles of Lady Heldon and Mrs. Pomeroy P. Green. In the way of spirited and cultured vocalism, Mr. Alexander Chentrens is conspicuously good in the outstanding part of Maurice Le Blanc. A good word must be added for the quartet of dancers and for the capable efforts of the chorus and augmented orchestra.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the United Theatres Co., Ltd.: Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—After a long vacation, this theatre reopened on Monday with Mr. John Hart's production of a new musical play entitled The Maid and the Motor-Man, which will run until further notice. A brilliant effort was made in every respect to ensure immediate success, and the attitude of a crowded house was that of friendly appreciation, amounting at times to enthusiasm, which culminated in a splendid ovation at the close for all concerned. The piece was originally produced in May at Cardiff, and of the artists who then appeared Miss Lulu Valli is still in the part of Kate Wicks, which she fills very well indeed; Miss Hebe Bliss retains her rôle of Lady Newark, playing with ease and effect; and Miss Wynifred Morice continues quite satisfactorily in the part of Mrs. Shepperton. As the Hon. Dudley Newark Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald is highly successful, in a style which may be described as a compromise between the "dude-ish" and the "smart"; and Mr. M. R. Morand plays with considerable point and briskness as Jack Bolter. Master Albert Valchera as Percy Sly will make much more of opportunities which already prove him to be a very smart young comedian. Mr. Harry Nicholls as William Binns and Miss Florence Parfrey as Martha Pottle are a couple of domestics, whose "business" is inseparable, and whose acting and general effect in the play must be counted an outstanding success. Mr. Percy Yorke as Sir John Warrington sings and acts well, and Miss Bella Newstead is pleasing as Susanne. As for the title-parts, that of the maid, Alys Warrington, is played by Miss Ruth Lincoln with considerable vivacity (though one might Maritana was the fare presented, with Mr. J. Turner as Don Cæsar; Mr. John Ridding was a capable Don José; and Mr. T. Griffiths an acceptable King of Spain. Miss Jessie Dennis gave an artistic rendition of Lazarillo; and Miss Christine Gomez was a finished Maritana. The Bohemian Girl, Faust, The Waterman, and Il Trovatore have also been presented.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Capt. Cecil Clayton.—Mr. Jack Haddon's company, in Under the Russian Flag, occupy the boards here this week. Mr. Jack Haddon's fine interpretation of the part of Captain Demetrius commands applause; Mr. Charles Stafford as Ivan Romanoff acquits himself with considerable credit; and Michael Romanoff is ably presented by Mr. Jerrold Ord. Mr. W. Wilson proves an acceptable Colonel Souveroff; and the necessary touch of humour is furnished by Mr. Templer Ellis in the part of Alexis Skopolopski. Miss Molly Hackett as Ogarita is also responsible for humour; and Mr. Hal Ford as Peter Pouiski, a tramp, also adds to the general hilarity. Mr. H. Naylor Grimson gives a masterly rendering of Wolf Marischka; and Luka Marischla is skilfully interpreted by Miss Marie Rayner.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Herbert Darnley; Resident-Director, Mr. Tom Jennings; Acting-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—A Marriage of Vengeance is being presented by Mr. Stanley Carlton's company to full houses. There is no question of Mr. Carlton's success in the rôle of Geoffrey Vannock, alias John Ridley; Paul Earnscliff, bank manager, is entrusted to the capable hands of Mr. Herbert Evelyn; and Max Rheinhardt, as portrayed by Mr. F. Bulmer Pitt, leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. Edward Morgan supplies the necessary touch of humour as Bob Shorney with an occasional song and dance. Amongst the ladies, Miss Rubie Maude takes the place of honour as Stella, Parisian adventuress, and her clever acting gains unstinted applause; Miss Maude Steeple as Amelia is the able companion of Bob Shorney; Mr. Jack Worth is at his best as Glynne Earnscliff; Mr. Percy Darrell, Mr. Bert Elvin, and Mr. Arthur Betts all do well in their respective parts; and Miss Lizzie Burgess as Marie and Miss Maude Steeple as Elsie Dean deserve nothing but praise.

MARGATE.—Theatre Royal.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wallis Clark.—For three nights this week Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company appeared here in the lyrical comedy The White Chrysanthemum. Miss Muriel George gave an exhilarating impersonation of Sybil Cunningham, charming all with her excellent rendering of the musical numbers; the rôle of Lieutenant Chippendale Belmont was well played by Mr. Victor Keer, who caused roars of laughter in his diverting impersonation of Chippy; Mr. James Dallas was very funny as Private Perks, his quaint rendering of the songs allotted to him and capital dancing evoking rounds of applause; Mr. James Graydon, as Cin Chon, also gave able support; Mr. John T. McCullum was excellent as Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage; Miss Rosie Sullivan made a charming Cornelia, her sweet voice being much appreciated; and Miss Dorothy Sephton ably sustained the rôle of Betty Kenyonand, scoring with her song. The chorus was good, and the general production perfect. For the remainder of the week Mr. Arthur Bouchier's company in The Walls of Jericho was in the bills.

The Hippodrome.—Joint Proprietors, Mr. Fred Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident - Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Mr. Arthur Roberts and his company have kept the audiences in an unrestrainable roar of laughter over the amusing sketch The Woman Who Was; another charming attraction is Florrie Gallimore, whose songs are received with immense favour; Haig and Novel are clever comedy acrobat and burlesque artists; and other turns have included Beattie Benson, juvenile comedienne; The Katos, in their Liliputian entertainment; Lester May, comedian; and Josie Delaine, comedienne.

Hall-by-the-Sea. — Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Charles Evans.—Large audiences have this week been enjoying the capital bill of fare provided. Charley Hampson's grotesque act, in which he introduces his dogs and pigeons, has caused hearty laughter; Helen Lambert and Fred C. Glover, in their original duologue My Birthday, have been responsible for a good deal of hilarity; and Johnny Fuller, the "great little cat" on the wire, has given evidence of being an expert wire walker, a good tumbler, and capital dancer. Burg, Haud, and Wise, with their comedy act Ye Brown Cow Inn, provoke a great deal of laughter; and a turn of more than usual merit is that given by Percival, the pianist and variety entertainer, who in his one-man musical comedy makes a decided hit; Fox and Melville successfully render illustrated songs; and the Valesco's Australian stage circus, in which ponies, dogs, and a monkey take part, is capital. The ballroom has been crowded each evening after the concert.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company is here this week in Are You a Mason? Mr. E. H. Paterson is particularly good as Amos Bloodgood; Mr. Howard L. Tracey is excellent as Frank Perry; Mr. Eric Albury deserves praise for his impersonation of George Fisher, and the same may be said of Mr. Buchanan Watte for his embodiment of John Halton. Ernest Moneson is ably played by Mr. Erskholme E. Clive; Mr. G. R. J. Austin gives an excellent study of Hamilton Travers; Miss Adelaide Grace ably fills the part of Mrs. Bloodgood; Eva, Annie, and Lulu have efficient representatives in Misses Coresande Hamilton, Babs Stuart, and Dorothy Mackenzie; and Miss Gwen Clifford makes a delightful Lottie.

Temperance Hall.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Clignot heads the bill here this week and proves a big attraction; Grant and Allen are an amusing pair of comedians; Warde and Wylie arouse merriment in their comedy duo; and Kaynor and Reece appear to advantage in an entertaining comedy scena. Other items on the programme which gain appreciation include those of the Sisters Nella, in their Pot Pourri Act, Mlle. Lockhart (wire artist), La Belle Helene (serpentine dancer), and A. O. North (eccentric comedian and vocalist).

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales's Theatre, —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton. — Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company are presenting The Manxman. Mr. Alfred B. Cross gives a remarkably fine interpretation of Pete; Mr. Sydney C. Kearns submits a thoughtful rendering of Philip Christian; the Cæsar Cregeen of Mr. E. W. Cudd is a creditable effort; Mr. Howard Brenan (Ross Christian), Mr. C. H. Mortimer (Dr. Mylcreest), Mr. W. Roberts (Monty Missit), and Mr. F. Lynton (Prof. Mawley) all sustain their rôles in excellent style. Miss Minnie Watersford plays with distinct skill in the character of Kate; Nancy has a capable exponent in Miss Dorothy Duncan; and Miss Kathleen Barrett is a pleasing Miss Christian.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Theatre Royal. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson. — Crowded houses are greeting The Earl and the Girl, which is being produced by Mr. William Greet's principal company here this week. The amusing character of Jim Cheese is admirably portrayed by Mr. William Stephens. Miss Chrissie Rallands is charming in the rôle of Elphin Haye, the American heiress, her sweet voice being heard to great advantage. Mr. Thomas Kennard is excellent as Dick Wargrave; and Miss Jennie Richards is very pleasing as Liza Shoddam. The part of the Hon. Crewe Boodle finds a capital exponent in Mr. Percy E. Wright, while the rôle of Bunker Bliss is in the capable hands of Mr. H. Courtin. Miss Helen Kennard does well as Mrs. Black, and Miss Ethel Erskine, Miss Frances James, and Miss Hilda Grey are also entrusted with interesting rôles. Other artists who add to the attractiveness of the play are Mr. Frank Liddington, Mr. Mansell Fane, Mr. John Beverley, Miss Beatrice Ford, Miss Nellie Lawrence, and Miss Barbara Roberts.

Opera House.—Proprietors, the Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The Stepmother is being produced here this week by Mr. William Holles and Miss Nannie Goldman's company. As Bob Bristow the gallant captain of the Sea Mew, Mr. Wm. Holles makes a typical and jovial sailor; while Miss Phyllis Manners acts with great distinction in the rôle of Anna Vickers, the cruel stepmother; Miss Nannie Goldman gives a pleasing and pathetic rendering of the part of Danny; and Miss Winifred Symonds does full justice to the rôle of Amy Bristow. Mr. Arthur Rodney is a capital exponent of Abraham Wiggins, and Miss Florence Harcourt as Johanna Jones, Mr. Murray Yorke as David Blake, and Mr. Wm. Macready as Luke Trixel are all that can be desired.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—John Lawson and his company pay a welcome return visit here this week in several successful productions. On Monday night The King's Minister was produced, and it proved a great attraction. Fred Cullane and company provide a delightful musical comedy, entitled Pipple from Poppleton; as do also Nellie Atherton and company in a musical comedy, Wanted, a Partner. Tom Maxwell and Virginia Francis please in their comedy act, and Letine does well in his characteristic impersonations. Fyne and Hurley and Lily Wood, comedienne, also add atractive items to the programme.

Oxford Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—F. V. St. Clair pays a return visit here this week, and well maintoins his reputation. The Pasquali Bros. provide a clever acrobatic turn, and an excellent vocal and dancing turn is given by the Lannons. A smart juggling turn is provided by Angeline, and Keith and Merson cause much laughter in their absurdity, "The Meet." Lade Henderson is an excellent vocalist, and Natalia and Diana are a pair of clever gymnasts. Lillie Currie pleases, and other turns are given by Frances Hanlon and the Palascope.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Miss Phyllis Dare is here in the The Dairymaids. In the part of Peggy Miss Dare greatly delighted her admirers. Mainly responsible for the fun of the show was Mr. Harry Dent as Joe Mivens, and in the laughter-making he was ably seconded by E. Statham Staples as Sam Brudenell, and Mr. Percy Marshall as the genial Irish Dr. O'Bryne. Mr. Frank Stewart as Lieut. Brudenell, Mr. Harry Cottell as Capt. Fred Leverton, Miss Cissie Sephton as Eliza, Miss Gay Silvane as Winifred, Miss Edith Blanche as Lady Brudenell, Miss Beryl Vaudrey as Helene, and Miss Hetty Chapman as Miss Penelope Pyechase, all ably fulfil their rôles.

Tyne Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—The Bondman is here this week. The company sent by Mr. George D. Day is an excellent one, and happy in having as its leader Mr. Frank Cooper, whose study of Jason is eminently commendable. Miss Ida Phillips makes a pleasing Greeba, and Mr. Henry Doughty ably fills the rôle of Michael, while Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Palmer provide some effective comedy as the grandfather, and Mrs. Fairbrother.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Thos. W. Rowe.—The musical farce, Lucky 'Liza, proves very popular here this week. In the title-rôle, Miss Madge Browne is indeed charming, her dancing and singing being alike good, while Mr. Dickie Clare takes a trio of parts with an airiness quite refreshing. Others ably assisting are Mr. T. W. Benson, Mr. Martin Alwyne, Mr. H. A. Griffiths, Miss Victoria Carmen, Miss Helen Douglas, and Miss Vesta Brownie.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. H. Hill Mitchelson's company is here in The Traitor. In the dual rôles of Prince Rudolph and Colonel Nervi, Mr. Graham Woods proves very successful, and great ability is displayed in the title-rôle by Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan. Miss Marie Robson takes the part of Zola with distinct credit, and others being accorded hearty approval by the audience are Miss Gwynne Warren, Miss Polly Denville, Miss Lilian Matthews, Mr. Wilton Reed, Mr. Edward Duff, and Mr. Alfred Richards.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wells.—Mr. Harry Randall tops the bill here this week, and is immensely popular. The Six Æolians with their singing and dancing also provide a good turn, and Esta Stella, the military maid, is also a pronounced success. Conn and Conrad's sketch, The 20th Century Burglars, is very amusing; and others in the programme are Concoran Bros., instrumentalists of rare skill; Marguerite Broadfoote, comedienne; Westland, Scottish comedian; Whalen and West, comedy artists; and Ellis Barrieton, vocalist.

Pavilion Theatre.—The Barrasford Co.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Maidee Scott, a clever comedienne, is one of the most popular turns in a good programme here. Mike Gray, comedy juggler, performs a series of smart feats that cause delight among the audience, and, as in the past, the Eight Lancashire Lads prove a great turn, especially in regard to their dancing. The Three Bragga, novel acrobats, Albert Wyndham and Co., in a sketch, Clarence's Dream, and the Bensons in a musical act, The Page and the Maid, are all popular turns. Other noteworthy turns are George Victor, actor-vocalist, Sisters Brooke, vocalists and dancers, and Harris and Worth, sporting comedians.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company in Second to None occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Jerrold Heather, in the rôle of Harry Wilding, contributes a most convincing impersonation; Miss Ward's portrayal of Nell Greystone is marked by keen intelligence; Mr. C. W. Spencer admirably sustains the character of Sir Reginald Greystone; Mr. J. G. Maine shows ability in the part of Sergeant Jack Horseman; and Captain Mannering is taken in finished style by Mr. A. Brandon; Mr. Clifford Rear gives a praiseworthy impersonation of Frank Wilding, and some amusing light interludes are supplied by Mr. T. G. Vane as Leiutenant Ballater and Miss Ennis-Lawson as May, the heroine's sister.

Empire.—Moss Empires, Ltd.—General-Manager, Major Gallaghar.—Tom Jones, a Welsh comedian, holds first place in the bill here; Ferguson and Mack keep the house in roars, and O'Gust, the French mimic, is as popular as ever; the Sleeds present an amusing sketch, The Mysterious House; James Eadie and Cissy Ramsden are a delightful pair; Sinclair and Parr sing Hibernian duets in good style; Fred Lincoln in both his songs proves a capital American; and Ina Lorimer, a young Scotch comedienne, fully merits the recognition she receives; the Bioscope completes the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett.—Sergeant Brue is being presented here by Mr. Robert Crossman's company. Mr. T. A. Shale as Crookie Scrubbs is again popular; Mr. A. Reynolds, a capable Sergeant, makes the most of his opportunities; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy does good service as Michael Brue; Miss Mary Hay is a smart Lady Bickenhall; Miss Daisy Dale a good Aurora; and Mr. Charles Sims an amusing Mr. Crank.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—Mr. Fred Storey and company are here in Rip Van Winkle. Mr. Storey himself portrays Rip most successfully, and is well supported by Miss Lillian Holmes as Gretchen, Mr. A. Maitland Stapley as Derrick, Master Hemingway, and Mr. Keith Fraser as Hendrick, and Miss Norah Thornton and Miss Edith Cornish as Weenie. Gladys Warren is a brilliant comedienne; the Sisters Temple are dainty duettists; Tod Lowen compels laughter; the Brothers St. Clair's comedy acrobatic cycle act includes a football game, which is greatly appreciated; C. Vincent projects a pretty coloured film, Easter Eggs; Nellie Lunelle, a clever dancer; and Fred Mason, comedian, also contribute.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—The Leopolds, with The New Frivolity, have met with a cordial reception here this week. As Oliver Buckwheat, Mr. Watson Hume creates a favourable impression; and Mr. John Leopold, jun., makes a decided hit as Daniel Teething. Mr. Arthur Mordaunt is a satisfactory Jules Vermiglio; Mr. Willie Leopold is smart as Samuel Vermiglio; Mr. Ernest Leopold is well placed as Tickle; and Mr. W. H. Howarth does justice to the part of Mick. As Mme. Cobweb, Miss Cathleen Cavanagh is worthy of much praise; Miss Amy Hall is clever as Lucy Buckwheat; Miss Gertie Winter is a capable Vinnie Moore; Miss Queenie Bronte is an interesting Nanette; Miss Gladys Somers is well suited as Maude; and Miss Violet Keand is a pleasing Nita. Frivolity is preceded by The Houseboat, which has also been much enjoyed.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Maximilian Trio, in their drawing-room entertainment, meet with a good reception here; the Four Cecilians, musicians and dancers, give an enjoyable turn; Little Don, character comedian, goes well; and Messrs. Broadway and Beale, American comedians; Mr. W. Bernard, mimic; the Reddans, speciality artists; and the Bio-photoscope, are all successful.

NORTHWICH.—Central Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. Golden.—Robert Pender and company are here this week in The Golden Goose. Miss Lola Holman, a pleasing ballad vocalist; Miss Vesta Fay, a clever male impersonator; Mark Lane and Geo. Temple, popular comedians; the Continental Stilt Walkers; Tom Amanian, contortionist; and the Albert Family, were in the bill.

Pierrot Pavilion.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Glanmore Jones.—Mr. and Mrs. Victor André and company visit Northwich this week, and a good house welcomed them on Monday.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Charles Macdona's excellent company, in The Duchess of Dantzic, is here. Miss Anna Hickisch as Sans Gene is excellent, her acting and singing being perfection; Mr. Frank Bradley admirably portrayed the character of Napoleon; Mr. Marshall Vincent as Lefebvre, both in singing and acting, was very good; Mr. C. B. Williams deserves commendation as Phillipe; Mr. Harold Batt was equally deserving as Papillon; Miss Daisy Kersey was a pleasing Rene; and Miss Edith Martyn was appreciated as Lisette.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Foremost among the artists here are Haley's Juveniles, whose entertainment meets with unbounded approbation; the Silbons's miniature circus is also a good turn, the tricks of the animals showing skilful training; Ada Fawn, burlesque artist, is an immense favourite; an amusing acrobatic turn is given by the Brothers Edmond; Stiddar and Dunbar are good musical comedy duettists; Marion Scott is a dainty comedienne; and Lily Black wins favour for her songs. Harry Leybourne is well received; and the Hippo. Bioscope exhibits some pleasing pictures.

Agricultural Hall Assembly Rooms.—The Royal Canadian Company's pictures, in their twelfth week, conclude the season. Unprecedented success has been the result of the company's efforts, and fresh pictures have been shown every week.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—A specially attractive entertainment is provided this week in the visit of Mr. Martin Harvey and Miss N. de Silva and their company in a répertoire of plays. On Monday they presented The Breed of the Treshams to a large and enthusiastic house. In the rôle of Rat Reresby Mr. Martin Harvey is provided with a part which is admirably suited to his versatile powers, and loud and prolonged applause, often repeated, testified to the actor's thorough grip of the audience. Miss N. de Silva makes a capital boy, and her singing in the first act is thoroughly appreciated. Mr. Charles Glenny renders a good account of himself as Colonel Hungerford, and Mr. Charles J. Cameron looks and acts the part of Viscount Dorsington to perfection; as the cool and steady soldier, Sir Henry Curwen, Mr. Albert E. Raynor is thoroughly successful; whilst the eager boyishness of Cornet Tresham is simulated in good style by Mr. Alfred Mansfield; Mr. Fred Wright, sen., does well as Colonel Bagshaw; whilst the other officers are carefully portrayed by Messrs. Philip Hewland, Percy Foster, and Denholm Muir. A very sweet and sympathetic performance is that of Miss Coleridge as Margaret, and she is well supported by Miss Maud Milton as Mrs. Bagshaw, and Miss Maud Rivers as Hellna Pierrepont. The Corsican Brothers, A Cigarette Maker's Romance, and The Only Way are also in the week's scheme.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is presenting The Village Blacksmith to large audiences here. Mr. Sam Livesey, in the rôle of John Strong, acts with vigour and pathos; Miss Maggie Edwards's efforts are heartily appreciated; in the villainous part of Captain Leo Mr. Joseph Carter finds ample scope for his undoubted talent; Mr. Edwin Maydew does well as Marler; in the child part Miss Bertha Hanbury is quite at home, and Miss Cassie Le Grande acts well as Ruth; Mr. Thomas E. Marshall and Mrs. T. C. Livesey succeed admirably as Parkins and his wife; Mr. Geo. Wilton is well suited to the character of St. John Harman, and Mr. Geo. V. Campbell makes an excellent country boy; a typical policeman and a good detective are found in Messrs. Gus Ratcliffe and S. Bale; Miss Edith Giddens is a clever Martha Mopps.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—With George Robey on the bill laughter is assured; Billy Howard and Kathryn Harris are to be congratulated on their excellent fooling in The Adventures of a Happy Tramp; Ethel Haydon's dainty singing is received with delight; as a ventriloquist Mabel Sinclair secures hearty favour; and the flying trapeze act of the Clement Trio is watched with breathless interest; the Sisters Pine submit a musical comedy act, Maggie's Day Out, and the hilarity is further helped by The Leonards in a sketch, Point Duty; The Legay Quartette amply demonstrate their ability as whirlwind dancers; Charles Pastor, comedian, and the American Bioscope comple a capital programme.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. John E. Tomlinson's company is paying a return visit with Secrets. Mr. R. Brown makes a thoroughly capable Lieutenant Markham; the part of his friend, Cecil Cholmondley, is capitally portrayed by Mr. Ernest R. Allen; Mr. J. E. Tomlinson gives a striking assumption of Ibrabeni al Murad (the slave dealer); Mr. Robert Innes, as Kard Mesrour, and Mr. Wilton Richards, as Nouredin Ali, are parts well played; Miss Nina France is a pleasing Ismalla, and Miss Nellie Navarro is good as Zuelicka; Mr. George Willis and Miss Lizzie Palmer, as Peter and Winnie Wilkins, create an amount of fun.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—The Lady Slavey attracted a large audience on Monday evening, when Mr. Robert Crossman's company gave a first-class rendering of the play. Miss Winnie Volt as Phyllis sings and acts in charming manner; Miss Rita Presano as Flo Honeydew is admirable, using her sweet voice to good effect; Misses Evie and Gladys Anderson as Maud and Beatrice, also sing and dance with success; Mr. W. T. Thompson as Roberts keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. Keino Johnston plays his old part of Major O'Neill as to the manner born; Mr. Frank Henderson as Lord Lavender gives a capital impersonation of a dude; and Mr. Paul Presano makes a successful Bill. Mr. E. Floyd Gwyne appeared at a few minutes' notice in the part of Vincent A. Evelyn with great success, and retains the part for the remainder of the visit; Miss Ethel Ford as Mlle. Pontet, and Miss Amy Hilton as Mlle. Louise, are perfect. The chorus is a strong one, and Mr. K. Ernest Irving directs an augmented orchestra successfully.

Colosseum.—General-Manager, Mr. W. Eastwood.—A strong holiday attraction has been provided by Messrs. Mr. Nelson Keys in the rôle of Sir Guy de Vere, Bart., keeps things merrily rolling, to the delight of his audiences; Mr. Augustus Symonds renders good service as Isaac Isaacson; Mr. Thomas Pauncefort is equally successful as Hon. Chas. Widdicombe; and Mr. Wm. Lockhart is seen to advantage as the Rev. Peter Pottlebury, D.D.; Sir Bryan Bullymote is safe in the keeping of Mr. Charles Ommanney; and Mr. Talbot Homewood is adequate as Wittle; Miss Emeline Polini as Lady Rowena submits a most interesting interpretation; Miss Violet Graham and Miss Bessie Walters ably represent Lady Millicent and Lady Marjorie respectively; Miss Vera Herbert is successful as Kate Pottlebury; and Miss Lena Flowerdew lends colour to the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave; Miss Marjorie Chard's sustainance of Miss Isaacson is all that can be desired. The remaining characters are all adequately represented.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jos. Hemingway.—Good houses are being drawn by the popular military play, Revenge. Mr. Hill-Mitchelson is as powerful as ever in his character of Prince Orloff; Captain Joris Vanessa is well represented by Mr. George Daiper; and the King receives a dignified portrayal from Mr. William Hailbronn; Mr. Francis Serle is excellent as Count Musant; and Mr. Sinclair Holden submits a capital rendition of Captain Carr, R.N.; whilst a word of praise is also due to Miss Cissie Podmore for a vivacious representation of Lien Maurice; Miss Violet Carlyle scores as the Queen; and Miss Alice Barber favourably sustains the part of Draga Vanessa; Miss Mary Stafford Smith is most commendable as Cora Brook; Miss Mary Collier is well placed as Tusha; and Miss Ada Douglas is successful as Olga. The remaining parts are adequately represented by Mr. Russell Bayne, Mr. J. E. Abbott, Mr. George Sibbon, Mr. C. Henderson, Mr. J. Malden, and Mr. James Ross.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton.—Mr. J. H. Tindle's animated pictures still continue to run with successful results. Variety items are also being put forward, forming a pleasing interlude, the principal of which are May Armstrong, a clever speciality dancer, and Geo. Mustard, with his well sung illustrated contributions.

EMPIRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The bill is headed by Mr. Fred Lindsay, the wonderful whip manipulator, who submits an entertainment of quite a unique nature; the Carina Sisters contribute a welcome and artistic musical mélange; Belloni's cockatoos occupy a prominent position; George Brooks' songs are well appreciated; Powell's marionettes have reached a high state of perfection; Fred Sylvo, comedy juggler; Fred Keeton, eccentric comedian; Eva Hope and Jack Wayho in duologues of well-known scenes and incidents from Dickens; Lizzie Daniels, a popular soubrette artist; and the Bioscope pictures comprise the bill.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—Chanti, the quick-change artist, is given premier position here this week; his various impersonation are remarkably clever and smart. The programme also includes Jock Walker, Scotch comedian; Lyster and Cooke, musical astronomers; Victor Travers, comedian; Carrie Laurie's Juveniles in the "Kindergarten," who secure a reception that is surprising; Oliver Conroy, comedian; the Two Bees, in their comedy scena, The Man in the Moon; Edie King, comedienne and dancer; and the Palace pictures.

VICTORIA HALL.—Proprietors, the Sunderland Corporation.—The last week of Pringle's pictures will terminate to-night. The graphic details of The Unwritten Law are closely followed by large audiences. The vaudeville items are provided by the Cymros, Welsh comedy duettists, and Zingara, the bajo queen.

THE PAVILION.—Pictures and varieties by Lee, Handell, and Lee, saxophone players, supply the well-appreciated entertainment here this week.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Brooks and Woodbridge; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Dean.—The Swansea Amateur Dramatic Society have presented The New Housemaid here this week. The farce has been preceded by a well-written sketch by Robert Aswal, entitled Labour and Logic.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Wanted by the Police, a drama teeming with sensations, is well put on here this week by Mr. Herbert Barr's talented company. Phillip Stanhope is strikingly enacted by Mr. Edwin Walton; while his friend, Nunkey Snarl, a showman, is finely impersonated by Mr. Herbert Barrs. As the villain of the play Mr. Ronald Graham could not be improved upon; whilst as his lieutenant Mr. Edward Cheetham was very successful. Mr. Duncan Bell as Dr. Foster was good; the same remark applying to Messrs. H. Evans, Alf. Selwood, F. Best, G. Esdale, and Harold Lyne. Miss Dorothy Oswald as Mary Foster acted with a naturalness that was very pleasing; Miss Edna Hana also giving a powerful rendition of the part of Florence Fordyce. Humour was capitally served out by Miss Maude Vincent and Mr. Jas. F. Firth.

THE EMPIRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. A. Mitchell; Assistant-Manager, Mr. P. A. Rowe.—A strong bill is headed by Herbert Darnley's company in The Skirmishers, which goes well; Violas, the White Mahatmas, give a clever exhibition of mental telegraphy; Godfrey James, the singing collier, pleases everybody with his fine tenor voice; E. J. Sheldon, "the man in white," entertains in various ways; Mlle. Von Etta, protean artist, gives a pleasing turn; and Beatrice Willey excels in a medley of old flower songs. The Three Rubys are ladies who do great things on the trapeze. The Bioscope, as usual, is interesting.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Business-Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, with The Cingalee, under the business direction of Mr. A. Law Raynor, is a great attraction here. Mr. Tom Payne as the Baboo Lawyer is remarkable for his rich fun and amusing activity; Miss Marjory Grey is a captivating Nanoya; Miss Lydia Flopp a delightful Peggy Sabine; and Miss Coral Mansell an excellent Lady Patricia. A distinct feature of the piece was Miss Violet Hope's clever pas seul in Act II. As Harry Vereker Mr. Wilfred Heath was admirable; Mr. W. J. Austin as Bobby Warren worked hard and successfully; and Mr. Milroy Cooper did well as Boobhamba.

TONYPANDY.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Counsell.—A return visit of Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company in In Holy Russia is welcomed with enthusiasm. Mr. Cassidy as Micky Nolan continues to give a fine performance of the popular rôle. Mr. Arthur Stratton scores an immense success as Col. Richard Forrest; Mr. J. Cuthberton gives an admirable assumption of the character of Baron Von Pleve; Mr. Frederick Lloyd scores heavily as Michael Natolski; Mr. Carl Rovinelle gives a fine portrayal of the part of Laurise Steragoff; Mr. Rolf Leslie is excellent as Count Gregori; Mr. Frank Copeland is a capable Sir Harry Beresford; Catska Lavotski is in the safe hands of Miss Florence Creagh; and in the important part of Renée Rubinoff Mrs. Rice Cassidy gives an exceedingly clever portrayal.

TORQUAY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—A great treat is provided the patrons here this week by Mr. George Alexander's company in His House in Order. The rôle of Hilary Jesson, the tactful and clever diplomat, was excellently taken by Mr. Frank Fenton, who was ably supported by Miss Marie Polini, whose Nina was both skilful and impressive; as Filmer Jesson Mr. Ernest Young displayed talent; and as Geraldine Ridgeley Miss Henrietta Leverett introduced just the amount of necessary austerity. Mr. Richard Dalton as Sir Daniel Ridgeley, and Miss Madge Johnstone as Lady Ridgeley, both did extremely well; and Mr. Langford Browne as Pryce Ridgeley made the character amusing. As Young Derek Jesson Miss Maisie Richardson gave a capital study; and Mr. Charles Tyrel was also good as Major Maurewarde. Mr. Frank Hill evoked much merriment as Dr. Dilnott; whilst Mr. Barnett Parker as Harding, and Mr. Edwin Forde as Forshaw, were very able exponents of their respective parts.

PRINCESS PIER CONCERT HALL.—Proprietors, the Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—An excellent party, under the direction of Mr. Walter Walters, known as "The Sabots," is delighting large audiences here this week. Miss Stroud Wilson is a good soprano; and Miss Gwenllian Lewis introduces some clever step-dancing. Mr. Sydney Warwick (baritone) and Mr. Charles Bulwar (ventriloquist) do very well. Mr. Walter Walters is a high-class humorist; and Mr. Archie Naish is also responsible for a large share of the success.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Welton Dale.—See See, as presented by Mr. George Edwardes's company, under the direction of Mr. J. A. E. Malone, has proved a great attraction this week. Miss Mysie Devine has given a charming interpretation of the title-rôle, and Mr. Alex. Worcester has made an excellent Yen. The parts of the two paters are portrayed with much humour by Mr. Tom Redmond and Mr. Fred Epitaux, while Tom Nelldon is excellent as Hang Kee. The graceful dances of Miss Gertrude Parker as So-Hie have been much applauded, and Miss Mora Hersee has been very successful as the daughter of Yang. As the three wives of Cheoo the Misses Mary Morison, Frances Olgar, and Nora Jones, together with Miss Nellie Beacon as the wife of Wang, have materially contributed to the humorous side of the piece; and Miss Nina Carlton has given an excellent study of the fortune-teller. Miss Rubie Vincent as the Maid also deserves mention.

TYNEMOUTH. — PALACE-BY-THE-SEA.—Proprietor and Director, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—A decided success has been scored here this week by Mr. Joseph Cheetham, a tenor vocalist, who appeared as an "extra turn"; the Willow Pattern Serenaders contribute an agreeable musical mélange; Welda and Wynne are smart jugglers and ancers; the Brothers Obo score as quaint comedians and duettists; Ormonde Penstone, illusionist, is also a capital item; and the Bioscope pictures prove acceptable.

VENTNOR.—GRAND PAVILION.—The Superior Miss Pellender was played to a large audience on Monday. Miss Pellender was represented by Miss Queenie Fraser Brunner, the dignity and cool self-possession of the young woman being skilfully presented; Mrs. Pellender found a prepossessing and artistic exponent in Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh, who is to be highly complimented on her success; Mr. William Fraser Brunner was a host in himself as Tister; Miss Marie Ault made a charming little Edith; Nancy was naturally portrayed by Miss Marie Longden; and Noel was ably represented by Mr. Victor Garnet Vayne.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Ernest Shand holds premier position on the bill, and proves himself exceedingly smart. W. H. Barber, in his cycle act, is successful; and Cecil Bernard, boy comedian; Harry Thorpe and Zoë Coe, in their comedy episode, My Burglar, a capital performance; the Netherlands, in their Dutch scena; Arthur Lester, in his popular chorus songs; the Warsaw Bros., in a musical sketch, The Bugler; and the American Bioscope complete a capital bill.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Harry Foxwell's company is here in A Broken Heart. Mr. Harry Culenford as John Barnard is well placed; Mr. Geo. M. Newall does well in the part of Stephen Rayltor; Miss Louisa Peach as Mary Barnard is very good; Miss Maud Stuart as Miss Grace Fanshawe acts with distinction; and Miss Ethel Crawford enacts the rôle of Mrs. Kellet most successfully.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT THEATRE.— Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—The management have scored another big success here this week, and Alfred Sutro's play, The Walls of Jericho, has had a most enthusiastic reception. Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. V. Leveaux's company is a strong combination. Mr. Wilfred E. Payne as Jack Frobisher plays the earlier scenes with commendable restraint, but fire, strength, and concentrated passion characterise the outburst against the smart set in act III. Mr. E. Spencer Leach as the bluff Hankey Bannister scores well, and a really clever sketch of the Marquis of Steventon is submitted by Mr. H. Kingsford Pearce. Mr. Charles Fancourt as Harry Dallas plays most effectively; Mr. Alexander Casey gives a finished impersonation of Bertram Hannaford; Miss Dora Hole as Lady Alethea Forbisher ably depicts the underlying womanliness of the wife's character; and Miss Margaret Murray is a gentle and sympathetic Lady Westbury. Miss Margaret Nybloe as Miss Mornington scores a big success; and Miss Elsie Ross as Lady Lucy Derenham plays very prettily.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Waters; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot. —King's College Boys are here this week, and their sketch, The Students' Concert, gives them ample scope. H. O. Wills is a rare entertainer, and his eccentricities are as original as they are amusing; Martin Clifford is a smart comedian, and Victor Courtney is good as the comedian at the piano; Mlle. Zelda plays on a variety of unique musical novelties, and Massona is a good comedy juggler; Cliff Ryland is a quaint comedian; and the pictures are a delightful assortment.

NEW HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, McNaughton, Ltd.—This place will be opened on the 16th inst., under the management of Mr. Harrison, now associated with the Palace Theatre, Halifax.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mark Blow's company is here this week with At Cripple Creek. Mr. Stanley Bedwell gives a clever impersonation of the part Joe Mayfield, Miss Daisy Carlton is highly successful as Maggie Mason, Mr. Will Hook makes a droll Reggie Harwood, Mr. Eric Hudson does well in the character of Martin Mason, and the same may be said of Mr. J. L. Leigh as Manuel Alvarez. Miss Nancy Roberts is good in the part of Bella Gordon, the Dynamite of Miss Agnes Verity and Miss Nora Dillon's Sarah Lively merit praise, and the other parts are ably sustained.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Albert Withers.—Big houses are being drawn here this week by the roller cyclists Davis and Gledhill, who make their show a fascinating one. Jack Daw sings some funny songs; a clever musical turn is contributed by the Cecilians; Garney and Armstrong are well received; Edwin Garth submits some smart songs and patter; Montague Biggs as a female impersonator is remarkably good; Siem does some remarkable sleight-of-hand tricks; real funny vocalists are the American Comedy Four, who gain several encores; and the Hippodrome pictures are highly amusing.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne. —Mr. E. Graham Falcon's company is here this week in The Private Secretary. Mr. George Scully is extremely funny as the Rev. Robert Spalding; so, too, is Mr. Harry Douglas as Mr. Cattermole; Mr.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, AUG. 21.—Time was when the managers were afraid to risk making any important productions until after the public had returned from its summer haunts, or about the middle of September. Then the general holiday that occurs a fortnight earlier and is known as Labour Day, being the American equivalent of the August Bank Holiday, was made the date for the real beginning of theatrical activity. This year, however, fully half the number of Broadway houses will be in full swing by the end of August, including the conservative Empire, which, contrary to all precedent, will be opened by Mr. John Drew before the month is out. At this writing, the current amusement list bears a frivolous aspect, thanks to a dozen musical pieces, which will be replaced by attractions of greater importance when the cooler weather comes.

"THE ALASKAN," a comic opera produced last week at the Knickerbocker Theatre, has an alluring title for the dog-days, suggesting snow and ice and an atmosphere of frigidity that is by no means discomforting when the temperature is in the nineties. The piece is hardly up to the Broadway standard, however, being a curious compound of musical comedy and melodrama. The mise-en-scène merits praise, and an Esquimaux dance is an entertaining feature, while a tuneful march in the first act is deservedly encored. The Press notices of the production were decidedly frosty.

"THE YANKEE TOURIST," which has opened the season at the Astor Theatre, is the comedy formerly called The Galloper, by Richard Harding Davis, which ran last winter at the Garden Theatre. It deals with the adventures in Athens of a Yankee millionaire, disguised as a war correspondent. Converted into a musical farce, the piece is livelier and more entertaining, providing as it does more scope for the eccentric humour of Mr. Raymond Hitchcock, and enabling him to sing and dance to his heart's content and the complete satisfaction of the audience. Mr. Wallace Irwin, who wrote the lyrics, and Mr. Alfred G. Robyn, who composed the music, have furnished Mr. Hitchcock with several good songs, topical and otherwise, which make a hit. Miss Flora Zabelle, whose pretty "Rainbow" song is well received, Mr. Harry West, and Misses Helen Hale, Susie Cawthorn, and Eva Fallon are factors in the success of the piece deserving mention.

"THE LADY FROM LANE'S," a three-act comedy with music, was the opening attraction at the Lyric Theatre last Monday. The book and lyrics are from the versatile pen of Mr. George Broadhurst, and for the music Mr. Gustave Kerker is responsible. Singleton Seabright, a Western millionaire, decides to play the detective when his cashier absconds with a large sum of money, and chooses an alias which happens to be the one chosen by the fugitive. A female detective from Lane's Agency, who has been put on the job, suspects that Seabright is the thief, but his manner is so engaging that she falls in love with him. What follows is the usual tangle of mistaken identities, and although the device is old, many amusing situations result, thanks to the ingenuity of the author. Mr. Thomas A. Wise as Seabright and Miss Truly Shattuck as the lady detective worked together admirably, and were liberally rewarded with applause and laughter. Miss Ida Hawley sang charmingly, and others who distinguished themselves in various ways were Messrs. Robert Peyton Carter, Lionel Walsh, Walter Percival, Miss Georgie Lawrence, and Mrs. E. A. Eberle. For an August night there was an extraordinary muster of "first-nighters," and the piece was given a most enthusiastic reception.

THE Russell Brothers (James and John), known to fame through their mirth-provoking sketch, The Irish Servant Girls, have gone into the "legitimate." The Hired Girl's Millions, written by Charles E. Blaney, and described as a "musical melodrama," is the name of their vehicle, and the plot largely consists of the numerous and mysterious disguises assumed by the brothers. James Russell appears as Jim McCann (a porter), as Seraphina (a servant), as Frau Sweinburger (an opera singer), as Jeannette (a French actress), and as Betsy Brief (a female lawyer). John Russell has almost as many aliases, and each new make-up provokes roars of laughter.

MCINTYRE AND HEATH, partners for over thirty years, and believed to be the only ones in the business who have been together so long, are disporting themselves once more at the New York Theatre in The Ham Tree, which is their ancient negro sketch, The Georgia Minstrels, "elaborated" into a full-blown musical comedy.

COLE AND JOHNSON, the coloured comedians and song-writers, have just launched their new musical concoction, The Shoo-Fly Regiment, at the Bijou Theatre. The piece deals with the adventures of a negro regiment in the Phillipines, and there are songs and dances galore.

"THE LITTLE CHERUB," with Miss Hattie Williams as Molly Montrose, has been revived, with complete success, at the Criterion Theatre. This merry piece has served as the opening attraction at this playhouse for two years in succession. It must be a "powerful" attraction that lures the public into a theatre during the dog-days, but The Little Cherub "fills the bill."

MR. DAVID BELASCO'S new Stuyvesant Theatre will have as its initial attraction in October a new drama of American life, by David Belasco and Misses Phelps and Short, entitled A Grand Army Man, in which Mr. David Warfield will enact the title-rôle, impersonating an old soldier who has served in the Civil War, the locale of the play being a picturesque section of the state of Indiana. The supporting company will include Miss Marie Bates and Mr. Reuben Fax, who distinguished himself in support of Miss Eleanor Robson, particularly as the Kentucky "colonel" in Salome Jane.

"THE MAN OF THE HOUR," produced at the Savoy Theatre when snow was on the ground and kept on the boards throughout the entire summer, is still running. The Orchid, which has had a long and prosperous run at the Herald-square Theatre, will shortly leave that house to make way for Miss Virginia Harned in Anna Karenina, and will be transferred to the Casino, replacing Fascinating Flora. The revival of Divorçons by Miss Grace George and her company at the Lyceum Theatre has proved a source of enjoyment to a large number of people who have been prompted by the success of the charming Miss George in London to renew their acquaintance with Sardou's delightful comedy.

NEW YORK, AUG. 28.—When Charles Marlow's three-act farce, When Knights Were Bold, was chosen by Mr. Charles Frohman as this season's vehicle for Mr. Francis Wilson a most fortunate selection was made. The result is that Mr. Wilson has the biggest succes on his hands since the days of Erminie. The re-opening of the Garrick Theatre on the 20th inst. was a happy event for all concerned, for the audience that witnessed the first representation here of Mr. Marlow's play began to laugh a few minutes after the curtain went up and hardly stopped until the performance was over. Furthermore, the Press notices of the play were unanimously favourable. There is no doubt that it will become tremendously popular, and will remain at the Garrick Theatre for a long time to come. Mr. Wilson revels in the part of Sir Guy de Vere, of Beechwood Towers, and while playing it in a spirit of broad farce yet does not overdo it, but acts with a sincerity withal that carries conviction. He receives admirable support from Mr. George Irving as Isaac Isaacson, Mr. Augustin Duncan as the Hon. Charles Widdecombe, Mr. Clarence Handysides as the Rev. Peter Pottleberry, Mr. Campbell Gollan as Sir Brian Ballymote, Miss Pauline Frederick as Lady Rowena Eggington, Miss Margaret Gordon as Miss Isaacson, and the other members of an excellent company.

"THE ROUND-UP," by Edmund Day, produced at the New Amsterdam Theatre last Monday, is a spectacular melodrama with a sensational battle scene between white men and Indians that is one of the best things in the way of stage surprises seen on Broadway for many a day. The scenes are laid in the south-eastern section of Arizona, the requisite "atmosphere" and local colour being provided in the shape of "genuine Western cavalrymen, cowboys, Mexican vaqueros, Apache Indians, and twenty-two cow ponies from the Arizona cattle ranges." The action begins with preparations for the wedding of Jack Payson, a young ranch owner, to a "typical Western girl" named Echo Allen. The girl was once engaged to Jack's friend, Dick Lane, a mining engineer, who started on a prospecting tour and has not been heard of for a year or two, except that he has written once to Jack Payson. But Jack has put the letter in his pocket and said nothing about it. Dick returns shortly before the time set for the wedding of Jack and Echo, and when the situation is made clear to him he decides in a spirit of self-sacrifice to bury himself in the desert. The wedding proceeds, Echo being kept in ignorance of the wanderer's return, and soon afterwards suspicion falls on the bridegroom. Dick has returned some money he borrowed before he went away, and Jack has paid off a mortgage with it, with the result that he is suspected of having robbed and murdered an express agent. Being threatened with arrest, he tells Echo of Dick's return, and she tells him he must find the friend he has betrayed and set things right.

THE next scene shows a barren waste in the Arizona desert. Indians are hovering about, and down a steep declivity they file on horseback—a band of a score of savage braves. Dick Lane is dying of thirst in the desert, but Payson finds him, gives him water to drink, and saves him. Then there is the crack of a rifle, and in an instant Indians rise like spectres behind every jutting rock, and the shooting begins. The din is deafening. In the nick of time a detachment of cavalry dashes up with a machine-gun, and every Indian is made to bite the dust. The scene thrills the audience, and evokes a storm of applause.

IN the last act we learn that Lane was killed and Payson dangerously wounded. He recovers, and the cowboys make merry after the manner of their kind. And having atoned for the wrong he committed for love of Echo, she takes him to her arms again. The author has lightened his story with occasional touches of humour in speech and character, mostly expressed through the medium of "Slim" Hoover, the local sheriff, who learns when it is too late that "nobody can love a fat man." In this character Mr. Maclyn Arbuckle carried off the principal honours. He fits the part and the part fits him. Messrs. Orme Caldara, Wright Kramer, Harold Hartsell, Elmer Grandin, and Misses Florence Rockwell and Julia Dean distinguish themselves in prominent rôles.

"ADVANCED VAUDEVILLE," of which a generous sample was submitted by Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger at their New York Theatre last Saturday night, proved to be such a desirable commodity that henceforth the amusement itinerary of the up-to-date New Yorker will not be "complete without it." The occasion marked the local entry of the well-known theatrical firm into the vaudeville field, and the event attracted much attention. The lobby of the theatre resembled a well-stocked garden, and the reconstructed auditorium presented a very attractive appearance. At eight o'clock it was "taxed to its capacity," as the Press agents say. First on the programme were the Bogannys, "acrobatic bakers" from Berlin, whose lively capers made everyone sit up and take notice. Then came the Alexandroff troupe of Russian dancers—nine of them. Their dancing was of the "whirlwind" kind, and was heartily applauded. George Fuller Golden, the monologuist, reappeared after a long absence, and gave the audience what slangy young Americans call "a line of talk," which caused no end of laughter, his discourse being chiefly on the subject of "trial marriages." The Ritchie-Hearn Pantomime Company, from London, in their novel act, The London Fire Brigade, made an undeniable hit. Their reception was most cordial. Grace Hazard, a dainty artist, in her "quick-change" act, Five Feet of Comic Opera, the changes being made before the audience, did an excellent turn, and scored a pronounced success; and the same remark applies to M. Desroches, Mlle. Bianca, and their canine mimics, from Paris. The dogs are dressed exactly like the lady and gentleman, and follow them about the stage imitating their actions. When the gentleman makes an avowal in pantomime to the lady the dog in trousers mimics his gestures, while the other dog, in skirts, acts like the lady. It is a remarkably clever exhibition of canine intelligence, or whatever one may choose to term it. Others in the bill were George Evans, the popular singing comedian, who warbled with his usual success; and the Congress of Spanish Dancers, twelve in number, who were seen in an elaborate vocal and instrumental act called A Fête Night in Seville, which was well received, their sinuous dancing causing something of a sensation. During the intermissions the audience flocked to the art room, which is hung with the famous collection of pictures gathered by the late Augustin Daly, and exhibited for many years in the foyer of his theatre. "Telharmonic," or electrical, music was provided, and a perfumed fountain attracted much attention.

THE Sutcliffe troupe of Scotch acrobats are appearing at Keith and Proctor's Twenty-Third-street Theatre. They wear the tartans of the different Scottish clans, and always receive a warm welcome. Patrice, in the favourite sketch, A New Year's Dream, is reappearing here after a long absence.

GEORGE THATCHER, the old-time minstrel, is at Keith and Proctor's 125th-street Theatre. Appearing with him is Banks Winters. Also at this house are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kelcey, who present a new sketch, called A Tale of Turkey; and James H. Jee, juggler and equilibrist, who makes his début in America at this establishment.

GERTRUDE HOFFMAN is giving imitations of Vesta Victoria, Anna Held, Eddie Foy, and other stage favourites at Hammerstein's, where La Belle Oterita, sister of La Belle Otero, a sensational Spanish dancer, has just made her first appearance in this city. Arthur Prince is in his last week at this theatre.

MR. AND MRS. SIDNEY DREW are appearing in a sketch called Billy's Tombstones at Keith and Proctor's Union-square Theatre. The title of the sketch refers to a set of false teeth owned by the said Billy, whose loss of them, on board ship, causes him no end of trouble, and involves him in a series of ludicrous mishaps. Others in the same bill are the Willie Pantzer troupe of acrobats; Tacianu, female impersonator; and the Permane Brothers, a troupe of acrobats who appear here for the first time.

TONY PASTOR has no "re-openings," his popular theatre of varieties being open all the year round. The talent he provides is the best in the market, and his cosy little hall, while less pretentious than the modern vaudeville palaces, has had for many years a faithful clientèle of appreciative citizens, who know a good variety turn when they see it.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

The novelty of the concert at Queen's Hall on Thursday evening, Aug. 22, was Mr. Cyril Scott's overture, "Princess Maleine" (Maeterlinck). Mr. Scott has, before the work produced on Thursday, composed a symphony and a pianoforte sonata. "Princess Maleine," written some years ago, is founded on Maeterlinck's drama, and although neither a very great nor dramatic production, it is artistic and musicianly in treatment, and cleverly scored for the orchestra. A large section of the overture is devoted to music illustrating the storm which occurs in the latter portion of the play, and with the somewhat novel effect of a cock crowing the music drama ends. There is much that is picturesque and ingenious in Mr. Scott's overture, which was admirably played by Mr. Wood's orchestra, but the audience did not display any great enthusiasm at the close of the new work. The orchestra was heard to great advantage during the evening in Weber's Der Freischutz overture, the Brandenburg Concerto in G by Bach, and Mr. Granville Bantock's "Hymns to Aphrodite" (Sappho). Sir Alexander Mackenzie's bright and lively overture, "Britannia," also greatly pleased the audience; and excellent performances were given of Handel's Largo in G, Mr. Arthur Hervey's Tone Poem, "In the East," and the prelude to the Meistersinger. In the Pianofort Concerto No. 4 in C minor (Saint-Saëns) Mr. Claude Gascoigne played with finished execution. Miss Maud Santley and Mr. Julien Henry were the vocalists

On Saturday, Aug. 24, at the promenade concert at Queen's Hall, Sir Edward Elgar's No. 4 "Pomp and Circumstance" March was performed for the first time. So popular has the "Pomp and Circumstance" March No. 2 in D become, that the trio, applied to the words of "Land of Hope and Glory," in Benson's "Coronation Ode," has gone round the world. The new March No. 4 in G is dedicated to Dr. G. Robertson Sinclair, organist of Hereford Cathedral, and is scored for full orchestra. Grandiose and impressive in style, Dr. Elgar's new work, which was preceded by the March No. 3, aroused great enthusiasm, prolonged applause following the impressive finale, finely played by the orchestra, under Mr. Wood's skilful direction. In addition to this fine march, the programme was of special interest. Tschaikowsky's "Capreccio Italien" and his 1812 Overture were given, and Richard Strauss's symphonic poem, "Tod und Verklarung"; while Gounod was represented by his "Funeral March of a Marionette." The prelude to Humperdinck's Dornröschen and the overture to Nicolai's Merry Wives of Windsor proved attractive features in the concert. Animated performances were also given by the orchestra of Berlioz's "Minuet des Follets," "Danse des Sylphes," and "March Hongroise," from Faust, Massenet's "March Le Cid," and Saint-Saëns's charming symphonic poem, "Le Rouet d'Omphale." Miss Esta D'Argo sang the "Jewel Song" from Faust; and Mr. Henry Turnpenney "Lend me your aid," from Gounod's La Reine de Saba.

On the 27th ult., at Queen's Hall, Mr. Roger Quilter's serenade for small orchestra was the novelty, and if not remarkable for originality or striking ideas, there was much to admire in the neatness of the construction and the brightness of the orchestral treatment. The performance was very efficient, and at the close the composer was summoned, and was heartily greeted by the large audience.

On the 28th ult. the conclusion of Max Roger's serenade was given. This composer's work, which has been so enthusiastically received in Germany, was divided in a singular manner into passages for the orchestra of muted strings, and the heavier brass instruments were omitted, leaving the concluding two movements arranged in the usual form. These were most attractive, and frequently quite charming in style, the instrumentation being so skilful as to warrant the great popularity the work has won. At first, the opening movement was almost startling in its boldness of design, and the vigour of Mr. Wood's orchestra increased the effect. The audience warmly applauded, and the performance of the serenade was a triumph, and leads us to the belief that the entire work will be given ere the close of the season at a single performance, so that it can be appreciated in its completeness. The programme on Wednesday also included Schubert's Rosamunde overture, the prelude to Wagner's Tristan and Isolde, and Paderewski's Polish Fantasia, the solo being played by Mr. Isidore Epstein. Miss Edith Evans sang "Ocean, thou mighty monster," from Weber's opera Oberon, with considerable effect, and another successful vocalist was Mr. Herbert Brown. The symphony of Brahms No. 2 was also finely played, and received an amount of attention from the visitors which showed how greatly the musical taste has advanced latterly. We remember the time when a symphony at the Promenade Concerts would have been a risky experiment.

THE New York Theatre will be devoted to Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger's "advanced vaudeville" after next Saturday, which means that this big playhouse will then be turned over to twice-a-day music hall crowds, and the long-promised variety "war" will have started. The battlefield will be bounded on the south by Keith and Proctor's Union-square Theatre, on the north by Percy Williams's Alhambra and Colonial Theatres, on the west by Keith and Proctor's Twenty-third-street and Fifth-avenue Theatres and Hammerstein's Victoria Music Hall, and on the east by Klaw and Erlanger's New York Theatre. In the latter house, for the purpose of this new departure, a number of structural changes have been made. Spacious lounges have been provided, and the "promenade de luxe" has been restored to its former grandeur, the intention of the management being to copy the London and Continental palaces of variety, where the vogue of modern composite bills has assumed such proportions as to threaten the popularity of the legitimate stage. Two performances will be given daily—in the afternoon at two and in the evening at eight.

SHERIDAN'S HUMOUR.

In the Mirror of the year 1828 there are some good stories told of Sheridan, thus: It was at the strongly-contested election for Westminster, when Sheridan was opposed by Sir Francis Burdett and Lord Cochrane, that the latter, in allusion to the orator's desire of ameliorating his situation on the poll by endeavouring to blend his cause with that of the baronet, characteristically observed, "that the right honourable gentleman sought to have his little skiff taken in tow by the line of battleship of Sir Francis." Sheridan, in whom the metaphor had awakened the remembrance of the remarkable and successful influence of his speech in the House of Commons on the occasion of the mutiny at the Nore, in calming the irritation of the rebels and reducing them to obedience, in reply to his lordship, bade him "to recollect that it was that little skiff which once brought the whole navy of England safely into port."

The election drew towards its termination, but all the efforts of his friends had proved unavailing to secure Sheridan's return, although his minority was anything but formidable. The interest that attended the contest had, at its close, become intense, and every spot whence the candidates might be seen or heard was crowded in the extreme. A sailor, anxious to acquire a view of the scene of action, after all his exertions to push his way through the crowd had proved fruitless, resorted to the nautical expedient of climbing one of the poles which supported a booth directly in front of the hustings, from the very top of which Jack was enabled to contemplate all that occurred below. As the orator commenced his speech, his eye fell on the elevated mariner, whom he had no sooner observed than he rendered his situation applicable to his own, by stating that "had he but other five hundred voters as upright as the perpendicular gentleman before him, they would yet place him where he was—at the head of the pole."

Often were his addresses to his constituents interrupted by the tumult that arose from the anxiety of the public to get within hearing of him. A person, mounted on horseback, had penetrated to the very centre of the crowd, with more regard for himself than consideration towards others, as the animal he rode, affrighted by the noise, became equally annoying and dangerous to those by whom he was surrounded. The outcry was excessive, and while some strove to appease the clamour, others urged Sheridan to proceed. "Gentlemen," replied he to the latter, "when the chorus of the horse and his rider is finished, I shall commence."

His good humour was at no time disturbed during the election, although the observations of his noble Caledonian opponent manifested no amicable disposition towards the orator. As it terminated, a mutual friend of the rival candidates expressed a hope that, with the contest, all animosity should cease, and that the gallant officer should drown the memory of differences in a friendly bottle. "With all my heart," said Sheridan, "and will thank his lordship to make it a Scotch pint."

His treatment of Coleridge, the poet, who had submitted a tragedy to his managerial decision, was wholly unmerited by the author, the success of whose piece subsequently so well justified the better claims it had on Sheridan's attention. In the cavern scene, where the silence of the place is presumed to be only broken by the slow dropping of the water from its vault, Sheridan, in reading it to his friends, repeated the words of one of the characters, in a solemn tone, "Drip! drip! drip!" adding, "Why, here's nothing but dripping!" But the story is told by Coleridge himself, in the preface to his tragedy, with that good humour and frankness becoming one sensible of his powers, and conscious that the witty use of an unfortunate expression (were it such) could but little affect the real and numerous beauties of the production.

An author, whose comedies, when returned upon his hands, were generally reduced by the critical amputation of managers, from the fair proportion of five acts to two, or even one, with the ordinary suggestion of "necessary alteration," &c., complained in wrath and bitterness to Sheridan, who, it is said, attempted to console him by saying, "Why, my good fellow, what I would advise you is to present a comedy of a score of acts, and the devil will be in it if five be not saved."

I have heard it said that at the first performance of The Critic Sheridan had adopted, as the representative of Lord Burleigh, an actor whose "looks profound" accorded with his "ignorance," but who, until then, had only aspired to the livery of the theatre—the placing of chairs, or the presentation of a letter; yet who, in this humble display of histrionic art, generally contrived to commit some egregious blunder. He was remonstrated with on his choice by one of the performers, who demonstrated the excessive dulness of apprehension of the would-be Minister of State; and, like other and recent instances in that capacity, his singular aptitude to error, however simple the part he had to enact, or clear and concise the instructions with which it might be accompanied. As Sheridan had planned the character, the face was everything, and the lengthened, dull, and inexpressive visage of the subject was too strictly ministerial to be lost, and the author would, as he said, "defy him to go wrong." Still, his friend was sceptical, nor were his doubts removed by Sheridan's assuring ham that the representative of Lord Burleigh "would have only to look wise, shake his head, and hold his tongue," and he so far persisted as to lay a bet with the author that some capital blunder would nevertheless occur. The wager was accepted, and, in the fullness of his confidence, Sheridan insisted that the actor should not even rehearse the part, and yet that he should get through with it satisfactorily to the public and himself on the night of the first performance. It came. The arbiter of hopes and fears appeared in all the "bearded majesty" of the age of Elizabeth, and, flattered by the preference of the great author, had carefully conned over the following instructions:—"Mr. ——, as Lord Burleigh, will advance from the prompter's side, proceed to the front of the stage, fall back to where Mr. G—— stands as Sir Christopher Hatton, shake his head, and exit." The important moment came. With "stately step and slow," Lord Burleigh advanced in face of the audience. "Capital!" exclaimed the gratified author. With equal correctness he retreated to the side of Sir Christopher, without literally falling back, which Sheridan had for a moment doubted might be the case, "Good! a lucky escape, though," half faltered the anxious poet. "Now! now!" he continued with eager delight at having got so far so well; but what was his horror when his unlucky pupil, instead of shaking his own blundering head, in strict but unfortunate interpretation of his orders, took that of Sir Christopher within his hands, shook it long and manfully, and then walked off with a look of exultation at having so exactly complied with his lesson.

In these progressive days of actors' organisation and demands for the "minimum wage," it is interesting to turn to the account given by Mr. R. J. Broadbent, in "Stage Whispers," of touring in the provinces nearly a century ago.

At that time, says Mr. Broadbent, there were no railway trains, and, of course, no "theatrical specials," and news travelled by a process so slow that it is amusing now to hear of it. Journeys on foot were more often than not the lot of the poor provincial actor, with an occasional lift on the road from some passing vehicle. Of these itinerant players there was an old saying that ran: "Take the linen from the line, the strolling players are here," and which, in a few words, expresses very ably the admiration and esteem, save the mark, in which they were held by the populace of the provinces. But then how could it be otherwise? for had not several Acts of Parliament dubbed them "Rogues and Vagabonds?" Edward Everard, in his Narrative, and Ryley, the Itinerant, in his Memoirs, and the various biographers of the life of the elder Kean, have given us plenty of information of what their lot was like. Truly it is a pitiful record of one long struggle against hardship and privation in the cause of Dramatic Art. All that illumined the lives of these poor wayfarers, and kept them to the road, was a bright and strong ray of hope ever present in their breasts for the attainment of better things, and a possible future greatness. Had not Kemble, Kean, Siddons, and others done this before them, and owed their success to it? said they. True, but alas! the dramatic sun shines only for a favoured few, and its cheering rays are not for all.

No better, in many respects, were the so-called temples of Thespis, oftentimes only barns wherein the wandering sons of the histrionic art exercised their calling. For a moment let us take a peep into one of these provincial theatres—a good example of its fellows—and what do we find? A cold and cheerless auditorium, impregnated with the redolence of stale oranges and sawdust, and at night illuminated with candles stuck in lumps of wet clay; the walls, that had once seen the whitewash brush, covered with filth and grime; the wooden seats; the dirty green baize curtain; the torn and tattered scenery; and the insanitary conditions of the surroundings, where fever and contagion stalked free and unfettered. This sombre picture is by no means a fanciful one. Of course, there were exceptions to it, especially in the case of the higher salaried actor and in the better equipped theatres in which he performed, but even then, taking all this into account, the present-day state of the profession in the provinces is a veritable bed of roses compared with what the lot of the profession was at the epoch of which I write.

In many provincial theatres engagements were preferred to London ones, as the favourite of the Bath, Edinburgh, and Glasgow theatres often netted, with prudence, from £400 to £500 per annum. He deserved every penny of it. From a chronicler of the period (Leman Thomas Rede) we learn "that a country actor, aspiring to a first-class engagement, would have to study five hundred lines per diem; rehearsals would occupy him fours hours in the morning and about five hours more at night, not to mention the time to study the character after the attainment of the words."

I will take from the actual figures of the time before me the salaries that were then paid by the managers of the principal companies to their artists when they went on circuit or tour. Under the management of Brunton, at Plymouth and Birmingham, the ruling weekly salaries for actors at the former place were from £1 10s. to £3 10s., and at the latter £1 5s. to £2 10s. per week. At Manchester and Liverpool, under the management of Messrs. Lewis and Banks, £1 5s. to £4, and at the latter place, under Scott's management, at the Old Circus and Pavilion, from £1 10s. to £3, the terms here and at Mr. Cooke's new circus sometimes being extended, on the production of a novelty, to £10 10s. a week, though the average weekly salary at the latter place was from £2 to £5. With Mrs. Siddons's manager, W. Murray, at Edinburgh, for two seasons in the year—winter and summer—£1 5s. to £6 or £7; with Harris, at Dublin, for six months, commencing in December, £2 to £6 per week. At Bristol and Swansea, with the father of the great Macready, £1 5s. to £2 10s.; whilst at York, Leeds, Hull, Doncaster, and Wakefield, from £1 1s. to £3 was the weekly stipend. In the circuits of Brighton and Lewes, £1 5s. to £2; Northampton and Leicester, £1 1s. to £1 10s.; Portsmouth, Southampton, and Winchester, the same; Newcastle-on-Tyne, £1 1s. to £1 11s. 6d.; Margate, Ramsgate, Gravesend, Sandwich, Deal, and Dover, £1 5s.; Richmond (under Klanert), £1 1s. At Greenwich, at Christmas, £1 1s.; and at Twickenham and Henley it fell as low as 15s. In Lancaster, Preston, and surrounding towns, with Howard, from £1 to £1 5s.; and under Rider's management, at Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Perth, Dundee, and Belfast, £1 5s. to £2 2s. With the Bennett's, at Exeter, Worcester, and Wolverhampton circuits, 18s. to £1 10s. Crossing over to Ireland, at Cork, Limerick, and Waterford, with MacCarthy, formerly of the East London and Coburg Theatres, £1 10s. to £2 10s.; and in the Channel Islands, where lodgings and provisions were remarkably cheap, the average salary was £1 10s. There were also sharing or commonwealth companies, whose shares averaged from 15s. to £1 1s. per week, and whose managers visited so many towns; but so uncertain were their visits it is impossible to fix their locality. Of course, there were many other wandering Thespians of the time, but information of their peregrinations would be too difficult to procure.

In the provinces some of the principal rules of the chief theatres were that all engagements were terminable by four weeks' notice. Actors who exercised their talent at other places of amusement without the consent of the management incurred a penalty of a week's salary; a repetition of the offence, and the engagement would be forfeited. Every performer was expected to go on the stage and join in the National Anthem or forfeit 10s. In many theatres performers were not allowed to go in front of the house during the performance of a piece in which they acted. On benefit nights actors were expected not to go in front of the house without the consent of the bénéficiaire.

During the performance, if the beginners of any act kept the stage waiting, they were fined two shillings and sixpence. For taking the wrong entrance or exit, they forfeited one shilling, and for omitting a scene, five shillings. If they opened the stage door when not required in the business, two shillings and sixpence; and for standing at the wings the same. For being obviously intoxicated one guinea.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

ACTORS' UNION.

Interesting points were raised at the meeting of the Actors' Union, held at the Bedford Head Hotel on Tuesday. Mr. H. Tripp Edgar was voted to the chair, and there were also present Messrs. C. G. Calvert, H. Paulton, jun., Arthur St. John, E. Y. Rae, J. Carl Lyle, J. W. Braithwaite, F. F. Loyd, Claude Haviland, Richard Cowell, A. E. Johnstone, James English, Watty Brunton, Frank Coston, Walter Bishop, and Kenneth Blackmore (secretary), Mr. and Mrs. H. Booth, and Misses Kitty Marion, Mary Bessle, May Conrade, Florence Creagh, Kate Robberds, Magda Wildenburg, and Marion Bird.

The CHAIRMAN read a letter from Mr. Frank Gerald, their delegate at the Trades Union Congress at Bath, in which he said he had received from every section of the Congress a generous and open-hearted welcome. He was going to speak at a meeting on Wednesday, when he hoped to give expression to the reforms needed in the theatrical profession, and would do his utmost to advance the best interests of the Union. That, said the Chairman, was a very satisfactory letter. It must be apparent to all that the Union was making history, or, at any rate, was creating a bit of a stir. The Union had only been established six or eight months, and their membership numbered 512—fourteen more than when they met last Tuesday. He hoped they would go ahead and make it a thousand by Christmas. Dr. Distin Maddick, he said, had conferred upon them a constitution. It was a hypothetical constitution, but the scheme contained many things in which they should become interested, and he welcomed this entrance of a manager into their propaganda. The Doctor accepted the principle laid down in their first object, namely that of the minimum wage. The Union were the instigators of the scheme, which had taken root, and was beginning to bud even with managers. When they had secured that, the Union would have justified its being. It was a great and glorious thing to get managers to recognise that actors had a right to combine as they themselves had combined. They only wanted them to appreciate the fact that the combination was not against managers, but for the general and collective good of their brother and sister artists. He took exception to Dr. Maddick's statement that other professions were in such a good state that they had no unemployed and could restrict their supply. The Doctor was evidently not well supplied with information. He knew many lawyers knocking about trying to get cases, of barristers waiting for briefs, and of any amount of doctors who had a hard time to make a living. Dr. Maddick was right in advocating a proper legal status, but his scheme was headed with a list of names which the Chairman contended was quite unrepresentative of the body of the profession. The proposition of a minimum wage for all actors except those with a private income he regarded as absurd; where their problematical minimum wage would drop to in that case he did not know. The Chairman urged members of the Union to keep their subscriptions well paid up, so as to maintain the funds of the society in a sound condition. Their membership represented an annual income of about £512, but the arrears amounted to something like £80 or £100. He prayed members for their own good and good of others to keep straight with the funds of their Union. They should remember that if they were more than six weeks behind they would lose all benefits appertaining to the Union—such as legal protection, medical advice, free agency, and other advantages which membership entailed. They were playing a very strong game and a noble one; they were playing to win, and they were playing it for the honour of the profession they loved and the principles they prized.

Mr. CECIL CALVERT, in the course of his speech, said: Our principal object is to induce other actors and actresses to think with us, to believe that we are conscientiously working towards the goal of unity, and once that unity is attained, who is to say what is unattainable? We think we are on the right road, or we would not pursue it in face of all the opposition we have had to encounter. Others think differently. That is a natural sequence. But whether they agree with our present methods or not is no argument that they should not join us. We naturally love those who are with us, we love those even who are against us but who discuss and criticise us intelligently; but what measure of affection can be served out to those who are apathetically content to let the present state of affairs exist, who will not disturb their brains as to whether their profession is progressing towards that high state of artistic and financial prosperity which should be the ultimate aim of us all, or whether we are gradually and surely losing our hold of our audiences, and sliding downwards on the path that leads to obscurity? One of the oldest professions in the world is at present in a woeful state—in this country, at least—through the apathy and selfishness of many of its votaries, the inordinate vanity and conceit of many who having devoted no time to studying their art, having undergone none of the hardships necessarily connected with the early experiences in the only training-school possible—the stage itself—having sufficient means to live entirely independent of any profession, have succeeded in supplanting a large number of thoroughly experienced and deserving artists. That being so, it becomes more and more bewildering to me that such an extraordinary feeling of apathy exists in the ranks of our profession towards the aims and objects of our Union. Is not unity the one means by which these wrongs can be rectified? Is there any other way possible? If non-members can suggest anything more than we are striving to do, let us have it as speedily as possible. If not, what sensible argument can they raise against throwing in their lot with ours, and proving that one and all can sink petty differences and jealousies for the general good? I do ask all my brother and sister artists—members and non-members—to keep alive in their minds the awful state of affairs in our profession, and I hope that they may become impressed with the conviction that unity is the only means by which the cloud of oppression and adversity that overhangs us can be lifted.

Mr. J. W. BRAITHWAITE called attention to a serious case of bogus management of which he and others had been victims. They had been taken to Devonport by a certain manager, and left stranded with nothing wherewith to get home again. His purpose in bringing up the subject was to warn others, as he believed the manager in question contemplated taking out another company.

The CHAIRMAN promised that the name of the absconding manager should be entered in the "Blackleg Books" of the Union.

In response to the invitation of the Chairman, Mr. RICHARD PAKENHAM addressed the meeting. He said that as a manager he felt like a wolf brought in amongst a lot of people armed with guns and things. It was the first time he had had the pleasure of being present at one of their meetings, but he had read with interest reports of their meetings. He was convinced the Union was working for the good of the theatrical profession, and managers ought to appreciate their efforts. So far as he could see, the council consisted of a body of gentlemen who were working hard and well for the betterment of the stage, and not for their own glorification. It seemed as though there were many in the profession who left others to bear the brunt of the battle, and then came forward to take a share of the ha'pence. The efforts of the Union were not only for the good of the actors, but for the good of the theatre proprietor and for the good of the audiences. He learned that there were only 499 members on the books of the Union. What were all the other lost sheep thinking about that they did not come and join it? He wished the Union the best of luck. Might they all go on and prosper.

Mr. ARTHUR ST. JOHN thought it was worth the committee's while to consider the question of a sliding scale of wages. In the course of his experience he had met with absolute novices who did not know the right from the left of the stage. Surely people like that were not going to come into the Union and demand a £2 minimum? Fellows, he thought, should be entitled to the minimum wage, but Associates should have something less.

Mr. CALVERT said he never had a doubt that the £2 minimum was intended to apply to the Fellow, and not to the Associate. If a man who had had five years' experience in the profession was not worth £2 then he never would be. They must, however, have Associates from which to recruit, and portable actors and choristers would be welcomed.

Replying to a vote of thanks, the Chairman announced that the committee had something up their sleeves for the next meeting, which he hoped would be numerously attended.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.
On Monday, Sept. 2,
THE CARL ROSA OPERA COMPANY.

The company is a strong one, vocally and numerically, the stars being Miss Elizabeth Burgess, Miss Doris Woodall, Miss Amy Rolda, Miss Grace Nicoll, Miss Ina Hill, Miss Christine Ritz, Mr. Edward Davies, Mr. Alexander Richard, Mr. Charles Victor, Mr. Walter Wheatley, Mr. Dillon Shallard, Mr. Arthur Winckworth, Mr. Frederick Clendon, and Mr. Julius Walther. The conductors are Mr. Eugene Goossens and Mr. Walter Van Norden. A most enthusiastic audience greeted the performances of Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci on Tuesday, and each number was rewarded with unstinted applause. The orchestra is greatly increased for this engagement. The stage-manager of the company is Mr. George Beale, Miss Annie Elliott is the première danseuse, and Mr. Ernest C. Gittens the capable and courteous acting-manager.

AMUSEMENTS IN STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SINGAPORE, JULY 15. — This week the Bandmann Comedy Company continued the season here and played Niobe to well-filled houses. The success of this play was in a large measure due to the clever acting of Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter as Peter Amos Dunn. Miss Florence Hamer as Niobe was exceedingly good; while Mr. Claude King as Corney Griffen was very successful. Miss Helen Grenville as Hattie Griffen and Miss Violet Vorley as Beatrice Sillocks were charming in their respective parts. Miss Dorcas Corsbie as Helen Griffen played the part of the spook-ridden maiden lady with great effect, and was most amusing. Mr. Sydney Pease as Mr. Tompkins and Mr. Clifford Bown as Sillocks were good. The parts of Mr. Innings, Miss Mifton, and May were well filled by Mr. P. Sanders, Miss Violet Luddington, and Miss Lilian Lloyd.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS OLA HUMPHREY.

Miss Ola Humphrey justly claims a position as one of the celebrities of the American stage. Miss Humphrey has a brightness and cheerfulness of manner. Miss Humphrey arrived in England two weeks ago, and is relinquishing engagements in America in order that she might catch a glimpse of "The Little Island," and at the same time complete the round trip of the world. Some fifteen months ago or more Miss Humphrey was tempted by Mr. J. C. Williamson's offer to visit Australia and New Zealand, in which countries she appeared in the leading rôles in such plays as The Christian, The Squaw Man, The Virginian, &c. Her success was instantaneous. The Melbourne Argus, one of the most important papers in Australasia, writing of her performance of Glory Quayle in The Christian, says:—"Hall Caine's striking drama gave Miss Ola Humphrey an opportunity to display her art, and her characterisation of Glory Quayle—the warm-hearted, wilful, very lovable Glory—stamped her as an actress who need not fear comparison with Sarah Bernhardt in an emotional scene." Miss Humphrey characterises her twelve months' engagement with Mr. J. C. Williamson's management as the happiest engagement of her life. The management, the public, and her brother and sister artists were most charming. Asked as to what class of study she preferred, Miss Humphrey replied the Shakespearean heroines. "I have played them all, and love them: nothing else is so absolutely satisfying; everything is said in the best possible way; everything is complete and perfect. I think my best characters are emotional tragic: Nora in The Doll's House, Hedda Gabler, Tosca, Paula Tanqueray, Sappho, Julie, Camille. I have just had a play specially written for me by Opie Reid, a true sociological study, which I hope one day to present before your West End audience. I starred for upwards of five years in America in a great répertoire. I also supported Mr. James K. Hackett when he produced the Little Grey Lady, and have played in various long stock seasons. Would I advise girls to go on the stage? Why, yes, if they have some talent, a fair amount of good looks, some natural grace of figure and movement, and, above all, if they can think and work. Beauty is not indispensable to success on the stage; but there must be magnetism and charm. There are difficulties in the way, of course, but will power, which is implanted in us, is able to surmount everything, provided it is strong enough, determined enough. Am I impressed with London? Yes, very much. I like your theatres, and your artists, and hope in the near future to make my first appearance before a West End audience."

AN ECCENTRIC MANAGER.

"John Alexander, of the Theatre Royal, Glasgow," says James R. Anderson, in "An Actor's Life," "was a wonderfully eccentric person. Born of very humble origin, and bred a tallow-candle maker, he ran away from his trade, cut the rush-lights to snuff the footlights in a company of strolling players in 'the lang toon of Kirkcaddy,' and, after many years' severe probation, became a good and useful actor, if not a great one. At last he tried management, and was very successful. Having made a fortune, he built a magnificent theatre in Glasgow, his native city, and crowned his edifice with three marble statues larger than life, by a Scottish sculptor: Shakespeare on the right, Garrick on the left, and John Alexander in the middle!

"His eccentricities gave rise to numerous and humorous anecdotes and fun. He would always insist on bringing on the Ghost of Hamlet's father (no matter who was the 'star') on a slide or groove in the stage to slow and solemn music from the orchestra. Ophelia's funeral was always accompanied by a military band, playing the Dead March in 'Saul.'

"When Helen Faucit played Juliet with him, he had no young man to take Romeo, so he undertook it himself. When the play was ended, the lady was 'called,' and received with a shower of bouquets! The gods in the gallery called for 'Alec,' and he was received with a shower of cabbages, carrots, and roots! Instead of being angry, he picked them all up in his arms, and, stepping down to the footlights, said smilingly, 'Ladies and gentlemen, I am truly proud of your applause, and for these sweet tokens of your approbation, aw'll tak' them hame to the cuddy.' Shrieks of laughter and several rounds of cheers made him quite happy.

"Another anecdote is told of him. When on his death-bed, he desired to know the worst. The minister and the doctor delicately hinted that all was over with him. 'What!' said he, when he heard the unwelcome tidings, 'am I to die now that I have achieved fame and fortune, after a life of industry and labour, after having built a glorious temple to the drama, and erected my own beautiful statue, as well as Shakespeare's and Garrick's? Must I really die now?' The minister and doctor replied very mournfully, 'Alas! it is but too true.' On hearing this, poor Alexander quietly and philosophically murmured, 'Then all I can say is, it's a d——d shame!'"

THE GILBERT-SULLIVAN PARTNERSHIP.

A momentous period of the career of Sir W. S. Gilbert, the latest disciple of the drama to be honoured with the dignity of knighthood, is graphically described by Edith A. Browne, in her interesting series of "Stars of the Stage." "The honour of introducing Gilbert to the late Sir Arthur Sullivan," writes the authoress, "belongs to Fred Clay, the composer, to whom the world at large is, therefore, indebted for the initial move in what has proved such an eventful partnership. Gilbert had collaborated with Fred Clay in writing a musical play called Ages Ago for the German Reeds; Sullivan, on hearing that the author of the "Bab Ballads" was working with his friend Clay, expressed a wish to meet Gilbert and was invited by Clay to go to a rehearsal of Ages Ago at the old Gallery of Illustration, Regent Street, where the introduction took place. This was in 1871, long before Arthur Sullivan was rewarded by his grateful country with a knighthood; the acquaintance soon ripened into a friendship in which author and composer joined forces, but no striking success resulted from the collaboration till the early days of 1875, when Trial by Jury was produced. Trial by Jury had already been published in Fun by Bab. Gilbert elaborated it for the Parepa-Rosa Opera Company, and it was set to music by Carl Rosa, but the arrangements for producing it fell through, owing to the death of Parepa-Rosa, Carl Rosa's wife. Gilbert then took the libretto to Sullivan, who was ill in bed at the time, but happily not too ill to enter heartily into the spirit of the fun as Gilbert read his merry satire on the Law Courts. Delighted at the idea of giving the musical finish to this one-act play, Sullivan set to work at once on the score, and Trial by Jury was produced at the Soho Theatre, now the Royalty, on March 25, 1875. The success of the venture can hardly be said to be remarkable, for, bearing in mind the whimsical and dramatic qualities of both libretto and music, it would indeed have been remarkable if such an operetta had not instantaneously met with the appreciation it merits.

"The hearty reception accorded to this operetta naturally encouraged Gilbert and Sullivan to think of collaborating in a more ambitious venture, and it was whilst they were busy discussing their future plans that they were approached by the keen-sighted D'Oyly Carte, who had been acting-manager of the Soho Theatre at the time Trial by Jury was produced. D'Oyly Carte was now busily engaged in promoting an English Comic Opera Company to carry out his enterprising idea of developing comic opera, and providing for it a permanent London home. He was an excellent man of business, and he had already enlisted sufficient practical sympathy with his scheme to justify him in looking round for a new opera that would enable his company to demonstrate by it first production that it had a new and definite policy. Trial by Jury had shown him that Gilbert and Sullivan also had some idea of developing comic opera on original lines, and to them he instinctively turned with the request that they would write the first opera for his new company. They readily acquiesced, and set to work on The Sorcerer, which was produced by the Comedy Opera Company at the Opéra Comique Theatre on November 17, 1877. The success of The Sorcerer fully justified the company in giving its authors a further commission, as a result of which H.M.S. Pinafore was produced at the Opera Comique on May 25, 1878. After this production the Comedy Opera Company was wound up, but D'Oyly Carte took over the lease of the Opéra Comique, and for him Gilbert and Sullivan wrote The Pirates of Penzance, first produced on April 3, 1880, and Patience, which was first played on April 23, 1881.

"Meanwhile the Gilbert and Sullivan operas had become so popular that they had quite outgrown the limited accommodation of the Opéra Comique, and D'Oyly Carte saw that the happy time had now come when he might build a theatre such as he had dreamed of as the permanent home of English Comic Opera, which was now no longer a dream, but a very successful reality. Under his direction the spacious Savoy Theatre was erected, with a view to providing suitable accommodation for the adequate representation of the Gilbert and Sullivan Operas, and ensuring the comfort of the public who flocked to see them. The new theatre was opened on October 10, 1881, with Patience, which was transferred from the Opéra Comique, and for the space of nearly ten years following on this auspicious opening, Gilbert and Sullivan operas were played nightly at the Savoy, practically speaking, without a break.

"Gilbert and Sullivan entered into partnership with the object of achieving a definite ideal. They were convinced that comic opera need not rely on any suggestion of vulgarity for it humour, and furthermore they aspired to being able to prove in some measure that England need not rely wholly on translations and adaptations for its humorous operatic fare. 'We resolved,' says Gilbert, 'that our plots, however ridiculous, should be coherent, that our dialogue should be void of offence, that, on artistic principles, no man should play a woman's part, and no woman a man's. Finally, we agreed that no lady of the company should be required to wear a dress that she could not wear with absolute propriety at a private fancy ball; and I believe I may say that we proved our case.'

"With 'no vulgarity' as the keynote of their policy the two set to work, and their general method of procedure was as follows—Gilbert, having first decided on his plot, drew up the scenario in a very detailed manner; he then went through this scenario with Sullivan and the two marked in the musical situations. Gilbert next wrote all the musical numbers of the first act with a short epitome of the dialogue that was to connect them, and sent his manuscript to Sullivan, and whilst Sullivan was composing the music of the 1st act, Gilbert wrote the musical numbers of act two; he usually confined his libretto to two acts, and whilst Sullivan was setting the second act to music, Gilbert wrote up the dialogue of his play.

"The opera having been written, Gilbert next planned out all the scenery and roughly designed the costumes. Then came the task of allotting parts and arranging the chorus. The next step was for all the members of the cast to learn their words and music. Here Sullivan was to the fore, as Gilbert, notwithstanding his keen ear for rhythm, had no ear for music; he revels in Sullivan's tuneful airs, but confesses that he could not be trusted to detect anything wrong if they were sung out of tune, in fact, the impromptu insertion of a discord would probably give him a little extra pleasure. When the whole cast was word perfect and note perfect Gilbert appeared on the scene as stage-manager; this was the signal for a general squaring of shoulders; no one gave the word of command but none the [illegible] clearly it echoed through the ranks, and [illegible] company sprang to attention under the [illegible] influence of penetrating power. Everyone knew that Gilbert did not call a rehearsal in order to make experiments; he did all the rehearsing of his rehearsals at home, on a model stage, and went to the theatre knowing exactly what he wanted done and prepared to spare no trouble to get the effects he had in his mind's eye. He could be relied on never to lose patience under the most trying circumstances, never to summon anyone to attend on the mere chance of being needed, always respectfully to consider any suggestions, and quietly but wittily assert his authority should any over-zealous mime venture to improvise, without permission, or to show a too ready desire to claim the centre of the stage. By humane consideration he won the hearts of his company, by sheer ability he won their confidence, and to the discipline that ensued, together with the complete confidence placed in him by the management, he owed those numerous opportunities of producing the Savoy operas in the days gone by exactly in the spirit in which they were written and composed. A few rehearsal incidents will best re-create the disciplinarian atmosphere of the Savoy stage under Gilbert's régime. A rehearsal of The Mikado was to all appearances progressing favourably when Gilbert suddenly called out, 'There is a gentleman in the left group not holding his fan correctly,' whereupon his second-in-command explained, 'There is one gentleman who is absent through illness.' 'Ah!' replied Gilbert very gravely, 'that is not the gentleman I am referring to.'"

TOURING IN THE STATES.

The vicissitudes of theatrical travelling in America half a century ago were many and various, and attended with no little hazard, as is shown in the experiences of the late tragedian, James R. Anderson, contained in the volume, "An Actor's Life," published by the Walter Scott Publishing Company. While performing in Boston in the December of 1856, Mr. Anderson incurred a serious risk. He was passionately fond of sleighing. "One day, after a long drive with a fast pair of horses, I found, on leaving the sleigh, I had lost the use of my hands, notwithstanding that I had been driving in furred gloves. There was not a bit of feeling left in them, and I became alarmed lest I should lose them both. However, good advice and ready help were forthcoming. The kind landlord of my hotel procured a bucket of snow, and set two sturdy waiters to work, who rubbed away for dear life right and left. What with snow and friction, in about twenty minutes I began to realise sensation in my frozen hands; in an hour they were as sound as ever."

The weather in New England was as severe that winter as Mr. Anderson had found it in Canada on his previous tour. Arrangements had been made to play six nights in Providence, Rhode Island. The manager (Mr. W. C. Forbes) met the players at the railway station, and escorted them on foot (there was no road for carriage or sleigh) to their hotel. The mercury stood at 26 degrees below zero, and the snow lay eight feet deep in the streets. "Good heavens!" Mr. Anderson exclaimed to the manager, "this is a fearful state of things What is to be done? Close the theatre, of course?" "Close the theatre!" replied Mr. Forbes; "not if I know it! Why, sir, all the box seats are let for the week, and, as you say in your play-bills in the old country, I say in the new, 'Vivat Regina!—No money returned at the doors.' You'll see! You'll play a 'bully engagement.'" The manager was right; the house was crowded nightly; and the engagement was renewed for another week. The authorities, at great labour and expense, had roads cut through the snow, four feet wide, for foot-passengers, converging on the doors of the theatre and the principal churches, from the four quarters of the city, and the people came to the playhose in hundreds nightly, with lanterns in hand to light them on the way. "The engagement," says Mr. Anderson, "realised 2000 dollars: not so frosty after all. I have always believed in Providence since."

The next engagement was in New Orleans. It was not pleasant to rise at five o'clock in the morning with the thermometer at 27 degress below zero. But this had to be done. The touring party—Mr. Anderson and his man, Miss Elsworthy and her maid, and a person who had been engaged as agent—got on the train at seven o'clock in the morning, and reached New York at ten at night, "starved and frozen to the bone." As the railroads further were all blocked with snow, they had to take to the sea. The boat for New Orleans sailed on Feb. 3, and had some difficulty (owing to floating ice) in getting out of the harbour; but in three or four days she was sailing in tropical weather. But trouble was in store a few days later. The ship got aground on a mud-bank at the mouth of the Mississippi. A powerful tug came to her assistance. The tug went to work with such a will that she tore the port bulwarks clean out of the ship, so that the passengers on deck could look right into the cabins and state-rooms. The crash was appalling, and had the ship not been aground she must have sunk in deep water. Luckily the sea was calm, and New Orleans was safely reached. But in the midst of the danger a ludicrous incident occurred. Mr. Anderson thus relates it:—"When the crash took place, I rushed down to the saloon in all haste, in order to calm Miss Elsworthy's fears. I found her with her maid in an agony of fear, the perspiration rolling down their faces, but no longer suffering from sea-sickness. I assured her there was no danger. 'No danger! No danger!' she cried hysterically; 'why, I can see the sky and sea through the ship's side. Oh! we are going down; I'm sure of it. This heat is suffocating! We are going down, I tell you; and—and—(looking everywhere around her)—oh, heavens! I've got no fan!'"

Good business was done in New Orleans, and then the party were shipped for a ten days' passage up the Mississippi to Louisville and Cincinnati. On the way, with broken shaft and damaged machinery, they had to pass a dismal, dreary night at Cairo. Hereabouts was Dickens's "Eden"—the delectable spot in which Mark Tapley made himself so jolly under the circumstances. "'Eden,'" writes Mr. Anderson, "is a heavenly spot for mud and filth. The hotel was a log hut; to reach it we had to wade ankle deep through the stickiest mud in the darkest night that was ever seen. Oh, what a night!—a night with the mosquitoes in 'Eden.'!"

Mr. Anderson declared that he never acted in Cincinnati without being robbed both before the curtain as well as behind it:—"I have had my purse emptied and my rings stolen many times during former years. This time, not being able to rob me of anything else, they stole my blood! I had brought with me from England several pots of black-currant jam to rub over my hands in Macbeth, being the most perfect imitation of blood ever seen. It was so real in appearance that the actors used to gather round the table at the wing to see me smear it. My servant—an Irishman named Mike O'Brien—revealed the secret by giving the ballet ladies a taste from the pot. That rash act of Mike's drained my gore to the dregs. During the fifth act, when Macbeth is continually on the stage, and muffin-headed Mike was employed holding my armour and truncheon at the wing, the ballet-girls rushed into my unguarded dressing-room, saying, 'Now, then; now's the time to drain the last drop of Anderson's blood.' 'And they done it, too, sorr, bad cess to them!' said Mike, when he found the last pot empty. It was 'real jam' to them, but a cruel thing for me, compelled to fall back on the filthy rose-pink of the property-man."

Other troubles the tragedian had on this tour—the opposition at St. Louis of Thalberg and his concert troupe, and of Dion Boucicault and his wife; the refusal of an actor in the same city to play Dogberry, so that Anderson doubled Dogberry with Benedick; and the misconduct of three other actors at Buffalo, who got drunk and never came near the theatre, thus compelling the management to dismiss the audience. Nothwithstanding, and in spite of unusually heavy travelling expenses, a handsome margin of profit was left from the eight months' tour.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the Play, by Hall Caine, entitled

"THE PRODIGAL SON."

An intensely virile and interesting drama is The Prodigal Son, one that reflects great credit upon the popular author, Mr. Hall Caine. It was quite to be expected that the engagement of Mr. Wentworth Croke's company at the King's Theatre this week should be an attractive one, and the size of the audience on Monday evening augured very favourably for a financially successful visit. The piece was received with acclamation, and the leading performers were applauded and recalled after each act. The Prodigal Son, Oscar Stephensson, was rendered in a very intelligent and effective manner by Mr. Henry Watson, who scored very highly in that arduous part. Mr. Hugh Montgomery was an extremely powerful and forceful Magnus Stephensson, ably conducting himself in the scenes where so much contumely is undeservingly heaped upon him. Mr. Richard A. Greene acted with due importance and dignity the character of Stephen Magnusson, the Governor of Iceland, and as Oscar Neilson Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood won warm praise for his capital impersonation. Mr. Montague Lane was good as the Sheriff, and very capable was Mr. Chauncey Morris's Dr. Olsen. Neils Finsen, the Casino Director, Eric Arnasson, and the Pastor all found creditable and painstaking representatives in Mr. Charles A. Maynard, Mr. Frank Hill, Mr. Francis Emery, and Mr. Philip Renouf. Miss Maud Stewart Drewry in the dual rôles of Thora Neilson and Elise succeeded admirably and earned much popular recognition. As Helga Neilson Miss Margaret Murch looked handsome, and her impassioned acting met with the highest approval. Miss Barbara Gott made an excellent impression as Anna Neilson. Many hearty laughs were raised by the sayings of Margaret Neilson, and Miss Marie Harcourt gave them with much point. The smaller parts were well sustained. The elaborate scenery, painted by Mr. Ernest Howard, was much admired. Mr. J. M. Glover's incidental music assisted largely to the success of the piece.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the Comic Opera, entitled

"LA POUPEE."

Audran's delightful opera, La Poupée, is the alluring entertainment provided for North Londoners at the handsome Marlborough Theatre this week, and the large audience present on the night of our visit, many of whom were doubtless renewing acquaintance with a piece which has had such a long and prosperous career, expressed themselves satisfied in no uncertain fashion with the performance. The company responsible for its representation is Mr. C. P. Levilly's No. 1 combination, and includes the gifted actress and vocalist, Miss Stella Gastelle, who is again achieving such a pronounced success in the title-part. It would, indeed, be difficult to find an actress better equipped for the rôle than Miss Gastelle, and her artistic and finished portrayal, and her cultured rendering of the many delightful numbers allotted to the dollmaker's fascinating daughter, cannot be too highly praised. Another very popular impersonation is that of Hilarius by Mr. W. H. Powell, an energetic and droll comedian, who extracts every ounce of humour from the character of the boastful and eccentric inventor, without giving a slavish imitation of Mr. Willie Edouin, who, it will be remembered, made such a hit in his creation of the part at the Prince of Wales's in the spring of 1897. Mr. F. Maxwell Stewart admirably indicates the shyness and bewilderment of Launcelot in the scene in Hilarius's workshop, and his performance throughout is excellent. A sound and easy portrayal of Father Maxime is forthcoming from Mr. Ernest Torrence, his rendering of "So do not fear" and other melodious numbers calling forth loud applause. The two elderly beaux, Baron Chanterelle and Loremois, are humorously undertaken by Mr. Arthur Gibbons and Mr. Leon Simkin, especially enjoyable being the scene where they make the acquaintance of the fair Alesia; and Balthazar is satisfactorily impersonated by Mr. Vernon Reed. As the light-hearted apprentice, Henri, Miss Kitty Cavendish is seen to decided advantage; and Madame Hilarius is taken in exactly the right spirit by Miss Dulcie Garland. The other parts are all capably enacted, and the singing of the chorus is especially to be commended. The opera is perfectly staged and dressed; and the entire production reflects the highest credit on Mr. Levilly and those associated with him.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the Comedy entitled

"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

Captain Barley and his "liner" are once more moored at the Camden, where the genial old salt is being welcomed by his old friends and many new ones. Messrs. Jacobs and Parker's comedy, Beauty and the Barge, is as delightful as ever, and the evening goes along on a ripple of merriment. Mr. Blake Adams is in splendid form as Captain James Barley, who has so much "haffability" in his nature, and a most humorous delineation of this quaint character is given. Ethel Smedley, the lively young lady who runs away from home, is agreeably portrayed by Miss Dido Drake, who plays with a freshness and charm which is most acceptable. Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu makes a handsome and dashing Lieutenant Seton Boyne, and also cleverly depicts the type of rough sailor on board the barge. Mr. Fred Knight is likewise good as the portly Tom Codd, and Mr. Horace Kenney gives a clever sketch of Augustus. Mr. Charles White is seen to great advantage in his impersonation of Charles Dibb; Mrs. Porter, the presiding genius of the old ship, is excellently played by Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, and her diminutive spouse, George, is a comic impersonation as portrayed by Mr. Ewart Drake. Miss Kate Osborn is good as Mrs. Baldwin; and Miss Mona Robin successfully fills the rôle of Mrs. Smedley. Miss Mary Pemberton makes a captivating Lucy Dallas; and Mr. Atherling Farrar does well as the young lover; Mr. Walter Pemberton causes much laughter as the irascible old Major Smedley. The play is very prettily mounted, and the scene with the barge beside the river bank is as picturesque as ever. The comedy is preceded by Cosmo Hamilton's clever little play, Jerry and a Sunbeam, in which Miss Mary Pemberton and Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu are most successful.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 2.

"THE GEISHA."

Mr. Frederick Mouillot's capital company is appearing here this week in The Geisha and San Toy, and these tuneful and lively operas are going as well as ever. In "The Tale of the Tea House" Miss Joan Ritz is an extremely dainty, winsome, captivating, and melodious Mimosa San, the Japanese singing-girl, and her songs are delightfully rendered with piquancy and charm. She is a prime favourite all the time. Miss Florrie Saunders is a lively little lady full of vivacity and versatility, her buoyancy of spirits and pretty taking ways having quite an infectious gaiety, and her dancing is most graceful. Mr. Cyril Dane is a most agreeable, manly, and natural Reggie Fairfax, and sings "Jack's the boy for work," "Star of my soul," and his other songs splendidly. Mr. Edward Carlton, as Wun Hi, the celestial proprietor of a tea house, is drollery personified, and keeps the ball of fun rolling continuously, and his agility is marvellous. The unctuous humour of Mr. Lionel Braham, as the Marquis Imari, chief of the police and governor of the province, is vastly amusing. Mr. Marsell Stringer sings "Pearl of the radiant East" most agreeably, and is good as Captain Katanay, captain of the governor's guard. The part of Takamene is satisfactorily enacted by Mr. A. J. Nicholls. The rôle of Lady Constance Wynne, "the most perpendicular Peter Robinson lady," is excellently interpreted by Miss Aubrey Ashton. Miss Violet Kenyon, as Juliette Diamante, the French interpreter, imparts a meaning and significance to the part. Miss Eva Howard, as the Middy, and Messrs. Sam Lockridge, George Taylor, and Robert Cranny as the young English officers are all well in the picture. Mr. F. Leslie Moreton is general-manager for Mr. Mouillot, Mr. James R. La Fane is manager and stage-director, with Mr. A. J. Nicholls as assistant stage-manager.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the Drama, by C. Watson Mill, entitled

"A WARNING TO WOMEN."

Mr. C. Watson Mill, an author who has written many plays that have achieved popularity in the provinces and the suburbs, has undoubtedly appealed successfully to lovers of the sensational in A Warning to Women, a drama that has won favour at many of the outlying London theatres and "on the road." Largely contributing to its enthusiastic reception at the Shoreditch playhouse this week is the really excellent all-round representation given it by a company including many old favourites with East-end theatre-goers. Especially cordial was the greeting extended Mr. Ashley Page on his first entry, and the popular actor is to be warmly complimented on his finished and natural impersonation of Shaun, a wandering minstrel, a character that in less experienced and capable hands would lose a deal of its charm and impressiveness. Mr. J. C. Aubrey as the "dark stranger," Dr. Marcus Dread, essayed an unpopular part with commendable skill and firmness, admirably indicating the masterful nature of the doctor, and giving throughout a most convincing portrayal. Miss Marion Denvil, who was also accorded a reception reserved for favourites, had an arduous rôle in that of Moira Kennion, the victim of drugs—and Dr. Dread, but cleverly succeeded in depicting the varying moods of the unhappy woman, particularly impressive being her acting in the scene where she accidentally blinds her lover, Fergus. Mr. Frank Harrison contributed largely to the merriment of the audience by his humorous embodiment of Lord Eversleigh, a sprig of the nobility, who has such "an awfully jolly beastly good time" at the hunt; and Mike McQuade was also a most popular personage in the hands of Mr. Johnny Chippendale, the comedian being responsible for much hearty laughter. Mr. Eric Campbell made a genial and natural Squire Kennion; Fergus McNaughton was capably undertaken by Mr. W. Holloway; Mr. G. Morgan created amusement as Ferdinand de Joules; the sufferings of the poor little cripple boy, Miles O'Moore, were graphically depicted by Miss Elsie Jezzard; Miss Lucy Beaumont made a lovable Sheila Kennion; Miss Maggie Lindsay and Miss East Robertson are to be commended for finished and impressive portrayals of Molly O'Moore and Hildred, "the woman who was; and the numerous other parts were all satisfactorily enacted. The many excellent stage pictures shown came in for much admiration.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the Drama, by Fred S. Jennings, entitled

"AS GOOD AS GOLD."

Mr. Fred S. Jennings's drama, As Good As Gold, is the attraction at the West London this week, and the enthusiasm which the many exciting situations the play contains has aroused is eloquent testimony as to its popularity with Mr. Bailey's patrons. Especially demonstrative has been their disapproval of the villainy of Sir Richard Wharncliffe, about as vile a specimen of the stage scoundrel as we have ever encountered. The part is admirably enacted by Mr. Clinton Baddeley, who leaves no doubt in the minds of the audience as to the evil nature of this contemptible cad, especially convincing being his acting in the scene in his wife's boudoir, where he is confronted with the body of his boy, for whose death he is responsible. A finished and impressive performance of Mark Williams is given by the author, Mr. Fred Jennings, particularly powerful being his acting where Williams is incarcerated in a private lunatic asylum. He is also to be complimented on his excellent elocution, and his portrayal throughout is one of decided merit. Kate D'Arville, the wife and victim of Wharncliffe, has a refined and pathetic portrayal from Miss F. Melrose Millett, harrowing in the extreme being the scene where her boy dies. Miss Bertha Baker realistically indicates the sufferings of the lad Kipper; and a commendably natural impersonation of Norah Williams is given by Miss Agnes Collier. Mr. Horace Booth is a manly and earnest exponent of Lieut. Jack Stanton; and the necessary and always welcome comedy relief is supplied by Mr. Herbert Fuller as Horatio Spanker, Mr. Joseph Rowlands as Timothy Nias, and Miss Bessie Frank as Madge Merry. The other parts are all capably undertaken, and the drama is well mounted and dressed.

THE SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 2, The Play and Prologue, in Three Acts, entitled

"CLAUDIAN."

The mantle of the late Wilson Barrett has fallen on the shoulders of Mr. William MacLaren, whose admirable presentation of Claudian at the Shakespeare on Monday was received with the utmost enthusiasm. The success was well deserved, for no pains had been spared to make the production as complete as possible. The company had been chosen with the greatest care, and the scenery, costumes, &c., were exact copies of those used by the late Mr. Barrett. An actor of fine presence, Mr. MacLaren brought out the main characteristics of the title-part with convincing force, and held the sympathy of the audience throughout, being accorded great applause at the final fall of the curtain. Miss Lily C. Bandmann as Almida also contributed largely to the success. An actress of marked ability, Miss Bandmann faithfully portrayed the varying emotions of the part, and acquitted herself with distinction. Mr. Douglas Earle, who was well suited to the rôle of Agazil, the blacksmith, acted with sincerity; Mr. F. Owen Chambers is to be congratulated on an earnest embodiment of the treacherous tetrarch; Mr. Weston Hubbard did all that was necessary as Alcares, a wealthy farmer; and Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner, who was also stage-manager, extracted a deal of humour from the part of Belos. Miss Maud Garth, who appeared to great advantage in the rôle of Edessa, also rendered valuable assistance; and the minor parts were all capably sustained. Special mention should be made of the excellence of the stage effects in the earthquake scene, where Claudian's palace is destroyed before the eyes of the audience. Mr. Arthur Webster is the acting-manager for Mr. W. MacLaren.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the Drama, entitled

"THE FATAL WEDDING."

Mr. Bert Coote's company is here this week at the County Theatre in the above. Their efforts are received with marked favour. Mr. Cecil A. Melton appears in the leading part of Howard Wilson, which he invests with strong human interest, and Miss Ethel Kay makes a successful appearance as Wilson's persecuted wife. The part of Robert Curtis is ably filled by Mr. Henry W. Hatcham, and equally effective are the efforts of Miss Gertrude Harrison, as the adventuress, Cora Williams. A clever and amusing impersonation is that of the French butler, Toto, by Mr. Charles Lock, and Miss Ethel Serjient makes a successful appearance as Bridget. Miss Marie Wilson, as "the little mother," wins favour. The play is admirably staged, the special features in the third act being much enjoyed.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the Musical Comedy, entitled

"A CHINESE HONEYMOON."

A Chinese Honeymoon occupies the boards at Kennington this week, and seldom, if ever before, has a musical comedy been received with such absolute enthusiasm. A talented company does ample justice to the work of Messrs. George Dance and Howard Talbot. Mr. Rudolf Kloss is excellent in the part of Hang Chow, as also is Mr. P. Allerton Turner as the Lord Chancellor, and Mr. Leonard May as Li Hung, the Lord High Admiral. Mr. Harry Jennings is seen to advantage as Tom Hatherton; Mr. George Rydon plays the part of Mr. Pineapple with great distinction; a strong favourite with the audience is Miss Rosie Begarnie, who, as Mrs. Pineapple, wins hearty appreciation; as Fi-Fi Miss Gwennie Harcourt scores a great success, having frequently to respond to hearty encores; Miss Elsie Skillings is charming in the part of the Princess Soo-Soo, her singing being admirable. Miss Maud Adams as Mrs. Brown, the official mother-in-law, is a noteworthy character. The parts of Florrie, Violet, Elsie, and Maud, bridesmaids to Mrs. Pineapple, are skilfully acted by Miss Dorothy Radcliffe, Miss Mary Gray, Miss Cecily Leslie, and Miss Phyllis Grosvenor respectively. The staging is magnificent, and Mr. Robert Arthur is to be congratulated on a further addition to his already long list of Kennington successes.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

"HER ROAD TO RUIN."

Presented by Mr. Fred. Melville's company, Her Road to Ruin was accorded a good reception on Monday evening by a well-filled house. The play is capitally staged and suitably cast. Mr. Albert Faulkner gives a good impersonation of the curate Frank Temple, and divides the honours with Mr. J. Knox Orde as Tom Wells, a poor journalist, their efforts being warmly cheered. The villainous part of Philip Hardy is effectively filled by Mr. Alex. Bradley, who is ably assisted by Mr. V. R. C. Moore as Charlie Cholmondeley, a ne'er-do-well. Miss Nellie Bonser as Mary Dawson, the betrayed girl from Lancashire, effectively portrays the different stages of a woman's downfall, and Miss Eva Moss as Jess Willoughby also gives a powerful representation of a woman swayed by the powers of good and evil. Miss Alice Bowes does well as May Willoughby. Mr. Dane Clarke makes a typical bishop, and Mr. Arthur Byron and Miss Marie Wright score heavily in the comic parts.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

"IN THE SHADOW OF NIGHT."

Mr. James Willard's fine drama is proving very popular here. Besides presenting an interesting story, embellished by some agreeable comic relief, In the Shadow of Night gives ample scope for the scenic artist, and we are shown some capital scenery and effects, notably the Squire's Terrace, with the fountain playing, the burning house, and a wonderfully realistic picture of the Thames by moonlight, the stage being flooded with real water, into which two of the characters plunge. Mr. Willard's company interprets his exciting play to the life, and the enthusiasm of the audience is kept at white-heat throughout the evening. Mr. H. Dobell Lyle is a gallant and breezy Gordon Allington; Mr. Charles Clifford plays admirably in the unthankful rôle of Clifford York; Mr. Cecil Reymond supplies two admirable pieces of character painting as deaf Joe, the village postman, and the milksop, the Rev. Nathaniel Hope. Miss Nina Westerleigh is a pathetic and well-spoken heroine; and Miss Tina Shaw is bright and engaging as little Molly Woodstock. Mr. Herbert Belmore is a popular "gentleman in khaki" as Tom Nainby; and Mr. William Hayward is a duly truculent ruffian as Jake Grudgewell. Miss Phyllis French is a quaint and pathetic little gamin as Bob; and among the minor characters Mr. Richie Bell is very droll as the vacuous railway porter Tom Tipps. A canine performer, Gyp, also renders his rôle exceedingly well.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the American Drama, by Joseph Arthur, entitled

"THE STILL ALARM."

The exciting incidents, interspersed as they are with scenes of human interest, which are portrayed in the American drama, The Still Alarm, are evidently well suited to meet the desires of Dalston audiences, judging by the rousing receptions which are this week accorded the chief actors in Mr. Mathew H. Glenville and Mr. Fred Osmond's company. Mr. Mathew H. Glenville still pleases everyone with his manly style in the part of the brave and dashing young fireman; Mr. Lewis Gordon is Franklyn Fordham, a New York merchant; and Mr. George Arthur has been specially engaged to play John Bird, alias Gorman (Fordham's partner in a drug business). The main interest of the story centres in Manley (the fireman), Bird, and Elinor Fordham (Manley's sweetheart), and everything that is necessary to make these characters appear most real and engrossing is certainly done by Mr. Glenville, Mr. Arthur, and Miss Frances Waring—a charming Elinor. Some sprightly acting is introduced by Mr. Tom Beasley as Willie Manley and Miss Maimie Leighton as Carrie Wilber. Mrs. Manley has an able representative in Miss Mabel Veriton; and Mr. J. Sutton Pateman as Joe Jones (a typical New York fireman), Mr. G. Francis as William Blaisdale, and Mr. T. Varney as Joe Nozzle also play their parts admirably. The singing by the firemen is much appreciated.

TERRISS THEATRE.

"A ROYAL DIVORCE."

A hearty reception has been extended by full houses to this always-popular romantic historical drama, the story being followed with close interest from start to finish, and the many dramatic situations evolved in the play being heartily applauded. As the famous Corsican, Mr. Frederick Victor was admirable, his resonant and perfectly-modulated voice being heard distinctly in every part of the theatre. As the Empress Josephine, Miss Elliott played this very difficult rôle with feeling and rare feminine charm which fairly captured the hearts of all. Mr. Tom Robertson's Talleyrand was a finished piece of acting; and Mr. Stone as the Marquis de Beaumont was equally good. Mr. J. J. Jordon as Grimaud, the inn-keeper, kept the house in a roar of laughter; Miss Leah Marlborough gave prominence to the part of Napoleon's second wife; Miss Clara Earle made a charming Stephanie de Beauharnais; and the rest of the efficient company made the best of their parts. Special mention is due of the little King of Rome as acted by Miss Ethel Love, who gave a delightful rendering of the part. Miss Helena Meadows as Mother Lomas was excellent in every way. The mounting is good, the scene of the battle being very effective.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

"HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

Once again Mr. Frederick Melville's favourite drama forms the attraction at this theatre, and no falling off in its popularity is to be observed. A very capable company has been engaged for the tour, and everyone works hard for the general success. Mr. Henry Lonsdale as George Madison acts with sincerity, and makes a good impression. Mr. Louis Hector as Devereux portrays the heavy rôle in conventional manner, and submits a sound performance. Mr. Leonard Maxwell as Broughton is also to be commended. Mr. Fred de Vere proves himself to be a clever comedian. Mr. Henry Hare enacts the part of Sir George with ease and distinction. As for the ladies, Miss Gerturde Bonser as Lucy acts pleasantly and naturally, and is to be congratulated; Miss Gertrude Hunt as Lady Lucretia depicts the unpleasant type of woman without sparing herself, and is entitled to praise. Miss Nellie Fletcher as the Mother Superior gives a dignified performance, acting with skill and discretion; Miss Sybil Hare as Polly is a worthy accomplice of Mr. de Vere's in provoking laughter, and succeeds admirably. The large number of smaller parts are all in adequate hands, and the mounting is above reproach, the motor-car scene going as well as ever.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

"DRIVEN FROM HOME."

Many manifestations of favour were bestowed on the revival of the above drama by Mr. Andrew Melville's company at the house on Brixton Oval. Driven from Home has always proved a potent attraction to audiences south of the Thames, and the company engaged in its present representation is to be congratulated. Mr. Felix Pitt is admirable as Anthony Raybrook, his acting of the relentless father winning great praise. Geoffrey Waring, the wicked nephew of Anthony Raybrook, is well impersonated by Mr. Charles Burdon, who is especially good in the Trafalgar Square scene. Mr. Harry Cornwall is the dear old servitor Jabez to life, his acting being much applauded. Walter Hatherleigh finds an ideal representative in Mr. Francis Everard, his death scene being most pathetic. Miss Muriel Dean as the persecuted wife finds her way to the hearts of the immense audience, her acting of the unfortunate Laura being a feature of the evening. Mr. Arthur Dudley is very good as Willie, the outcast. Mr. Fred C. Imbert as John Anderson is excellent, his quaintness and smart sayings in company with Margaret, capitally played by Miss Susie Bevan, provoking much amusement, and rendering the couple very popular. Mr. Henry Helling is a sufficiently austere Adam Marley. Miss Clara Knowles as Barbara is impressive; and Miss Madge Muriel is a lively and popular slavey. Driven from Home is nicely staged, the sets of Trafalgar Square, the Foundling Hospital, the Thames Embankment, and Circular Saw being exceptionally good.

THE PAVILION.

"KREUTZER SONATA."

A dramatisation of Tolstoi's "Kreutzer Sonata" by Jacob Gordon was given on Monday night at the Pavilion, to a large house, who viewed with evident interest an excellent performance, presented by a strong cast and mounted on a lavish scale. As Raphael Friedlander, Mr. Sigmund Feinman played with admirable dramatic force and intensity that won unanimous approval; Mr. Bernard Schoengold, who is gifted with a good stage presence and resonant voice, was seen to great advantage as Greguar; Mme. Diana Feinman as Ettie was the centre of attraction, and her embodiment of the part made a deep impression; Mme. Fanny Epstein brought out the passionate jealousy of Celia with much success, embellishing the impersonation with many little details of business that gave colour to the portrayal. A finished character study was given by Mr. Boris Rosenthal, who is remarkably good as Ephraim Fidler; and the faithful Natasha is well depicted by Mme. J. Kayzer. A capital delineation of Samuel was presented by Mr. J. Scherman; and a commendable Belia was found in Mme. Goldstein; while Miss Lubritzky displayed ability as Gilbert, and Mme. Rosenthal suitably represented Eva. The general-manager, Mr. J. Gordon, is assiduous in his efforts for the comfort of the patrons, and is energetically seconded in his labours by Mr. Fred Brown.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

"BETWEEN TWO WOMEN."

Mr. Robert Arthur is presenting a powerful company, under the management of Mr. Newman Maurice, in the above drama, which, like all of Mr. Frederick Melville's plays, is full of interest from start to finish, while the staging and acting of the piece add considerably to the pleasure of the audience. Miss Florence Dalton as Carmen de Sauereux is seen to great advantage, and leaves very little to be desired. She is ably supported in her evil doing by Mr. Fred Morgan as James Durwood. Mr. Douglas Vigors is entrusted with the part of the Rev. Philip Carton, and does himself great credit; Harry Millard is well sustained by Mr. Roland Daniels; the rôle of Violet Thornton (afterwards Mrs. Millard) is handled by Miss Louise Hampton with considerable skill; as also is the character of Henry Earl of Millard by Mr. Chris Walker. Mr. Herbert Goddard's impersonation of Major Strangeways is excellent. The humorous element is supplied by Mr. Newman Maurice as Jack Pringle and Miss Lucy Beaumont as Polly Popp, roars of merriment greeting the efforts of the two personages. The part of the blind son of Carmen is taken by Miss Lulu Bowes in pleasing style. Other characters in the play are capably sustained by Mr. A. Darton, Mr. N. Graham, and Mr. H. Bristow; and Miss Sybil Hare as the lady customer also causes amusement.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 2, the Musical Play, entitled

"SEE-SEE."

Mr. George Edwardes's company in See-See is proving a strong attraction at the Stratford Borough Theatre, after many weeks of drama. It is one of the prettiest and brightest of touring musical plays, and is mounted and dressed with all the lavishness and care usually associated with companies travelling under the régime of such an experienced entrepreneur. Mr. Bertie Wright as Kang-Kee proves himself a most alert and indefatigable comedian, and his songs go wonderfully well. Mr. Colin Coop plays with an unctuous humour well befitting the part of Checo, and Mr. W. J. Manning scores heavily as Hoang Wang. Mr. Edmund Sherras acts and sings in manly and pleasing style as Yen. Miss Dorothy Chard makes a very dainty and graceful See-See, and sings delightfully. Miss Lena Maitland is a most acceptable Mai-Gai, and her fine vocal efforts win much praise. Miss Clare Marsden is a very bright and vivacious Lee, and Miss May Gould quickly dances her way into favour as So-Hie, See-See's boy attendant. Miss Violet Hollom charmingly impersonates Mumming Bird, and Miss Millie Vere plays very appropriately as Mrs. Hoang Wang. The Four Mandarins are well played by Mr. H. Denbigh, Mr. G. Robertson, Mr. Harrison Crane, and Mr. Henry Ashton; Checo's wives are represented by Miss Kate Chard, Miss Rhoda Gordon, and Miss May Grey; while the Four Pearls are entrusted to Miss Gladys Raymond, Miss Maud Field, Miss Nora Cameron, and Miss Rosie Burnett. The orchestra is this week augmented, and under the able bâton of Mr. Leonard Leslie, and Walter McEwan is the courteous general manager of the company.

The Town Hall, Rugby, now the only building available for dramatic purposes in the town, is being booked by Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson, in conjunction with Loughborough and Lincoln.

STRATFORD THEATRES' OUTING.

Sunday last was a red-letter day in Stratford theatredom. The combined staffs of the Borough Theatre and Theatre Royal, to the number of about fifty, held their annual outing, the rendezvous being Broxbourne Gardens. A bright morning augured well for a fine day when the party left the Theatre Royal in well-appointed conveyances, and after a most pleasant and exhilarating drive the destination was reached about one o'clock. The "camera man" then took charge, after which the party disported themselves until dinner time, fixed for 2.30. The following menu, tastily printed as a memento of the occasion, was exceedingly well served, and done ample justice to:—

Salmon.
Sauce Mayonnaise
Cucumber.

Roast Beef and Yorkshire.
Roast Lamb and Mint Sauce.
Roast Veal and Ham.
Boiled Leg of Mutton.
Vegetables in season.

Chickens and Ducklings.
Salad.

College Pudding. Wine Jellies
Fruit Tart. Blancmange.

Cheese and Salad.

Mr. Sam Fredericks (manager, Theatre Royal) was in the chair, and was supported by Mr. Frank Rothsay (manager, Borough Theatre), Mr. W. Harding (Box Office, Theatre Royal), Mr. A. E. Barnes (Box Office, Borough Theatre), Mr. Lipyeat, Mr. Walter Fredericks, Mr. Day, Mr. Bert Ashton, Mr. Willis, and Mr. J. Davis.

After the usual loyal toasts were proposed by the chairman, Mr. Harding prefaced the toast of "Mrs. C. Ellis-Fredericks and Family" by saying what pleasure it gave him to propose the health of the firm with whom so many of them had been for a number of years, "the best you could possibly work for," to use his own words, as they always got substantial encouragement in all their sports, and had in Mr. Sam Fredericks especially one who took a deep interest in the welfare of the staff.

Mr. Sam Fredericks (who was accorded musical honours), replying on behalf of his sister and brother, said that there was nothing ever proposed to Mrs. Ellis-Fredericks for the benefit of the theatre staffs but that she was always ready to give them monetary assistance. He had had a letter from his sister only the previous Friday enclosing a contribution for their outing as on previous years. His brother, Mr. Fred. Fredericks, would have been with them that day, but was unfortunately detained at Harrogate. As to himself, he desired no thanks, as their pleasure was his. He regretted very much the sequence of outings was broken last year, but hoped there would never in the future be a year without an outing.

Mr. Frank Rothsay was unanimously called upon for a few words, and told his hearers that that very day he concluded eleven years under the Messrs. Fredericks, during the whole of which time his business relations with the firm had been of the happiest

Mr. Bert Ashton had charge of the toast of "The Visitors," which was most cordially drank, and afterwards the gathering broke up to disport themselves according to their bent. Among those who chose a pull on the river was a party, including such an expert sculler as Mr. Rothsay, who, being modesty personified, contentedly presided at the tiller, the other occupants of the boat being Mr. Fredericks and Mr. Ashton. Consequently it was an unfortunate happening that, when the boat chanced upon a private landing-stage, and the occupants were warned that they would be trespassers if they landed, the jovial Mr. Rothsay should have retorted, "We're not trying to land, it's my friend can't row properly," the subtlety of Mr. Rothsay's joke being only apparent to the poor oarsman.

A re-union was made at 6.30 for tea, and at 7.30 a start was made for home, reached about ten, after what was generally voted to have been a thoroughly jolly and enjoyable day. The preliminary arrangements of the outing were admirably carried through by Mr. W. Aldons (stage-manager, Theatre Royal) and Mr. W. Burrell (electrician, Theatre Royal), with Mr. W. Harding as treasurer.

NEW ZEALAND AMUSEMENTS.

WELLINGTON, June 8.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson.—Mr. Williamson's dramatic company, headed by Mr. Julius Knight, are here. The opening piece was Robin Hood, followed in quick succession by Raffles, Brigadier Gerard, and the ever-popular Beaucaire. The principal successes have been made by Mr. Hubert Willis and Mr. Leslie Victor. The company have been greeted nightly by crowded and enthusiastic houses.

Messrs. Meynall and Gunn took the theatre left vacant by the last company, and opened up on Friday, June 28, with The Midnight Wedding, with a very strong cast. The play is rather better than its class, and this suggestion is aided by the extremely able playing of the male members of the company, Mr. James Lindsay, in particular, being a great joy as the most desirable "villain" that has frequented these parts of late. Mr. Harcourt Beatty is the star of the company, and plays the lead in an extremely plausible manner, and Mr. Conway Wingfield does some of the most dastardly things it is humanly possible to perpetrate with the most charming ingenuousness that the "gods" are hard put to it to say what and who indeed is the cause and instrument of the melodramatic villainy as contained in the play. Miss May Congdon plays the Princess very sincerely, and wears some very pretty frocks. After an eight nights' run of this play The Fatal Wedding was revived, and the company endeavoured to put some coherent meaning into the veriest nonsense that was ever put upon the stage. It will be enough to say that the theatre was again crowded, and the mawkish sentiment absorbed apparently with the greatest relish by the house.

Saturday, July 6.—Mr. Harry Rickards "presents" a variety company to-night composed principally of Mr. Fred Russell, the ventriloquist, Charlene and Charlene, and King and Benson. The house was full to the utmost the first night, there being not even standing room, and as a consequence each number went well and merrily.

Town Hall, July 8.—Miss Marie Hall gave the last of three concerts this night, but whilst the variety theatre is crowded the concert hall, even with the attraction of this delightful violinist, is sparsely peopled. The artist played in superb manner the E Minor Concerto of Mendelssohn, and at the finish of the programme, Wieniawski's "Souvenir de Moscow." Miss Hall is without doubt the best violinist who has ever come to New Zealand, but apparently that is not enough to attract the denizens of this country.

A copyright performance of The Quicksands, a modern drama in four acts, by Alicia Ramsey and Rudolph de Cordova, was given at the Haymarket Theatre on Thursday morning last.

The following further subscriptions have been received for the Arthur Verne Fund:—Miss Nettie Ware, £1 1s.; Charles Boult, 10s.; R. Ernest Irving, 5s.; C. H. T., 2s. 6d.; E. K., 2s. 6d.; F. P. (Preston), 2s.; B. A., 1s.

THE REAL "HAMLET."
AND HOW IT SHOULD BE STAGED.

BY PERCY FITZGERALD, M.A.

There are a vast deal more things, generally neglected, which might add to the mystery of the "Hamlet" ghost. When he appears to Horatio and Bernardo for the second time, the former usually addresses it in a careless style, which is rarely impassioned enough. But the speaker is in a state of agitation. Then the cock is heard to crow—a rather dangerous piece of "business," and always omitted. And yet what a mistake; for if judiciously treated it ought to be introduced, and would have extraordinary effect. It is an important element in the situation. The crowing should come from afar, from the remote regions at the back—the very back of the stage—with a faint sound, which would soften away any grotesqueness. The spirit, we are told, was about to speak when the cock crew—on which there would be a pause of suspense highly "creepy" and effective, and here, we might ask ourselves: Why did the author introduce this grotesque effect if he did not think it essential.

Horatio says:—"I have heard the cock that is the trumpet to the morn, doth with his lofty and shrill sounding throat, &c." And Marcellus then says, "It faded on the crowing of the cock," and he then tells how at Christmas "it singeth all night long." Who thinks of the picturesqueness of the words "it faded?" We hear the sudden sound far away. Then the ghost who had been advancing checks itself, and seems to dwindle—gliding off—as though it would escape into thin air. There might be "gauzes" of extra thickness behind which it might retire and so grow misty. Then there is the breaking of the clouds—the coming of the dawn. When they tell their story to Hamlet, they again dwell on this crowing of the cock, and how at the sound it shrank away. All of which lends a religious or spiritual tone to the whole.

When Hamlet follows the ghost the scene is usually changed to "another part of the platform," and Hamlet asks, "Where wilt thou lead me?" But there is no direction for the change, and it would be far more convenient if the same scene were retained, Hamlet being led away and then led back to the same place. The two could come on together far off at the bottom and make their way to the front.

There have been some speculations as to whether an impalpable ghost—that is one visible only to the mind's eye—would not be more impressive and effective. The Bard himself seems to give us a hint of the practicability of making the Hamlet ghost invisible. For the latter speaks from "the cellarage" below, and who will say that the unearthly "swear" and the bearing of the listeners at the interruption is not always the most truly mysterious portion of the incident. This principle of invisibility might be applied when it first appears to Hamlet, for the ghost there says nothing, and both Horatio and Hamlet might fancy they see him gliding across until he disappears. Then Hamlet would follow it to the "other part of the platform," where it might remain still unseen, and speak from some recess, say a cavernous archway. There is something here that commends itself, and it would certainly be more terror-striking than a robustious figure with a truncheon stalking about as used to do the worthy Mead in the Lyceum days. How amusingly did "Boz" suggest this grotesque truncheon element, where he described Grummer arresting Mr. Pickwick, and beckoning to him with his truncheon in a solemn and ghostly fashion. In the platform scene Horatio and his companion might fancy that they saw him; and Hamlet might hold his conversation with an invisible but speaking being. In the closet it cannot be doubted that this arrangement would be more impressive. And so with Banquo's appearance in Macbeth.

It has long been the fashion to array the ghost in Hamlet in a sort of greyish cloudy dress—supposed to represent something mysterious. But we are told he wore a full suit of armour from top to toe. This seems far more appropriate, as the late king had led armies to battle. Not that the armour should be of a shining, glittering sort, as if of aluminium. It should be of a dark, dull metal, richly wrought. "He wore his beaver up," which would show the white, ghastly face encircled, and thrown out by the dark framing of the beaver. This should be thought out carefully. I fancy, too, the gait of the ghost should not be a solemn regimental "stalk," but solemn, full of hesitation and uncertainty, as though in a strange land and somewhat bewildered.

The stage conception of the King seems always astray and conventional. His long speeches and moralities seem to be accepted by the audience as persuasive and suitable, particularly his remonstrance to Hamlet on his morbid grief for his father's loss nothing could be more appropriate or judicious? Here we have a villain of the first water; one who had murdered his brother and craftily seized on the throne which was his nephew's by right. He was presently to be a party to an arrangement for the destruction of his nephew, who, he reasonably feared, had designs for destroying him and thus recovering his crown. His fine flowery speech was therefore all hypocrisy. And this should surely be conveyed in his delivery. He should be a sort of Royal Iago, as when he says:—

He should be a smooth, insinuating personage, and this sense of deceit should be shown in all his utterances—even in his affectionate treatment of those who had to be conciliated, because of her devotion to her son. There should also be present a sort of restless nervousness, for his situation was precarious, and Hamlet's hostility was very disturbing. This treatment would make a much more interesting character. But he was also a man, of resources, not a mere butt for his nephew-stepson, rising to his difficulties, unscrupulous, and ready to act on the instant, and violently, too. His instantly sending Hamlet away when he became dangerous showed this. But it will be seen later what a masterful and dramatic element he became in the later confusion.

II. THE KING AND QUEEN.

At the opening scene, where the King and his Court are shown, "Enters" says the direction; but with us they are always "discovered," I think with loss of effect. In a Court of our day the King and Queen would come in first; not at the head of a formal procession or to martial music, but conversing as they walked—"Though yet of Hamlet's, our dear brother's death," etc. This would have a very natural air. At the same time we have the first appearance of Hamlet, where the gloomy Prince is actually "discovered" and lost, as it were, in a crowd.

When Booth, that somewhat artificial performer, appeared in Hamlet, he arranged his first entry in a thorough business-like fashion, so as to produce a striking effect. The King was prosing on to the courtiers, as usual, when of a sudden there came a pause, the crowd of courtiers parted and formed a lane, while in came Hamlet, tripping it with much energy, smiling and bowing, till he found himself well at the footlights receiving the applause of his countryfolk, who were present in large numbers to give it. The late Lord Houghton, once speaking of him to me after his return from the States, called him "a very fine actor," but he was artificial and mannered—certainly old-fashioned in style. This old fashion in his dress seemed to carry us back thirty or forty years, to the days of stock costumes—puffy trunks and hose, etc. The surprise was almost as ludicrous. His "business" and properties were all equally antiquated. On the while, it may be said that Irving was the best and most satisfactory of all the Hamlets we have seen. There was a romantic grace about him and something pathetic.

The King as portrayed by the legitimate actor is always shown as a very respectable personage enunciating his wise saws and reasonable admonitions with excellent elocution. One would expect the delivery to have an air of finished hypocrisy, elaborated, especially in the lines—

Fie! 'tis a fault to heaven,
A fault against the dead—a fault to nature,
To reason most absurd, whose common theme
Is death of Fathers.

The King's lecture to Hamlet on his excessive indulgence in grief is a truly rational and excellent exhortation, convincing even in its way, and so it is always delivered impressively, and so accepted by the audience. It seems to accept it in this sense, owing to the presentation of the King as a sort of respectable personage who has, as it were, "turned over a new leaf." But were the whole of this scene delivered with an Iago-like craft and villainy the effect would be prodigiously increased. But it is clear the utterance is not hypocritical. He means it all. We have only to turn to the magnificent and truly moving burst of repentance later on to see that the man had good instincts, which were overborne. He murdered his brother no doubt; but these were days of violence, when the dispossessed ruler, as a matter of course, was put to death for fear of troubling his dispossessor.

After dismissing Voltimand and Cornelius on their business, the King, turning to Laertes, gaily says, "What's the news with you?" at which old Polonius, his father, might be immensely gratified. All this preliminary matter being thus despatched, the King looks round for Hamlet, who remains abstracted and in a sort of reverie. Then, to keep him in good humour, addresses him as "my son." Hamlet does not answer, but recoils from the term, and just murmurs, in a ruminating, sarcastic fashion, "A little more than kin and less than kind," not caring whether the crowd or the King heard him or not. Then, no doubt, smiles and meaning glances, and whispers, among the courtiers, as who should say "another hit at his uncle." This makes the King uncomfortable; so he thinks it due to his dignity to read him a lecture on his generally odd behaviour. As they go out Hamlet lingers to the last, the King and Queen expecting or inviting him to march with them; but he shrugs his shoulders, looks after them with anger and impatience, then pacing up and down, lapses into his soliloquy

The Queen was a most remarkable woman. Her caresses, sentiments, are all out of the common—a woman of ardent attachment. Witness her love for her son and her singular love for her husband's brother; her grief for Ophelia, whom she said she really hoped to see her son's wife. Yet, what a foolish "nullity" she is. She must have been young and ardent—say, about forty; but she is always given to some stout matron.

III.—POLONIUS AND OPHELIA.

Another distorted figure, twisted out of all natural shape for the player's purposes, is Polinius. He is known to everyone, he is rather a favourite with the gods, and he is always done in the same way, after venerable traditions, as an old butt or buffoon, a tedious dodderer with much white wool on his head and carrying a white wand. Here is yet another instance of a character which should be restudied, wholly reconstructed—in short, visualized. How many types of this class are there about—old fellows who have been in diplomacy, envoys at some German Court, obsequious, always smiling, telling little stories and recollections, grovelling before rank, chatterers, yet always refined gentlemen. Such old retainers of a Court as Polonius are usually found to be rather refined, if punctilious and shrewd, old gentlemen, with a firm belief in the all but divine commission of their employers. Polonius, in our day, would surely be a Sir Peter Polonius, K.C.B. In his discourse to his son, which is always made to take the shape of a sort of a solemn sermon, and is regularly "preached" by the actor. But it would be surely a different thing in the mouth of an old Court official giving his son a hint or so as to "getting on" in the world? Thus it would run: "Now, my dear boy, attend to me. I want to give you one last bit of advice. Don't borrow or get into debt, for that's low. Above all, dress well and like a gentleman, for a good tailor is always a letter of recommendation, especially with the women," etc. One can easily conceive the lighter key in which these useful counsels should be delivered. So with his "very like a whale"—always magnified in the same "buffooning" way. It is a surprise to find that all through Polonius is a very conspicuous, capable, and commanding figure, and a skilled man of the world. We find him managing his daughter, managing Hamlet—or trying to manage him—managing his son, managing the King and Queen, and is elaborately arranging plots of various kinds. He is a very rusé old man. When he was concerned to find that Hamlet was getting "off his head" he prudently ranged himself on the Court side. In his own "canny" way, his chief resource was eavesdropping, and he got the King and Queen to listen with him to Hamlet's ravings. He had innumerable threads in his hand.

And little understood is the event of the arrival of the Players. It was an event carefully insisted on; much was to depend on them. Now all strolling players are flamboyant enough; they would like to make "a splash" and a stir. They would strut, full of their own importance. Polonius had laid himself out to forward Hamlet's plans as much as he could, to "throw himself" into the "private theatricals" and encourage them in every way. He recalls his own early experiences. The whole is rational, serious, and consistent. Hamlet's rudeness to him was no doubt founded on the fact that he saw that the old man had designs on him—a fresh plot in addition to the others going on about him—and which fretted and irritated him.

How elaborate his scheme for having his son spied on in Paris. He had already given him, as we have seen, admirable service. But he knew youth too well to think it would be followed, so he sends an emissary after him, and it would seem the crafty old father, as the later Lord Chesterfield might do, wished to have it put about, by means of obscure hints, that his son was no milksop, but a sort of gay fellow. But it must be done without saying anything very distinct or compromising. It is, indeed, an exceedingly clever and elaborate system which he lays down.

Let us take that absurd "very like a whale," What is the situation? The old courtier is anxious to keep the eccentric Hamlet in good humour. He has come with a message from the Queen, who wishes to see her son privately. Hamlet, who has a sort of dislike to Polonius, and wishes to have his gibe and mortifying him, answers by pointing to a cloud, which, he says, seems "almost in shape like a camel." He would like his opinion. Polonius answers as almost anyone else would do who was dealing with a "flighty" person, especially a "royalty." We can see him shading his eyes, looking intently, and then hear him with a sort of obsequiousness exclaim: "By the Mass, and it's like a camel indeed." There the courtier speaks. But the Prince, putting on an antic mood, says maliciously, "Methinks it's very like a weazle." And the old fellow, though committed to his former simile, perhaps taken aback, cannot bring himself to reverse his opinion altogether, but after a little study adroitly says, "It is backed like a weazle." The back at least has some resemblance. Then Hamlet, scornfully, and determined to "corner" him, chooses what is the very extreme and totally opposed to both camel and weazle, saying, "Or like a whale," on which the old courtier, after a little smiling study, and with an air of sudden conviction, answers, "Very like a whale," as who should say, "well, really—er—now that I look again, 'pon my word, your Highness is perfectly right—it has very much the look of a whale." Now here is a display of subserviency that is amusing.

Again, when Laertes is going away on his travels there is the long elocutionary speech. A truly admirable, sagacious piece of advice it is: invaluable to all who are setting out in the world, and utterly impossible to be given by a doddering old imbecile.

But if Polonius's advice to his son be wise and excellent, how still more wise and admirable are his counsels to his daughter on her treatment of Hamlet. How shrewd, how worldly-wise! And again, how inconsistent with his being a comical old time-server How gross the vulgar turn given to his remark, "springes to catch woodcocks," always greeted with a loud guffaw. Yet it is meant seriously. And as he goes on with stroke after stroke of good advice, how inconsistent and puzzling it seems to hear such admirable sense coming from this old droll and pantaloon. How shrewd, too, did he show himself when his daughter came to tell him of Hamlet's forward and extravagant behaviour. He began to fear he had made a mistake in advising reserve to him. He insinuates that it was all her fault. However, the prudent old courtier sees at once that the King should be told because Hamlet himself would betray it.

In Ophelia we have always had presented to us the invariable conventional girl—interesting, sweet, and suffering, exciting universal pity, finally driven to madness and suicide. To this latter portion every actress turns—it is the crucial moment—with a view to play it for all that it is worth—to be distraught, sing snatches of song, &c. It is all sweetness and gentleness, even the painters show her as a pre-Raphaelite maid. The main point is that she must be a sort of foil for Hamlet

But is this the Ophelia of the play? On perusing the original text carefully we see that she has a marked character of her own, and offers a great variety. She is now gay, now serious. She takes a large part in the complications of the story. To begin with, is she not something of a flirt, if we can use the word in connection with the Bard? Indeed, she has a sort of trained artfulness. That old plotter, her father, had planned that she should win Hamlet—a "fine match"; but what if the Court seriously objected? He was not going to lose his place. But the Queen ardently favoured her, for everything that would hold or attract the suspicious and dangerous Prince, and so keep him quiet, would be favoured. Another part of Polonius's "little game" was to affect to discourage the matter. Nothing is more characteristic than his training of the "fair Ophelia," to which the sweet girl herself lends herself in the most dutiful and complacent way. This is hardly consistent with the pre-Raphaelite idea. It will be noted that both her brother and her father, almost at the same time, had to warn her against her too demonstrative behaviour to the Prince. They saw the danger—she was indiscreet, for he was a Prince—"he may not carve for himself," and could not "mean business." He tells her that it has been remarked that she was closeted with the Prince, and had of her audiences been "most free and bounteous." Hamlet's proposals, he warned her, were mere "unholy suits . . . . the better to beguile. Her brother spoke to her honestly and seriously, and she promised him to follow his counsels. The old courtier overheard, and wished to know from her what was said, on which he proceeds to give the same counsel, but with rather a different policy. He proceeds to cross-examine her. She assures him that Hamlet had offered genuine tenders of his affection, on which the old fellow calls her a "green girl." She tells him of vows, appeals to Heaven, &c., which he again puts aside. He knows the world, and finally forbids her to have any further talk with him. One thinks that the policy of the later "Beggars' Opera" must have been in his mind—to keep the men on you must keep them off.

But of even greater significance surely is Laertes's solemn warning to his sister when he was departing for France, when he told her that she had not the slightest chance of winning Hamlet in an honourable way. Reasons of State required that he should make an important marriage with one of his own rank. At the same time he seemed seriously to point to the other serious danger—that she would yield herself to his affection, to "his unmastered importunity." "Be wary, then, best safety lies in fear." That the daughter of a high Court official should need such a caution shows that such frailty was not uncommon. Her reply, which was flippant enough, seems to show that there was ground for his suspicion, for she virtually said, "Mind yourself; don't preach to me." Her father also had the same misgivings, and bids her be scanter of her maiden presence: "I feared he meant to wreck thee." In this view Hamlet's speech to Polonius as to his daughter seems highly significant. After a little rumination, he tells with great earnestness, "If the sun breeds maggots in a dead dog, being a god, kissing carrion——" his thoughts turning to Ophelia and their relations. He would give the father a hint. Then, abruptly, "Have you a daughter? . . . Let her not walk in the sun. Conception is a blessing, but not as your daughter may conceive." That is, outside wedlock. This may seem far-fetched, but how else interpret the allusion, unless, indeed, he wanted to scare the old man with imaginary dangers, and so help him to get free of the daughter?

It is remarkable, again, how morbidly excited was Hamlet on this subject, for when the pair of courtiers came in shortly afterwards, he utters some very gross allusions, which are replied to in a corresponding spirit, and something of the same coarseness is shown in Ophelia's ravings. This is not a pleasant topic, but it is unavoidable, as it is an element in the transaction. And yet the public always look upon the Prince as one of the most refined and delicate-minded of men.

THE Continental Casino at Jersey, one of the most popular resorts, continues to provide delight to packed houses nightly with the best English and French artists. Miss Rita Caroll, operatic vocalist, with her beautiful voice, has captivated all hearts with her fine rendering of "When George the Third was King. M. Dolfino general manager, is so highly satisfied with her that he has secured her for the remainder of the season. The French artist, Miss Fleur d'Olvril, is also much appreciated; and the comedian, Mr. Pippo, is much above the ordinary run of French comedians. The fine playing of Mr. Vander Lindon, the conductor, has proved likewise a very great attraction to the visitors.

As a last tribute to Edvard Grieg, whose music has delighted audiences innumerable at the Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts, Mr. Wood included in the programme of Thursday evening the Peer Gynt suite, of which the first two movements are to be played at the composer's funeral, and Chopin's Funeral March, throughout which orchestra and audience remained standing. Both works, it need hardly be said, were beautifully played.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The Council of the Actors' Association held their usual weekly meeting at 10, King-street, Covent Garden, on Tuesday, when there were present Mr. Fred Grove (chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Rose Mathews, Wynne Matthison, and Lucy Sibley, Messrs. Cecil Brooking, Roy Horniman, Fredk. Morland, and C. B. Rivington (for secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The hon. solicitors reported they had had an interview with a member and advised her.

Mr. Fredk. Morland was elected chairman for the fortnightly business meeting, and it was agreed that strangers should not be admitted. After some discussion it was decided that the date of this meeting should be postponed from Friday, Sept. 6, until Friday, Sept. 13. Mr. Roy Horniman will open the debate on "Trade Union" principles for the Association. The secretary was directed to place notices of meeting, &c., in the offices of the Association, and it was agreed that the matter of each business meeting should be placed on the agenda at the Council meeting ten days previous to date.

It was agreed that the agency clerk should be asked to furnish the committee with a report founded on Mr. Applin's suggestions and with any views he might have on the subject of the agency department.

By an unfortunate oversight the reasons for Miss Clare Greet's resignation were omitted from the published minutes. Miss Greet expects to be out of town till the middle of November, and she considered that under these circumstances she could best help the work of the Association by making way for someone who could regularly attend the meetings. She therefore placed her resignation in the hands of the Council. The Council wish to record their appreciation of the unselfishness and public spirit which induced Miss Greet to take this step.

The Chairman read a letter from Mr. H. Athol Forde resigning his seat upon the Council owing to prolonged absence from town, and the secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Forde stating the Council accepted his resignation with extreme regret, and thanking him for services rendered during his term of office.

The question as to whether a trade union policy is to be advocated by the Council, for which a whip was issued last week, having been discussed, it was proposed that the report of the committee on the proposed meeting at Manchester be adopted. After some consideration an amendment that the discussion of this matter should be adjourned until this day fortnight with a view to obtaining a more universal opinion on the subject was carried. The secretary was directed to issue a whip for that date.

The Chairman read a letter from Mr. Geo. Lyttleton enclosing his scheme re "Minimum Wage." The secretary was directed to thank Mr. Lyttleton for his communication, and it was agreed that the scheme should be handed to the Minimum Wage Committee to be considered by them.

The Chairman read a letter from Boyton, Sons and Trevor with regard to sub-letting the premises, and the secretary was directed to fill up the form they enclosed.

Miss Sibley tendered her resignation as hon. secretary of the Social Committee, and it was agreed that it should be left to the Social Committee to deal with the matter. Mr. Robt. Castleton reported that no business had been transacted owing to the non-attendance of members—only he and Miss Rose Mathews being present. It was agreed that Miss Mathews as a member of the Council and also of the Social Committee should give instructions for the secretary to send out notices for a meeting of the Social Committee when she had arranged a convenient date for same.

The Chairman read a letter from Mr. Edwin Palmer suggesting Dr. Jas. Hepburn, of Glasgow, as an H.M.O. to the A.A. It was agreed that the secretary should endeavour to find out whether any member of the Council would be visiting Glasgow soon, and if so to ask him to call upon Dr. Hepburn with a view to his appointment.

The Secretary reported an interview with a gentleman who had expressed his willingness to act as an hon. medical officer to the Association, and it was agreed that the matter of his election should stand over until it was convenient for one of the Council to call and see him on the subject. The Chairman read a letter from Mr. Lewis Casson, stating that he had interviewed Dr. Kettlewell, of Ilfracombe, as requested, and that gentleman was elected as an hon. medical officer.

The Chairman read a letter from Dr. Rideal, stating that he was leaving Twickenham and taking up his residence at 14, Cornhill, E.C., and suggesting Dr. Beddard, of Richmond Bridge-mansions, Twickenham, in his stead. It was agreed that Dr. Beddard be elected.

The suggestion book was considered, and an entry made.

THE Theatre Royal, Lincoln, re-opened for the season on Monday under highly promising auspices, Messrs. Payne, Seddon, and Ernest Pope having secured the house on a lease of several years. During the recess an entirely new entrance to the dress circle, upper circle, and stalls has been constructed. During the performance on Monday Mr. Frank King, the proprietor of the theatre, introduced Mr. Payne Seddon to the audience. Mr. King thanked his patrons for seven years' generous support and bespoke a continuance of their favour for his successor. As Mr. King was leaving the stage Mr. William Cottam, the editor of a local paper, stepped from the wings, and in a neat speech asked his acceptance of a very handsome writing case bearing the inscription: "Presented to Frank King by a few Lincoln friends. Sept. 2, 1907."

MR. PAYNE SEDDON said that although he had had the pleasure of knowing Lincoln for over twenty years—since Messrs. Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett controlled the old playhouse—he rather felt that night like a swimmer taking a plunge into unknown depths. Mr. King, when he asked him to do him the favour of introducing him to his patrons, very reluctantly consented, telling him that he had never appeared on his own stage before, and that he looked upon the transfer of the theatre as he would upon the transfer of any other business. But the manager of a theatre seemed to him (Mr. Seddon) rather like a consulting chemist or a doctor, inasmuch as it was his business to feel the pulse, as it were, of his audience, to find out what they required, and prescribe accordingly. After briefly indicating the engagements for the next three months, Mr. Seddon said that in undertaking the management of the theatre he and his partner realised they took a responsibility not to themselves alone, but to the whole community, and they hoped to carry out that responsibility in such a manner as to make the theatre a credit to the city.

THE Princess of Wales, accompanied by her daughter, the Princess Mary, and attended by the Lady Mary Forbes Trefusis, visited the Balkan States Exhibition at Earl's Court on Monday. After inspecting the exhibits in the Servian, Bulgarian, and Montenegrin sections, where the various acting commissioners were presented to her, the Princess visited "Old Japan," and became interested in the various handicrafts.

"MRS. WIGGS" AT THE ADELPHI.

The friendship which Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch has cultivated among playgoers of the Old Country was renewed on Monday, when our entertaining American visitors crossed the Strand, and were welcomed at the Adelphi by a large and enthusiastic audience. The spacious stage of the Adelphi permits of an elaboration of the scenic effects, and the end of the second act now gains in drollery by the introduction of a freight van, into which the body of the intoxicated Mr. Stubbins is packed. A view of the railroad is given behind, with red and green signal lights shining luminously through the darkness. An added thrill is also provided by the entry of the motor-car, in which Mr. Bob and Miss Lucy carry out their elopement.

Loyal service is still done by the talented players to whom the piece is entrusted. Miss Madge Carr Cook retains first place in her natural and unforced assumption of the title-rôle. Ease and confidence mark the portrayal of a part which bristles with difficulties, and Mrs. Cook's art is found principally in the fact that she can present a homely person whose counterpart can be met with in any country town in such a way as to secure the admiration and the reverence of all. The play is not without the "heart interest" that Americans are wont to introduce, however inopportunely, into their productions, and in the scenes of pathos Mrs. Cook becomes greatly impressive. The various characters of the play are drawn with a dexterous drollery that keeps the audience in merry mood, and a conspicuous part in creating laughter is taken by Miss Louise Closser. The doleful Miss Hazy is throughout a most mirth-provoking oddity, and the sight of the ancient maiden taking part in her first courtship is one not lightly to be forgotten. Mr. Frederick Burton's rendering of Mr. Stubbins remains a rare specimen of unctuous drollery, marred only by a little indistinctness, due to the deepening of the voice. The comic characteristics of Mrs. Schultz are preserved by Miss Bertha Livingston, and a distinctly precious performance is the Mrs. Eichorn of Miss Grace Griswold, whose asperity and spiteful expression are marvellously assumed.

Comeliness and grace mark the rendering of Lovey Mary by Miss Lottie Alter, and an intelligent and well-spoken rendition of the girl, Asia, is given by Miss Mabel Shaw, who is agreeably natural and piquant in expression. Mr. Ogden Stevens submits a sound and capable study of Mr. Wiggs; Mr. G. Hagar Robinson is a slim and smart matrimonial agent; and a congenial pair of lovers is found in the Miss Lucy of Miss Florence Busby and the Mr. Bob of Mr. Ashton Pearse. Billy Wiggs and Chris. Hazy are neatly portrayed by Mr. Arthur Veesine and Mr. T. Swem; and praise should be devoted to the realistic rendering of the boy Tommy, given by Miss Dolly Sommers. Repeated calls were made at the fall of each curtain, and nothing was wanting to show that Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch would continue to hold receptions nightly in London for an indefinite time.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

Miss Marion Terry is most attractively gowned in The Hypocrites at the Hicks Theatre. She is best-suited, perhaps, in a pale-blue Shantung of a delicate colour and picturesque design. The skirt is quite plain, except for tiny French knots which outline the seams. A quaint little kimono coat is trimmed with embroidery, and its short sleeves show the blouse of fillet lace, which is daintily worked with silver thread. There is also a wide lace collar embroidered with silver in the same manner. Another exquisite creation is a dress of mole-coloured chiffon, the bodice being made with wide folds of the material, with bands of shot-purple silk ribbon brought over the shoulders to the waist, and adorned with rich gold galloon insertion, embroidered in colours. The full chiffon sleeves are caught in at the wrist with folded bands of the ribbon; and the chiffon skirt, which is arranged in heavy folds, falls over deep bands of the same ribbon.

An imposing effect is created by a handsome dress of black ninon de soie, trimmed with a little heavy jet at the foot of the skirt and again on the bodice. Over this dress is worn a long purple wrap, which is beautifully trimmed with gold galloon, worked with a miniature floral design. Folds of purple chiffon hang from the neck to the foot of the cloak. The sleeves are very wide and comfortable, and they are drawn in at the wrist with a deep cuff of the galloon and purple chiffon. A pretty white cloth dress worn by Miss Terry is made in the same Empire style she affects throughout the play. The bodice is arranged with a vest of tucked white chiffon and wide revers of white lace. There is a little kimono coat, and wide under-sleeves made of cream lace and white cloth arranged alternately.

A varied display of "prints" is made in the new play at the Garrick. Miss Miriam Clements as Mrs. Fiander is decked out in a pretty biscuit-coloured print, with a white cambric apron and a yellow Panama hat turned up in front. In the next scene Miss Clements wears an old-fashioned sun-bonnet of quilted white cotton, and her blue-and-white cotton dress is prettily made with a full skirt and blouse bodice, opened a little at the neck, and finished with a narrow turned-down collar of white linen. This dress gives place in the next scene to one of purple and white check. The material again is print, and at the neck is a small embroidered collar and a smart little bow of black ribbon. In the last act Miss Clements wears a dress of white cotton patterned with tiny sprigs of roses.

STEAMERS ON THE STAGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Last Friday, Aug. 30, the Daily Mail published a report of the first rehearsal, on the preceding day, of the "Great Sensation Scene" of the drama shortly to be produced at Drury Lane Theatre, the secret of which had, until then, been jealously guarded by the management.

Having on July 1 last forwarded to the managers of a touring company the synopsis and scenario of a new and original drama I am writing for them, in which similar scenes and effects are included, i.e., the entrance of a steamer (not small or a toy), upon the stage, her loading, crossing, and exit from the stage, and in the following scene her wreck in a fog through a boiler explosion, including similar realistic details to those mentioned in the Daily Mail report, I immediately wrote a letter to the editor of that paper stating these facts. I venture to ask the favour of your kindly placing these facts on record in your columns, in order that when my play is produced I may not be charged with plagiarism.—Yours faithfully, WOODS LAWRENCE.

London, Sept. 2, 1907.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE will be accompanied on his autumn tour by Miss Viola Tree, who will play not only The Queen in Richard II. and Trilby, but also Ethel Newcome in Colonel Newcome. The tour begins at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, on Monday, finishing at Cardiff on Saturday, Nov. 23. The first performance of the four-act play which Mr. William J. Locke has drawn from his own novel, "The Beloved Vagabond," will be given during the visit to Dublin, and the production of Mr. J. Comyns Carr's adaptation of Charles Dickens's novel, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," will also be a feature of the itinerary.

CORDIAL congratulations to Miss Kitty Mason, the popular principal dancer of the Gaiety, who was married on Wednesday to Mr. A. E. Aspinall, secretary of the West India Committee. The marriage, which was strictly private, was celebrated at St. Andrew's, Westminster, and after the ceremony the wedding party of four lunched at the Savoy. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Aspinall left for Lucerne for a three weeks' holiday.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER begins his provincial tour with His House in Order on Monday, the company leaving St. Pancras on Sunday morning at 11.45 by special train, arriving at Blackpool at 5.40 p.m. Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Mr. E. Lyall Swete, and Miss Iris Hawkins will be included in the cast of Mr. Pinero's great play, and the towns favoured during the tour, which is to last six weeks, will be Blackpool, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Glasgow, and Edinburgh, following on in the order named.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY to-night concludes at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, a week which has been marked by gratifying success. The popular actor is hard at work rehearsing Great Possessions, the first provincial production of which is arousing so much interest. Miss Amy Coleridge will play the part of Ruth on tour, and both Mr. Harvey and Miss N. de Silva are to be seen in the rôles sustained by them at the Adelphi.

MR. and MRS. F. R. BENSON and their Shakespearean company opened their autumn tour auspiciously ciously at the Theatre Royal, York, on Monday, the Merchant of Venice playing to a crowded house. The tour includes all the principal towns in the North and West of England. Mr. Benson's North company, headed by Mr. Henry Herbert, opened its autumn tour at Ramsgate on Monday, under similarly favourable conditions, and have been playing to excellent business all through the week. Plymouth, Exeter, Worcester, Coventry, and many other important towns will be visited in the course of the tour.

IT is a great pity that Mr. Hall Caine's indisposition prevented him enjoying the triumph on Saturday at the Lyceum of his latest version of The Christian, which drew an enormous crowd. "Enthusiastic" is scarcely a strong enough adjective to properly describe the reception of the work.

MR. LAURENCE BINYON, the author of Attila, which was produced by Mr. Oscar Asche at His Majesty's Theatre on Wednesday, has already achieved distinction in the world of art and literature. Born in a country parsonage, he is, however, a Londoner by adoption, having been brought up at St. Paul's School. He carried off the Newdigate Prize for English Verse at Oxford, and in 1893 entered the Department of Printed Books at the British Museum. Two years later he was transferred to the Department of Prints and Drawings.

MR. EADE MONTEFIORE, in his recent examination in bankruptcy at the Guildhall, Bury St. Edmunds, gave interesting details of his difficulties. He said that since 1889 he had been in the theatrical profession, commencing as an actor in comedy, and within three years he became manager. He had lived in Scotland a great deal, and had twice been in difficulties, once in 1894 at Paisley, when he came to an arrangement with his creditors, and once in 1902 at Dundee, when he was made bankrupt. After that he started clear of all liabilities, and had since then lived upon what he had earned. He had never put £5 on a racehorse in his life. He commenced negotiating for the tenancy of the Bury Theatre in the spring of last year, but the negotiations were not completed until October, when he entered into possession with about £100 of clear capital. In addition he had about £300 worth of engravings and bric-à-brac, the collection of which was his hobby.

CONTINUING, Mr. Montefiore said his hobby of collecting started after his bankruptcy in Dundee, and he valued his collection at £200, but he would not have them sold because from a sentimental point of view they were invaluable. Those that remained at the theatre he valued at £80.

QUESTIONED as to the receipts from the various plays, the debtor said that from Dec. 10 to June 8 he received from attendances £1,993 17s. 7d.; bar sales £333 3s. 10d.; programmes £49 17s.; receipts from other sources, including money borrowed and things he had sold, £231 5s. 6d. The expenses included share of receipts to travelling companies £1,041 5s. 10d.; wages of music hall artists, staff, and management £927 14s. 3d.; accounts paid by cheque £404 5s. 8d., and accounts paid by cash at the theatre and elsewhere £221 13s. 6d. There was a discrepancy between the two of about £12, which an acute accountant could probably find in the books. From Nov. 3 to June 8 the money he took for himself only amounted to £112. The examination was adjourned until Sept. 19

THOSE who so generously came to the assistance of the Charles Garthorne Grimston Widow Fund will be pleased to hear that Mrs. Garthorne has now been enabled to enter into partnership with another lady for the purpose of letting apartments in Brighton. A house at No. 2, Buckingham-street has been taken, and those who require clean, comfortable rooms will be sure to find them there. The house is in close proximity to the theatres, station, &c., and very conveniently situated for all parts of the town. Mrs. Garthorne wishes to convey her sincere thanks to all who have participated in this kindly work.

ALL previous records have been broken by the Hutchison management at the West Pier, Brighton, over 40,000 people paying for admission during the four weeks of their season. Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison will start an important tour of The Stronger Sex at the Coronet Theatre on Monday, the entire original London production having been secured. The direction of the stage will be in the experienced hands of Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, who also will appear in the principal part. Other leading members of the company will be Miss May Blayney, Miss Nancy Beresford, Miss Gladys Ffolliott, and Mr. Stanley Harrison. Mr. J. E. Watson will act as general-manager for the company. The tour embraces most of the suburban theatres and many of the best provincial centres.

MR. E. S. WILLARD is not making an American tour this season, nor will he undertake the management of a London Theatre, requiring a more leisurely life in the future than actor-management allows, but he will very likely be seen during the season in a play produced under another's management.

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE'S production of The Bondman was staged by Mr. Reginald A. Hunt, who has done his work so well that full credit is due to him.

A DISTURBANCE occurred last week at the Muncaster Theatre, Bootle, near Liverpool, where The Shaughraun was being played by the stock company. During the course of the "wake" scene a man arose in the pit, and protested, "in the name of countless Irishmen," against the ridicule that was being poured upon his country by such a drama. Mr. Albert Sember, who was playing the part of Conn, threw off the "sheet," and walked to the footlights, where, in a few words, he expressed regret that exception should be taken to a play which had for generations found favour with all decent Irish people, the text of which, written by an Irishmen, they were faithfully following.

GENERAL cheers greeted Mr. Sember's remarks, and when some twenty of the interrupter's companions jumped up and started howling, the police removed the original disturber, the others leaving the theatre quietly. At the close of the play, Mr. Sember again addressed the audience, assuring them that the management of the theatre would take care that nothing likely to hurt anybody's feelings would ever be presented. All old theatre-goers would recognise that The Shaughraun had been presented in its original form, and, he thought, to the satisfaction of their patrons. The speech was received with loud cheers.

MR. H. F. MALTBY is at present busily engaged upon his new play, the production of which will probably take place early in 1908. Differing entirely from his former pieces, Mr. Maltby's latest work will deal with modern life. The first act takes place in a small country vicarage in Northumberland, and the remaining three acts are laid in an office in the City.

A HIGHLY successful illuminated fête was given at the Charing Cross Convalescent Home at Limpsfield, under the patronage of the Countess of Ilchester, and a very fine concert was furnished by well-known artists. The hall was not large enough to hold all who wished to be present, and many failed to obtain admission. Mr. John L. Shine was a valued contributor to the programme, and proved a host in himself. Miss Edith Grahame made a hit with a clever monologue, and Mr. John Mortimer scored equally in an amusing recitation. Miss Vane and company appeared in The Lady Swindler, and others who took part in the entertainment were Professor Cross, Mr. Douglas Hamilton, Miss Vivien Stafford, and Miss Blanche Colmore, local talent being also well represented. Dr. Watt Black (the president of the Home), Mrs. Watt Black, and Miss Leese (the matron) are to be congratulated on the successful result which was attained.

THE British Empire Shakespeare Society's performances of The Merchant of Venice, to be given at the Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, on the first four days of October, will be sustained by two casts, composed entirely of members of the Society, drawn from various parts of the kingdom. One cast will play on the evening of the 1st and the afternoon of the 2nd, the other on the evening of the 3rd and the afternoon of the 4th. Mr. Acton Bond, under whose direction the performances are to be given, will be released by Mrs. Russ Whytal from the part of Clancarty in order to admit of full time being given for rehearsals at the Memorial Theatre. Special concessions, it should be added, have been made for those travelling to Stratford-on-Avon to witness the performances.

THE clergyman as a character in a play has, says the Daily Mail, for a long time been regarded by dramatic authors as a valuable asset. No fewer than five plays now running, or in rehearsal for production in London, have at least one clergyman in the list of characters. In The Hypocrites at the Hicks Theatre there are two, one of them being the leading personage in the story. There is a clergyman in When Knights Were Bold at Wyndham's Theatre, there is another in the American play, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, at the Adelphi, and three are appearing in The Christian at the Lyceum Theatre. Added to all these is the Rev. Martin Hope in the new Drury Lane drama, The Sins of Society.

MR. FRANK ALDRIDGE, the resident-manager of the Perth Theatre, has sustained a severe bereavement in the death, at the early age of thirty-four, of his wife, who passed away at Perth on the 30th ult. Mrs. Aldridge, whose maiden name was Miss Caroline Southall, was born at Stockton-on-Tees. Even as a child she showed her aptitude for the stage, and she had already developed marked talent in light comedy when at the age of sixteen she became the wife of Mr. Aldridge. She played successfully in comic opera under Mr. Horace Lingard and Mr. Robert Arthur as well as with Mr. J. H. Savile and with Mr. Rousbey's companies.

MRS. ALDRIDGE was one of the most popular ladies in Perth, her large-heartedness and gentle-womanly qualities endearing her to all. The funeral took place at Wellshill Cemetery on Tuesday, and the esteem in which the deceased lady was held was shown when the cortège left St. Niman's Cathedral after the service, fully 250 of the prominent citizens of the Fair City following to the cemetery, where a crowd of nearly a thousand persons congregated. The oak coffin was entirely covered with floral tributes, conspicuous among which were wreaths from Mr. Aldridge and his six-year-old daughter Ivy. A detachment of the Black Watch denoted the public character of the ceremony.

"THE GIRLS OF GOTTENBERG" at the Gaiety now rejoice in their full complement of artistic interpreters, all the members of the original company having returned to their rôles. Miss Gertie Millar, Miss May de Sousa, Miss Violet Halls, Miss Olive May, Miss Jean Aylwin, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr. Robert Nainby, and Mr. Edmund Payne are all appearing with their customary success, and Mr. Louis Bradfield, who has recently joined the company, receives a hearty welcome.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN and his company opened the New Assembly Rooms Theatre, Bromsgrove, on Monday with The Adventure of Lady Ursula, which had a big reception from a fashionable audience. The performance was under the patronage of Alderman F. Holyoake, J.P., Mr. J. Green, J.P., Mr. J. Brazier, J.P., Mr. S. Gaywell, M.A., F.G.S., F.R.A.S., Mr. G. Croaker, F.R.C.S., Mr. J. H. Beilby, M.A., C.M., Mr. W. H. Rowlands, M.R.C.S., and Councillor W. Simmons. The theatre, which has been erected by Messrs. W. Walton and Son, has been leased to Mrs. Dayrell Vincent, who is opening the last three nights of each week. The dimensions and other particulars were published in our columns a few weeks ago. On the rise of the curtain the company sang the National Anthem.

THE CENTRAL is not to be the name of Mr. J. E. Vedrenne's new theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue. So much objection to the title was aroused that the owners of the property had a meeting with Mr. Vedrenne on Friday, and it has now been definitely settled to call the new house "The Queen's Theatre," subject, of course, to the necessary consent being given. The Sugar Bowl, which is to be the opening attraction, is from the pen of Mrs. Madeline Lucette Ryley, and is founded on the assumption that once a lady, however long neglected, has attracted a lover, other men follow in his wake like flies round a sugar bowl. Miss Ellis Jeffreys will play the leading part.

OLD memories are revived by the christening of the new theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue. The first Queen's Theatre was so called in honour of good Queen Anne, and was opened in 1705. On the accession of King George it became the King's. On the accession of Queen Victoria it became Her Majesty's, and Mr. Tree's handsome playhouse, His Majesty's, now occupies the same site. The little house off Tottenham-court-road, which the Bancrofts made famous as the Prince of Wales, was in its early years known by that title. The Queen's Theatre freshest in playgoers' memories, however, is the one which, in 1867, was opened in Long-acre.

COUNCILLOR CULLING, the popular manager of the Bury Theatre and Circus, is suffering, we regret to state, from appendicitis. He took to his bed on Saturday morning, and was seen by specialists on Monday, but they decided not to operate, as he was doing fairly well, while from enquiries we learn that Mr. Culling is improving nicely.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE has been meeting with great success on his autumn tour, return dates having been arranged at every theatre he has so far visited. Mr. Wilkie's production of Richard III., with new wardrobe and scenery, has made a notable impression. Several additions to the extensive répertoire of the company are to be made in the course of the next few weeks.

MR. ELVEY THOMAS, the popular piermaster and entertainment manager of the St. Leonards Pavilion Theatre, takes his ninth annual benefit there on Thursday. A special engagement has been made for this occasion of Mr. Ian Maclaren's company, which will appear in As You Like It and The Taming of the Shrew.

MR. EDWARD COMPTON makes the welcome announcement that he will give at the St. James's a series of short revivals of the comedies with which his name has been so long associated, starting on Saturday next with The School for Scandal. Mr. Compton will appear in his artistic impersonation of Charles Surface; Mr. Eric Lewis will be the Sir Peter Teazle and Miss Lilian Braithwaite the Lady Teazle. Joseph Surface, Sir Oliver, and Moses will be acted respectively by Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Charles Groves, and Mr. E. M. Robson.

MR. LAURENCE IRVING, who arrived in New York a fortnight ago, is superintending the staging of his new play, in which Mr. E. H. Sothern is to appear. The tentative title of the play was The Inheritance of the Meek, but according to a recent announcement it is to be named The Fool Hath Said in His Heart, There is No God. Mr. Irving has had the misfortune to lose two typewritten copies of the play, as well as a number of valuable photographs.

MR. TOM CRAVEN'S new sensational drama, The Great Crais Crime, will be produced for copyright purposes during the first week in November. It is said to contain many startling and quite original effects, and as in many other of this author's forty-five dramatic works, the more serious situations will be pleasantly "relieved" by the element of comedy. It is interesting to note that Mr. Craven's perennial Stowaway, written at the age of seventeen, when the author was then a junior clerk in the Joint Stock Bank, is still very much in evidence both sides of the Atlantic and in the Colonies.

"YOU NEVER CAN TELL," with which Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker open their campaign at the Savoy on Monday, Sept. 16, will be sustained by Miss Agnes Thomas, Miss Ellen O'Malley, Miss Dorothy Minto, Mr. Norman Page, Mr. A. E. George, Mr. Nigel Playfair, Mr. Harcourt Williams, Mr. James Hearn, Mr. J. D. Beveridge, and Miss Katherine Stuart. The revival will last four weeks, and will be followed by The Devil's Disciple.

MR. WEEDON GROSSMITH, who starts his tour at the Coronet on Sept. 30 with The Night of the Party, has written for eventual production a play which may succeed either as a farce or a serious drama. The leading character is that of the ne'er-do-well son of a millionaire, and the incidents of the piece will be of the most sensational description, but rendered in the gravest and sincerest manner by its interpreters. The first of the four acts takes place in Mayfair, and the remaining three in a remote corner of the Caucasian Mountains. Mr. Grossmith will be accompanied on his tour by Mr. W. T. Lovell, Mr. Hubert Druce, and Miss Esmé Beringer.

PRINCE FRANCIS OF TECK and the Countess de Grey visited the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end, on Wednesday, and witnessed a performance of Mme. Feinman, who is described as the Jewish Sarah Bernhardt. The play was a Yiddish adaptation of Hoodman Blind, the fine drama by Henry Arthur Jones, which was produced at the Princess's in 1885. In its foreign guise the piece is called Rachel and Leah.

THE KING has expressed his displeasure at the exaggerated reports which have been given in some quarters regarding his departure from the Summer Theatre at Marienbad last week. Herr Laska, the manager of the theatre, has stated that he cannot be blamed for the incident which occasioned the King to leave the house, an incident which he deeply regrets. The whole matter was due to a most regrettable misunderstanding.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT, who has been spending her holiday at Belle Isle, her summer residence on the coast of Brittany, will shortly embark on a tour through France, Switzerland, Holland, and England. She has just finished writing a modern four-act play, and the second volume of her memoirs will appear next winter simultaneously in Paris, London, and New York. During her holiday Mme. Bernhardt divided her time between dominoes, tennis, and an occasional shrimp-fishing expedition, always retiring at ten o'clock at night.

MR. FRANK BERTRAM will this autumn produce two new plays, both by Mr. Gordon Holmes, with the striking titles of The Empire of Ambition and The Shoes of the Dead. Mr. Sydney Bland, who has created a marked impression on tour as the Rat in The Breed of the Treshams, will produce the first-named piece, playing the principal part. Mr. Frank Bertram, with his Convict's Daughter company, will stage The Shoes of the Dead, a title which may, however, be altered.

MR. OTTO STUART has engaged Miss Italia Conti for his season at the Court Theatre.

VOICE trainers may come and voice trainers may go, but Miss Kate Flinn goes on like Tennyson's brook. A new term at her academy commences on Monday, Sept. 16. Those who cannot sing may quickly be taught to do so by Miss Flinn; those who sing a little are trained to sing better; while those whose goal is the public platform or stage will find in the accomplished teacher's methods a sure way to the achievement of their desires.

MUSIC has lost another distinguished master by the passing away of Edvard Grieg, the celebrated Norwegian composer and pianist, whose death at Bergen early on Wednesday morning has caused universal sorrow. Edvard Grieg, who was born at Bergen on June 15, 1843, had Scottish blood in his veins, for his great grandfather was Alexander Grieg, an Aberdeen merchant. The composer obtained his earliest instruction in music from his mother, a Norwegian lady who had studied in London. The boy made his first attempt at composition when he was about twelve, the title of the piece being "Variations on a German Melody for the Piano, by Edvard Grieg, Opus 1." When Grieg was nearly fifteen he met Ole Bull, the famous violinist, on whose recommendation he was sent to the Leipzig Conservatorium, where he remained from 1858 to 1862, studying under well-known professors of the day.

ON his return to Norway Grieg worked enthusiastically in the cause of Scandinavian folk-music, the popularity of which is chiefly due to him. His first orchestral work was the overture "Im Herbst," and among his many compositions his "Peer Gynt" suite is the most famous in this country, where his songs have also given unlimited pleasure. Grieg was in London as recently as May of last year, when he gave two concerts of his own works at the Queen's Hall. In 1894 the University of Cambridge conferred upon the Norwegian composer the honorary degree of Mus.D. The body is lying in state at the Bergen Museum preparatory to the funeral, which will take place on Monday at the Moellendal Crematory, near Bergen.

MME. ROSE ETTINGER, the well-known soprano, was discovered lying in bed at Knightsbridge, Devon, on Monday, with a bullet wound in her mouth, and a six-chambered Colt's revolver by her side. The injured vocalist and her husband, Mr. Francis Braun, have been staying in the neighbourhood for several months, and some weeks ago they both gave their services at a concert arranged in aid of a fund for providing a new organ for a neighbouring parish church. Mrs. Braun lies in a critical condition, but according to latest devices hopes of her recovery are entertained.

A SCHEME is now in course of formation to buy up a West End house, christening it the Irving Theatre. The policy of the new enterprise would be to foster and perpetuate the highest ideals and methods associated with the name of the great actor.

THE late Richard Mansfield, whose death we announced in our last issue, has left a large fortune. His estate is estimated at £186,000, of which theatrical properties, scenery, costumes, &c., account for £40,000. There is also valuable real estate in New York and at his home, New London, Connecticut.

NEXT Tuesday's meeting of the Actors' Union at the Bedford Head, Maiden-lane, W.C., at 2.30, will be of special interest, as Mr. Frank Gerald, the delegate to the Trades Union Congress at Bath, will address the meeting.

MISS KITTY GORDON and her husband, Captain the Hon. Henry Beresford, were the objects of excessive police zeal on the 29th ult., when they were pounced upon by constables during a motor drive through Regent's Park about midnight. The case came up at Marylebone Police Court on Thursday, when Captain Beresford was charged with exceeding the speed limit. The park constable gave the speed as 18 miles 1320 yards per hour. Captain Beresford gave evidence in his own behalf, and contended that the constables were wrong in their time. The roads in the park were in such a disgraceful condition that if the car had been driven at the speed of eighteen miles an hour it would have been shaken to pieces. They were so bad that his wife implored him every time he went into the park to drive slowly. "Of course we were not going at eighteen miles an hour, or we would have been bumped out of the car," said Miss Gordon. A fine of 40s., with 2s. costs, was imposed.

ARRANGEMENTS for the Chelsea Historical Pageant to be held next year in Ranelagh Gardens, adjoining Chelsea Hospital, are proceeding apace. It is the first London pageant since the recent revival of this kind of spectacle, and will serve to show how rich is the story of the old village of palaces, as Chelsea has been called. Among the episodes will be those of Cæsar crossing the Thames at Chelsea, 53 B.C.; the Council of Chelsea, 786 A.D.; Sir Thomas More's greatness and fall; Charles I. at Chelsea, 1627; the Founding of Chelsea Hospital, 1681; and Doggett's Coat and Badge, the water festival which still survives.

THE QUEEN OF SPAIN has written a one-act play, which, it is stated, is to be performed at Sandringham in the autumn. The cast will be made up of amateurs, including Miss Minnie Cochrane, lady-in-waiting to Princess Henry of Battenberg. Miss Cochrane was always stage-manager of the amateur theatricals which used to be performed by the young Queen and her brothers.

A WHISTLING piano is the latest novelty from America. It is the invention of a negro clergyman, of Richmond, Virginia, who has been granted a patent. The instrument has a keyboard arranged on a scale somewhat different from that of an ordinary piano. It is capable of whistling the most difficult notes, and the rev. gentleman is confident that his device will become very popular with his own race throughout the world.

MR. J. HENRY TWYFORD has postponed for a time his dramatic reading of John of Hapsburg in order to fulfil a special engagement to play Captain Lovell (Mr. Ben Webster's part) in Mice and Men.

MR. CHARLES CONSTANT, lessee of the Theatre Royal, Ryde, has been able to welcome large and fashionable audiences this season. On Tuesday he was honoured by the patronage and presence of Her Royal Highness Princess Henry of Battenberg, accompanied by Princes Leopold and Maurice of Battenberg and suite, who witnessed the performance of Peter's Mother by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Princes Leopold and Maurice had previously visited the theatre when The Dairymaids was the piece presented. First-class attractions, particularly of a musical order, may confidently rely on good business at the popular resort.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Rushing Miss Terry.

MISS ELLEN TERRY, in M.A.P. last Saturday, acknowledged her indebtedness to the late Charles Reade for advice about her acting. "In the matter of an 'ardent' exit," he wrote, says Miss Terry, "the swift rush of the words, the personal rush, should carry you off the stage. It is in reality as easy as shelling peas, if you will only go by the right method instead of by the wrong. You have overcome far greater difficulties than this, yet night after night you go on suffering ignoble defeat at this point. Come, courage! You took a leaf out of Reade's dictionary at Manchester, and trampled on two difficulties—impossibilities you called them. That was on Saturday. Monday you knocked the poor impossibilities down. Tuesday you kicked them where they lay. Wednesday you walked placidly over their prostrate bodies!" The difficulty that he was now urging me to knock down was one of pace, and I am afraid that in all my stage life subsequently I never quite succeeded in kicking it or walking over its prostrate body!"

Sending Her to the Seaside.

"I REMEMBER," continues Miss Terry, "that Reade, with characteristic generosity, gave me £10, and sent me to the seaside in earnest, as he suggests my doing, half in fun, in the letter. 'I know you won't go otherwise,' he said, 'because you want to insure your life, or do something of that sort. Here! Go to Brighton, go anywhere by the sea for Sunday. Don't thank me. It's all for Philippa!'"

Compensation for Disturbance.

MR. ARTHUR GREVILLE, who plays Isaacson in When Knights Were Bold, has told M.A.P. an amusing anecdote. Two of his friends were once presented with a couple of free passes for a well-known West End palace of variety. Unfortunately, before going to the entertainment, they dined not wisely but too otherwisely, with the result that they became noisy. Two huge janitors had been itching to turn them out for some time, but managers are properly sparing with their instructions for severe measures, for fear of causing a panic among that portion of the house which cannot see what is going on, and can only hear a confused hubbub of voices; and the miscreants were therefore tolerated for a good deal longer than they deserved to be. But at last, during the "turn" immediately preceding the final one, they became unbearably troublesome, and the attendants closed suddenly upon the disturbers of the piece, and escorted them out of the building in "two ticks." But before giving them the final push into the street, which frequently means a push into the arms of the law, one of the janitors, who had paid a hurried visit to the box-office on the way out, returned them their money—five shillings each!

Mr. Jones on Dying.

"I SUPPOSE," says Mr. H. A. Jones, in an interview with a representative of the Reader, "an author writes by the pale blue light of introspection quite as much as by descriptive faculty. A death scene scarcely ever lends itself harmoniously to the best intentions of drama, which should always be true first and foremost. The villain still plunges his knife through anatomical loop-holes, and the heroine's dying throes are still a trained agony that no physician has ever seen. But audiences compromise this with the author's intention and the lives of the footlight favourites. I remember going to the play with an eminent biologist, and after the dying actress had passed away, he said:—'Dear, dear, I wish you would take me to see that woman, that I might tell her how people really die.' She had died in the manner of a human being with a good thirty years to live." La Dame aux Camelias has never appealed to Mr. Jones. "It is," as he says, "too 'distinctly French in its exaggeration of a theme totally unfit for the theatre; it is decadent, to say the least.'"

IT is no recommendation of the play, in Mr. Jones's estimation, that generations of women have wept over it. "There is always the dweller in the valley, and the people who live higher up. The drama is like two mountains that meet amicably, indifferently, at their base, but the higher they rise in the air the further they grow apart. One mountain is tragedy, the other is comedy. Those who live on either mountain top have the best point of view. Camille might appeal to many as Millet's picture of the Angelus appealed to two honest but simple people who saw the latter for the first time. They read the name of the picture, which meant nothing to them, and then they looked in solemn awe upon it. At last the wife said to the husband, with a little sigh, 'Well, John, you see, they've buried the baby!' Many an author has had to endure the simple-minded, and many a dramatic author has conceived something in the sacred spirit of the Angelus, and been told to 'bury the baby.'"

"IF I were in a position requiring me to write a play that must succeed, that is to say, something that would bring me money at once, I could do it, and still the speculative element is always there. In such a play I should feed the public upon gingerbread fare of calf-love, avoid the temptation of spicing it with anything more dangerous to the infant than preserved orange-peel, and intersperse a few peppermint mottoes for curtain speeches. The villainy of the piece would be of the toy-soldier variety, and the virtue of unadulterated nonsense."

Miss Braddon in Panto.

MISS M. E. BRADDON, the author of over a hundred popular novels, says Mr. David Oliver in the Hull Times, as a girl tried acting at the Queen's Theatre, Hull. She resided at Beverley—a place described in its outward, physical features, but not in name, in more than one of her books. I remember seeing her in the pantomime of Humpty-Dumpty. Her stage name, if I mistake not, was "Clara Seaton." In this Christmas piece she looked charming, to my boyish eyes, in a dazzling costume and flaxen wig. She was a sort of Prince, who took to task an idler content to wallow amid dirty and sordid surroundings. Miss Braddon did not remain long on the stage. She found she could write, and though her first novel, entitled "Three Times Dead," printed and published at Beverley by a local printer, fell flat, it was subsequently re-published as the "Trail of the Serpent."

An Odd Ad.

THE following advertisement is stated to have recently appeared in a paper published in the Straits Settlements:—To-night! To-night! Dedicated in loving memory of our beloved Wm. Shakespeare. The Opera Indra Permato Company of Selangor will stage the Sensational Tragedy Prince Hamlet, by the best actors and actresses procurable in Java. Our clowns are without rivals! This is actually the best representation of a European Opera by a Native Company. CHOW CHONG, Proprietor.

Ellen Terry on Tour.

MISS ELLEN TERRY, who, with her husband, Mr. James Carew, is on a provincial tour playing Capt. Brassbound's Conversion, is proceeding by motor from town to town. Mr. Carew told a Tribune man that, comparing English with American audiences, he thought the former were more enthusiastic. One thing struck him—that they did not forget an actor they had once seen, but were ever ready to welcome him again.

It is, indeed, creditable to the English stage that a drama like Attila, showing historical knowledge, a power of depicting human passion, and the gift of writing tense, smooth, and telling blank verse, should be presented with so much success to the public. Mr. Laurence Binyon has chosen a difficult subject for his play. The great Hun leader is neither an attractive nor an interesting personage. But Mr. Binyon has made the most of his material. He has endowed Attila with a passionate affection for his sons, and with a capacity for ardent love. In this way a dramatic, if slightly diffuse, interest is evolved, the tragedy of passion and ambition ending with the death of the Hun by the hand of a woman.

The first scene is a Burgundian city, Attila's headquarters. On one side of the stage is the front of a Roman temple, worn and neglected; on the other is the lodging of Ildico, a Burgundian princess, of whom Attila is enamoured. Her foster-brother, Sigismund, seems to cherish a secret love for the princess, and is correspondingly hostile to the Hun, who is suffering from an attack of apathy which disgusts his warriors. One of them, Rorik, in order to ruin Sigismund, instigates him to raise a revolt in the town. When the deluded Burgundian does this, Attila's men surround him, and are about to put him to death when Attila enters, and spares Sigismund at Ildico's request. A comet which has appeared in the sky has caused the chief much uneasiness, and he summons an Egyptian soothsayer to his palace to fortell the future. When warned that all his three sons must die, Attila determines to defy the Fates, and make himself a universal "scourge" and tyrant. First of all, he divorces his faithful wife Kerka, and she goes out, dignified, but disconsolate. Gradually he obtains a dominating influence over Ildico—"women," he says, "are flowers to be plucked"—and she agrees to marry him. But before their wedding day, an envoy arrives from Honoria, the sister of the Roman Emperor, with a secret offer of marriage. Attila, intoxicated by dreams of empire, assents to the proposal, and puts Honoria's betrothal ring upon his finger. On his marriage eve with Ildico, she discovers his meditated treachery; and when Attila is feasting with his chieftans in his hall, Sigismund, driven desperate, attacks the Hun, and is slain by his soldiers at the foot of the throne before the very eyes of Ildico, who is stunned by the horror of the act. Attila orders her to proceed to the nuptial chamber; and she obeys, having first taken from his side the magic sword by which alone he is said to be vulnerable. He follows her, and there is a long pause, at the end of which angry voices announce that Attila has been murdered, and his youngest son also killed. The Huns spare Ildico, believing her to have gone mad; and the curtain falls on her exultation that the gods of her nation are avenged.

Most of the force of the impression created by the play is caused by the marvellously powerful and real impersonation of Attila by Mr. Oscar Asche. We see the gigantic Hun as he is described in Herbert's admirable versification of the account of Priscus:—

"Terrific was his semblance, in no mould
Of beautiful proportion cast; his limbs
Nothing exalted, but with sinews braced
Of Chalybæan temper . . . . .
. . . . . His ample chest
Was overbrowed by a gigantic head,
With eyes keen, deeply sunk, and small, that gleam'd
Strangely in wrath, as though some spirit unclean
Within that corporal tenement install'd
Look'd from its windows, but with temper'd fire
Beam'd mildly on the unresisting. Thin
His beard and hoary; his flat nostrils crown'd
A cicatrised, swart visage—but withal
That questionable shape such glory wore
That mortals quail'd beneath him."

Mr. Asche wears an extraordinary, but doubtless authentic, head-dress, with four pipe-like projections, from which stream tails of blue horsehair. With his long black locks and barbaric equipments, Mr. Asche is a formidable and imposing figure which dwells in the memory. His depiction of the character of Attila is masterly and graphic. The imperious majesty of the man, his splendid savagery, his rapacious ambition, and his brutal supremacy are shown by Mr. Asche in the most massive and magnificent way. His love scenes have all the animal passion, all the greedy desire, of the semi-savage; and the mere bulk and size of the actor give a powerful feeling of strength and superiority. Altogether, Mr. Asche's Attila is one of the finest things he has ever done. Miss Lily Brayton is superb as Ildico, her beautifully-moulded arms showing with sculptural effect in the simple but handsome costumes of the Burgundian princess; and the grace and dignity of her poses being of no small assistance to her embodiment. From the first, the note of tragic earnestness and bitter despair is struck; and admirably indicated too is the fascination exercised over the princess by the great conqueror and the mighty man at arms. No less impressive is Ildico's angry jealousy and her stupefied horrer after the death of Sigismund; and in the concluding act, when Ildico resolves to free herself from the yoke of her brutal spouse by murder, Miss Brayton attains to a high elevation, and holds the audience enthralled by the depth and intensity of her acting. Master Cyril Bruce looks the part of Hernak most picturesquely, and plays it with sense and spirit; and Mr. J. Fisher White is a comely and discreet representative of the shrewd counsellor Onegesius. Mr. Godfrey Tearle takes full advantage of his moderate chances as Sigismund, and shows as much vigour and vivacity as is possible in the brief but important part. Mr. Caleb Porter is the acme of solemn dignity as the soothsayer, and maintains throughout the stern and severe demeanour demanded by the character. Mr. H. R. Hignett speaks the lines allotted to the Roman Envoy with a plaintive repose, which is very effective, and bears himself remarkably well; and Mr. Henry Kitts is quaint and elvish as Zercon, a Moorish dwarf. Miss Mary Rorke's fine qualities as an actress are again displayed in the rôle of Kerka, and she delivers the speeches of the injured queen with admirable elocution and earnestness. Miss Irene Rooke's distinctness of delivery and excellent emphasis are notable as Cunegonde; and Miss Leila Norris is quite satisfactory as Ghisla. Mr. R. Ian Penny plays Laetus with real humour; and Mr. G. Kay Souper is excellent as Burba, Mr. J. Fritz Russell doing creditable work as Esla, and Mr. Gordon Harker being seen to much advantage as Chabas. Mr. A. de Bréanski and Mr. Ewan Brooke are entirely efficient as Ardaric and Vladimir.

The scenery, by Mr. Joseph Harker, is, as befits the semi-barbaric period chosen, broad and simple. The first scene in the Burgundian city is both illusive and artistic, besides being admirably suggestive of the mixture of Roman rule with Burgundian occupation; and the banqueting hall of the last act, with its ruddy lights and wolf-headed throne is equally commendable. The costumes, from the designs of Mr. C. S. Ricketts, are finely simple and appropriate. The incidental music by Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, consisting of an overture, preludes to the acts, a dance, and a chorus, is cleverly suggestive of wild and chaotic passion, with a touch, at times, of Oriental melancholy and weirdness. The vocal chorus in the banqueting scene is full of spirit and feeling; and the whole of the music is scored with musicianly skill, and is thoroughly well played by the strong orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Christopher Wilson. Attila had a very favourable reception, and the audience insisted on the appearance of the author, who was warmly applauded on taking his call.

"THE TRUTH" AT THE COMEDY.

Mr. Clyde Fitch, undoubtedly the most versatile and the most prolific of American playwrights, whose Climbers and The Last of the Dandies won the suffrages of audiences on this side, has scored a still greater success with The Truth at the Comedy, and when this smart and interesting comedy resumed its run on Monday there was a full house to once more recognise the supreme merits of Miss Marie Tempest as a comedienne of the first rank. One is so convinced of the necessity of so completely equipped an actress in the part that it is somewhat difficult to imagine anyone else playing it. Every shade of expression, every inflection of voice, and the most happily-timed gestures give the atmosphere of reality to the character. Becky Warder's greatest moments are when she holds the stage alone; and the expression of the remorse of the menteuse is very telling.

The rôle of Tom Warder gives full scope to the abilities of Mr. Allan Aynesworth, whose presentment of the character is well-bred, easy, and natural. The indignation of the indulgent husband is fully aroused in the second act, and here Mr. Aynesworth holds the house by his powerful restraint and complete command of the situation.

Mr. Dion Boucicault has a difficult part to play in that of Roland, the father of Becky. It would be so easy to overstep the limits that divide the character from the realms of farce. Watch this Roland "trying it on" with his son-in-law; again note the tetchiness and irritability so completely natural to the incipient dipsomaniac; and then eagerly scan his features during the whole of his interview with Tom Warder in the last act. There is only one conclusion: the impersonation is masterly.

Miss Elsie Chester, who succeeds Miss Rosina Filippi in the part, gives a delightful touch to the pretensions to gentility so amusingly urged by Mrs. Geneviève Crespigny, who will insist that "etiquette" is spelt with a single final "t." The delineation is unctuous, and droll indeed is "Jenny's" insistence on her gentle birth and breeding.

For Miss Grace Lane, who is now playing in The Eighteenth Century at the St. James's, an excellent substitute has been found in Miss Mary Mayfren, who distinguishes herself especially in the interview between Eve Lindon and the deceived husband. Miss Mayfren, who is but little known to West-End audiences, makes a distinct stride forward by her really admirable treatment of this scene. Quiet, determined, and well-bred, she is never overheated in her expression of the natural indignation of the character.

Miss Sybil Carlisle's part is not commensurate with her abilities. Laura Fraser has no dramatic moments, yet the part gains immeasurably by the finish, delicacy, and charm of such an actress.

Mr. Dawson Millward as the would-be rake of a husband, Fred Lindon, has a part of no little difficulty, but tones down its very disagreeable characteristics with considerable skill. Fred, apparently, has musical tastes like Becky, and this may account for the infatuation of each for the other. Mr. Millward plays with just the right emphasis, and does not overdo the inherent caddishness of the character.

Mr. Horton Cooper presents the highly respectable, dignified and discreet type of butler demanded; and the cast is completed by Mr. Gordon Calthorp. The stage management is perfect; and if we may judge by the renewed interest aroused by the fine acting and powerful play at the Comedy, some time must elapse before another attraction will be found necessary.

"SINS OF SOCIETY."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Immediately that the proposed title for the autumn Drury Lane drama was published in the press, I wrote Mr. Arthur Collins pointing out that this title was my property, and giving the particulars of the production of a play of mine bearing the same name. Mr. Collins referred me to the authors. I at once communicated with Messrs. Raleigh and Hamilton but received no reply. A second letter was treated in the same discourteous manner.

My play, Sins of Society, was played for copyright purposes at Hounslow, July 18th, 1906, and the title duly registered at Stationers' Hall. The piece was produced on the 26th of the following November at the Theatre Royal, Darlington, and a preliminary tour followed, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Chesney and Miss Bessie Elma, who own the British theatre rights. Those for the fit-ups with the American-Colonial and foreign rights of my play I have retained for my own use.

I may mention that Mr. Chesney also wrote twice to Messrs. Raleigh and Hamilton, and likewise received no reply.

My first intimation of my claim to Mr. Collins was dated August 9th; those to the authors the 16th and 25th respectively (unanswered), so these gentlemen cannot complain that they have not had timely warning of any action that may ensue.—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES DARRELL.

MR. CROKE AND "THE CHRISTIAN."

The Christian, as produced at the Lyceum Theatre, has aroused the liveliest interest, not only among the public at large, but among the purveyors of theatrical fare, who predicted a shower, not to say an avalanche, of cold water on a play with a moral attached to it. Hall Caine, its author, was daring enough to stick to the tenets of his purpose. He wrote a new play with an old title, but he stuck to his theme, and has taught us all a lesson in the art of being earnest. Mr. Wentworth Croke was venturesome enough to acquire the acting rights of Hall Caine's play. The original Christian, as produced at the Duke of York's had been assailed by the Press and cold-shouldered as an artificial attempt to make capital from a subject which, to say the least of it, was not pleasant.

Mr. Wentworth Croke has proved himself to be a man of tenacious purpose. When asked to what he attributed his great faith in Hall Caine, he replied, "My faith in Hall Caine is owing to the enormous amount of humanity contained in his teaching, and I think a great deal of his success is his earnest appeal to the finer instincts. This we must admit, because the majority of his followers at the theatres all over the kingdom are of the feminine gender, and consequently through that medium he touches the mainsprings of feeling. And I have the same feeling, too.

"Mr. Hall Caine has offered to hand over to any responsible and earnest person any profits which may accrue as his share from the play, for the purpose of redeeming the fallen, and carrying out his own idea. I, on my part, in order to show my great sincerity and belief in his ideas, would be quite prepared to give any profits which may accrue to me from my season at the Lyceum Theatre for the same purpose. This proposition has met with the unbounded approval of our audiences, and the thousands of its supporters who have yet to see it in the provinces will undoubtedly be in accord with our purpose."

Mr. Croke is very decided about his provincial audiences. As he very rightly says, "I shall take The Christian into every possible centre where there is an audience—even a sceptical one—and let it stand on its merits. It is my experience that such plays are listened to, and are more forcible, and at the same time are more interesting and entertaining. Mark you, when I say entertaining, I mean the moral is carried to the mind more pleasantly than through the orthodox teaching of ecclesiastical methods. The hum-drum process of the latter appeals to a very small fraction of the community. Give the food to the public, daintily, and in an attractive manner, and the appetite is tempted and satisfied."

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE.

"Do you find your provincial audiences more critical than London ones?

"Yes; most decidedly. The average person in the country is quicker at analysis, and is used to an extreme diversity of subjects. On the whole, they are more appreciative of a good play than a London audience."

"It has been said that the great British public is going back to its love for the drama."

"It has never left it. It is because there are too few real dramatic authors since the days of Henry Pettitt, Paul Merritt, and George R. Sims, who, by the way, gives too little of his time nowadays to writing drama. Hall Caine touches the hearts of the people. I only wish there were a few more dramatists like him."

"Taking The Christian, what are your views on the attitude of an audience? Do people come to the theatre from a strong desire to see their own peculiarities portrayed on the stage?"

"I don't think that people are conscious that they themselves are being caricatured. They always apply the lesson to their next-door neighbour."

"And you think the same applies to the moral lesson taught us in The Christian?"

"Certainly. Those who know the world come to see their neighbours' characteristics displayed; and those who do not know the world come and find them out."

"THE WHIP HAND."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I notice in a paragraph referring to Miss Ashwell's season at the Great Queen-street Theatre that mention is made of a play entitled The Whip Hand, by Mr. Keble Howard.

In order that there may be no possible misunderstanding, I desire to let it be known that a play called The Whip Hand was produced by amateurs in this neighbourhood in the autumn of 1905, and I thought so highly of it that (by arrangement with the authors) I asked more than one important manager to read it, with the result that negotiations are now practically completed for its early production on a trial tour in the provinces by a well-known leading lady.—Yours faithfully,

PETER DAVEY.

MR. JAMES LITCHFIELD, of Long Eaton, has won golden opinions by the carpets, linos, draperies, chairs, music stands, and seating covers which he has supplied to the new St. James's Theatre. The colour scheme is in blue and gold, and the seating accommodation is 1,200. The interior of the house presents an extremely dainty and artistic appearance, and Mr. James Litchfield deserves great credit for his share of the work.

So much strength was allied to inherent weakness in the original stage version by Mr. Hall Caine of "The Christian," produced at the Duke of York's in October, 1899, that one felt certain of the success of a newer adaptation illumined by the light of greater experience. It came on Saturday night at the Lyceum, when an audience, magnetised by the Manx magician, gave a thunderous welcome to The Christian. The success was never in doubt. From a thousand throats in the immense gallery, from the packed circle and pit, the enthusiasm rose like a surging tide, and the triumph of the famous author of melodrama recalled to our memories the palmiest days of the Adelphi, when virtue triumphant and villainy vanquished was the pabulum beloved of the crowd. Those who say that melodrama is moribund in the West-end of London would have had their belief rudely dispelled at the Lyceum on Saturday, and another gratifying and legitimate success has been scored by Messrs. Smith and Carpenter, who will need no new attraction until pantomime claims the stage of their spacious and magnificent house.

Briefly, the motive of The Christian is the cynical and unjust treatment of the degraded magdalens of the pavement. The great work of their regeneration appeals to the generous soul of John Storm, who ignores the possibilities of a brilliant political career to save the souls of the fallen. Black Meg, an entirely new character in a sense, idealises the soul of goodness in things evil; and representatives of the most degraded of the lower deeps of life are found in Bertie, the bully and pimp, and Mother Kent, the kind of woman exposed with such unmitigated severity by W. T. Stead, when he startled the world by writing "The Maiden Tribute." In the scene at the Refuge, Black Meg yields to the influence of the enthusiastic young reformer, and remains under the ægis of the home. The love interest of the novel is strengthened, and the great scene between Storm and Glory Quayle in the last act, is the most thrilling in the play. John, obsessed with the idea that the girl of his heart, who so freely admits the jeunesse dorée to her society, is facilitating her descent into the abyss of shame, shows distinct traces of mania when he faces her. To kill the body that he may save the soul he grasps the girl by the throat, but the lovelight in her eye and her words of tenderness tame the fury of incipient dementia. Glory lets fall her golden tresses, and the memory of his boyhood and her girlhood comes back to the young priest, whose passion is succeeded by a flood of tears. Gently does she take him to the prie-dieu placed before a figure of the Virgin, and as the curtain slowly falls the figures of Horatio Drake and Lord Robert Ure are seen at the door; but at the sight of the two kneeling figures they reverentially raise their hats and retire.

The play is finely cast. Mr. Matheson Lang, who will be remembered as juvenile lead with Miss Ellen Terry, and later as the representative of Trevor Lerode in Mr. Alfred Sutro's play, John Glyde's Honour at the St. James's, is the John Storm. In the first act few opportunities are presented to the young actor. John Storm is a silent but interested listener to the diatribes against society spoken by the enthusiastic Father Lamplugh; but he treats the short interview with Glory in light-hearted fashion, which is in strong contrast to the seriousness and earnestness of the apostle of self-sacrifice later on. The pair are thrown together in the second act in the foyer of the Frivolity Theatre, London, and Mr. Lang cleverly suggests in his demeanour the change from the enthusiastic neophyte to the working, practical, spiritual father of the fallen. The difficult scene of the last act he tackles with considerable power and no little pathos. Miss Alice Crawford, who, from portraying ingénues, was chosen by Mr. Tree to impersonate Charmian in his revival of Antony and Cleopatra, is playing a melodramatic heroine for the first time—in London, at any rate. No great demands are made upon the actress until the foyer scene already mentioned, where Glory resents in good round terms the dishonourable proposals of Drake. Herein the house literally roared its approval on Saturday night of her fine expression of the resentment natural to a pure, unsuspecting nature. In the final act, too, Miss Crawford was inexpressibly tender, and realised throughout the frank, sunny disposition of the generous Manx girl. Mr. A. B. Imeson shows much restraint in his delineation of Drake, and allows the playgoer to discern in the last act that the unhallowed passion for Glory in the earlier acts has mellowed into an unselfish devotion. Mr. Eric Mayne does not handle the part of Lord Robert Ure with kid gloves. Ure is a cynical worldling, whose gospel of self-indulgence he preaches at every opportunity. He is a heartless, out-and-out scoundrel of the true melodramatic type, and his callousness and indifference to suffering are given in just the right key by Mr. Mayne, whose acting excites the gods to many expressions of detestation. Mr. Ronald Adair as Buckley, the manager of the Frivolity Theatre, is easy and natural; Rosenberg is effectively handled by Mr. Thomas Barry; and the small parts of Paul and Cowley are adequately presented by Mr. Harold Chapin and Mr. Henry Armstrong. Father Bertram Lamplugh finds an earnest and convincing representative in Mr. Frederick Ross, whose passionate invective against the sins of society will be cheered nightly. The lovable nature of Parson Quayle is quietly suggested by Mr. Frederick Moyes; to the motherly characteristics, sound common-sense, and practical sympathy of Mrs. Callender, eloquent expression is given by Miss Keith Lytton; and a piece of excellent acting is the Archdeacon Wealthy of Mr. S. Major Jones, Mr. George P. Polson making the most of Lord Storm's only chance in the first act, when that nobleman quarrels with his quixotic son, whom in his anger he strikes. Mr. Spencer Bentley has the unsavoury character of Bertie, and comes through a disagreeable task with great credit to himself; and precisely the same remark applies to Miss Blanche Stanley, whose Mother Kent is particularly good. Miss Grace Lester accentuates the despair of Black Meg, and adds much to the intensity of the scene in the Refuge. Miss Valli Valli, a young actress in her teens, secures quite a triumph in the difficult rôle of Polly Love. The poor girl's grief at parting from her little one evidently touched the hearts of Saturday night's audience. Miss Marjorie Day is a satisfactory Jennie; Miss Lulu Louden does exceedingly well as Rosa Ray; Miss Ruby Miller cleverly sketches in the light-heartedness of Betty Belmont; Miss Cassy Clare is a sufficiently frivolous Letty Belmont; and a neat bit of character acting is that of Miss Dora Clements as Liza.

At the conclusion of the play cries of "Author!" brought Mr. Carpenter to the footlights to explain that Mr. Hall Caine was unwell, but was represented by his wife and son. The mounting of the play was particularly tasteful, the foyer of the Frivolity Theatre being an excellent set, displaying to considerable degree the inventiveness and taste of Mr. Ernest W. Millar. Mr. S. Major Jones directs the stage with great ability; and Herr Raimund Pechotsch has written an overture and special music that admirably serve their purpose.

"HER SON."

Dorothy Fairfax .....MISS WINIFRED EMERY
Crystal Wride .....MISS SUZANNE SHELDON
Lady Helmingham ....MISS FLORENCE HAYDON
Susan .....MISS EMMA CHAMBERS
A Toy Seller .....MISS FLORENCE HARWOOD
Min .....MASTER BOBBY ANDREWS
Sir Augustus Helmingham ...MR. CECIL BURT
Dick Gascoyne .....MR. KENNETH DOUGLAS

Mr. Vachell's play has been so much improved in many ways that it hardly seems to be the same piece that was presented to a matinée audience at the Playhouse on March 12th last, after a preliminary canter at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, in the previous November. So many of its defects have been removed, the interest is so much more sustained, and the details are so much more effective that the real merit of the play, its steadily culminating interest, now receives the full meed of appreciation. Miss Fairfax is a young lady of independent means and much force and originality of character. She is engaged to a clever but impecunious journalist named Dick Gascoyne. Before meeting Dorothy, Dick lived with a certain Crystal Wride, and this woman, who has become enceinte, implores Dorothy to postpone her marriage for a year at any rate, and thus "save two lives." Touched by Crystal's misfortune, Dorothy consents. Gascoyne accepts a mission abroad, is captured by African savages, and is supposed to be dead. Meanwhile Crystal gives birth, in France, to a child, which Dorothy benevolently adopts; the mother, who has made a success on the stage, not even troubling to reply to a letter sent by Miss Fairfax acquainting her with the boy's existence. "Min," as he is called, and Dorothy are staying at Bournemouth when Dick, who his survived his African experiences, comes home and weds Crystal, under the impression that Dorothy has married somebody else, turns up on the sands, and meets Miss Fairfax, who is overjoyed at his return. Her delight receives a severe check when she learns that Dick is married, and she does not tell him of the parentage of the boy. In the third act a desperate struggle takes place between the two women—between the heartless Crystal, who is anxious to get back the boy so as to maintain her hold on her husband, and the affectionate Dorothy, who is passionately fond of Dick's child—a delightfully winsome little fellow. In the end Crystal dies, and things come right between Dick and Dorothy.

Miss Winifred Emery is almost unapproachable in a character like that of Dorothy Fairfax. Her sweet, womanly charm, her personal beauty, the dainty delicacy of her expression, the grace and ease of her ripe and accomplished art, are combined with an amount of histrionic power which preserves her performance from any taint of tameness or mawkishness. How finely dramatic Miss Emery can be at need is shown by her splendid work in the third act. Here Miss Emery rises to the occasion with a noble display of deep love and bitter indignation and contempt. Miss Emery's magnificent outburst of feeling carried her audience away with her irresistibly. She had the house entirely and enthusiastically under her sway; and the power and earnestness of her acting and the native strength of the situation were responded to with excited outbursts of applause. Miss Suzanne Sheldon deals with the difficult part of Crystal Wride with striking skill, marking the unsympathetic traits in the character with a firm and able hand, and taking her full share of the hard and trying work in the third act. Miss Florence Haydon is agreeably urbane and amiable as Lady Helmingham, and plays the part with a delicate tinge of quiet humour; and Miss Emma Chambers gives a neat and natural reading of the rôle of Susan. Miss Florence Harwood is excellent in the little part of the toyseller; and Mr. Cecil Burt puts plenty of ardent energy and emphatic comedy into his performance as the overbearing Sir Augustus Helmingham. Mr. Kenneth Douglas handles the rôle of Dick Gascoyne with great discretion, making the personage as acceptable as possible, and treating his critical task in a very clever and competent way. As for Master Bobby Andrews, he makes Min such an absolutely lovable and amusing little fellow as to disarm criticism. Master Andrews is certainly one of the cleverest child actors on the stage; and if he goes on as he has begun he is certain to attain a high position on it. The play, produced by the author and Mr. Desmond M. Raleigh, under whose auspices it is presented at the New Theatre, went remarkably well, and appeared to give very great satisfaction.

KITTY CLIVE.

It was Samuel Johnson's opinion, says Mrs. Clement Parsons in "Garrick and His Circle," that though Mrs. Clive could not do half so many things as well as Garrick, yet what she did best, she did better than he. She was a better romp, for instance, than any the Doctor had ever seen in nature. Prodigious old flirt that he was, he liked sitting by her in the green-room. She was "a good thing to sit by." She was not, what he called Pritchard, an inspired idiot. She could understand him. Oh, rare Kitty!

"Dame Clive was not blessed with beauty," says a contemporary, but she had spirits, aplomb, a most sprightly impertinence, and was completely mistress of her métier. By all accounts, she was the greatest comic actress the English stage has seen. She could play equally to the round laugh or the quick-witted smile. Whatever comedy she undertook to vivify—and many of the comedies needed vivifying—she carried with a rush. She hit the average playgoer between wind and water, though, when she gave a country maidservant of her own a theatre pass, and asked her afterwards how she liked her on the stage, the girl answered in accents of acute disappointment that she saw no difference between her there and at home. Irish, like Peg Woffington, Catherine Clive brimmed with humour, and was the soubrette born, with much about her of what Mr. Arthur Symons calls the canaille attractiveness of Réjane.

In that trying ordeal, the speaking of prologue or epilogue, she was incomparable, and her arms a-kimbo style, familiar and by all means vulgar, in these frequently decidedly "bragian" deliveries is dwelt on by the commentators. At whatever called for "non chalons" she showed genius. She was an unsuccessful playwright, too, and wrote a comedy called The Rehearsal; or, Bays in Petticoats, and another called Every Woman in Her Humour, respectively produced by Garrick in 1750 and 1760.

While freely indulging in the looseness of speech that pertained to her century, Kitty Clive, though a separated wife, is one of the few Georgian actresses whose character stands high. We may imagine her as a hearty, laughing (or, sometimes, frankly curst) creature, with an elastic mind, a clean, wholesome nature, and an honest heart. Even rivals had a good word for her. They knew her sincerity.

As has been hinted, she was credited with a peppery temper and a fishwife's tongue. The whole green-room dreaded her displeasure. She exhibited such fury towards Woodward, when, as Petruchio playing to her Catherine, he really threw her down, that the audience thought she meant to end the comedy as the tamer, and not the tamed. She was the one player Garrick feared, and for that he admired her the more. It is among the legends that he said to her, "I have heard of tartar and brimstone, but you are the cream of the one and the flower of the other." He called her, in his petting way, Clivy Pivy, and did everything he could to disperse her nerve storms, or, if they broke, assuage them. Boaden's "Garrick Correspondence" gives an amusingly enraged letter from her, dated 1765, in which she begs that Garrick will do her the favour to let her know if it was by his order her money was stopped last Saturday. She makes angry digressions. She has never envied her manager his equipages or grandeur. She finds his dislike to her as extraordinary as the reason he gave Mr. Sterne for it. The friends, people of consequence, who were accountable for her entirely excusable absence from Drury Lane on the offensive Saturday, will be much surprised to hear how she has been treated. Garrick's reply is not given. Once, when getting better of an illness, she sent him "a violent, scolding letter," he congratulated her on this proof of her restoration—"I am very glad you are come to your usual spirits."

Clive retired from the stage at fifty-eight, while still in the prime of health, though no longer of figure. Horace Walpole wrote her parting epilogue. She, too, resided at "Twitenham." They were neighbours on the green, and, since she was a card-playing old lady, he called her, in his dainty way, his sister-in-loo. She worked him a carpet—with blue tulips and yellow foliage—for his Holbein Chamber. In 1791, six years after her death, he bought from the Berrys the house, adjoining Strawberry Hill, she had inhabited, which he sometimes called "Little Strawberry," and sometimes "Clive's den."

When Clive entered into the aftermath of her correspondence with Garrick included in Boaden's collection, she had laid aside her too prononcés colloquialisms. Her D——ns, like Bob Acres's, had had their day. Writing, in 1776, on Garrick's own approaching retirement, the winning and serious letter from which what follows is an extract, she was an old woman only in years.

"In the height of the public admiration for you, when you were never mentioned with any other appellation but the Garrick, the charming man, the fine fellow, the delightful creature, both by men and ladies; when they were admiring everything you did, and everything you scribbled—at this very time, I, the Pivy, was a living witness that they did not know half your perfections. I have seen you, with your magical hammer in your hand, endeavouring to beat your ideas into the heads of creatures who had none of their own—I have seen you, with lamb-like patience, endeavouring to make them comprehend you. By this your great labour and pains the public was entertained; they thought they all acted very fine—they did not see you pull the wires. . . . While I was under your control, I did not say half the fine things I thought of you, because it looked like flattery: and you know your Pivy was always proud; besides, I thought you did not like me then, but now I am sure you do, which makes me send you this letter.

"What a strange jumble of people they have put in the papers as the purchasers of the patent! I thought I should have died with laughing when I saw a man-midwife (Dr. Ford) amongst them: I suppose they have taken him in to prevent miscarriages! I have some opinion of Mr. Sheridan, as I hear everybody say he is very sensible; then he has a divine wife, and I loved his mother dearly. Pray give my love to my dear Mrs. Garrick; we all join in that. I have since the snow been once out in my carriage; did you not hear me scream?"

She concludes by begging Garrick to reinstate Miss Pope, who has fallen out of managerial favour. Garrick did so, and endorsed the intercession, "My Pivy, excellent!" It has been pleasant to dwell on Kate Clive. A strong, straightforward character. A good sort.

Two hundred and sixty-five pounds per acre for vacant land in the hills of Central Wales is the average result of Messrs. Knight, Frank, and Rutley's sale at Llandrindod Wells on Tuesday, when the Middleton Evans Estates were offered before a crowded assembly in the Victoria Hall. In addition to local buyers, many attended from London, Swansea, Cardiff, &c. The whole property, which includes the Pump House Hotel, was first offered in one lot and ultimately withdrawn at £105,000. The available building land was then put up in lots, prices for which yielded the above-mentioned result. Notwithstanding the growth of Llandrindod Wells in recent years, the present accommodation falls far short of the requirements of the place in the season, and as several of the lots not sold under the hammer were disposed of during the afternoon, there is little doubt that those remaining will be speedily dispersed, and that a great development will shortly take place in the addition of new public and private buildings to meet local wants.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, JULY 23.—Dorothy, a welcome change from musical comedy, was revived by Mr. J. C. Williamson's Royal Comic Opera Company at Her Majesty's on the 20th. The cast is a strong one, including Misses Florence Young (in fine voice), Pressy Preston (in lieu of Clara Clifton, who is ill), Alma Barker, and Nina Wood (a promising débutante), and Messrs. George Lauri, Arthur Crane, C. R. Bantock, Reginald Roberts, Robert Needham, and Arthur Hunter. The very excellent English scenery, by John Gordon and J. Little, made a charming setting for the romantic story, and the choral and orchestral work was conducted by Mr. Andrew McCunn, the whole having the ripe experience of Mr. Gerard Coventry in its direction.

MESSRS. MEYNELL AND GUNN came into occupation of the Royal on the 20th, producing A Beautiful Fiend, with Miss Maud Hildyard as leading lady. Wybrow and Thorne's ultra-sensational play deals with Russian cruelty. Miss Maud Hildyard met all the requirements of the rôle of the vindictive Wanda Lubinoff, but it was evident to the least observant that the lady is worthy of much better things. Miss May Congdon, Mr. Conway Wingfield, Mr. James Lindsay, Mr. Charles Vane, Mr. Roland Beckett, Miss Violet Dene, and the brothers Charles and William Bovis, gave a vivacious account of the author's intentions. The scenery was copied by Mr. E. Vaughan and assistants from photographs taken in Russia.

"THE SQUATTER'S DAUGHTER" reached its sixtieth performance last night, and Mr. William Anderson does not intend to change his bill during his Criterion season, which ends on Aug. 2. This Australian drama has a fascination peculiar to itself, all being "redolent of the soil," and depicted by those who so thoroughly understand their atmosphere.

THE Tivoli upholds Mr. Harry Rickards's reputation for shrewdness in selecting artists to suit the taste of his patrons. On Saturday Miss Agnes Hazel returned, to be warmly welcomed; and the bill included the Svengalis, Gracie Grahame (who closes soon), Will Lochraine, Great Charlton, V. L. Granville, Baby Owens and Little Doris (two clever little tots), Alice Fane, Leonard Nelson, Ernest Fitts, Lillie Grimshaw, Sam Le Mort, Fi'een Lyons, Marjorie Bray, Master Adrian Amadio (a clever young flautist), Olive Robinson, and Irving Sayles, the man with the sable guffaw.

MME. ALBANI gave her farewell concert her on the 13th, the centre item being "Hear my prayer," in which the departing songstress was supported by one hundred picked members of the Philharmonic Society, conducted by Signor Roberto Hazon. The organ was looked after by Mr. J. Edward Sykes.

MELBOURNE, JULY 22.—PRINCESS'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson).—The Blue Moon has entered upon its fifth week, and shows no signs of waning in popularity. The theatre has been crowded every night, a striking evidence of the fact that Melbourne playgoers love above all things light musical comedy. The piece will be staged for a fortnight longer, the company's engagements elsewhere necessitating this early withdrawal.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Tallis).—After a most successful run of six nights, The Way to Kenmare was withdrawn on Friday night in favour of a special revival of Boucicault's evergreen drama, Arrah-na-Pogue, which was staged on Saturday evening to a packed house. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Mr. Andrew Mack for his clever impersonation of Shaun, the post. During the action of the piece Mr. Mack sang two numbers, specially composed by himself for the occasion, "My own Acushla Macree" and "Good-night, beloved, good-night," both melodious ditties specially adapted to his sympathetic voice and style. The O'Grady of Mr. Martin Alsop was a fine piece of work; while Miss Jane Kelton as Arrah fully succeeded in her realisation. The rest of the cast was most ably sustained by Mr. McKeown as Beamish McCoul, Miss Berlein as Katey Walsh, Mr. Townsends as Michael Feeney, and Miss May Stevenson as Fanny Power.

THEATRE ROYAL (Lessee, Mr. Bland Holt; Business-Manager, Mr. Simonsens).—The Cotton King, which has proved so successful on former occasions, was revived by Mr. Bland Holt on Saturday evening, and served to draw a large audience. The part of John Osborn, the Cotton King, was allotted to Mr. Maxwell, and could not have been placed in more capable hands; while the leading female characters were impersonated by Miss Ross, Miss Harrie Ireland, and Miss Jennie Pollock, with unqualified success; and Mr. Arthur Styan repeated his finished portrait of the villain, Richard Stockley; while the humour of the play was supplied by Mr. Bland Holt and Mr. Charles Brown. The scenery and stage effects were, as usual, of a high order. The Cotton King can only be staged for a limited number of nights, as Mr. Holt intends producing The Bondman at an early date.

OPERA HOUSE (Proprietor, Mr. Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Aydon).—The leading attraction at present is Prof. Techow and his troupe of performing cats. The performance throughout is a remarkably clever one, and gives evidence of much care and perseverance on the part of the professor in training these favourite domestic animals On Saturday Doris Tindal and Don Royal made their first appearance, and gave a clever vocal duet and dance. Graham and Dent appear in a screaming one-act farce, entitled Packing Up; Ernesto, the musical juggler, is an established favourite; while other good things are provided by Fred Bluett, Jarvis and Campbell, Bijou Russell, the Two Rangers, Baby Watson, Harold Reeves, Olive Sinclair, Nellie Kilburn, the Driscoll Boys, Harry Sadler, Les Warton, and Claude Leplastriere.

GAIETY THEATRE (Manager, Mr. Joe Solomons).—A complete change of programme on Saturday evening was much appreciated by a large audience. Artists appearing just now with success include Sterling and Stewart, Tilly Dunbar, Clara Keating, Walter Melrose, the Crystals, Ben Menzies, Fred Champion, Frank Yorke, Fred Ireland, George Silcock, Ada Anderson, and a host of others.

THE annual matinée in aid of the Distressed Actors' Fund was held at Her Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday last. A magnificent programme had been prepared by the managers of the various Melbourne Theatres, and in consequence the house was packed in all parts. It is understood the Fund is likely to benefit to the extent of £400.

MELBOURNE, AUG. 1.—PRINCESS THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson.—After a successful run of six weeks The Blue Moon will be withdrawn on Friday, and on Saturday evening Lady Madcap will be presented by Mr. Williamson's Musical Comedy Company.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Bland Holt; Business-Manager, Mr. Simonsens.—The Cotton King can only be played for four nights longer, as on Saturday evening next Mr. Bland Holt announces the first presentation in the Commonwealth of the recent Drury Lane autumn drama, The Bondman. A feature of the performance will be the re-appearance of Mr. George Rignold after an absence from the Melbourne stage for a number of years.

ATHENÆUM HALL.—West's pictures and the Brescians continue to draw large audiences. On Saturday a new programme was given, and the pictures of the Mississippi Raid, the Boar Hunt, and other subjects were greatly admired, and the musical items, including some clever pianoforte playing by Mr. Tom Lax, were also much enjoyed.

"THE ROYALIST."

King Charles I. .....MR. HARRY KENNY
Sir Winston D'Arville..MR. R. CLAUDE JENKINS
Archibald Clavering ..MR. J. GRAHAM ROCKETT
Hammond .....MR. DAVID W. COX
Officer of Roundhead Regiment
MR. HARRY BARTLETT
Cavalier Officer .....MR. E. C. POOLE
Oliver Cromwell .....E. OSWALD BROOKS
Lady Mainwaring ....MRS. E. OSWALD BROOKS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Robert Oswald is to be congratulated on his work. The scene is laid at Lady Mainwaring's mansion at Northallerton, where Charles I. has had to take refuge after his disastrous defeat at Marston Moor. Immediately on his heels is Oliver Cromwell, with his troops. The mansion is surrounded, the King in imminent danger of being captured, when Sir Winston D'Arville, knowing that the secret chamber in the room will be easily discovered, suggests that the King shall get into a suit of armour, and pose as a statue. This is done. Sir Winston is discovered by Cromwell, and having changed clothes with Charles, is mistaken for his Majesty, and taken away, the King escaping to Scotland. Mrs. E. Oswald Brooks played Lady Mainwaring, the devoted supporter of Charles. Her acting throughout reached a high degree of excellence. Mr. R. Oswald Brooks was an admirable Cromwell. As the King, Mr. Harry Kenny was seen to advantage, his impersonation being very commendable. The rôle of Sir Winston D'Arville was worthily sustained by Mr. R. Claude Jenkins. Mr. J. Graham Rockett as Archibald Clavering proved himself thoroughly competent; and Messrs. Harry Bartlett and E. C. Poole thoroughly enacted their respective parts. Mr. David W. Cox as Hammond was equally effective. The play was well staged and dressed.

TRADES UNION CONGRESS.

Sunday Travelling.

The first resolution of special interest to the profession was No. 2 on the agenda, as follows:—

SUNDAY EMPLOYMENT.

"Recognising that great and permanent principles which are essential to the well-being of human society underlie the ancient institution of the Sabbath, this Congress hereby resolves to do all in its power to discourage such employment on Sunday as will prevent any section of the community from obtaining thereon a natural and humane right to a weekly day of rest."

This resolution was fully debated. Mr. Monte Bayley opposed on behalf of the Variety Artists' Federation, on the ground that if the railways stopped running on Sundays the artists could not proceed to their engagements. The resolution was rejected by 685,000 to 649,000.

Service Bandsmen.

The second resolution affecting the interests of the profession was reached on Wednesday, when Mr. J. B. Williams, General Secretary of the Musicians' Union, submitted to the Congress the following resolution:—

"That this Congress condemns the action of the Government in permitting Army and Navy bands and bandsmen to compete with civilian musicians, and instructs the Parliamentary Committee to render every assistance to the Musicians' Union to put an end to the competition of Army and Navy bandsmen against civilian musicians, a great many of whom are deprived of their means of livelihood and thrown out of employment."

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Wm. Johnson, General Secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, and agreed to unanimously.

ACTORS AND OVERTIME.

Among the speakers at the Trades Union Congress at Bath on Wednesday were Mr. Frank Gerald, of the Actors' Union, and Mr. J. O'Gorman, of the Variety Artists' Federation, both of whom accorded hearty support to a resolution placed on the agenda by one of the weavers' unions in favour of the abolition of overtime. The two stage unions are both represented at the Congress for the first time this year.

The resolution read as follows:—"That this Congress, believing overtime to be physically and economically evil and detrimental to the best interests of the State and its people, urges the Parliamentary Committee to take all needful steps to secure its speedy abolition."

Mr. Gerald said he did not think any class of men or women suffered to the extent that actors and actresses did through overtime. It was an evil, a growing evil, and a pernicious evil, and upon them perhaps it pressed more hardly than on any other class. There was no delegate present representing a trade in which men did one stroke of work for nothing. Actors and actresses worked hours per week for absolutely nothing in the shape of rehearsals, for which they got no pay whatever. Was that right? A play was rehearsed for six weeks. It was produced, and if it was a failure it ran perhaps one week. For that seven weeks the actor or actress got one week's pay. Some might call their work play, and play only, but he asked them to consider it in another way. They had at length awakened to the fact that they were workers, labourers, just the same as the others represented at the Congress, and the only way they could prove themselves worthy of their hire and get fair conditions under which to do their work was by joining in that great labour movement tooth and nail and supporting it heart and soul, so that they might gain some of the great benefits that the organised workers of the country were now privileged to enjoy. Actors and actresses more especially had to live under such conditions that they must absolutely be reformed, and most stringently reformed, and the evil of overtime was perhaps the most pressing of all.

MR. HERBERT COLLEY on the 30th ult. had a successful complimentary benefit at the Winter Gardens, Clacton-on-Sea. A chief attraction on the bill was a new pantomime sketch, Cinderella, written by himself.

THE EVOLUTION OF SHYLOCK.

The recent revival of the old-time Shylock, with red wig and comic appearance, calls to mind the radical change in the presentation of the money-lender made by Charles Macklin, the Irish actor, who flourished about the middle of the eighteenth century. Macklin, says Mr. Edward Robins, jun., in his "Echoes of the Playhouse," had long debated, no doubt, on the dramatic possibilities and seriousness of the rôle, and the absurdity of regarding it as material for merry-making, and finally he induced Fleetwood to revive the real Merchant of Venice, which had long been superseded by Lord Lansdowne's adaptation known as The Jew of Venice. In the latter, an unnecessary version of a noble original, the inimitable Dogget had once upon a time represented Shylock from a low-comedy standpoint, to the great amusement and edification of the groundlings, and in later years the frolicksome Clive played Portia after the manner of a stage chambermaid, and took such liberties with the character that she even mimicked well-known lawyers in the trial scene. Strange to say, it was this rompish actress who did Portia on the memorable night when Macklin revolutionised the public conception of the usurious Jew.

While the rehearsals were in progress it began to be whispered around that Macklin intended to spring a very dangerous innovation on the management of Drury Lane; the amiable Quin (who was cast for Antonio) predicted that the new Shylock would be hissed off the stage, and Fleetwood, becoming alarmed, tried to abandon the production altogether. But Macklin never faltered in his purpose, and held the manager to his promise, so on the evening of St. Valentine's Day the frequenters of Drury Lane had the pleasure of assisting at one of the most historical of all the important performances in the eighteenth century. Let us quote the actor himself as to the outcome of his risky experiment.

"The long-expected night at last arrived, and the house was crowded from top to bottom with the first company in town. The two front rows of the pit, as usual, were full of critics, who, Sir, I eyed through the slit of curtain, and was glad to see them, as I wished in such a cause to be tried by a special jury. When I made my appearance in the greenroom, dressed for the part, with my red hat on my head, my piqued beard, loose black gown, &c., and with a confidence which I never before assumed, the performers all stared at one another, and evidently with a stare of disappointment. Well, sir, hitherto all was right till the last bell rung; then, I confess, my heart began to beat a little. However, I mustered up all the courage I could, and, recommending my cause to Providence, threw myself boldly on the stage, and was received by one of the loudest thunders of applause I ever before experienced.

"The opening scenes being rather tame and level, I could not expect much applause, but I found myself well listened to. I could hear distinctly in the pit the words, 'Very well—very well indeed! This man seems to know what he is about,' &c., &c. These encomiums warmed me, but did not overset me. I knew where I should have the pull, which was in the third act, and reserved myself accordingly. At this period I threw out all my fire, and, as the contrasted passions of joy for the Merchant's losses, and grief for the elopement of Jessica, open a fine field for an actor's powers, I had the good fortune to please beyond my warmest expectations. The whole house was in an uproar of applause, and I was obliged to pause between the speeches to give it vent, so as to be heard.

"When I went behind the scenes after this act, the manager met me and complimented me very highly on my performance, and significantly added: 'Macklin, you was right at last.' My brethren in the greenroom joined in this eulogium, but with different views. He was thinking of the increase of his treasury; they, only for saving appearances, wishing at the same time that I had broke my neck in the attempt. The trial scene wound up the fullness of my reputation. Here I was well listened to; and here I made such a silent, yet forcible, impression on my audience, that I retired from this great attempt most perfectly satisfied. On my return to the greenroom after the play was over it was crowded with nobility and critics, who all complimented me in the warmest and most unbounded manner, and the situation I felt myself in, I must confess, was one of the most flattering and intoxicating of my whole life. No money, no title, could purchase what I felt. And let no man tell me after this what Fame will not inspire a man to do, and how far the attainment of it will not remunerate his greatest labours. Though I was not worth fifty pounds in the world at that time, yet, let me tell you, I was Charles the Great for that night."

Thus, at one bound, Macklin reached a commanding position on the stage, added to his répertoire a character which he would exploit successfully, at intervals, for the next half-century, and showed the conservative British public that "the Jew that Shakespeare drew" should be played as a malevolent, passionate creature, and not as a semi-buffoon from whom the unthinking might extract many a hearty guffaw.

The Merchant of Venice drew crowded houses for twenty-one nights, while noblemen, critics, and the general theatre-goers vied with one another in praising the iconoclastic Macklin, who must have felt by this time that nothing succeeded so well as success. The dramatic force and almost ferocious attributes of his Shylock soon enlisted the Royal attention of his very German Majesty George II., who went to see the performance, and was made so nervous by its realism that he hardly slept the whole of that night. "In the morning," according to the actor Bernard, "the Premier, Sir Robert Walpole, waited on the King, to express his fears that the Commons would oppose a certain measure then in contemplation. 'I wish, your Majesty,' said Sir Robert, 'it was possible to find a recipe for frightening a House of Commons.' 'What do you think,' replied the King, 'of sending them to the theatre to see that Irishman play Shylock?'"

THE Crystal Palace was the scene of uproarious delight on Thursday, when a formidable crowd attended the annual benefit of Messrs. C. T. Brock and Co., the renowned pyrotechnists. "Daylight fireworks" proved a highly enjoyable feature of the occasion, the children scrambling enthusiastically for the thousands of toys which were dispersed by the rockets. The night display included a vivid reproduction, in colours, of the Paris fêtes under the Third Empire, with a colossal representation of the Arc de Triomphe and the Champs Elysées lit up by myriads of lamps in clusters and festoons, and a finale of hundreds of rockets, producing a magnificent effect. Blondin was seen in fiery outline on the wire, and the Kilkenny cats were portrayed with whimsical effect. Aerial rockets, as fired before His Majesty the King on the occasion of the assembling of the British and Swedish fleets at the recent Cowes regatta, were discharged, and "Aladdin's Curtain" proved a revelation. The programme included some fifty items, and the display was concluded in a grand melée of shells, Roman candles, and innumerable other pyrotechnics.

MR. SHAUN GLENVILLE wishes to contradict the report that he has entered into a three years' contract with a well-known theatrical and music-hall manager.

MARK TWAIN is to the fore. The little Théâtre des Capucines is rehearsing Aurelia's Unfortunate Young Man. The part of Roberts Howard Wilson will be played by M. Bouchez.

GERTRUDE HARRISON.—If you read our paragraph carefully you will notice that there are two forenames distinguishing the actor we name from the one to whom you refer.

REV. J. P. FAUNTHORPE.—Fechter made his first appearance as Othello at the Princess's Theatre on Oct. 23, 1861, under the management of Augustus Harris, sen. The Iago of the revival was John Ryder; Carlotta Leclercq, the Desdemona; Rose Leclercq, the Bianca; Miss Elsworthy, Emilia; J. G. Shore, Roderigo; George Jordan, Cassio; and Basil Potter, Brabantio. Mr. Fechter played Othello three nights a week, but did not alternate the part of the Moor with that of Iago. He played Iago, however, at the Princess's, at the close of the run of pantomime, on March 3, 1862, with John Ryder as the Moor, and supported by most, if not all, of the above cast. In October, 1861, G. V. Brooke, who had returned from Australia after an absence of seven years, played Othello at Drury Lane, then under the management of E. T. Smith. Thus playgoers could compare two of the most famous Othellos of the century. The Bard was then very much in fashion, as, besides the historic productions of Phelps at Sadler's Wells, Edwin Booth could be seen at the Haymarket as the Duke of Gloucester in Richard the Third.

BERTRAM (Shepherd's Bush).—Thursday morning performances are not an innovation of the twentieth century. Charles Morton and his partner, Stanley, started them at the Oxford, on March 6, 1862.

MEDICO (New Wandsworth).—Nelly Power died Jan. 20, 1887, at the age of thirty-two. She was thought to be much older; but she made her début at the halls when quite a child.

CARL ROBARTS.—Your question involves too much search. By the payment of a fee at our office you would be able to look through the volumes relating to the years you mention, and thus obtain the information you desire.

MONTANO (Hackney).—When Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean took their benefit at Drury Lane Theatre on March 13, 1862, the famous actor appeared as Othello and his wife as Emilia. Charles Kean's old comrade, John Ryder, at the time was playing the Moor at the Princess's.

F. J. NICHOLSON (Dundee).—Mrs. Glayde stays in the studio with Lerode after the departure of her indignant husband, who leaves her to her own devices.

A. PUNSHON.—We cannot tell you where you can obtain the songs you mention. Try any of the music-publishing firms advertising in our columns.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

INDISPENSABLE! Rayne's "Pocket Date Book." Contents: Map (19in. by 10in.), showing the distance betwixt the various music halls at a glance. Will tell if one hall is within the barring radius of the other, thus saving fears, worry, and anxiety. All about artists' luggage, list of clubs, information about stamping contracts, foreign money table, London music halls and theatres, their telephone numbers, list of brougham proprietors, list and address of photographers, size of theatrical printing paper, names and addresses of theatrical railway managers, &c. THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.
Chapter I
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

Messrs. H. and M. Rayne,
115-119, Waterloo-road, S.E.

SIR,—
You have commenced an action against us, the above-named defendants, claiming damages for libel in respect of statements which appeared in the issue of the "Performer" of the 21st of February last, which are set out in your Statement of Claim and which reflected upon your conduct of your business.

We now agree that the statements that were made had no foundation whatever, and were due to an entire misapprehension as to the facts, and we unreservedly withdraw every word that appeared in the statements complained of which can in any way be construed to reflect upon you or your business. As a result of inquiries we are thoroughly convinced that there was no ground of any kind for these statements, and we desire to express our regret that such unfounded charges should ever have been made.

We have paid to your solicitors, Messrs. Rubinstein, Myers, and Co., all the costs that have been incurred in the action that you have commenced against us, and we trust that you will accept such payment and this letter in the spirit in which they are offered and as the best amends which it is in our power to make for the injury and annoyance which we have caused you.

We also consent to your publishing this letter at our expense in "The Era," "Stage," and "Referee," and we undertake to forthwith publish it, also at our expense, in the prominent position to be approved by you in the next issue of the "Performer" and the "Programme," and that it shall be incorporated in the "Chairman's Notes of the Variety Artists' Federation" sent out to every town with such issue and also be repeated in the "Chairman's Notes" for the subsequent three issues.

We are,
yours truly,
W. S. BRADLEY
(for Messrs. C. W. Bradley and Co.),
MONTE BAYLY

INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1907.

THE ACTOR'S HAMLET.

It is one of the rules of this paper always to allow the expression of opinions in our columns, provided the writer signs his contribution. But, to avoid any misunderstanding that may arise from our insertion last week of Mr. PERCY FITZGERALD'S somewhat aggressive article on "The Real 'Hamlet,'" we must disclaim agreement with many of his contentions, and especially with the terms he employs in supporting them. Mr. FITZGERALD has been for many years a most industrious compiler of works, many of which have dealt with the history of the drama. His Lives of CHARLES LAMB, of DAVID GARRICK, and of the KEMBLES are well remembered titles to our indulgence and consideration. It is possible, however, that the length of his career as an author has made Mr. FITZGERALD a little too dogmatical. However, much may be forgiven to seventy-three which would be resented from twenty-seven, and we are sure that our readers will make allowance for the acerbity of Mr. FITZGERALD'S remarks, and not attribute either his opinions or his expressions to us.

Mr. FITZGERALD'S article is, in sum, an elaborate attack on the manner in which Hamlet is usually produced on the English stage. "None of us," says the author, "have seen the true Hamlet performed, though we have had some crude and dreary attempts at setting out the whole play before us." We should hardly have called Mr. F. R. BENSON'S interesting "attempt" to produce Hamlet in its entirety at the Lyceum a "crude and dreary" one, though it certainly settled the question of such a production being practicable; but when Mr. FITZGERALD enquires, "Who knows of Hamlet's attempts to conceal Polonius's body?" we may refer him to the acting edition of the play which was always used by HENRY IRVING, in which he will find the fact distinctly stated by the Queen in conversation with the King near the beginning of Act IV. "It must be admitted," says Mr. FITZGERALD, "the obstacles in the way of reforming managers are well-nigh insuperable." This is rather hard on the managers. The low opinion which the writer has of them, and of their lieutenants, is shown by his making one of the latter speak in the accent of a costermonger. "I can fancy," says Mr. FITZGERALD, "our modern stage-manager saying 'My Gawd!'" We are unable to fancy anything of the kind. Our stage-managers are educated and intelligent gentlemen, and do not speak Whitechapel English.

With a great deal of what Mr. FITZGERALD says about the shortcomings of much of our delivery of blank verse we agree; but he is far too virulent and sweeping in his condemnations. The modern actor simply suffers from want of practice in the speaking of blank verse. It is not, as Mr. FITZGERALD says, the "ignorance" of the actor, but his infrequent use of his ability which handicaps him. The present generation of actors is far better educated than that which preceded them; but they have not had, as the last generation had, a special Shakespearean training in their youth. Mr. FITZGERALD'S attack on actor-managers and their motives is so harsh and unmeasured that we must protest, not only against the opinions expressed, but against the terms employed in expressing them. "The vulgar conception of Hamlet," says Mr. FITZGERALD, "is the actor's Hamlet; that is, one great central character, round whom are grouped a number of inferior figures to set him off." Do the facts warrant this rather rude and offensive statement? Certainly not. In the acting edition before us we find that, so far from the subordinate parts being cut down to give prominence to the leading rôle, the part of Hamlet is one of those on which the pencil has been most freely employed. The responsibility for making Hamlet the great central character rests with SHAKESPEARE, and happily for him he is now beyond the reach of Mr. FITZGERALD'S diatribe. The manager is only influenced by the necessity of reducing to reasonable and practical limits an unusually lengthy play.

It appears to us that Mr. FITZGERALD neither appreciates nor understands the difficulty in which the modern manager is placed. It is either cut Hamlet down to actable limits or not produce the play at all. Even Mr. FITZGERALD will hardly contend that the latter should be the course adopted. Managers have to work under the conditions in which they are placed by the tastes and customs of the day. It is mere hyper-criticism to find fault with the omission of certain passages which it would be desirable to retain if possible, but whose omission does not seriously detract from the effect or value of the drama as a whole. Something has to come out; and the task of the manager is to choose the least of the evils. It is all very well for Mr. FITZGERALD, sitting in his armchair at the Athenæum Club, to abuse our managers for doing this and not doing that; but when he comes to a practical solution of the difficulty he is vague and bewildering. "The treatment," he says, "should not be cutting, but compression. There should be a process of compression which will retain everything, but in an abridged form. An idea, for instance, takes some forty or fifty lines; it should be carefully compressed into half a dozen. Every incident should be there, though any amount of words may be sacrificed." This is all very well in theory; but as soon as you try to put it into practice it entirely breaks down. SHAKESPEARE'S verse is so condensed, the lines are so run into one another, the speeches are so perfectly balanced, and all is so terse and valuable, that the moment you try to "compress" a speech, as Mr. FITZGERALD proposes, you find that the plan is futile, and that it is better to leave out the whole passage. Mr. FITZGERALD attributes the present condition of things, which he regards as "happy-go-lucky," to the "debased taste of the audiences." This, at any rate, is better than attacking the efforts of our actor-managers to come to some sort of a compromise between an ideal presentation of Hamlet and a possible and fairly profitable one. Mr. FITZGERALD has told us how he made bookmaking, as a profession, pay; and if he will only allow our actor-managers in the production of drama the same indulgence that he has permitted himself in literature, he will be less uncivil and severe than he has been in the article which we inserted last week.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE ROYAL.

The severing by Mr. C. F. Williams of his connection, as lessee and manager, with the Plymouth Theatre Royal, says a writer in the Plymouth Morning News, marks the end of another chapter in the story of a playhouse than which few have played a greater part in the history of the provincial stage. The first theatre was a small building in Hoegate-street, then known as Broad Hoe-lane, but the real forerunner of the present structure was that at Frankfort Gate, at the junction of George and Bedford streets. This was built by Arthur, a light comedian of some celebrity in those days, and was known as the New Theatre down to 1765. For very many years it was a flourishing theatrical resort. One of the earliest of the modern municipal undertakings of Plymouth was a theatrical venture. Just a century ago the suggestion was made, and it bore fruit in the erection of the present Theatre Royal, which, with the Assembly Rooms and the Royal Hotel, forms such a splendid pile of buildings, and which has ever since been the property of the City Fathers. The architect was Mr. Foulston, who was a disciple of the "classic" in architecture, and designed the theatre and adjoining building accordingly. The cost was somewhere about £60,000, and the money was raised by the extraordinary and much-criticised expedient of selling the advowsons of the parishes of Saint Andrew and Charles, although a further sum had to be added to the amount thus realised. The style of the building is Ionic, and very imposing is the effect of the long lines of frontage and of the pillared porticoes. The foundation-stone was laid in September, 1811, by the Mayor (Mr. Edmund Lockyer), and the occasion was made one for a great municipal display. There was a cavity in the foundation-stone, and in this was placed a beautiful vase of Plymouth porcelain, containing, among other things, a medal commemorating the event, and several current gold and silver coins. The Mayor gave his official benediction to the enterprise, with the words "I throw wine, corn, and oil on this stone in the hope that it may prove to be the foundation of the peace, prosperity, and happiness of Plymouth." On the stone is the Latin inscription: "Theatri et hospitii imperisis Maioris et Communitatis Burgi de Plymouth. Edmundus Lockyer, M.D., Maior, Fundamente Locavit 1811. Johannes Foulston, Architecta." The building was finished in two years, and opened with a great flourish of trumpets. There was a ball in the Assembly Rooms, and the opening of the hotel was commemorated with a big dinner, to which the Prince Regent lent his patronage by forwarding a haunch of venison. The first performance in the theatre took place on Aug. 23, 1813, and the playbill for the historic occasion said: "The public is most respectfully informed that the New Theatre Royal, Plymouth, will open on Monday next, Aug. 23, 1813, with An Occasional Address, after which Shakespeare's celebrated play of As You Like It, to which will be added the farce of Catherine and Petruchio." The house was divided into boxes, pit, and gallery, the prices being 4s., 2s. 6d., and 1s. respectively, and the receipts of the opening performance were £152 14s. A footnote to the playbill ran: "Ladies and gentlemen are respectfully requested to send their servants to keep place at half-past five o'clock."

But, alas for the high hopes of the City Fathers and for the pockets of their lessees! The enterprise proved anything but pecuniarily successful, and efforts to attract the public in numbers large enough to fill the theatre were generally fruitless. Even in these days the house "takes some filling," and in those times the public was, of course, much smaller. One drawback was that the theatre was terribly cold in the winter, and the only "heating apparatus" adopted in those days was the burning of large fires in the pit. Mr. Farren was the first manager, but even with the subsequent co-partnership of Mr. Foote he could not stand the financial strain, and the lesseeship was taken up by Mr. Hughes, who had been managing the playhouse at Dock. He did not stay long, however, and then the management came into the hands of Mr. Brunton, who made a splendid struggle against adverse circumstances, and spared no effort calculated to win the patronage of the public. All the leading notabilities of the day appeared, including Edmund Kean, Macready, Charles Kean, Charles Matthews, and actresses of fame and beauty. No actor was a greater favourite with Plymouth playgoers than Charles Matthews, whose advent in 1825 was announced as follows:—"The justly celebrated Mr. Charles Matthews, from the English Opera, will be found at home at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, on Monday, the 18th inst., when he will have the honour of presenting his celebrated entertainment called A Trip to America." At the same performance the celebrated Miss Foote, afterwards Countess of Harrington, also appeared as Beatrice in Much Ado About Nothing, and as a Plymouth girl won immense popularity. Under Brunton's management, in 1828, there was a Royal visit, but even this did not surpass in interest his great season of two years earlier, when he brought down all the "stars" of the time, including the great tragedian Macready, who appeared in some of his finest rôles and made a great impression. But although the histrionic art was so splendidly exemplified, it did not bring the necessary grist to the mill, and eventually Brunton relinquished his lesseeship. In doing so he issued a statement in which he suggested that the lack of success was due to the "embarrassments of the country" or to the "hostility of a presumed moral principle."

No more successful than his predecessors was Mr. Devonport, under whose lesseeship the artistic traditions of the past were sustained, but not to any satisfactory financial result. So bad did things become that in 1837 there was a very unfortunate contretemps caused by the artists going "on strike." The lessee appealed to the public for support, and a lively little interlude ensued, for the company who had refused to perform issued a placard accusing the unfortunate Mr. Devenport of having induced them to enrol themselves under the banner by making false representations as to the extent of his worldly goods. The next to take up the task of management was Mr. Hay, but he also failed to win the smiles of Fortune, and, moreover, got into the bad books of the Corporation, who censured him for presenting Jack Sheppard, a melodrama founded on the doughty, if questionable, deeds of that "hero" of not too moral attributes. Various causes, such as general depression in the borough, conspired against the popularity of the playhouse, and even such names as that of Charles Matthews failing as a "draw," Mr. Hay gave up what appeared an impossible task—the making the house pay.

It was in the early forties that there came into association with the Royal a man who became a celebrity locally, who attained no small measure of fame on the business side of provincial theatrical enterprise, and under whose notable régime the theatre remained for over forty years. When Mr. J. R. Newcombe became the lessee he took over an enterprise that seemed to be at the low-water mark of failure. With a courage that was indomitable the new manager braved the adverse fates with all the weapons in the theatrical arsenal. He spared no expense in the securing of the lights of the stage world. Mlle. Taglioni—engaged at £100 a night soon after the opening—Sims Reeves, Mrs. Fitzwilliam, Macready—in the rôle of Hamlet—Kean, and a host of lesser notabilities answered his call to the West country, and every order of entertainment was put on, from farce to grand opera. But still the road led downhill, and Mr. Newcombe, as season after season saw his capital diminish, was almost in despair, and even spoke of the possibility of his financial ruin. Nevertheless he continued the struggle, and his enterprising efforts at length won the appreciation of the public. A new era of prosperity set in, and from thence onwards the house flourished.

Even after he had laid the foundations of success, Mr. Newcombe met with a few adverse strokes of fortune, not the last of which were two serious fires. The first occurred during the pantomime season of 1863, breaking out after the theatre had been closed. It started in the property-room and spread until it had enveloped the whole of the western part of the buildings. The Assembly Room was practically destroyed, and the damage amounted to several thousand pounds. In 1878 there was another conflagration, by which the theatre was again gutted, only the bare walls remaining. Fortunately, there was no loss of life on either of these occasions, but in 1854 there was a very tragic incident. During the performance of Plot and Passion by an amateur dramatic society a Mrs. Kirkby, appearing in the rôle of a country belle, approached too near the footlights, and the light muslin dress which she was wearing caught on fire. The unfortunate lady was swiftly enveloped in flames, and received such terrible injuries that she died a few days later. A crowded audience witnessed the tragic event, which created a great and painful sensation.

During the long period Mr. Newcombe was associated with the theatre he frequently came into conflict with the austere authorities of those days, but rather with the effect of adding to the gaiety of nations than of being visited with any dire reprisals. In 1869 the pantomime contained some quite innocuous allusions to the Royal Marines, but the colonel in command of the corps took them all too seriously and forbade the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men of the corps to enter the building. To see that the order was obeyed he had a cordon of marines placed around the building and a picket at each entrance. By the general public the incident was regarded more with amusement than in any serious light, and before the pantomime ceased running the prohibitory order was withdrawn. Another pantomime, that of 1874, gave rise to a controversy that was then regarded as very serious, but which nowadays would set the town laughing. This was the caricaturing of the Mayor, the Town Clerk, and the Chief Constable, figures representing whom appeared under the title of "Three Popular Men," and clad in their robes of office went through a very grotesque performance. The gentlemen so portrayed were indignant, and threatened legal appeal, while the Council held a full-dress debate, and passed a resolution expressing grave disapprobation of the exhibition. There was a vast amount of correspondence, and eventually Mr. Newcombe withdrew the performance, not, however, until he had greatly benefited by the advertisement which the pantomime received.

Mr. Newcombe retained the lease of the theatre until his death in 1887, when it was taken over by his son-in-law, Mr. Henry Reed, who only held it about fifteen months, and afterwards built the Grand Theatre in Union-street, Stonehouse. From March, 1889, to December, 1892, the management was in the hands of Mr. Rollo Balmain, who was succeeded, the Corporation having invited tenders from the general public, by Mr. Charles F. Williams. For nearly twelve years Mr. Williams retained the management. His lease expired on March 25, 1903. Messrs. Arthur Carlton and T. H. Bryant secured the leasehold in partnership, and the whole of the premises were immensely improved and refurnished. The theatre was opened under Mr. Carlton's personal management on March 30, 1903, with a performance of The Resurrection, with Miss Lily Brayton in the cast.

BIRTHDAYS OF THE WEEK.

We wish many happy returns of the day to the following ladies and gentlemen:—

Victorien Sardou—Saturday, Sept. 7.
Kittie Clayton—Sunday, Sept. 8.
Jessie Elvin—Monday, Sept 9.
Winifred Stuart—Monday, Sept. 9.
John S. Graham—Monday, Sept. 9.
Neville Lynn—Monday, Sept. 9.
Caroline Barrett—Monday, Sept. 9.
Chas. Sheard—Monday, Sept. 9.
Edgar Granville—Monday, Sept. 9.
Ada St. Ruth—Tuesday, Sept. 10.
Winnie Donovan—Tuesday, Sept. 10.
Bassett Roe—Tuesday, Sept 10.
Marie Studholme—Tuesday, Sept. 10.
George Appleby—Tuesday, Sept. 10.
Frank Fuller—Tuesday, Sept. 10.
Bob Anderson—Tuesday, Sept. 10.
(Miss) M. Silverthorne—Tuesday, Sept. 10.
Fred. Donaldson—Wednesday, Sept. 11.
Richard Ganthony—Wednesday, Sept. 11.
Fred. Sinclair—Wednesday, Sept. 11.
Marie Weston—Wednesday, Sept. 11.
Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer—Thursday, Sept. 12.
Alfred Holles—Thursday, Sept. 12.
Douglas Munro—Thursday, Sept. 12.
Carmencita Caicedo—Friday, Sept. 13.

MR. NORFOLK MEGONE'S Meistersingers' Orchestra concluded their week's engagement on Saturday evening last, and at the close there was quite a scene of enthusiasm. After the last item had been given the whole of the large audience broke into loud cheers, which lasted for some time. Mr. Megone was evidently touched by this mark of appreciation, and he called upon the band to render "Auld Lang Syne." The audience quickly took up the song, and ultimately the conductor was compelled to make a speech which was very heartily received.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Aug. 29.—Lemprière tells us that Hymen was of ignoble birth, "and that he experienced so much felicity in his marriage state" that the Greeks made him the god of marriage, and he presided over all nuptials. But the good Lemprière does not add that the said Hymen is particularly busy during the summer holidays with ladies and gentlemen in "the profession" in the French Republic. In this respect the year 1907 has, I think, been a record one. The list of artists of every description who have of late became husband and wife is very long, and presents curious features. Thus I find that whilst among the higher strata there is a tendency to dispense with the church ceremony, those in a humbler position do not deem the civil marriage, as prescribed by law, sufficient. They do not consider the knot bound by Monsieur le Maire strong enough, and they apply to the priest, the parson, or the rabbi to pull it tighter. The last matrimonial event in the theatrical world is that of M. Sacha Guitry, son of the talented actor, and manager of the Renaissance. The lady who now bears his name is Mlle. Charlotte Lysès, a charming young actress. As to M. Sacha Guitry, although very young, he has already made a name for himself as a dramatist.

M. DECORI has been specially engaged to create the principal rôle in La Milliardaire, a play in five acts and ten tableaux, to be brought out at the Ambigu in the course of next month.

THE actress most in demand at the present moment is Mlle. Marthe Regnier. MM. Hennequin and Duquesnel have retained her for their comedy Patachon, the first novelty at the Vaudeville. From the Vaudeville Mlle. Regnier will go to the Gymase, where she will appear in M. Paul Gavault's Le Mariage de Jacqueline. Her services have likewise been retained by M. Henry Bernstein for his play Le Tocsin. And MM. de Flers and de Caillavet have already secured her for 1909, for a piece that will bear the title of Le Péché des autres.

APROPOS of the Gymnase, everybody knows that it also bears the name of Le Théâtre de Madame; but not one Parisian would be able to tell whence that appellation is derived. In 1820 the house was a kind of private stage where pupils of the Conservatoire and young beginners played one or two acts of well-known pieces, so as to overcome their dread of appearing before an audience. After a while, however, unknown playwrights, who had never yet succeeded in placing their productions in a regular theatre, took them to that amateur stage, and after a while the place was patronised by fashionable Paris. This aroused the jealousy of the other managers, who intrigued until M. de Corbière, the Minister, ordered the theatre to be closed. But the threatened house found an unexpected protector in the Duchesse de Berry, who, according to custom at the French Court, was called "Madame." She had often been to the house and enjoyed the performances there. And, being all-powerful, she scribbled a line to M. de Corbière, informing him that having taken that theatre under her protection it could not be closed. In fact, it would be called after her, "Le Théâtre de Madame." And a few days later the new name appeared in gilt letters on the building. Curiously enough, the name of the then manager was Franck, the same as that of the gentleman now at the head of the Gymnase.

IN a few weeks the Ambigu will put into rehearsal La Boscotte, a drama by M. Georges Maldague.

ENTIRELY redecorated, the Cluny Théâtre presents quite a respectable appearance. The place wanted sadly doing up; and the new management have put their hands into their pockets and sacrificed money on the altar of cleanliness. The house will re-open in the course of next month with a revival of La Marraine de Charley, which when first produced at that theatre proved a great success. The cast, a strong one, will comprise MM. Hamilton Marle and Mlle. Germaine Milo.

A FEW years ago there was at the Odéon an old boxkeeper, a harmless, faded-looking woman, who "had seen better days," and used to remind us of that fact at the psychological moment when she held out her shrivelled hand for a small donation. Her daughter had once tried her hand at acting, and had proved a dismal failure. But the mother did not attribute her child's non-success to her want of talent. One evening, during an entr'acte, she explained to me that a born actress has no chance whatsoever to get on in the profession, on account of the many stage-struck society ladies, who, owing to their social position, find no difficulty in securing and keeping an engagement. The society-woman was that old lady's bête-noire, and that idea followed her to her grave. I thought of her when I heard of several ladies, belonging to the upper strata of society, who have joined, or intend to join, the stage. Most of them are hardly interesting. But there is one whose appearance in public will cause a certain amount of sensation, inasmuch as she belongs to what we call here the "aristocracy of the industrial world." She is Madame Charles de Ricqlès, the widow of the famous distiller of that name. She has selected an English nom de guerre, Mme. Collins, and I am assured that she has really great talent. She has, I know, been carefully coached.

PARIS, THURSDAY, Sept. 5.—We have another death to deplore in the theatrical world, that of Mme. Rosine Laborde, the well-known professor of singing, who passed away in her country house at Chézy-sur-Marne at the age of eighty-one: another instance, by the way of the longevity of members of the profession. For a great many years Mme. Laborde sang at the Opéra-Comique and the Opéra, where she made numerous creations. After her retirement from the stage she devoted herself to teaching, and she formed many well-known pupils, the last of which was Mlle. Marie Delna. The feud between Mme. Laborde and Mme. Marchesi—a rival professor—will still be remembered in the theatrical world, although the event took place many years ago. The cause of the trouble was Mme. Emma Calvé. Mme. Laborde and Mme. Marchesi both claimed her as their pupil, and, like the two mothers in Solomon's judgment, they quarrelled over the child. "She's mine!" said Mme. Laborde. "No, mine!" replied the other lady, with an obstinate shake of her head. I remember that having one day listened to the assertions of the two professors I called on Mme. Calvé, and asked: "Is Mme. Laborde or Mme. Marchesi your spiritual monther?" "Neither," replied the diva. "At various times both gave me some advice in regard to the rôles I was studying; but as for my voice, they never had anything whatsoever to do with it. It was posed and formed, and I had already appeared for a long time in public before I became acquainted with the two ladies."

"GISKA-LA-BOHEMIENNE" is the title of a mimed play brought out at the Théâtre Marigny. It was specially written for Mme. Otero, who, of course, played the principal rôle. She really was admirable. It is evident that Mme. Otero has worked very hard to have arrived at such excellent results, for all her gestures, all her attitudes were strictly in keeping with her rôle—subdued, without any striving after effect. We all knew M. Otero as a good-looking woman, with more jewellery than we are accustomed to see on an average person. This time, however, she has proved herself a true artist, and has conquered Paris. But why did she want to imitate Mlle. Lina Cavalieri? The latter lady began her career in a music hall, and it will be remembered that, possessed of a beautiful voice, she placed herself in the hands of a celebrated professor, and made a sensational début at the Opéra. From Marigny to the Opéra is only ten minutes' walk; but from the Marigny music hall stage to the Opéra stage is a far cry. And this, Mme. Otero apparently overlooked. She thought she had but to sing in order to secure an engagement from M. Gailhard. And she sang an "Ave Maria"; and we all felt sorry. And we will keep on feeling sorry until she stops singing that "Ave Maria," or lets someone else render it behind the scenes.

LEGENDS are disappearing fast. In France, at school and in the nursery, we were told of the exploits of Mandrin, the famous highwayman—a kind of Jack Sheppard—and we were warned of what would befall us if we walked in the footsteps of that terrible bandit. But henceforth our children here will not be scared any more into virtuousness by the mention of Mandrin. M. Henri Second, an eminent playwright, has remained for many months in the Dauphiné—Mandrin's birthplace—whence he has returned with documents proving that his hero, if not exactly a benefactor of humanity, was by no means the miscreant he is reported to be. And, in a powerful play, in several tableaux, M. Second will depict his man in his true colours, which, from what we are told, are rather those of an avenger. Mandrin was born in the good year 1724, when the nobility and the Church were exempt from taxes, and the people were slowly but surely bled to death for the greater glory of the King's mistresses. According to M. Second, Mandrin did not wage war against society, but against his Majesty's tax-collectors. In other words he was a smuggler, and as he sold his goods at a low price he was adored by the peasantry. Carlyle has given a graphic description of how his most Christian Majesty's agents collected the taxes; and we feel scant pity for them when we are told that, in their encounter with Mandrin's lawless band, they generally came to grief. Arrested several times, he was always rescued by the rabble, until one day, betrayed by his mistress, he was taken to Valence, broken upon the wheel, and then strangled. The King's historiographers and the papers of the period were ordered to describe Mandrin as a cut-purse, and it is thus—always according to M. Second—that poor Mandrin came down to posterity with a reputation he did not deserve. But, thanks to M. Second, he will now be righted, and, as things go, he may in time be beatified by the Pope and take his rank among the minor saints.

MM. MESSAGER AND BROUSSAN have fixed the month of March prox. for the production of Rameau's Hippolyte et Aricie. In May following Le Crépuscule des Dieux will be brought out. As to Faust, the new management reserves a little surprise for us. There will be new scenery and new costumes, more in keeping with the spirit of the work. Thus we always see Marguerite make her appearance in a magnificent gown by a great dressmaker; a gown which by its richness contrasts in a ridiculous manner with the costumes of her comrades. All this dates from the days when Mme. Miolan Carvalho, who created the rôle of Marguerite, reigned like a despot at the Théâtre Lyrique. It was in vain that Gounod and others pointed out to Mme. Carvalho that her get-up was not suited to the rôle. She insisted on looking "beautiful," and all the prima-donnas who came after her kept up that absurd tradition. But M. Broussan has issued a fresh ukase, and after January next we shall see the sweet Marguerite dressed like an ordinary country girl, instead of a cocotte in her Sunday best. Bravo, M. Broussan!

AMONG the new plays to be produced at the Vaudeville will be Sa Maison en Ordre, a French adaptation, by MM. Bienstock and Balzagette, of M. Pinero's His House in Order. The other novelties will comprise: M. Pierre Wolff's Le Ruisseau; Patachon, by MM. Félix Duquesnel and Maurice Hennequin; La Femme nue, by Henry Bataille; Le Nid, by M. Michel Provins; Nono, by M. Sacha Guitry; and La petite Jasmin, by Willy.

THE new management of the Théâtre des Arts have engaged Mlle. Loïe Fuller to appear in Salomé, which, it will be remembered, was specially written for that artist. Mlle. Hanako, the Japanese actress, will give a series of representations at that house. Works by Kipling, Suderman, Widekind, and Pinero will also be produced there.

THE LATE KATE VAUGHAN.

A brother Journalist, says T. P. in P. T. O., has kindly sent me some reminiscences of that once famous artist, Kate Vaughan, to supplement my own recollection of her, which appeared in this paper two or three weeks ago. Leonard Rayne's treatment of Kate Vaughan during that tour in South Africa which was to have a fatal termination for her will, I think, strike my readers as being an example of the charity that "hopeth all things, endureth all things." Here is the letter:

"Leonard Rayne, the well-known South African manager, had brought Kate Vaughan to the Cape. He paid her for this last trip a salary which was either £80 or £100 a week, with travelling expenses. The illness, which was destined to end fatally, had already attacked her, and set an edge upon her usually sweet temper.

"At the time I was editing the Rand Daily Mail, and one night a reporter brought in the news that Kate Vaughan had arrived. A man was deputed to interview her, but after he had gone I decided to write the interview myself, and recalled the reporter. In the hotel that adjoins the theatre I found Kate Vaughan. She was heavily veiled, and studiously kept her face in the shade. She was as nervous as some young girl about to make a début on the stage. As a newspaper interview the talk was a failure. She was pitiably anxious to recall her triumphs, and spoke nervously and rapidly of the old Gaiety successes.

"I could not see the first night of The Dancing Girl, but I got away from the office in time to join a friendly throng that gathered on the stage after the last act-drop to drink success and long life to 'dear Kate.' Her appearances were very few. Ill-health came, and with it querulousness that found outlet in a quarrel with the management. Leonard Rayne was the manager, and I know of no man who better deserves the simple appellation 'Gentleman' than he. Gentle, patient, generous, he was always Kate Vaughan's best friend. She refused to appear; he played her understudy to a depleted treasury, and went on paying her salary. Kate sued him for breach of contract, and lost her case. Rayne paid her legal expenses, and continued her salary. And then the illness took an acute form, and to the best nursing institute in Johannesburg Kate Vaughan was conveyed at Rayne's expenses, and there was no more constant visitor at the dying woman's bedside than he. Every attention that loving hearts could devise, every luxury that money could buy, was hers in her last days. Edward Terry, by great good luck, happened to be playing in Johannesburg, and he was with her, too, and I do not know that fiction has any parallel for the spectacle of these two great stars of burlesque—the laughter-maker, with his drawn face, holding the hand of the dying dancer as she passed into the darkness without.

"On a Sunday a little group waited in the deserted cemetery. A fierce, fitful wind swept along the little graveyard, and as the hearse drove through the gate a thick yellow pall of dust rose over Johannesburg and blotted out the nearest object. Then came the stinging rain, with lightning and crash and crash of thunder. We huddled together under the shelter of the chapel. Edward Terry was there. Leonard Rayne and John Le Hay, and, I believe, Mr. Major-Jones. In the pelting rain the Catholic priest led the tiny procession to the graveside, and here we left her. I shall remember the priest in his soaked cassock as he turned back to look down into the pit. 'Poor child, poor child!' he said. And Terry and the other men were weeping."

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The Music-Hall Ladies' Guild seems to have sprung at once into maturity, without any great fostering care; and this fact along would proclaim the real need of such an organisation, whereby time and sympathetic help can be given to the poorer women of the vast variety profession. There are brave mothers who suffer much in silence; there are little children dependent for their sustenance on the scanty earnings of the chance engagement. For such cases womanly ministrations are invaluable, and therefore the Guild should especially appeal to the kind hearts of the more fortunate of the lady artists.

The Guild, which has been established a little over a year, has now found offices in the centre of the amusement industry, 2, York Street, Covent Garden, and on Wednesday afternoon the ladies of the Committee were "at home" to the friends of the charity, in order to inaugurate the new premises, which comprise the second floor of the house. Miss Anna de Grey, the indefatigable secretary, was early on the scene, and among the ladies of the committee present were Miss Lil Hawthorne, Miss Millie Payne, Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mrs. Eugene Stratton, and Miss Constance Moxon.

Miss Lily Burnand, who is fulfilling an engagement at Bradford, sent a telegram which read as follows: "Regret cannot be with you to-day. Wish every success to the new home. Regards to all." Miss Fanny Brough snatched a brief interval from rehearsing in The Sins of Society, at Drury Lane, to give her blessing to the new home on behalf of the members of the sister Guild supported by the theatrical profession; and among others present were Mrs. Bush (late of the Bee Hotel, Liverpool), Dr. Walker (hon. physician to the Guild), Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Cowper, Mr. Charles Bailey, Mr. Appleyard (solicitor to the Guild), Mr. and Mrs. Collins, Miss Belle Elmore, Miss Wynne, Miss Beresford, Miss Lily Burnand, jun., Miss Strickland, Mrs. Bradgate, and others.

Many wishes were uttered for the increased usefulness of the charity, which aims at accomplishing a supplemental work that is not covered by any existing fund. Miss De Grey tells us that donations in kind and cast-off clothes are most welcome, and it is to be hoped that the wide-reaching appeal of such a charity will result in a multiplicity of small donations, as well as handsome cheques from the wealthier members of the profession. The committee will hold meetings every Wednesday, and all ladies connected with the profession are cordially invited.

The date of the general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, viz., Sept. 15, clashes with that of the testimonial dinner to Mr. Frank Gerald, the late secretary of the Federation, who is advocating the interests of the Actors' Union at Bath this week. Those who intend to be present at the dinner, which is at the Criterion Restaurant, are requested to notify their intention at once. Mr. Cecil Raleigh will take the chair at seven o'clock prompt.

In the Daily Telegraph's obituary article upon the late Richard Mansfield reference was made to "the now disestablished St. George's Hall." Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant write to say that they would be interested in learning at what date the disestablishment in question took place, and are under the impression that St. George's Hall had a present establishment, displaying a marked degree of vitality.

Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie produced for copyright purposes at the Bijou Theatre (Victoria Hall), Bayswater, on Monday, a new and original opera in one act, by herself, entitled Pharaoh's Daughter. The authoress herself represented the Princess Ameses (the title-rôle), and other characters were played by Mr. James English, Miss Ida Willett, and Mr. E. Francis. The music is composed and arranged by Mr. Joseph Tabrar, who wrote "Daddy wouldn't buy me a bow-wow" for Miss Vesta Victoria.

Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger's efforts to establish a chain of high-class music halls in the chief American cities is prospering, and Mr. Manny Warner is in New York in consultation with the firm with respect to English contracts. Their policy is to present English and American artists of the highest rank. They now have fourteen houses run on the London plan, and are arranging for six others. Only last week they opened the American Theatre, New York, once the abode of legitimate drama, as a first-class variety house, for which there is an increasing demand.

Mr. Alfred Butt returned to the Palace on Monday evening from his tour in France, and found the Palace crowded. He was heartily greeted by a number of personal friends. He has derived much benefit from his trip, for he looked exceedingly well. Mr. Malcolm Scott, who made his reappearance on Monday at the Palace, has been to Llandrindod Wells, where he is very popular.

Miss Jean Aylwin, a pretty Scotch lassie, who has Mr. George Edwardes's permission, now leaves the Gaiety nightly to sing characteristic Scotch songs at the Palace, and they are entitled "Dougal" and "Coortin'," the latter of which deals with her numerous admirers. Sir W. S. Gilbert, if we may take his character of Maggie in Engaged as evidence, has a greater belief in a Scotch girl's canniness than in her charm. Bonnie Jean at the Palace, looking her prettiest in a silk tartan frock, would shatter his cynicism in one glance. Her songs were enhanced by a special Ben Lomond scene painted by Philip Howden.

Mr. Blyth Pratt, who has had a very delightful holiday at Dinard, returned to his duties at the Oxford on Monday. During his absence Mr. Alfred L. Edwards has been officiating, and has been assisted by Mr. Perry, the box-office manager.

No fewer than 170 performers have been engaged to appear in The Avalanche, the new Hippodrome spectacle. These include the famous Alpine guides, Bernet and Bohreen, and the De Freggers, a Tyrolean troupe of fifteen singers. A fresh sensation will thrill the spectators when at a given moment the Alpine guides and the whole party of tourists, English, French, and American, will be seen in a snowstorm hurled down the glacier, among huge tumbling boulders into a ravine. There will be also a sensational exhibition of skiing and tobogganing, in which will be utilised a stage property of enormous dimensions.

Mr. Charles Dietrich is going on his Continental tour early in October, and would be pleased to hear from any big English acts desiring Continental engagements.

Mme. Yvette Guilbert, who has now left Marienbad, was present at a lunch given by one of the English visitors recently, at which the King was also a guest. Learning that Mme. Guilbert intends to become an actress, his Majesty remarked that though her acquisition would be a gain to the stage he was not sure whether this gain would be sufficient compensation for the loss to that particular form of art which she had hitherto cultivated.

Mr. Andrew Cowe has become manager of the Gaiety, Glasgow, in the place of Mr. Harry Bowerman, who has resigned his position.

The Hippodrome, Lowestoft, is closed for a short time for important structural alterations. The seating is being rearranged, and the stage is to be considerably enlarged.

Mr. Julian Clifford, the orchestral chief at the Harrogate Kursaal, is to take a benefit this afternoon. Among the artists are the Hon. Mrs. Julian Clifford, Mr. Ben Davies, Herr Backhaus, Madam Alice Gomez, The Smart Set, and the Band of the Yorkshire Hussars.

Miss Louie Freear visited Colwyn Bay on Tuesday afternoon. "She got right there all the time." In addition to appearing in a sketch entitled Snooks, she gave three songs, two in reply to vigorous encores.

Mr. William Benson, of Wigan, has acquired a commanding site, situate in Leigh-road, Leigh, for the purpose of erecting a first-class theatre and hippodrome. The house will be erected on the most modern principles, strict attention being paid to all details for the general comfort and enjoyment of patrons. Operations will be commenced in due course.

The structural alterations at the Derby Palace and the re-decoration of the building are rapidly nearing completion, and when the re-opening takes place visitors will find the Palace interior presenting a handsome appearance, a pretty scheme of embellishment being employed. Much has been done to enhance the comfort of audiences, as well as the comfort of performers.

The extensive alterations, involving an expenditure of nearly £1,000, comprise the construction of a new stage and proscenium wall, the addition of a fireproof safety curtain, two iron staircases from the body of the hall to the boxes, two private boxes on the ground floor, a new act drop and scenery, and an exit from the pit stalls.

The Leeds Empire celebrated its eleventh anniversary on Thursday, the 29th ult. Two monster special performances, at 6.30 and 9 p.m., were given, and the place on each occasion was crowded to the doors. Mr. T. Gerald Morton and Mr. Alex. Galley, the popular district-manager and Leeds manager respectively, had an extremely busy time, and it is a tribute to their strenuous efforts and kindly courtesy that a memorable evening had nothing to mar its most enjoyable character. The curtain was rung down on an enthusiastic scene at 11.30 p.m.

The annual outing of the staff at the Nottingham Empire Theatre of Varieties was distinguished by a very pleasant happening. Mr. Harry Upton, who for upwards of eight years has been the valued assistant manager, became the happy possessor of a handsome gold watch and an illuminated address, subscribed by the staff and friends, on his leaving to take up the position of manager of the Grand Theatre, Nottingham. The presentation was made by the acting-manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker, who spoke in eulogistic terms of Mr. Upton, who in a few felicitous phrases gratefully acknowledged the gift.

Mr. Charles Evans has been connected with Lord George Sanger now for foureten years, and he has made hosts of friends among the profession as well as among the numerous patrons of the Hall-by-the-Sea, which he manages so well. There was an augmented programme for his benefit on Thursday evening, and the entertainers could have been doubled, but the exigences of the occasion only permitted of some sixteen turns being put on. Among these were Charley Hampson, Johnny Fuller, Burg, Haud, and Wise, Fox and Melville, Lambert and Glover, Valesco's stage circus, and Percival, the clever pianist and entertainer, all of whom had been appearing in the week's programme. There were in addition George Rapley, comedian; William Dennis, baritone; Sybil Montague, ballad vocalist; Jack Charman, a promising young vocalist; Sisters Lavender, duettists and dancers; Williams and Warden, comedians and cross-talkers; and Beatrice Renee, comedienne.

Immediately following the concert was an excellent display of fireworks, by J. Wells, in the grounds, which were brilliantly and picturesquely illuminated. The customary grand ball followed, but the dancers were so thick that it was hard work to get round the brightly-lit and ornately-decorated ballroom, yet, in spite of the crush, dancing was kept up to midnight, to which hour an extension had been granted by the magistrates.

Mr. J. D. Hunter, the popular manager of the Hastings Pier amusements, took his twenty-eighth annual benefit on Thursday, the 29th ult. It is needless to say that the Pavilion was crowded, more especially in the evening, when even standing room was not obtainable. Specially-selected artists filled out a long programme, opened by the talented vocalists styling themselves the So-and-So's; Mr. Arthur Roberts and his company introduced a laughable sketch; and Miss Lizzie Burgess and Miss Marie Dainton appeared. Mr. J. D. Hunter gave an amusing address as a lady suffragette, the performance closing with the Bioscope.

The staff of the Palace Theatre, Bath, lately had a delightful day at Weston-super-Mare (the Blackpool of the West). Mr. Chas. Schuberth, the highly popular manager, did everything possible to make the outing the success it was, and received the thanks of the party for his kindness.

Amongst the winners at the Welsh National Eisteddfod was Lionel Falkman, first violin at the Pavilion, Abertillery. He was successful in taking the first prize for competitors under sixteen, and also divided the first prize in the chief open competition.

The confetti fêtes at Clacton seem to have roused the susceptibilities of the authorities of the Cottage Hospital there, and on Wednesday, in the Vacation Court, before Mr. Justice Pickford, Mr. Bramwell Davis, K.C., asked for an order to restrain. He did not want to stop the business of the Palace altogether, but if they would cease their confetti fêtes, which seemed to be the most serious form of nuisance, he would be satisfied. Would counsel consent to this?

Mr. Matthews, who appeared for defendants, said he was not prepared to consent. These confetti fêtes were a feature of Clacton, and were not a nuisance to the hospital at all. They were fixed many months ahead, were extensively advertised, and largely attended. Eventually it was decided that the action should stand over for a week.

The Birmingham magistrates, at the Victoria Courts on Thursday, unanimously granted a music licence to Messrs. Moore and Kennedy for the new King's Hall (late Old Central Hall) in Corporation-street, Birmingham. The hall, which occupies a fine site in the centre of the Old-square, adjoining the Grand Theatre, will be opened on Wednesday next with the Ediscope and Barnum's Pictures and a vaudeville entertainment. Three performances daily will be given, at 3, 7, and 9, at popular prices.

The present Trades Union Congress will be memorable if for only one reason—that for the first time in its history it includes representatives of the various organisations connected with the two professions, variety and theatrical. The delegates are as follows:—The Actors' Union, Mr. Frank Gerald; the Variety Artists' Federation, Messrs. Joe O'Gorman and M. Bayly; the Musicians' Union, Messrs. J. B. Williams and J. W. Duys (Bath); the National Association of Theatrical Employés, Mr. W. Johnson; and the Artists' Protective Association, Mr. Harry Mountford. It is estimated that the total membership of these societies reaches nearly 8,000, and this number is being increased daily.

Mr. Joe O'Gorman, representing the Variety Federation, in supporting on Wednesday a resolution advocating the abolition of overtime, took the opportunity of thanking the Congress for the support given to the variety artists during the recent music hall strike.

He reviewed some of the grievances of the artists, stating that first of all the music hall proprietors required them to appear at one matinée without payment. Then two matinées were required, and next three. One courageous caterer went so far as to say "Two houses a night and six matinées," but even that was not the finish. Some proprietors proceeded to insert in their contracts that artists must perform at two houses a night and "all such matinées as the management may require."

That would mean that the artists might have to get up at six o'clock in the morning and work up till midnight, performing every time that a man or woman sat down in the theatre. The artists struck, they went to arbitration, and they got an Award.

He regretted to say that with the exception of Mr. Oswald Stoll, who perhaps had the greatest number of houses in their line, practically all the other proprietors were trying to evade that Award. If the artists were driven to further action they would ask the Congress to give them the same support and assistance that they had always given to other organisations.

Negotiations have recommenced between the Alhambra and La Milo, and if successful the latter will make an early appearance at the Leicester-square house. A special feature of her entertainment will be a representation of Lady Godiva at Coventry, for which special scenery will be painted by Ryan. La Milo is having a triumphal progress throughout the country, no less than fourteen Watch Committees in as many towns having set the seal of their approval on her performance.

Miss Annette Kellermann, the Australian mermaid, whom our readers will remember as having made several gallant attempts to swim the English Channel and also to have entertained London for many months at the London Hippodrome, is still doing remarkable business at her concession at the White City, Chicago. Miss Kellermann is showing there in a water palace which has been specially erected for her, and which radiates with varied coloured electric lights.

So great has Miss Kellermann's success been in America that it is doubtful if her present engagements will allow her to return to London under eighteen months. For the information of many of our readers, it might be worth mentioning that the White City, Chicago, is the first institution of this name and character in America, and has been copied not only throughout America but already in Salford.

The programme of the Empire Theatre will be further strengthened on Monday by the addition of the Three Flood Brothers, in a highly amusing American comedy act. The Living Pictures, which have made such a success in America, have been rebooked for a further ten weeks, thus making their stay in that country over six months.

Miss Annie Purcell, who is suffering from laryngitis, has been ordered to take a rest. She has gone to Brighton, where she is making such rapid improvement that she hopes to start again next week at the Oxford.

The Terriers' Cricket Club played a match on Wednesday at Freeman's Grounds, Champion-hill, S.E., against George Gray's Parson Gray, V.C., company. Batting first on a good wicket, the Terriers declared with the score at 118 for six wickets. George Gray's team scored 73 all out, the last three wickets being clean bowled by Garbett with three successive balls. He thus finished the match with the hat-trick ten minutes before the time for drawing stumps.

In the new version of The Christian which was produced with such conspicuous success at the Lyceum on Saturday, Mr. Hall Caine takes his heroine, Glory Quayle, away from the music-halls altogether, and places her in musical comedy. The recent engagements of Marie Tempest, Hayden Coffin, Evie Greene, Denise Orme, Violet Lloyd, and Kate Cutler at the Palace proves that the author does not follow very closely the upward movement of the present variety theatres in the direction of refinement.

Mr. Cecil Morton York, who has played prominent parts for many years now at the London Hippodrome, is engaged for the next production, The Avalanche, which bids fair to be one of the most striking spectacles that Mr. Frank Parker has ever invented.

Mr. Franco Piper, the clever banjoist who is astonishing audiences at the Alhambra, has practised his juggling and his playing for many years, and has entertained all sorts and conditions of men and women, from the rough doppers on the veldt to Belgravian drawing-rooms. Mr. Piper is responsible for a very fine rendering on his favourite instrument of "The Lost Chord," in which he secures very remarkable sostenuto effects. He is nightly heartily recalled and congratulated.

Messrs Harry Brayne and Bert Lloyd, who are meeting with great favour in their novel little act The Tree of Truth, are fully booked for this year, and at Christmas will be seen at one of Mr. Robert Arthur's suburban theatres in the pantomime parts they played at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, with such success.

Miss Cissie Thompson, who is singing "Iris" and "Can't you see the girl loves me," made such a hit last week that she was immediately transferred to the middle of the programme, a testimonial to her ability that she heartily appreciated.

Miss Mildred Blanchard, called by the Press "the English Bernhardt," returned last week on the White Star liner Baltic after five years' absence from America, where she has met with great success. Dr. Gustav Weil, Miss Blanchard's general representative, is busy looking for a suitable sketch, in which Miss Blanchard will star in this country very shortly. Miss Blanchard is one of the few young dramatic actresses who can essay such rôles as Cleopatra, Leah, Lady Macbeth, La Tosca, Gismonda, &c.

The Battersea Empire, which has seen many vicissitudes, is again to take its place as a leading suburban hall. Mr. Humphrey Brammall has secured the house, and quite an army of workmen are engaged in a new scheme of decoration. A novel scheme of lighting is being introduced by Messrs. Santoni (1906), Ltd. Over three millions of pearl-crystals are being employed, and Mr. Brammall has decided to name the house the Crystal Empire. The decorations are being carried out under the direction of Messrs. Read, of Brixton.

Through the kindness of Messrs. Tom Barrasford, Frank Macnaghten, and Fred Baugh, the proprietors and manager of the Britannia Theatre, 500 poor kiddies from the slums of Hoxton were given an outing on Sunday. The youngsters were fed in a large marquee erected in a field adjacent to the White Hart Hotel, Tottenham, and thoroughly enjoyed the good fare provided for them. Games filled out the interval between dinner and tea. Another 500 will be similarly treated in a week or so.

The 527th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Wednesday. Mr. Fred W. Millis (vice-president) occupied the chair, and among those present were Lieut. Albini, Jeff Vendome, Charles Coborn, and Albert Le Fre. Mr. Haydn Esau, Station Hotel, Abertillery, Mon., was appointed agent pro tem. in that town.

Messrs. Anger and Bauer have just issued a very useful little date-book, most helpful to members of the profession. The issue of this work is in keeping with the well-known enterprise of the firm.

The handsome King's Theatre, Edinburgh, which has been closed for several months, as foreshadowed in our last issue, will be reopened on Monday with a high-class variety entertainment at popular prices:—Stalls, 2s. 6d.; dress circle 2s. 6d. and 1s. 6d.; family circle, 1s. 3d.; pit, 6d.; and gallery, 4d. The King's Theatre has not changed hands yet, although it will be in the option of the new Howard and Wyndham Syndicate to purchase it, and include it in the amalgamation; but until this is an accomplished fact the theatre will be run by the present directors, one of whom, Mr. Matthew Ballantyne, managing director of the Pavilion, Glasgow, is taking a great interest in the venture, and has already booked many of the most popular artists.

Mr. Frank Gerald, the delegate of the Actors' Union at the Trades Union Congress at Bath, recited "A Tale of the Tenth Hussars" at the "At Home" given in honour of the delegates on Wednesday by the Mayor and Mayoress of Bath.

Mr. Charles Rafter, "the Singing Soldier," and the latest recruit from the Emerald Isle to the music-hall profession, was accorded a big reception at the anniversary of the Camberwell Empire on Tuesday. Dressed in full regimentals, he sang "I'm marching away, little maid," composed by Messrs. Wilson and Hardwick. The swinging martial air stormed the pit and captured the gallery. Mr. Rafter was put on the programme to give a number of agents the opportunity of seeing and hearing him, and his reception satisfied the most exacting critics.

A couple of Sundays ago Mr. Rafter was the guest of the Irish Club, Charing Cross, and although the club is non-sectarian and non-political, this gentleman rendered intensely patriotic and unswervingly loyal airs with splendid impartiality. It was a happy blending of Orange and Green that pleased his audience immensely.

Mr. Ernest Stuart, whose successful portrait of Vesta Tilley in the Palace Theatre vestibule is so much admired, has painted a striking picture of Mr. George Terrell, commodore of the Eastern Yacht Club of England, Burnham-on-Crouch, which has been presented to the club by its rear-commodore, Mr. Warwick Brookes. Mr. Terrell, in yachting costume, is in the bows of his own boat steering. Behind him is a fine stretch of sea. The painter has evidently caught his subject in his happiest mood, and the portrait has afforded much delight to the friends of the genial yachtsman, who will stand for the Unionists in North Wilts next election.

Miss Victoria Wright, daughter of Nellie Gammon, having severed her connection with the Forrest combination, made a successful début at Gravesend as a comedienne and dancer, and has this week been delighting audiences at the Hippodrome, Sheerness. Her brother, T. W. Wright, is negotiating her business.

The latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra 1 7/8, Canterbury ½, Empire (15s. pd.) 1⅜, Do. (10s. pd.) 1, London Pavilion Ord. 4⅜, Do. Pref. 5, London Coliseum 1/8, Metropolitan ¼, Moss Empire 4⅞, Do. 5 p.c. Pref. 3⅞, Oxford 6¼, Palace 14/3, Tivoli 5⅜, Var. Cons. Theas. 1/8.

The Music Hall Ladies' Guild has received donations and gifts of clothing from Miss Alice Raymond, Mrs. E. Collins, Mrs. Hicks Paull, and Miss Belle Elmore. Printing has been kindly supplied by Mr. Weiner.

The friends of Mrs. Jack Camp will be pleased to hear that she has benefited by her stay at Seaford, to which place she went after her stay in Charing Cross Hospital.

The tabloid musical comedy, Office Hours, submitted by Clarence C. Corri's company, is a very mirth-provoking feature of the bill at the Hippodrome, Brighton.

A new and original sketch, Who's Zoo; or, Don't Disturb the Hanimiles! written and composed by E. T. de Banzie, is being produced for a special three weeks' run at the Pavilion, Glasgow, on Monday, the 16th inst., with a tour to follow.

The learned societies of France are said to have been greatly exercised as to the causes of an extraordinary happening at Dieppe a few days since, when, whilst at anchor on a sea as still as a lake of oil, two French trawlers were swamped and sunk by a huge and solitary wave which came majestically from the direction of Newhaven, and totally overwhelmed the two craft. Excited French passengers by the turbine steamer brought the news, it is averred, to this side the Channel, and the mystery has been partly made clear by the port authorities of Newhaven. A strange visitor had been observed successfully sea angling on the day in question on Newhaven quay, and had been politely asked to remove his extraordinarily large catch, as it interfered with the view seaward. The stranger, who is said to be one of the staff of a premier London music-publishing house, in obedience to the officials' behest, and with the assistance of two porters, pushed the whole of the fish he had caught into the sea. So enormous was the weight of the "take" that the impact set up a tidal wave, which must have been the cause of the swamping of the Dieppe trawlers!

We have had sarabands on a saucepan, gavottes on a gallipot, fantasias on fryingpans, and now we are to have a symphony on a sirloin. This latest novelty will be encountered at the Crouch End Hippodrome on Monday, when will be produced a new musical fantasy, entitled Chimes. In a meat emporium we meet a musical butcher, who extracts—not Lemco, Oxo, or Virol—but melody, sweet melody, from a sirloin stuck through with skewers. We are puzzled to know how music can be obtained from a mass of meat; but that is the secret of the inventor, to be known as "the crazy butcher," who has patented Chimes.

Mr. Richard Thornton, of the Moss combination, who has recently built and opened the splendid Sunderland Empire, is determined to scotch anything that is in the slightest way objectionable on his stage. In a proclamation to artists he says:—"Any allusion to "The Lodger," or using the word "Damn," or any action calculated to convey a bad meaning, will be considered an offence, and, as I consider it as much to the interest of the artist as to myself, Mr. Loller, the musical conductor, has full power to ring down the curtain on any artist so offending."

We understand that, in accordance with the above notice, the right of "ringing down" the curtain upon an artist was exercised at the Sunderland Empire one night last week.

Miss Jennie Maynard and company, in The Mad Actress, have made a hit at Sheerness, where the sketch is being produced by Mr. Fred Leighton, the popular manager of the Hippo, and he already has booked several dates for it in town. Miss Maynard upholds her well-known reputation as a high-class actress in the title-rôle. Her mad tricks cause the audience to simply roar, but at no point of the sketch does she forget that she has to be serious yet withal funny, and she accomplishes her purpose with skill and ability.

Miss Maynard, before going on to the variety stage, played with all the leading Shakesperian companies of the day. She received her tuition from the famous actor, Wm. Hoskins, the tutor of Sir Henry Irving. Miss Maynard went straight from the school to the stage, touring all Australia with W. J. Holloway's Shakesperian company. She afterwards toured the Antipodes with George C. Mullen, as leading lady in several of Shakespeare's pieces, and then she joined Croke-Forbes and Lyle's company.

She afterwards came to England and toured "Nurse" from the now defunct Globe. Some time ago she went back to her home in Australia for her health. Returning to this country in March by the ill-fated Suevic she, along with hundreds of passengers, was wrecked on the Stag rocks off the coast of Cornwall.

The present programme of the Hippodrome is more hippodramatic than has been the case for some time, and we have the felicity of seeing two superb horsewomen—Mlle. Hélène Gerard and Miss Maude Wulff. The former wins generous applause for her haute école act on a dappled grey steed; and the latter rides Furious, a most accomplished horse, who not only beats time with its hoofs to the tune of the cakewalk, but is inspired by the cadences of "La Mattchiche" to canter gracefully through that fascinating dance. Miss Wulff also presents the famous Turkish thoroughbred Abdullah in a liberty act. This highly intelligent animal does many remarkable things, but, like Sir Joseph Porter, is an obstinate believer in the suaviter in modo, and when his charming mistress makes a special demand on his prowess she has to say "Please!" Herr Wulff's thoroughbred, Amateur II., is also put through his paces.

Burlesque bullfights are familiar enough on the variety stage; and grotesqueness is well served at the Hippodrome by the Magantini troupe of toreadors (direct from Madrid), who give a parody of bull-baiting as practised in fair Castile. A patient donkey and toreros on property steeds realise the fun of the thing. The Boccaccio Minstrels assert the claims of music in the arena, contributing an acceptable vocal and instrumental programme. One of the trio is a mandoline virtuoso, who displays wonderful technique in a selection from Herold's Zampa, an opera that is now all but forgotten with the exception of its overture.

An interesting novelty at the Hippodrome is an exhibition of what is called balloon polo, under the direction of M. Court Tietze. Six mounted players—three English and three French—are "armed" with a long cue, with which the strokes are made, and the large ball or balloon, which is very light, has to be shot over one or other of the bars placed on uprights at opposite ends of the circle. By strokes and gentle touches the teams keep the ball moving, and the game causes considerable excitement, the goals being scored as in push ball.

"The Land of the West," a new sketch which is being played at the Bedford this week, is a sequel to another which has been seen there, viz., Maple Leaf, and Mr. John Henderson, who appears as Sandy McFarlane, gives a vigorous and finished portrayal. Sandy's granddaughter is in love with a wealthy young ranchman, Curly Thompson, but Sandy withholds his consent to the match because he had promised that the girl should marry Dick, a son of an Indian Chief, and he hesitates to break a bond given to the Indian on his deathbed. Dick, a thoroughly bad lot, proves his treacherous nature and poisons Sandy. The old soldier, however, is aware of it, and shoots his murderer on sight before he himself is called for the last muster. He falls dead before his grandchild and the man she loves. They will be free to marry. It is a dramatic little play, well written, and enthusiastically received.

Mr. Charles A. Marshall has been appointed acting-manager at the Holborn Empire in the place of Mr. William Salmond.

At North London Police Court on Monday Albert Edward Disney, thirty-one, a painter, of George's-road, Holloway, was charged with having in his possession and trying to sell a dozen copies of pirated music. Mr. Charles Paul, a representative of the Musical Copyright Association, stated that the sale of pirated music had broken out again both in London and in the provinces. He saw the prisoner offering the copies for sale, and had reason to believe that he knew they were pirated. The prisoner, who said he suspected the copies, which he obtained from a man in the street, was fined 10s.

Mr. Reginald Leyland's London vaudeville concert party have for several weeks been delighting visitors to the Round Garden, Walton-on-the-Naze, with their refined musical entertainment, Mirth and Music. Thursday evening was fixed for the benefit of Mr. Leyland, when a café chantant, with a dance to follow, was the chief attraction on this occasion. Mr. H. A. Whitman, the popular pier-master, sang the duet from Patience "Hey, Willow Wally, O," with Miss Clarisse Hene, the soprano of the party.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

IT was thought that the Musical Copyright Act of 1906 would act as a complete deterrent to the schemes of the music pirate, but different magistrates take different views of their responsibilities under the statute, and in some cases inflict nominal penalties. These, unfortunately, do not frighten the nefarious traders, and we are therefore more indignant than surprised at hearing that fraudulent copies of Will Godwin's "If those lips could only speak," published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, are in circulation. Publishers pointed out at the time of the passing of the Act that its methods of securing conviction were too costly and cumbersome, and that the penalties were neither sufficiently drastic nor summary to achieve the desired end. Too much tender consideration for the lawbreakers was shown in the enactment.

IF there were no buyers of this illicit merchandise there would be no sellers, and in view of the widespread publicity which the question of music piracy has now secured, it would be well if those members of the public who encourage this industry were treated in the same way as other purchasers of stolen goods. They would have no one but themselves to blame, and an iniquitous practice would receive a decided check, if it were not altogether destroyed.

AMONG Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's most recent publications is "Cherries are blooming," by A. E. Sidney Davis and John Neat. This most charming and tuneful number, which was specially written for Miss Bessie Butt, is being featured by that vivacious and dainty little lady on the Stoll tour with such success that she is rewarded with three and four calls nightly. She is due at the Oxford shortly, and the chorus is certain to be heard in the London streets before long.

LONDON'S verdict, in stamping the popular George Lashwood's "In the twi-twi-twilight" as a hit of the first water, has been instantaneously and enthusiastically endorsed by the Provinces. Writing to the publishers—Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter—from that haunt of pleasure, the Isle of Man, the singer says:—"'In the twilight' has been simply an enormous success here; in fact, you can hear it everywhere morning, noon, and night." Pantomime producers, recognising an obvious fact, are already negotiating for the rights of this number for their forthcoming annuals.

IN these days of "six-night" engagements, and consequent frequent change of songs, quite a record has been established by Miss Kathleen Crogan, this dainty little artist having sung for nearly eighteen months continuously Edgar Bateman and Mr. Henry E. Pether's clever farmyard fancy, "My sweet bird of paradise," published by Francis, Day, and Hunter.

THE genial Bateman, now "bronzing" at Brighton, evidently numbers among his many accomplishments the art of manipulating meteorological conditions, having had almost continuously fine weather during his South Coast sojourn.

MESSRS. B. FELDMAN AND CO. have been fortunate in securing Wilkie Bard's latest and greatest success by Frank Leo, entitled "My Deutcher Girl." This number has a fine catchy chorus, besides being irresistibly funny.

MISS FLORRIE FORDE is scoring an unparalleled success with B. Feldman and Co.'s great chorus song, "My lassie from Lancashire." This song is already in great demand, and is selling largely. It is from the pens of Murphy, Lipton, and Neat.

STILL another success must B. Feldman and Co. add to their already long list of winners. This is a sweetly pretty Indian fable, entitled "Red wing," now the rage of America, and Messrs. Feldman and Co. prophesy that it will be the rage of England in the near future.

"LET me return to Dreamland," of which Mr. Arthur Aldridge is making a special feature at the Pavilion, is published by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., who are also the publishers of "Girls all love a soldier bold," of which Mr. George Lashwood is at present making a distinct feature.

THE Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co. have this week secured Mr. Harry Champion's latest winner, "My wife's sister's cat," for publication. This song looks like rivalling Mr. Champion's other two successes—"Out went the gas" and "Dan, Dan, Dan," which are also published by the same firm.

MISS LILY LENA, who has been playing a season in South Africa, has scored quite a phenomenal hit in Cape Town and "Jo-burg." The entire Press are united in her praise, and congratulate her on her excellent songs. Her biggest successes have been "Has anyone seen a German band?" and "Swing me higher, Obadiah." The Star Company have received large orders for copies from their South African agents. Miss Lena returns to England in a month's time.

MR. ARTHUR REECE has secured the prior right of a new song by Alsopp and Haines, entitled "They all had to get out in their nighties." This number the genial Arthur will produce immediately. Copies for pantomime may be had from the Star Company.

"CAROLINA BROWN OF CHINATOWN" is a bright "goey" number by A. J. Mills and Maurice Scott, which is being successfully sung by three charming young ladies—Miss Maudie Forde, Miss Minnie Mace, and that vivacious comedienne Miss May Henderson. The Star Company will issue copies immediately.

WHIT CUNLIFFE, the dashing and debonair, has for once made a departure from his usual style of dress. Instead of the smart brown frock-coat of the well-dressed man about town, he may be seen now in the character of a dandy yachtsman, what time he chortles a real rollicking, breezy song, by Mills and Scott, entitled "Oh! the steamer! Oh! the sea."

WHIT tells an amusing story. On a certain day he had perused no less than twelve songs of the "girl" order, and on the evening of this same day Bennett Scott presumed to beard him in his dressing-room at the London Pavilion. "Song? Yes! about a girl?" and at this moment the distracted comedian produced a revolver which he pointed at the composer. Fortunately the song was the one referred to above, and the evening papers were cheated of another tragedy. The Star Company have had record orders for copies of the song.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Co. have just been recipients of the pleasing intelligence that two songs from their catalogue, published in special sixpenny edition form by Messrs. Allen and Sons, the noted Australasian publishers, viz., "Queen of Old Samara" and "Remember me to mother dear," have caught on "down under" like wildfire, particularly the first-mentioned number, which Miss Bijou Russell has done so much to make popular both in Melbourne and Sydney. So gratified are the Australian publishers at this success that they now have in the press six more of the Berners-street firm's publications, to wit: "Rosie is waiting," "Big ship sailing in the morning," "Joan, Joan," "Tiny Firefly," "When, when, when?" and "I'm going back to the Fatherland."

NEW HIPPODROME AT DARLINGTON

Provincial palaces of pleasure were augmented on Monday, when the new Hippodrome and Theatre of Varieties, Darlington, opened on the two houses a night principle, under the management of Signor Rino Pepi.

The main frontage of the building is in Parkgate, and extends 108ft. In the construction of the edifice Middlesbrough pressed red bricks have been used, with terra-cotta dressings, the groupings of the various blocks and the stonework being harmoniously blended. The main entrance is surrounded by a lofty tower, 63ft. high, and an ornamental iron and glass verandah extends along the main façade to provide shelter in bad weather for the public.

The interior is spacious, well ventilated, and artistically treated, the scheme of decoration being carried out in cream and gold, relieved with pale rose and turquoise blue. The auditorium, which will accommodate about 2,000, is 60ft. from the curtain line to the back wall, and has a width of only two feet less. The proscenium and box draperies are of crimson silk plush, with old gold appliqué trimmings, and the "tip-up" chairs in stalls and circle are upholstered in crimson. The gallery and circle are constructed on the cantilever principle, so that there is nothing to impede the view of the stage. The stage itself is a large one, and is capable of mounting any production travelling. The height to the "grid" is 46ft., enabling the scenery to fly up in one piece. The dressing-rooms immediately adjoin the stage, and are most conveniently arranged.

Fire appliances have been placed in convenient positions all over the building, and a safety curtain has been provided in the proscenium opening. Low pressure heating apparatus has been supplied throughout, and a full and complete installation of the electric light has been made. There are no less than eight exits, so that in case of need the building could be emptied in a very short space of time.

The contractors have worked under the direction of Mr. J. F. Ward, the well-known theatrical architect. The general decorations and upholstery have been executed by Messrs. Dean and Sons, of Birmingham, whose name is a guarantee of the perfection of the work.

When the drop curtain rose on Monday "God Save the King" was played by the orchestra, the audience all standing. On the stage were his Worship the Mayor of Darlington (Councillor Bates), Councillors Biggs and Young, Mr. James Swenden, J.P., Superintendent Davison, Signor Pepi, the managing-director, Mr. J. F. Ward, of Birmingham, the architect, and others.

The Mayor, in formally declaring the building open, said he thought everyone would agree that the building was a credit, not only to those who designed it, but to the town of Darlington. From what he knew of the directors, they, as business men, would see that everything put on the stage would be above suspicion. There need be no fear of a repetition of what occurred on the Continent a few days ago, when His Majesty the King had to leave a place of amusement because of the vulgarity of a portion of the entertainment. He had pleasure in introducing Signor Pepi, who would be responsible for the next few years for the conduct of that hall.

Signor Pepi said all the entertainments would be free from vulgarity. The time of vulgarity in music halls had vanished.

Mr. J. F. Ward (the architect), who paid a high tribute to the work of the builders, apologised for the absence of Mr. T. W. Plews, the chairman of the directors, who was suffering from a slight illness.

The "National Anthem" was again played, and a most enjoyable programme was gone through. Mlle. Lumiere gave a charming "fair grotto" act; Vandinoff painted three striking floral pictures in a few minutes; the Three Phydoras went through an extremely amusing musical novelty act; Mezetti and Mora are clever triple bar performers; Morny Cash sings good songs well, has some very funny "patter," and is an exceptionally fine clog-dancer; whilst Charlie Williams is very good with the big boots as "the Scotch nigger"; and the Pepiscope exhibits a good series of pictures. But the "star" turn was Marie Loftus, who is as versatile, amusing, and clever as ever. Her song of the country girl and the visit to London was excruciatingly funny; and her representations of "Singers Past and Present" literally brought down the house. When the first house was emptying there was a queue nearly 100 yards long waiting for admission to the second performance.

MELLOR, LAWRANCE AND GIFFORD'S sterling German song, "I'm going back to the Fatherland," which is not only the hit of Tiller's Zuyder Zee at Blackpool, but also of practically every pierrot troupe in the country, is nightly creating something like a furore at the Palace, Shaftesbury-avenue, where the Palace Girls nightly sing and dance this fascinating number for all it is worth. Mr. John Tiller has already "booked" this song, which, like every song offered by the Monte Carlo Co. this year, is "free" for pantomime on application to the publishers, for over half a dozen Christmas annuals he is producing, and many other managers, notably Mr. Fred Karno, are following suit.

HACKNEY EMPIRE OUTING.

The annual staff outing of the popular Hackney Empire took place last Sunday, when, favoured by weather which can only be described as ideal, over 70 members of the staff assembled on the platform at Liverpool Street Station, where reserved saloons awaited to convey them to that delightful health resort Clacton-on-Sea. Upon arrival at eleven, the members proceeded to the Palace by the sea, where at one a most substantial dinner was served, Mr. Percival, the genial manager, presiding. Toasts were drunk to the King and the Moss and Stoll Empires, Ltd., after which the company dispersed, each member selecting his own method of enjoyment, many visiting the torpedo-boats at anchor off the pier, while drives, boating, swimming, and pedestrian excursions occupied the attention of the rest. The company re-assembled at the Palace at five o'clock, where tea was served, and until 8.20, when a start homeward was made, the rest of the day gave many an opportunity of inspecting the attractions, lavishly provided by this well-known resort for visitors. Liverpool Street was reached at 10.30 p.m., and the company dispersed, each voting that this was without doubt the most enjoyable and well-managed outing since the theatre commenced its career six years ago. Mr. Percival and his indefatigable committee are heartily to be congratulated upon the result of their efforts, which provided not only a day of thorough enjoyment (not marred by a single untoward incident), but gave the means for a general re-union which, to a large staff like the Hackney Empire possesses, can only have the happiest results.

"A MUSICAL NIGHTMARE."

Mr. Charles Bailey, the erstwhile Salvation Army officer, most loyally assisted by Miss Minnie Thurgate, has commenced his artistic career at the Empire, Camberwell, in A Musical Nightmare. Dressed as a footman, and while playing snatches of popular airs on the pianoforte, he tells his audience that he is the nephew of the Earl of Asparagus, but while masquerading as a music master he had fallen in love and was beloved by his charming pupil. Knowledge of the mutual attachment had come to her father's ears. Being forbidden the house, he, to be near his sweetheart, had sacrificed his curls and his moustache, and obtained the position of footman in his fiancée's home without being recognised. His employer having gone out for the evening, and his fiancée retired for the night, he is sitting at the piano playing to let her know he is near.

Much to his intense surprise his lady love appears in charming night attire, walking in her sleep, and hearing the familiar air, commences her favourite song and dance, but awakens indignant when she finds herself seated on the footman's knee. The interview is interrupted by a telegram telling the lover that his uncle has died, and that he is now the Earl of Asparagus, and is in a position to claim the hand of his fiancée. Mr. Charles Bailey, as the lover, excels in his pianoforte selections. Miss Minnie Thurgate, as the fiancée, works hard for success, and is a bright, pretty, and clever dancer.

MISS CARLOTTA LEVEY has written the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. in most enthusiastic terms, recording the immediate and complete success she has achieved at the Empire, Bristol, this week, with Pelham and Rule's latest "winner," "I'm going to try my luck in London," which has been nightly cheered to the echo and chorussed all over the house at every performance. This song, which is already the vocal property of the "man in the street" throughout the length and breadth of Bristol, is a certain march-time success for pantomimes this year, and is specially suited to the needs of artists enacting the rôle of Dick Whittington. Miss Carlotta Levey brings this, her latest song-success, to Collins's on Monday next.

YET another potential winner from the pens of those gifted authors and composers, Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, entitled "A parasol for two," is now in the press, and will shortly be issued by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., which busy firm is also by way of publishing Mr. Fred Godfrey's clever song, "Gibraltar," which should have a very big vogue on the "halls" during the autumn and in all the principal annuals at Christmas time.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Co. are hourly finding new spheres for their activities, for, in the French version of The Belle of New York, just produced at the Olympia, Paris, Ballard Macdonald and Donovan Meher's "catchy" number, "Will he answer 'Goo-goo'?" has been specially featured, while the chief revue-producer of the Gay City has expressed himself so enamoured of the Monte Carlo Co.'s catalogue in general that he will introduce at least half a dozen "plums" therefrom into all the revues he is producing in Paris in the near future, notable selections being "Fatherland," "Carolina," and "She didn't come from Borneo."

MESSRS. STAFFORD & Co. have just issued a six-sheet poster in full colours of Ghita Corri. It is a triumph of the photochrome art.

CAMBERWELL EMPIRE ANNIVERSARY.

Success brilliant and well-merited has rewarded Messrs. Jesse Sparrow and Harry Bawn's spirited and able management of Camberwell's new Empire Palace of Varieties, and it was to celebrate the first anniversary that on Tuesday evening Camberwell amusement-seekers packed every available space in the cosy theatre on Denmark Hill.

The Terriers Association also determined not to let the opportunity pass of honouring their President, Mr Jesse Sparrow, and a substantial proof of the high esteem in which he is held by his brother bow-wows resulted in No. 19 on the programme becoming the "star" turn of the evening. On the curtain rising the stage was seen to be crowded with Terriers and music-hall celebrities, with Mr. Jesse Sparrow in their midst. In a few well-chosen words Mr. Sparrow thanked Camberwell for their generous support, and said that at the Empire during the past twelve months they had established a record for new productions, and their patrons would find in the future that many more provincial artists would make their first London appearance on the Empire stage.

MR. G. P. R. BURGESS (solicitor to the Terriers and kindred associations) then stepped forward, and said:—"Mr. Sparrow, Ladies, and Gentlemen—The Association of which I am proud to be a member have taken this opportunity of presenting our President, Mr. Jesse Sparrow, with a testimonial of the respect and esteem he has won while holding the office of President for the past two years. Your attendance here to-night in such unprecedented numbers is the guinea stamp on his abilities and efficiency as a music-hall manager. Mr. Sparrow, we, your brother 'Terriers,' beg acceptance of this framed testimonial and a purse of gold."

MR. SPARROW, who was visibly affected, in returning thanks for the handsome gifts, said:—"I little thought when I joined the Terriers Association five or six years ago that I should fill the honoured and proud position of President for two years running. Since being one of you I have met with nothing but kindness and goodfellowship. I thank you all heartily and sincerely." Musical and vocal honours followed, which took the form of the joyfully-sung Terriers' Ode.

The Terriers Association to Jesse Sparrow.

We, the undersigned members of the association, desire on this the first anniversary of your successful management of The Empire, Camberwell, to place on record our sincere appreciation of the services rendered by you as our President.

We are deeply sensible of the many occasions on which you have presided, with courtesy and tact, over our functions, and we recognise the unfailing interest you have always shown in our concerns, and beg your acceptance of this address, together with the accompanying purse of gold. The energy you have displayed for our welfare has always been pronounced, and our earnest wishes are that you may think of your term of office in the past with satisfaction and pleasure in the future, and that your relations with the members of this Association will be those of lasting good-fellowship. (Signed) HARRY LESTER,
September 3rd, 1907. Secretary.

[Here follow the names of the Terriers.]

As was to be expected, the entertainment was of the best, and for this occasion Mr. Fred Neiman assumed the rôle of stage mnaager, and with the valuable assistance of the Empire's stage manager, Mr. W. Nutt, they placed during the two houses no less than 41 turns. Among these were Wilkie Bard, Tom Costello, Sam Mayo, Charles Bignell, Fred Earle, Georgina Leno (who received a floral tribute from the hands of Victoria Monks), Tots Davis, Wills and Mackenzie, Cecilia Maud (the lady singing conductor), Ruby Dahls and her merry mannikins, the Greys, Happy Attwood, Gladys Anderson, Gladys and Alber, Clorinda, Thurtelle, The Tennessee Guards, Tatten Hall, Corelli, May Clifton and company in a pretty Japanese scena, Charles Bailey and Minnie Thurgate in A Musical Nightmare, and Lillian Violet.

MANCHESTER PROTEST MEETING.

Artists appearing this week at the variety halls in Manchester, as well as trade unionists from Manchester and district were present in large numbers at the Palace Theatre on Sunday night, when a meeting organised by the Variety Artists' Federation, in conjunction with the General Federation of Trade Unions, was held for the purpose of protesting against the action of the managers of the Tivoli Theatre of Varieties, Manchester, in, so it was alleged, seeking to evade the terms of the Award of Mr. George Ranken Askwith. The chief point of grievance affected the payment for extra matinées. Mr. Fred Herbert, of the V.A.F. Executive, presided, and among those present were Mr. J. T. Macpherson, M.P., Mr. James Holmes (representing the General Federation of Trade Unions), Mr. Monte Bayly (general secretary of the V.A.F.), Mr. Phil Herman, Councillor Martin, Mr. H. Bedford, Mr. Dean Tribune, Mr. E. Ward, Mr. C. V. Bern, and Mr. H. Anthony.

The CHAIRMAN announced that after a consultation with representatives of the V.A.F. and the solicitor for the London Entertainments Protection Association, the manager of the Tivoli, Manchester, Mr. Wilkes, had agreed to give way on all points. The result of the conference was stated in a letter from Mr. Askwith, which he read, and which ran as follows:—

Board of Trade, Whitehall Gardens, S.W.

DEAR SIR,—I have this day seen Mr. Philip Rutland, solicitor to the Entertainments Protection Association, Mr. Wilkes, and two other directors of the Tivoli Theatre of Varieties, Manchester, with reference to the alleged breaches of my Award of June 14, 1907.

I have upon the the proposed contracts altered with their consent the words relating to matinées, so that it may appear upon the contract that the matinées are paid for separately, and also the words of the Barring Clause. These are the two important matters in these contracts, and I understand that as soon as practicable the Board of the Tivoli Theatre will effect any such minor alterations as may be now requisite with a view to making their contracts in conformity with the model contract.—I am, sir, yours very faithfully,
(Signed) G. R. ASKWITH.

Monte Bayly, Esq.,
General Secretary, V.A.F.

When the Award was given by Mr. Askwith in June the majority of the large and representative syndicates agreed to fall into line with it, but there were still many of the smaller proprietors who were not disposed to agree with the terms arranged, and it was incumbent on members of the Federation to do something to make these people come into line. If this were not done the larger managers would be quite justified in complaining and repudiating the terms of the Award. In reference to the settlement that had been effected, the Chairman said if they were able, simply by the mere threat of holding a meeting, to bring a manager into line with them, it was an evidence of the value of such an organisation as their own. At the same time they wished to do everything possible to avoid anything in the nature of a strike. Strikes must be their last resource, and before this occurred they must exhaust every possible method to secure a satisfactory settlement. The only way to maintain peace was to be prepared for war. Any strikes that occurred in the future would, he was sure, be brought about by the action of the managers, and not by the action of the artists. In conclusion, the Chairman emphasised the point that the V.A.F. was now properly registered as a trade union, and affiliated to the Trade Union Congress and the General Federation of Trade Unions.

Mr. PHIL HERMAN moved the following resolution:—

"That this mass meeting of the variety artists at present in Manchester, backed up by the inhabitants of this important city, hereby enters a protest against the act of any manager persistently violating the Award given in the late music hall dispute; and we hereby call on the general public to assist us in securing the same conditions of employment at these establishments as are now recognised in all the important variety halls throughout the kingdom."

Mr. Herman said he had, personally, been always dead against strikes, though he recognised their utility. It was not fair to allow any of the minor managers to take advantage of the Award, and it was the duty of members of the V.A.F. to protect those managers who agreed to the terms laid down by Mr Asquith.

Mr. E. A. WARD, in seconding, said the settlement that had been arrived at was such as he believed the V.A.F. was formed to secure.

Mr. MONTE BAYLY, general secretary of the V.A.F., in supporting the resolution, expressed thanks to the trade unionists of Manchester and district for the support given in the present movement, and their moral support in obtaining this victory. The Award given by Mr. Askwith constituted the Charter of the variety artists—(applause)—and the keynote of that Charter was payment for matinées, or, in trade union language, payment for overtime.

Mr. JAMES HOLMES, delegate from the Federation of Trade Unions, said the V.A.F. had the support of some 600,000 trade unionists he represented. Rightly the variety artists were seeking to secure that reason should be used, justice should be done, and honour should bind the two. (Applause). The artists preferred persuasive to compulsory methods, and if there was a proper co-operation between managers and artists he was sure the result would be seen in big audiences and successful results all round.

Mr. J. T. MACPHERSON, M.P., said the trade union movement was not a movement initiated primarily for fighting, and creating discord and distrust, but an angel of peace in the industrial battle-ground. Trade unionism was born in adversity, oppression, tyranny, and misery, and was baptised in blood. It was good for them to remember this at the present day when it was respectable to be a trade unionist. It was not always so. Trade unionists warmly welcomed the variety artists into their ranks. The voice of Labour must be heard on the floor of the House of Commons, and he looked forward to the time when the battle—the Waterloo—between Capital and Labour would be fought out there, entirely and absolutely.

The resolution having been adopted with unanimity, a vote of thanks to the speakers was accorded on the motion of Mr. H. ANTHONY, seconded by Mr. H. BEDFORD.

In proposing a vote of thanks to the Chairman, Mr. J. HOLMES said the variety artists now had at their backs, in the General Federation of Trade Unions, the strongest organisation in Britain.

The CHAIRMAN read a number of telegrams expressing wishes for the success of the meeting, and urging members to keep the Federation going, to abide by the Award, and to compel others to do so.

THE fame of Mr. Harry Marlow's strikingly original coon number, "Bayou," recording the love of a ferryman for a beauteous maid of South America, has spread apace, so much so that the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. have been simply inundated with requests for permission to sing this, the latest of their autumn novelties. At present, however, the publishers are exercising a wise discretion, th coutcome of experience, and instead of allowing this charming song to be sung by all and sundry, only a very limited number of permissions to sing will be allotted prior to the advent of pantomime, for which, although professional copies are only just ready, "Bayou" has already been extensively booked by wide-awake entrepreneurs.

A "SISTER'S HONOUR."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—With reference to a letter from Miss Kitty Lofting in your last issue re the authorship of above sketch, now being played by Mr. Norman G. Acton's company, to avoid misunderstanding, I should be obliged if you would kindly find space for me to state that the latter part of the sketch, including the discovery of Jim Ratcliffe by Tom Rivers and the consequent climax, was written not by Miss Lofting, but by—Yours faithfully,
ARTHUR O'KEENE.

Streatham, Sept. 3rd.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA, who will soon be saying au revoir to England, and returning to the scenes of her recent triumphs, the U.S.A., will exploit a new budget of songs, specially written for her by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott. These numbers will be published simultaneously by the Star Music Company in England, and by Francis, Day, and Hunter in America.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE ALHAMBRA.

The Urbanora films have often delighted and occasionally thrilled us; but we think the present series, entitled Wild Birds at Home, has developed possibilities in the way of photography hitherto undreamt of. The pictures have been taken by Messrs. Richard and Cherry Kearton, the naturalist photographers, who for many years have devoted themselves to the study of bird life on lonely cliff, steep crag, wild moor, or green uplands. They must have resorted to many stratagems to obtain such a magnificent set of life pictures as are now being shown at the Alhambra. We are first shown ocean-bound rocks and promontories covered, in one instance with guillemots, in another with gannets, and still another literally alive with the forms of that unconsciously humorous aquatic bird, the puffin. We next view a cormorant's nest with the parent birds fighting in defence of their young; and two delightful pictures are a pair of sedge-warblers looking after their young and a pair of whitethroats engaged in the same interesting domestic duty. A pair of wrynecks are exhibited close to their home in a tree; and a picture—perhaps more wonderful than the rest—is the sparrowhawk feeding its young. This beautiful bird of prey literally tears portions of flesh from a small bird and distributes it among its fluffy-looking and hungry family. The educational value of such pictures should be incalculable; and animated photographs will surely become a valuable aid to instruction in natural history.

A first appearance at the Alhambra is being made by Mr. Henry Helme, who has a fine baritone voice, which he displays to advantage in a most agreeable melody. His second essay is an entente cordiale number, a verse of which is given in English. This excites loud applause, and the singer, who wears the picturesque costume of the Basque peasantry, has to appear before the drop curtain. Mr. Richard List introduces a number of amiable bears, among the animals being a very fine one of the Polar variety. He very nicely adjusts the balance of a see-saw, at each end of which is seated a smaller black bruin. Mr. List's pets are quite bons vivants, as may be discovered when they take deep draughts from bottles. The animals are evidently fond of their trainer, and perform with alacrity any trick asked of them, one of them being quite a graceful tumbler.

Mr. Harry Allister, another newcomer, is responsible for a number of impersonations of past and present European celebrities. King Edward, President Fallières, Beaconsfield, and Gladstone are among the most successful realisations, and generous applause is bestowed on the more striking portraits. We have few comedy bar acts; and for one of the best we have to thank the Brothers Artois, who have a delightfully easy way of extracting laughter and at the same time winning applause. M. Rudinoff is no stranger to London, and his pictures in smoke betray rare artistic faculties and no little humour. The beautiful effects of Electra still excite wonder nightly; and Signorina Bordin wins admiration for her fine dancing in The Queen of Spades, a most attractive ballet.

ballet. Mr. Franco Piper juggles with a number of banjos, on which instrument he is facile princeps. On a half a dozen instruments spinning round he also keeps a tune going. Such trick playing cannot be imitated easily.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

On Monday evening a long and varied programme of great excellence was submitted to the patrons of this handsome hall, and was enthusiastically received. Miss Kate Carney made a very welcome reappearance, and sang her well-written songs in her own taking manner. After being warmly applauded in "I'm coming back, love" and "You don't want me," she concluded with the ever-popular Liza Johnson scena, in which she was ably assisted by a large number of auxiliaries, who worked with such goodwill and success as to ensure many recalls. Mr. Frank Couch, patter comedian, was well received; Miss Addie Dorina gave some excellent impersonations, which were warmly recognised for their fidelity and smartness. Dutch Daly, with his concertina, was greeted as an old friend, his quaint patter being duly laughed at and his really remarkable concertina-playing being rewarded with unstinted applause. Max Gruber and Miss Adelina's elephant and horse and pony performances reflect equal credit on creature and trainer. The animals rank among the most wonderful of their kind.

The Brothers Narow give a smart exhibition of their skill as comedy cyclists, and were very popular; Mr. Charles Robinson, who is the fortunate possessor of a good baritone voice, sang well, and was warmly applauded. Miss Lil Hawthorne was enthusiastically greeted in her latest songs, "Mary is a grand old name," "Bye-bye, my sailor boy," and "My castle in Spain." This clever artist looked very attractive in her handsome and costly dresses. Terry and Lambert appeared with great credit to themselves, and much pleasure to the audience in some clever character impersonations, including The Lady and the Cabby, A Lancashire Lass and Lad, English Lord and American Heiress, and Bowery Boy and Girl. This was a very clever and enjoyable turn. The American Bioscope is always an interesting feature of the programme here. On the night of our visit the subject was A Case of Arson; or, the Woodcutters, illustrated by very fine and clear pictures. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Louis La Rondelle, played a selection from Carmen in capital style, and the comfort of visitors was well looked after by the popular manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen.

THE SURREY.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten and his efficient and courteous lieutenant, Mr. Charles Craig, are to be congratulated on having gauged so accurately the tastes of the audiences that "twice nightly" pack every part of this popular South-side house. The programme last week was full of variety, and included the strong and absorbing dramatic episode by Sydney Mason, entitled The Crimson Blind, which tells the story of a man's downfall through a woman's wiles. As the half demented Robert Bruce, Mr. Mason attains to a high standard of dramatic power, and gives a performance that is marked by vigour and intensity. As the bad but bewitching decoy, Pauline Du Voy, Miss Theresa Moore does not spare herself, and in the final struggle for her life with the maniac, her dramatic and physical powers are taxed to the utmost. Mr. Syd Leslie as the roué Stanley Ganger, and Mr. H. E. Scott as the Detective are decidedly good, while the other parts are well sustained by Mr. George Bendon as the Jew, and Mr. Basil Reynolds as Richard Danvers. The pretty seaside scena presented by Gipsy Woolf and her Six Sunbeams, entitled The Mermaid of Margate is greatly enjoyed. Miss Woolf assumes the title-rôle in a manner that is throughout fascinating. The action of the pretty scena is interspersed by some charming songs and dances admirably rendered by Gipsy Woolf and her confrères. Tuneful and dainty are her songs, "The sea shell" and "The pier parade," in which she receives loyal assistance both in song and dance from her six merry Sunbeams. The whole production is beautifully staged and dressed. Much fun and laughter is provoked by Mr. Arnold Richardson and Flockton Foster's sketch company in the absurdity Ferdie's "Ma-in-law."

Mr. Harry Champion creates screams of merriment with his new songs, "My wife's pussy cat" and "Out went the gas," which had to be supplemented by his old favourite, "What a mouth," and even then the delighted audience were loth to part with the popular comedian. Clever, skilful, and daring are the five pretty Sisters Warwick in their trick cycling entertainment, and their unique performance well merits the warm applause bestowed on their efforts. Edwards and Dacre keep the house in a roar of laughter in their amusing duologue, What a Life, their quick changes, no less than their humour, winning them a series of enthusiastic recalls. Others who contribute to the evening's enjoyment are Jessie Star, a Scotch lassie; Odeyne Spark, a chic and gifted young comedienne; King Leo and his vivacious doll Jerry in their ventriloquial entertainment; the Ralston Boys in their Coster duets; and Raymond's animated pictures. Mr. Rattray and his orchestra do yeoman service in making the Surrey entertainment bright and sparkling.

THE EMPRESS.

A most interesting programme is being presented here this week, and standing room is at a premium. Little Tich, who is at the top of the bill, is undoubtedly the great attraction, and it is quite easy to see, by the torrent of applause that breaks out when his number is signalled, that he is a great favourite with Brixtonites. His first incentive to mirth is provided in the song, "He's only just found it out," and the patter which he introduces fairly convulses the house. For his second effusion the little comedian sings a ditty about taking his wife to a bargain sale, and in response to undeniable demands for an encore obliges with "Little Miss Turpentine." Miss Clarice Mayne, the clever mimic, is one of the successes of the evening, the way in which she portrays each different artist, including Connie Ediss, Vesta Tilley, Victoria Monks, and Camille Clifford, showing that she has made a very close study of her subjects. Her pianist also lends her great assistance, proving himself to be a very funny fellow.

Miss Constance Mori sings and dances in delightful manner, and completely succeeds in winning the favour of the house. Manson and West are exploiting a funny little sketch, entitled Telling the Tale, which goes with a swing from start to finish. A husband who returns home late at night, after dining not wisely but too well, is taken to task by his wife, who demands an explanation. The delinquent proceeds in a humorous manner to relate his experiences, but is not quite successful in disarming suspicion. On his promising to give up his bad habits, however, the wife agrees to overlook the past, and everything ends felicitously.

Miss Billie Barlow, the popular comedienne, is scoring heavily in a number entitled "Nursey." Dressed as a Red Cross sister, she introduces some very clever patter, and makes fun of several individual members of the audience, to the great amusement of all. Dan Crawley, a real Brixton favourite, is well to the fore with a couple of capital numbers, that entitled "Next Sunday morning" proving most acceptable. The Brothers Adderley, in their comedietta, An Officer's Servant, provide a clever and interesting turn; Duncan and Godfrey, in their new domestic episode, Me and 'Er and the Baby, meet with their usual flattering reception; Miss Daisy Stratton, a dainty comedienne, sings and dances in an acceptable manner; and Mr. Harry Bastow sings a couple of amusing songs. The Five Merry Maids have a very taking Dutch song, which is accompanied by some smart sabot dancing; Nellie Laurence is the possessor of a unique voice, and her dancing is original; Eddie Comet, described on the programme as a soothsayer, is well named, his turn being much appreciated. Fred Eustace and Co. are presenting their sketch, entitled La Belle Parisienne, which is meeting with its accustomed success, and a most enjoyable evening ends with some amusing pictures on the Bioscope. Mr. Nelson Francis and his able lieutenant, Mr. Francis Winchcombe, discharge their duties in a manner that calls for much praise.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

Last week's bill at this popular hall was as diversified as could well be imagined. Mariedl, the Tyrolean Giantess, tops the bill, and the sight of her huge proportions fills the house with wonder and amusement. Will H. Fox, eschewing the make-up with which he originated his business, and appearing now in a smart and effective attire, displays his ability at the piano, and tells anecdotes with all his old success. Lizzie Fletcher, in a ballad, does very well, and gains a cordial reception. Lily Langtry, as lively as ever, rattles through two songs, "My birthday" and "On the ocean," and finishes with a smart dance, her turn gaining much applause. Sid Cotterell and company, in a comedy sketch, The Substitute, make a hit. The plot, quite irresponsible in nature, turns on the impersonation of a husband by a servant in bed during the evening, to disguise the fact that his master has gone out for the night. The consequences are ludicrous, of course, and Mr. Cotterell, who works hard, and the lady and gentleman who support him, make a good impression. The Andos Troupe of happy little Japs, an acrobatic combination, present a most excellent show. Their feats, which are most daring, are most smartly performed, particular mention being called for in the case of the younger members of the troupe. The act is greeted with loud applause. A very clever juggling performance is presented by Selma Braatz, a most accomplished young lady. Her juggling with tennis balls, billiard balls, cues, tall hats, umbrellas, &c., is quite remarkable, and the whole show, in which another lady shared, fully deserved the applause with which it was greeted, three curtains being insisted upon. Arthur Lennard is also in the bill, and gives three songs, "When the summer breezes blow," "What he called her then," and "A story about a cigar"; all three seemed to hit the taste of the audience, and his reception was very cordial. The star turn of the week is the appearance of Messrs. Jackson and McLaren, the champion tree-fellers of the world. Their exhibition of skill and strength is certainly phenomenal, the speed with which they can manipulate the double saw being something to witness. The two men had a contest in wood-cutting, both logs being severed within a second of each other. Needless to say, the show was watched with the greatest interest, and additional attraction will be lent to the turn by a contest which has been arranged on Friday with two Epping woodmen, the contest being under the patronage of many prominent gentlemen in the neighbourhood. The American Bioscope is very interesting this week, depicting incidents in the Dieppe Motor Race. Mr. Walter Johnston's orchestra is again excellent. Business continues very good here.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

A capital programme was placed before the patrons of the Islington Empire last week, and was admirably supported by a large audience at each performance. First and foremost on the bill were Mr. Lew Lake and his company of comedians in the ever-popular sketch, My Pal Jerry. In this piece comedy and pathos are mixed in a manner which is always appreciated. The laughter-provoking element is well to the fore in the earlier portion of the playlet, and right well do the members of this clever troupe acquit themselves. The two characters, Jerry and Nobbler, are played in a manner which calls forth hearty screams of merriment at every turn. In the latter portions of the sketch, when pathos takes the place of humour, the parts of Jerry and Nobbler are enacted with sincerity and feeling, and the contrast is very noticeable. This clever little comedy drama is received with much appreciation, and if tears and hearty laughter are a sign of success, this piece has certainly attained that end.

Mr. Harry Conlin sang in capital style "It belongs to someone else, not me," and found favour with his second contribution, "I'm not going to play any longer." Much praise is due to Little Cliff, who sings and dances in a manner entirely his own. In his song he gave full evidence of how various people would sit on a tin tack, and was most amusing. His dancing was neatly executed without the very useful assistance of the orchestra. Herbert La Martine, another clever dancer, rendered admirable service during the evening, and was much appreciated. It has been proved over and over again that cleverness is not solely confined to human beings, but is sometimes shared by animals and displayed in their intelligence. This is testified in the performance of Professor Duncan's collies. Their ability is truly marvellous, and reflects much credit upon their trainer, who has attained for his animals a state of efficiency in their work which is seldom equalled, and is certainly never surpassed. Mr. Bert Williams does much to enliven the proceedings of the evening with his ventriloquial performance. By his efforts his figures cause considerable amusement, the dialogue is entertaining, and his turn meets with due appreciation. Bonnie Goodwin and her clever little darkies are a decided acquisition to the programme. The youngsters neatly and cleverly execute several difficult dances, and are again and again called to the front to either repeat their success or bow their acknowledgment. Some interesting pictures are shown by the Imperial Bioscope, chief amongst them being The Magic Ring and The Stolen Pig.

THE GRAND, CLAPHAM.

A most attractive programme was arranged here last week, and was received with every expression of satisfaction. The honour of starting the evening's entertainment was allotted to Bliss and Bliss, a couple of capable comedians, who soon succeed in putting the house on the best of terms with them. Their "crosstalk" and patter are up-to-date and funny, and roars of laughter greet their many little jokelets, the purveyor of comedy especially being the possessor of very keen humour. They bring their turn to a conclusion with some neat dancing, and have many times to bow their acknowledgments. John Lawson, supported by a most able company, is again presenting here his well-known sketch, entitled Sally in our Alley, which is most lavishly mounted. It is going as well as ever, and is repeating its former successes. John Lawson, as the reformer, is the recipient of much applause. The twin sisters Anderson prove themselves a couple of capable exponents of the art of Terpsichore. Their skipping dance is both clever and original, and they are many times recalled. A prominent feature of the programme is the bioscope which we are pleased to see is definitely removed from the unfortunate position of "last turn." A most clever, interesting, and amusing series is being shown, that entitled The Grafter, an American picture, convulses the house with laughter. Another number which stands out prominently is that of the Gotham Comedy Quartet, whose efforts to amuse are most successful. They are all the lucky possessors of very fine voices, and from the moment of their entry to their departure fairly succeed in holding the house. Whilst they are in possession of the stage the fun waxes fast and furious, their many comicalities being greatly to the liking of the audience. A more interesting, yet refined entertainment, could not be wished for, and on concluding they are the recipients of terrific applause. A novel item is that of "Pilu," the thinking dog. It shows what wonderful sagacity these animals possess, and what a length of time must have been spent on the training of the one exhibited. Will Johnson, a comedian, has a very funny number, entitled "I did enjoy myself last night," and the hearty laughter it caused showed that the house enjoyed the ditty also. His manner of rendering it was excellent, and on concluding he had to listen to loud and prolonged applause. Demands were made for an encore, but unfortunately the length of the bill rendered this absolutely impossible. The Resuas Trio prove themselves a most versatile trio. One of the lady members is a wonderful wire-walker, and her many tricks are neatly executed. The male member also does many clever things, and on concluding the house rewards him in the most liberal manner. Sylvia Cavalho and company are here with their dramatic episode entitled Lulu, which is achieving the success it deserves. The orchestra plays admirably, and by their attention to the incidental music considerably enhances the evening's enjoyment. Mr. Harry Ketteman, the popular manager, is "au fait" at his duties in the front of the house.

ROYAL ALBERT.

An important item in the liberal programme provided at Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt's popular establishment, and one that proves greatly to the liking of Canning Town amusement-seekers, is the production of a melodramatic sketch by Mr. Howell Webb and company, entitled The Convent Bell. The cast is not published on the bill, and the hard-working artists are deprived of individual mention, which is to be regretted, as all work loyally, and fully deserve detailed notice. The story of The Convent Bell is thrilling in itself, and is cleverly unfolded in three scenes, in the first of which an old Colonel is done to death by the unscrupulous villain, and many exciting scenes follow. The part of the bold, bad man is admirably played by (presumably) Mr. Howell Webb himself, and the actor gives a very fine study of cold, calculating villainy. The piece is handsomely mounted, and the ingenious device by which the convent bell is made use of as a post-office in which the distracted heroine places a message unmasking the villain and compassing his exposure, is worked up with telling effect.

In the "variety" department proper the programme is such as to ensure popular favour. Mi Narom is a comedienne with plenty of talent at her command; the Danbys, in the now familiar persons of "Weary Willie" and "Tired Tim"—an excellent make-up in both cases—sing with an amusing assumption of laziness and dance marvellously well, their turn being one of the most loudly applauded of the evening. Miss Ruby Parsonage, a clever comedienne, is well received; Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard are highly amusing in a comedy sketch, Coming Home, and the acting of the pair is rewarded with the loud laughter it richly deserves. Mr. Charles Denton's comicalities are thoroughly enjoyed; and Duavolo and Miss Luna certainly deserve their description as marvellous contortionists.

Mr. Gus Hindell is a great favourite in his scena, Boys will be Boys, and his contribution is one of the most successful of the evening. Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope enlivens the house with some admirably devised films capitally displayed, and this extremely popular form of present-day amusement is likely to hold its own while Walter Payne continues to put such good pictures before the public. The orchestra is under the spirited lead of Mr. J. Stark.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

If proof were needed of the continued, not to say ever-increasing, popularity of the house so admirably managed by Mr. Arthur J. Barclay, one had only to look in at any performance during the week, and he will find his answer. Crowded and enthusiastic audiences assemble nightly to enjoy the capital programme provided, and so varied and attractive is the fare presented that he would be a strange amusement-seeker who went away without having found something to suit his particular taste. But even in the best of general programmes there is usually one attraction standing out with exceptional prominence, and this week here that enviable position is certainly occupied by Mr. Phil Ray. The "abbreviating comedian," who, however, does not make quite such a feature of his "abbrevs." as on former occasions, is irresistibly comic and thoroughly artistic in all he contributes to the hilarity of his hearers. His song about what happened at ten-past-ten is received with a roar, and his subsequent efforts in no way fall short.

Miss Flo Challis is a charming comedienne who is satisfied with "impressions" of various styles of acting and singing, covering such a diversity of art as that from an Italian bravura singer down to the "coon," graduating through Svengali and a French tragedienne. She is exceedingly clever in all. Immediately following the imitation coon we have the recognised article in the person of Mr. Thos. E. Finglas, who sings, "I'm the black sheep of the family" in fine style, and dances with exceptional lightness and not a little grace. Maxey and Pete are a couple of comedy cyclists who do wonders with their wheeled machines to the manifest delight of the spectators. One of the neatest of the great army of jugglers seen here lately is Mr. Paul Vandy, who, in easy manner, carries off the most difficult feat. Mr. Vandy succeeds in making his audience laugh almost as frequently as he forces them to applaud. A very pretty turn is that of Miss Isabella Dillon, who sings charmingly "I'll be your gollywog" and a very pretty song with graceful dance, "Pansy." In both of these Miss Dillon is assisted by a clever little girl, whose dancing is very neat. Mr. Harry Claff and Miss Molly Maguire appear with great success in The Demon and the Fairy, an amusing burlesque of the demon of pantomime and the good fairy. Many of the lines are very smart, and the whole is written and acted in the true spirit of travesty. Mr. Claff made himself popular in Walthamstow a few years ago in another line of entertainment, and his fine baritone voice has lost nothing of its power in the interim. Miss Maguire is a dainty fairy, and her singing is quite brilliant, particularly her song of "The fairy wand." The chief lady attraction of the programme is undoubtedly Miss Annie Purcell, a refined and delightful comedienne, who, if we mistake not, makes her first bow to local audiences on this occasion. In her pretty costume, and carrying her milk-pails as to the manner born, Miss Purcell impersonates a Welsh dairymaid and warbles "On the Isle of Angelsey" in such a manner as to make everyone wish to fly to North Wales and imbibe milk. The singer is no less successful with her pretty rendering of "In the valleys of Switzerland," achieving an unusual geographical combination. The applause that finally rewarded the lady should make her not unwilling to renew her acquaintance with her new public, who will be delighted to see her again. The sketch of the week is that interesting protean entertainment, Dan, the Outlaw, in which Mr. Herbert Shelley sustains all the characters, with the exception of one—which is ably portrayed by a young lady—himself. As a quick-change artist Mr. Shelley would take some beating, and his Wolf Mooroo, Dominie Corrigan, Bob Barnstable, The Banshee, and Dan Shannon are all equally good, and prove him to be an actor of power and versatility. There is some agreeable music by Stephen R. Philpot. The costumes by Harrison and Clarkson are highly effective. The little piece is vehemently applauded throughout. Some excellent films by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope complete a programme which is delightfully introduced by a brilliant performance of the overture of Rossini's La Gazza Ladra by the Orchestra, under the skilful direction of Mr. H. Petersen. Mr. Geo. F. Slatter is indefatigable and successful in his efforts to make the patrons of the house comfortable. Mr. Joseph Grant's stage-management remains irreproachable.

THE BALHAM EMPIRE.

A period of prosperity seems to have been entered upon by the Balham Empire, which, after a chequered career during which both the legitimate drama and variety have been tried with indifferent success, has now been turned to the purposes of moving pictures. Cinematography has obtained such a firm hold upon the public that it is now possible to entertain an audience with a programme composed wholly of pictures, and the enterprise of the British Cinema Co., Ltd., who are running the Empire on the two-houses-a-night principle, is being liberally supported in Balham. The entertainment embraces a dozen or so of pictures, with two or three phonograph selections thrown in, and the fact that the films are supplied by the firm of Pathé Frères, of Charing Cross-road, is sufficient guarantee of their excellence. The tour de force of the current series of pictures, a complete change of which is made every week, is the representation of a man hunt by the police dogs of Paris. The sight of the sagacious animals hot upon the scent of the flying criminals and pursuing them over hill and down dale, through dense thickets, by river and bridge, and finally running them to earth in an old house is very thrilling, and the audience grow as excited as if they were witnessing the actual occurrence.

Humour is abundantly provided in another selection, in which a tramp, who has saved a pedestrian from the clutches of garrotters in Paris, and receives a $100 banknote for reward, is pictured in a determined endeavour to change the note, in the course of which he is twice "run in" by the police. The episode is admirably done, the chief character being capitally acted. Fun also comes of the abortive efforts of an individual to escape from an armchair in which he has become firmly fixed. After many misadventures, the prisoner is eventually released by means of a bomb, which blows him up to the clouds, only to fall back again into the arms of the fatal chair. A journey round a star provides further amusement; angling in Norway reveals the ingenious methods of fishing adopted on the frozen water; interesting views of Rome ancient and modern are shown in The Eternal City; and an illustration of life on board a man-of-war is among the series of judiciously assorted pictures. The hall has been tastefully redecorated, and an excellent orchestra supplies tuneful selections in the course of the display.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

There is a profusion of good things at Mr. Geo. Dance's theatre here this week, and this, combined with the uncertain meteorological conditions, has resulted in huge audiences, who have been sent away delighted. The rattling overture march, "The Grotto," gives way to Miss Crissie Thompson, who wins the immediate favour of the audience, her success being won by a really artistic interpretation of the song, "When you know you're not forgotten by the girl you can't forget." We are inclined to think the little lady will long be remembered by Richmond audiences judged by the reception accorded her. Equally good was the vocalisation of Mr. George Adams. He was heard to perfection in the ballad, "The light-house tower."

Mr. George Carroll and his company made as much fun as possible out of their sketch, The Biter Bit. Perhaps the greatest hit of the evening was scored by McLean and Beaumont, The Coster and the Flower-Girl—quite a strong dramatic effort, admirably played. Miss Beaumont as Nell was wonderfully good, and held the audience by a fine bit of emotional acting; the coster of Mr. McLean was also clever, and the interest maintained to the end. Miss Rita Rhyle sang pleasingly of "Pansies," and danced prettily, winning favour by her daintiness and charm.

The humours of the evening were lavishly supplied by Messrs. Barrett and Knowles. Nothing could have been funnier than the drolleries and repartee of this particularly funny pair, and the house screamed with merriment. The Shirley comedians got a lot of amusement—as did the audience—out of The First Night, by Chas. Baldwin, which well serves its purpose as a mirth creator. A clever conjuring and hypnotic turn not in the bill won unmistakable recognition. The Bioscope presents The Magnetic Man. Mr. E. J. MacDermott has charge of the front of the house, and is making quite a host of friends by his unfailing courtesy.

PIRATES PROSECUTED.

At the Bristol Police-court on the 21st ult., before Messrs. E. J. Thatcher and T. J. Lennard, Herbert Smith (17) was charged with having in his possession a quantity of music which infringed the Copyright Act.

Detective Fry proved the arrest, and said he was on duty at Temple Meads Station, when he saw the accused come from the parcels office carrying a bundle beneath his arm. He appeared to notice witness and his companion, and started to run down the station road towards Victoria-street, where they overtook him, asking why he was running away, who he was, and what he had under his arm. He replied that his name was Herbert Smith, and that he was carrying some music, but did not explain the reason of his hasty flight. When asked if the music he had was pirated he made no reply, and was then taken to the station. In reply to the charge, he said, "I shan't give anyone away. I was a mug to start." He refused to give any address, or to say where he got the music from. Further enquiries were made by the police, and as a consequence they went to a house, No. 146, York-road, Bedminster, where they found prisoner had been living with a comrade named Jacks. On searching the house they found between 400 and 500 pieces of pirated music intermixed with some genuine copies. They found more in the sitting-room, and altogether about 2,000 pieces in the house. The packet of music they found on prisoner when he was arrested was addressed to "H. Blyth, Parcels Office, G.W.R., Bristol."

Mr. Arthur Preston, chief agent for the Music Publishers' Association, Queen's Hall, London, said he had examined the music discovered in prisoner's bundle, and found the pieces were all infringements of copyrights. The Association had had serious complaints in regard to the prisoner and a youth whose company he generally kept. They travelled from place to place in the country, and were very elusive, causing the Association great trouble to trace them. The accused was an experienced man in the trade, and doubtless knew, if he cared to tell, who published the pirated music he sold. Such men were the ruin of the legitimate publishers' business.

Accused pleaded guilty to the charge, and said he was a licensed hawker. He denied that he had ever seen Mr. Preston before, or caused any such trouble as alleged by that gentleman.

The Magistrates' Clerk (Mr. Gore) asked him if he had any means if he had to meet a fine. Prisoner replied that he had £2 in the Post Office Bank, whilst they could levy on his bicycle, which he valued at £8 15s.

The police said they believed that the bicycle was bought on the instalment plan, and they did not know if it were fully paid for yet.

The Magistrates decided to remand prisoner, that the police might make some enquiries as to his antecedents.

At the Bristol Police-court on the 22nd, David Myres, aged 42, of Newfoundland-road, was charged with having 308 pieces of pirated music in his possession. Detective Fry deposed to arresting the prisoner when he had the parcel of songs under his arm. It was addressed to a Mr. Kemp, at the address of the defendant Myres. This man, Mr. Preston, chief agent for the Music Publishers' Association, told the magistrates, had a telegraphic address at Bridgwater, but it seemed he lived at Walcot-street, Newfoundland-road. He had evidently been in the habit of having pirated music sent to Myres's house under the name of Kemp, so as to throw suspicion off himself. A letter was found on Myres from a person signing himself "Chicago Bill," stating that things were rather difficult in London, but they were doing the best they could for him. The prisoner was remanded

The chairman of the Blackpool Bench (Mr. Thos. Donnelly), on the 21st inst., declined to adjudicate in a pirated music case after a suggestion by the defendant's solicitor that he was interested against such music.

Subsequently 660 pirated copies, discovered by Inspector Drabble between the mattress and bed used by the defendant, were confiscated. The defendant, Albert Steele, was fined £2 and costs.

The Chief Constable produced a large quantity of cards found on defendant's premises, and used to advertise alleged boys' brigades at Nottingham and Glasgow, which the Chief Constable described as a swindle.

NEW PETERBOROUGH HIPPODROME.

Mr. Sylvester has just completed the erection of a hippodrome at Peterborough. He has selected a capital site on the Broadway, next the Cattle Market, nearly opposite the Public Free Library, and close to the Theatre Royal. The building, which is thoroughly up to date, has a somewhat imposing appearance externally, while it is admirably fitted up inside. There is a gallery and dress circle and pit and orchestra stalls on the ground floor, the latter upholstered in red velveteen. The stage is a large one, and behind are some capital dressing-rooms. The building is 100ft. in length, 50ft. wide, and 30ft. high. It has been designed by Mr. Woodhouse, of Nottingham, the builder being Mr. Hy. Watson, of Peterborough, and the contract about £3000. Mr. Mason is acting-manager.

Arrangements had been made to open on the 26th ult., and the event was widely boomed, and excited great public interest. But the usual fortnight's notice had not been given to the Magistrates, and hereby hangs a tale. At the Petty Sessions on Wednesday week last Mr. W. A. Norris applied on behalf of Mr. Sylvester for a music, singing, and dancing licence for the Hippodrome, Broadway. Mr. Sylvester, he said, had had licences granted in a number of other towns, and, indeed, in no instance had he had one refused. They applied for a temporary licence, and in the interim the Magistrates would have an opportunity of seeing that the performances were of a proper nature. The land on which the Hippodrome had been erected was acquired from the Corporation after a great deal of consideration, and plans had been submitted, and upon the recommendation of the Corporation, altered so that the buildings had been erected under the supervision and approval of the Corporation. There had been a sum of £3000 spent on the building. The exits were very numerous, and the building was a very safe and suitable one for the purpose for which it was intended. The performances for the evening were to terminate at half-past ten, but occasionally they might last a little longer.

The Chief Constable offered no objection to the granting of a permanent licence at the proper date, but he objected to the granting of a temporary licence. Peterborough had done without that house of amusement until then, and there was no reason why the permanent licence should not be applied for at the proper time. Moreover, at the present time there were no fire appliances.

In reply to questions from the Bench Mr. Norris said the building was erected on a similar principle to those at several other places, except that at Peterborough stout brick walls had been erected instead of walls of corrugated iron. The ventilation was considered to be very good.

The Magistrates retired to consider the application, and on returning, after a quarter of an hour, the Chairman said they were unanimous in their opinion not to grant a temporary licence, but would defer the matter until Wednesday, Sept. 11. In the meantime, the Magistrates would take the opportunity to visit the place, and would do so on Monday, Sept 9, at what time would be convenient.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE fairs ahead for next week are:—Ardsley, on the Great Central; Chapel Town, on the Great Central; Blandford, on the Midland and South-Western; Glastonbury, on the Midland and South-Western; Holbeck, on the Great Northern, North-Eastern, Midland, and Lancashire and Yorkshire; Openshaw, on the Great Central; Oxford, on the Great Western, London and North-Western, Midland, and Metropolitan and District; Sandal Feast, Swinton, and Pendlebury, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Thorner, on the North-Eastern; Witton, on the London and North-Western and the Cheshire lines; Barnoldswick, on the Midland; Congresbury, on the Great Western; Broadway (Somerset), on the Great Western; Lambert Castle (Dorset); Buxton, on the London and North-Western and Midland; Morchard Bishop, on the London and South-Western; Wareham, on the London and South-Western; Swindon, on the Great Western; Tewkesbury, on the Midland; Batley, on the North-Western and Great Northern; Blackheath (Staffs), on the Great Western; Boston, on the Great Northern; Cromford, on the Midland; Wickworth, on the Midland; Woodthorpe, on the Midland; Blaenavon (Monmouth), on the Great Western and North-Western; and Neath, on the Great Western and Neath and Brecon railways.

Aylesbury.

DURING the latter part of last week a "Fun City" was held in the Market-square, under the management of that able caterer, Mr. Charles Thurston. Chief among the attractions were Messrs. Barker and Thurston's road-racing motor-cars, which is a most up-to-date machine; Mr. Charles Thurston's original Royal living picture exhibition, with the latest invention, the Cinematophone; and Braham's magic and performing bird show. The smaller attractions of the usual order were supplied by J. H. Norman, W. Westrop, and T. Irish, &c. On the Friday evening Mr. Charles Thurston kindly gave the motor-car machine over to the Town Council for an hour, when the proceeds were devoted to the Royal Bucks Hospital, and amounted to £3 15s. 6d. Good business was done throughout, especially on the Saturday, as the name of Thurston is a guarantee of "something good" in Aylesbury and district.

The White City, Old Trafford.

LAST Sunday about 600 of the staff were taken on two saloon trains from Manchester to Blackpool, where they spent a very pleasant day—assisted by the sun. Mr. John Calvin Brown (managing-director), Mr. Arthur Ellis (assistant-general-manager), and Major Crager (Hale's Tours) saw that everything was done to the satisfaction of everybody. Monday was a special day at this amusement park, and 67,430 persons passed the turnstiles. One extra attraction was the fine Band of the 15th Canadian Light Horse, who had been specially brought over to Dublin to play at the Exhibition there, and the White City management obtained permission to engage them for four days (Sept. 2 to 5). They could not be spared beyond Friday, on which day they are ordered to sail from Portsmouth home.

ZIPHO is still here in his "death-defying slide for life." The water pantomime, Gilleno's Circus, Hale's Tours, Figure 8 Railway, water-chutes, Simbri (the illusionist), Milton's Marionettes, Zingari Pierrots, and the many other shows and games are doing excellent business.

FOUR HUNDRED competitors entered for the £50 in prizes given on Wednesday evening in the fancy dress, &c., carnival. Competitors came from Liverpool, Chester, Crewe, Leicester, Leeds, and the surrounding district.

The Empire's Expert Fun Provider.

THE one and only C. B. Cochran, of the Fun City, Olympia, is now on his Continental travels, seeking for (and finding) startling novelties for the next "International Fairs" venture at the great south-western covered fair-ground, Olympia. We hear of him as being at Ostend, Brussels, Charleroi, Berlin, and Marienbad. We are waiting possible news of him at Vienna, Buda-Pesth, Moscow, Vladivostock, Tokio, 'Frisco, and Coney Island. He is the modern Mercury of the show world.

Wilmslow Wakes.

THIS charming suburb of Manchester had for its shows and novelties at its annual fair Manders's Star menagerie, J. Collins's motor-cars, Hibbert and Sons' steam horses, the up-to-date machines of Mr. Shuttleworth, including overboats, miniature motor-cars, and park swings, Sedgwick's shooting range, Rowley's bottle battery and variety frames, Cottam's and Johnson's football penalties, and all the fun of the fair by Messrs. Thomas, Griffin, Bennion, Cottam, and Rowley.

Honour in "His ain Countree."

COUNCILLOR G. T. TUBY, the famous Yorkshire showman and lessee of fairs and feasts, is a hard-working member of the Doncaster Town Council. The Sheffield Telegraph of Sept. 2 has the following interesting item of news about Mr. Tuby:—

"THE MAYORALTY OF DONCASTER.

"Nothing definite has been decided with respect to the incoming Mayor of Doncaster, and, as there are two aspirants to the office, complications are likely to ensue. The seniority principle has generally been acted on, and, if adhered to this year, Councillor G. T. Tuby would succeed to the chair; although Councillor E. Ellis has served in the Council for a longer period. Councillor Ellis was a member from 1891 to 1894, and was out for two years, but re-entered in November, 1896, being elected for the West Ward in the latter year. Councillor Tuby was elected for the St. George's Ward in March, 1896, and is thus the senior member by eight months in continuous and unbroken service. The whole question is likely to remain in abeyance until November."

We are quite certain that Councillor Tuby will bring distinction to the high office of Chief Magistrate of his native town, and that the whole showman world will unite in the pleasure of hailing him Mayor of Doncaster.

Notes from Wales.

AT Aberavon Fair, under H. Studt and Son's management, were Dooner's, Wadbrook's and Hagger's well-known cinematograph palaces and variety theatres, all of them in the highest rank of up-to-date completeness. The lessees, H. Studt and Son, exhibited switchback, motors, and ostriches, John Studt had a set of motors, the juvenile sets were by North, Butlin, and Matthews, swings by North and Winsper, shooting concerns by Fossett, J. North, Wm. North, and Danter, throwing games in great variety by J. Day, the North Family, and others. At Aberavon Fair the Vicar held a service for show-people and the visitors to the fair-ground. The choir marched in procession from the church to the ground robed in their surplices. The address, of a most impressive and helpful character, was given by the Vicar.

Gowerton Fair.

THIS is one of the famous Welsh flannel fairs—a native industry that Mr. H. Studt has been the means of reviving in the Principality. The rows of weavers' stalls and the brisk business done by the flannel weavers fully demonstrate the possibilities of home industries if only guided and fostered by the right people. Crowds of people attended the fair. H. Studt and Son provided a fine set of gondolas. The other concerns were Crecroft's bioscope, and the minor novelties—throwing games, shooters, &c.—were by Messrs. Jones, Taylor, Roberts, Boswell, Sims, and others.

CHESTER COUNTY BYE-LAWS.

The ways of corporations and public bodies are sometimes difficult to understand. As recently as March 14 last the County Council of Chester obtained a series of bye-laws dealing with the show business in their borders. These bye-laws were, however, upon the petition of the Guild, amended by the addition of a "saving clause," exempting fairs, feasts, festivals, and wakes from their power. Naturally showmen thought that for some time to come they would be permitted to carry on their business in peace, and that the County Council had done with restrictive bye-laws.

That, however, is not the case. Moved by the Wallasey District Council, we understand, the county authorities have sent up yet another set of bye-laws, containing bye-laws against street hawking, touting for customers, advertising, and keeping noisy animals; then, sandwiched in amongst these, is a bye-law which reads as follows:—

SHOOTING GALLERIES, &c

No person shall in any street or public place, or on any land adjoining or near thereto, keep or manage, or cause to be kept or managed, a shooting gallery, swing boat, roundabout, or any other construction of a like character, so as to cause obstruction or danger to the traffic in any such street or public place.

When we read into it, as we are bound to do, the annexed "interpretation," we can see at once that roundabouts, swings, and shooting galleries will be practically prohibited, or be at the mercy of any prejudiced objector, both at fair time and at private business. The definitions of a public place and a street are wide and all-embracing. They read as follows:—

INTERPRETATIONS.

"Street" means and includes a highway, any public bridge, and any road, lane, footpath, square, key, court, alley, or passage, whether a highway or not, to which the public have access.

"Public place" includes any common, park, pleasure ground, or roadside waste, to which the public have access.

There are, of course, the usual penalties:—

REGINALD POTTS,
Clerk to the Cheshire County Council.

Chester, Aug. 2, 1907.

The Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild have taken the matter up vigorously, and the following petition has been forwarded to the Home Office:—

Aug. 31, 1907.

SIR,—Your petitioners are showmen, and carry on their business at the fairs, feasts, wakes, and popular holiday resorts of the people. A bye-law (amongst others) has been made by the County Council of Chester, and sent to you for sanction. It is worded as follows:—

SHOOTING GALLERIES, &c.

No person shall, in any street or public place, or on any land adjoining or near thereto, keep or manage, or cause to be kept or managed, a shooting gallery, swing boat, roundabout, or any other construction of a like character, so as to cause obstruction or danger to traffic in any such street or public place.

Your petitioners respectfully submit that such a bye-law would seriously injure their business as providers of these and other kinds of popular open-air amusements at holiday resorts, at local wakes, and popular fairs. The danger to our trade is manifest when we read into the bye-law, the definitions of street and place annexed thereto. We submit that if sanctioned the bye-law would practically abolish our business, and would deprive the people of fair-ground entertainments in the parts of the county covered by it.

We therefore ask that you will amend the proposed bye-law by the addition of the following or similar words:—

"Provided always that such bye-law shall not apply to any fair, feast, festival, or wakes lawfully held."

This amendment will bring the bye-law into uniformity with the other bye-laws of the County Council that govern our business.

The Showmen's Guild, in whose name we speak, represents the greater body of the showmen of the United Kingdom. Whilst anxious to carry on our business, and to maintain an old British industry, we are also ready to co-operate with corporations and public bodies in all reasonable provisions for the public safety, and to eliminate all shows and entertainments of either a dangerous or undesirable character.

Submitting most respectfully these, our observations on the proposed bye-law—We remain, your obedient servants,

G. SANGER (President),
T. HORNE (Chaplain),
THOMAS HURST (Hon. Sec.).

On behalf of the Executive of the Showmen's Guild, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

Home Office,

BYE-LAWS—CHESHIRE.

SIR,—I am directed by the Secretary of State for the Home Department to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st ult.—I am, sir, your obedient servant,

M. D. CHALMERS.

The Hon. Chaplain and Organiser the Showmen's Guild.

If (as we have reason to believe) the initiative in this later edition of bye-laws is to be attributed to Wallasey local showmen have indeed a grievance.

Two Sessions of Parliament ago the Guild spent a large sum of money in preventing the District Council of Wallasey obtaining powers in a private Bill to make their own bye-laws. Wallasey knew that under the Corporations Act they could get all the bye-laws that justice and fair dealing entitled them to have by moving the County Council of Chester to make and submit them in the usual way. Subordinate authorities below the rank of boroughs or county councils can always petition the higher corporations to make bye-laws for them.

What the Guild Did.

The Showmen's Guild, in the interests of its members and local showmen like Mr. Ravenscroft, spent large sums of money in opposing the extraordinary powers clauses in that Bill. The opposition was successful, and the clauses were dropped.

Here in all reason the matter ought to have ended. The Wallasey Council, however, had not the grace to accept defeat. It set to work then to move the County Council, and the result we now see in the new bye-laws. Mainly aimed at the traders who have business premises on the shore at New Brighton. The Wallasey Council evidently intends to make New Brighton as deadly dull as possible, "for the voice of man must not be heard in its streets."

The showmen specifically oppose the one bye-law that refers to their business, but we confidently anticipate that the traders on the sands and on the sea-front at New Brighton will also make themselves heard on the question.

It has always been a glaring injustice to us that public bodies when they want to interfere with the all-too-scanty pleasures of the people do not have the courage of their convictions, and do not work in the open, but shelter themselves behind the clauses of private Bills.

Why Not Face Public Opinion?

It is because they fear it. It is because they know that, rightly appealed to, the people would not tolerate such gross interference with their liberties.

The Law and the People.

The Abolition of Fairs Act provides for a vote of the people being taken; hence despoilers of the people's pleasures do not like to use that Act, for fear the people might upset their secret schemes.

If they have a Bill in hand for public purposes they seize the opportunity and try and get secretly what they fear asking for openly. So, too, with bye-laws. All the powers that reasonably belong to public bodies are already theirs. If it is a parish council or a district council they can ask the county authorities to make suitable bye-laws for them.

Why—it may be asked—why is this not done?

It is because full public notice must be given to all the parties concerned. The Local Government Acts provide full machinery for testing the vote of the people; but these secret benefactors of the people dread all public notice of their reforming zeal, hence they slip these reforms of theirs into a private Bill, and unless they are discovered and their precious Bill is opposed the trick is done, and the people wake up to find some day that their ancient privileges have been taken from them by a private Act of Parliament, for which they will have to pay out of the rates.

This has happened over and over again in the bad old days before showmen were organised to defend their business and to act as guardians of the pleasures of the people.

We have no doubt but that a favourable reply will be given to the showmen's petition, and that the saving clause will be added to the bye-law in question.

NOTES FROM THE WEST.

Dartmouth Regatta and Fair last Aug. 29, 30, and 31 was again, from the showmen's point of view, a highly-successful affair, the helter-skelter lighthouse, under the able direction of Mr. W. Newman, being a sure money-getter. Messrs. W. C. and S. Hancock's magnificent Coliseum of varieties was by far the largest show on the ground, and received a very extensive patronage. The star attraction at this and preceding regattas was undoubtedly the clever dancing of Miss Sophie Jones, the champion baby clog-dancer in the West of England. Miss Sophie Jones, who appears at John Jones's theatre of varieties, evoked enthusiastic applause at each performance for her brilliant exhibition. Mr. A. R. Shaw, of the Church Army, has been with the travellers during the past three weeks, holding a school daily for the children in a booth kindly lent by Mr. Alf. Wright, of boxing fame. His attentions have been much appreciated by the travellers, and we understand that next year increased educational facilities will be offered to the children of travellers on the Western round.

THE GUILD AGENT FOR THE WEST DEFENDS SHOWS AND SHOWMEN.

Arising out of Dartmouth Fair, an anonymous attack was made on the showman avocation in life. The letter of attack appeared in the Western Morning News of Aug. 22, and is as follows:—

SHOWS ON TEIGNMOUTH DEN.

SIR,—Once more the rough element in Teignmouth have had their way, and during the progress of the regatta the shows, roundabouts, &c., have again been placed on the Den—thrice happily named spot!—immediately in front of the windows of the heavily-rated houses which stand there. I wonder if the District Council realise that in granting permission for the shows to come on the Den year after year they are literally killing the goose that lays the golden eggs? In this way: the value of the property round the Den must be deteriorating in consequence of the annoyance to which the tenants of these houses are subjected annually. This must have its effect in the future by reducing the rents, and naturally a lower rent roll will mean a lower sum to be paid in rates. The regatta committee will have to compensate the singers on the Den, who were not able to perform for two days. May I ask if they also propose to compensate the lodging-house keepers, who have lost a considerable amount of money in consequence of visitors leaving their houses on account of the rowdiness and noise which has taken place before their very doors? I do not suppose the committee will view this idea at all favourably, as last year they even attempted to wriggle out of paying a small sum to the Council for clearing up the Den! It is a significant fact that none of the members of the committee reside on the Den. This, of course, may mean nothing, but, on the other hand, it may mean—and explain—a very great deal.

I will conclude by asking one question. Is there another town in England that allows its principal pleasure-ground to be absolutely spoilt for at least six months in order to provide a certain class of the community with two days' so-called amusement?

A DEN RESIDENT.

Teignmouth, Aug. 21.

G. W. A. Norton, Esq., the hon. agent for the Showmen's Guild, took up the challenge in his usual able and vigorous style.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE WESTERN MORNING NEWS.

SIR,—"Den Resident's" growl anent the fair at Teignmouth hardly deserves a reply on account of his (or her) use of a pseudonym, but, on behalf of the showpeople, I should like to give "D. R." a few facts to consider and digest. "D. R." infers that the Den is happily named on account of the presence there of the shows and roundabouts. Now, the showpeople only visit the Den for a few days in each year, whereas "D. R." appears to live there. The inference is obvious.

It would probably surprise "D. R." if he knew the exorbitant rent charged for the use of the Den during the regatta. He could then hardly accuse the District Council of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs by allowing the shows, &c., to come there.

I can hardly credit "D. R's." concluding remarks that the Den is absolutely spoilt for at least six months after the fair has been there; but if it is, as he (or she) says, then all I can say is that it must be managed by a singularly incapable body of people.

To conclude, I can quite understand "D. R's." hyper-sensitive ear being offended by the sound of the people at play, but to interfere with the doctrine of "the greatest good for the greatest number" is selfishness. The travelling show is the poor man's theatre, and a very good theatre it is. Teignmouth Fair, to "D. R.," spells pandemonium; to thousands of others it means happy days. In this case the happiness of thousands is matched against the growls of a few.

GEOFFREY W. A. NORTON,
Hon. Member Showmen's Guild.

George Hotel, Brixham, S. Devon, Aug. 23.

MR. FRED LEWIS, the popular and energetic advance agent, is this season piloting through the Green Isle Buff Bill's Circus and Menagerie, and the tour may, with truth, be said to be a gigantic and unqualified success. Mr. Lewis's original and up-to-date style of booming the show is, without doubt, responsible for the business done, as in several towns visited he caused a perfect sensation, and succeeded in drawing packed houses. On Monday Sligo was visited, and two performances were given before appreciative and overcrowded audiences. Capt. William's performance in a lion's cage, assisted by a young lady, who danced an Irish jig, was enthusiastically received.

SOME SEASIDE SHOWS.

During our visits this year to British fairs, we rested for a pleasant hour or so at various seaside resorts. Some of these so-called resorts of pleasure have been deadly dull. So carefully have the local authorities provided for the select few, who are said to desire quietness at the sea, that the sea-front and the promenade have worn a perpetual garb of Sabbatical dulness, that fully explained the empty houses and the semi-bankrupt appearance of the shops. We are at a loss to understand the abiding force of the tradition that still hangs like a pall of deadly monotony over some seaside resorts (we will not curse them by name) that think it high-class and good form to taboo the open-air shows on the beach—the Christy minstrel, the pierrot, and the Punch and Judy man.

Our purpose in this short chronicle of seaside entertainments is to tell the good things and wise that municipal enterprise has encouraged for the joy and pleasure of the toilers from the cities at the sea.

Democratic Weston-on-the-Sea.

No seaside place in England has kept so well to the front as Weston-super-Mare. Within easy access to the toiling millions of Wales, with its great centres of life, like Cardiff, Newport, Merthyr, and the Ebbw and Rhondda Valleys, with Bristol its nearest great city on the same coast, and the towns of Somerset and Gloucester counties hard by, it is no wonder that Weston-super-Mare is the Mecca of the pilgrims of daily toil. It is no wonder that Tom, Dick, and Harry, with their wives, children, and sweethearts, go down to Weston for rest and change, and necessary recreation at the sea.

One Hundred Years Ago.

In 1819 a vivacious lady, Mrs. Piozzi, wrote an amusing letter of her experience at Weston. The letter is given in Mr. Ernest Baker's "First Guide" to Weston. The lady was struck by the out-of-the-world character of the village, and appreciated it. "This little place," she wrote, "is neither gay nor fashionable, yet full as an egg, insipid as the white on't, and dear as an Egg o' Penny. I enquir'd for Books, there were but Two in the Town was the reply . . . a Bible and a 'Paradise Lost.' . . . They were the best, however. No Market . . . but I don't care about that. When Miss Burney asked Omiah the Savage if he should like to go back to Otaheite, Yes, Miss, said he . . . No mutton there—no Coach—no Dish of Tea, no pretty Miss Horneck, good Air, good Sea, and very good Dog. . . . I happy at Otaheite. . . . My Taste and his are similar. . . . The Breezes here are most Salubrious; no Land nearer than North America, when we look down the Channel; and 'tis said that Sebastian Cabot used to stand where I sit now, and meditate his future Discoveries of Newfoundland." The sprightly authoress of this letter would not recognise the twentieth-century Weston, with its organised amusements, its many evidences of contact with the outside world, its fine streets and shops, and public buildings, and its motley throng of performers and people on the beach. Yet we may be sure from the tenour of her letter she would have been keenly interested in its modern features. When the desire for quiet and unconventionality became strong, she might find these away up the bay, where the beach remains now as it was in her day, where the comic judge, and the red-nosed policeman, and all the others who amuse the crowd by their eccentricities are never seen, and the only music is that of the surf on the sandy shore.

Then and Now—1819-1907.

In the first "Guide to Weston," printed in 1822, the village consisted of a main street, known as "The Street," now called High-street. This was made up of a straggling line of houses. Where the Great Western Station stands, and the residential inner circle of the town, as we know it now, stretches for nearly a mile, was in those early days marked on the map as Weston-super-Mare Moor.

It has been said that Weston is a place without a history. This, in one sense, is true, and the fact that they are not called upon to remodel ancient thoroughfares and adapt an old town to the conditions of modern life has left the governing authorities free to carry out important schemes without heavily burdening the ratepayers. We find it difficult even to imagine Weston without its Marine Parade, extending from the Sanatorium, at the extreme south, to the Birnbeck Pier, at the northern end.

It was no light task to form a broad walk round this length of coast, for, placid as the sea under the summer sun, there are periods when it is seen in a vastly different mood, and when, impelled by Atlantic gales, it rolls in and breaks with the force of a battering ram against the rampart of masonry guarding the Parade. To visitors such occasions are full of interest, and rough weather at time of high tide brings crowds to watch the foaming billows dash against the rocks of Anchor Head, or become transformed into a tall column of spray, when, with a mighty thud, a mass of water finds itself stopped by the sea wall. Weston Marine Parade is one of the finest in England; it cost over £30,000, and while in the one direction the walk or drive may be prolonged to Uphill, in the other is found the pleasant route through the woods to Kewstoke. It is scarcely necessary to describe in detail other features of the modern town—the fine baths at Knightstone and the Pavilion, where frequent musical and theatrical performances occur; the two piers; the beautifully laid-out parks; the Town Hall, with its turret clock; the public library and museum on the Boulevard, erected as a public memorial to Queen Victoria at a cost of £3,400.

How the People Use It.

The secret of its popularity lies in the thoroughly up-to-date business enterprise of its public men. All classes in the community are liberally catered for, the town well advertised. Railway facilities are quick and cheap; you can spend a week-end at Weston, and be back in town for business Monday morning.

The influx of visitors at holiday times is enormous. We made diligent enquiries, and the following was the official reply:—"We had nearly 45,000 here last August Bank Holiday; 24,000 came at Easter of the present year; about 35,000 at Whitsuntide. Our normal population is 23,000, but in a good July or August it rises to 50,000, and although lately the vagaries of climate have kept people at home, we are looking to an influx quite up to the average, for the merits of Weston-super-Mare are now much more widely known than formerly."

The Principal Outside Shows.

The Welsh gate of Weston is the Birnbeck Pier. Here all the steamers land their passengers; here at the end of the day must all sea-borne travellers come. Birnbeck Pier is really an arm of the land stretching out to the Channel, and then lengthened out for landing-stage purposes.

On this pier are all the concomitants of an up-to-date fair, chiefly provided by the London Amusements Co. (Mr. Irish, manager), a syndicate of capable showmen. Their capital exhibits include the water chute, the hurry-skurry, the maze, shooting range, six throwing games, and ring and dart boards; there is a switchback railway (manager, Mr. Mayne), flying ships in the air (manager Mr. S. H. Just), and a shooting jungle. There are toboggan slides, skittle alleys, gyrating tops, bicycle competition games. Mr. Jones (who has been seventeen years on this pier) exhibits throwing games, swings, photo. saloon, and other novelties. There are stalls for toys, jewellery, and curios; the Hungarian Band discourses sweet and popular music all day long; in fact, Birnbeck is so attractive that it is often said of it, people land there, and are so delighted with its multiform attractions, they never leave it until the last boat home at night. There is all the fun of the fair at Birnbeck, and the sea breezes to temper all excessive exuberance of gaiety.

On the Sea Front.

The Knightstone Rock is the next landmark in showland, on the long promenade. Here the Pavilion Theatre has the best seaside touring companies on the road. From the Knightstone to the Grand Pier is the next stage. The star attraction is Kandt's celebrated band. In the Bijou Theatre of this pier some of the most celebrated pierrot and variety concert combinations may be heard during the season. Here, too, come theatrical companies, and there is, of course, a cinématograph annexe, always showing the best films.

The Fair Ground on the Sands.

The chief centre of life is the vast, smooth carpet of the glorious sands. In the actual central spot of the three-mile stretch of sea-front, are scores of stalls, hundreds of donkeys and ponies, rows of refreshment booths and ice-cream barrows, soda fountains, gingerbread and toffee stalls. Prominent amongst the popular caterers of the people's necessities we noticed the local firms of Counsel, Jackson, Porter, Hurman, Doughty, and Sirvey. There were the usual photo. saloons and penny-in-the-slot novelties.

The Shows—the Entertainers.

Ye Ancient Tragedie of Punch and Judy was given in splendid style by Prof. Maggs, of Bristol, and well deserved the patronage the show obtained.

The White Coons, under Mr. Walter Judge's capable direction, were immensely popular. The combination at the time of our visit was a very strong one, and included, besides Mr. Judge, Fred Terry, J. Temple, Percy Pope, Dave Anderson, Sam Elton, Phil Inglis, Jim Bagley, and Joe Perry.

The New Boys, another powerful combination of al fresco entertainers, under the direction of Mr. Cecil Howorth, gave delightful performances on their portable stage on the sands. The company included Harry Taylor, Tom Ashby, Charles May, Fred King, Lester Allen, Arthur Williams, Bert Norman, Charles Goodman, and R. A. Hopkins. Here, again, the special features of the show were the up-to-date and refined numbers, the vocal and dramatic ability in the single turns, and the humorous short sketches.

We know no seaside resort (except and only Blackpool) where the democratic penny is better catered for than it is at Weston-super-Mare, and to a town-sick pilgrim seeking health and diversion, we say take train to Weston-by-the-Sea.

Delightful Eastbourne.

Between Eastbourne and Weston-super-Mare the contrast is so great that any attempt to compare the two would be captious criticism. The majestic dignity of its Grand Parade, the giant heights of Beachy Head at one end of its magnificent bay and Pevensey at the other, make Eastbourne the finest sea front from Southend to Brighton. There can be no doubt about the ever-increasing popularity of Eastbourne, and as yet we can see no sign of its rapid expansion reaching its natural limit.

Cosmopolitan Eastbourne.

All nations foregather at Eastbourne—all sorts and conditions of people as well as all nationalities. Here the classes on the Western Lawns. Here the masses at the old Redoubt and on the Royal Parade gather and move in their separate and distinct orbits. Then the two streams of life meet and for a time mix at the pier concerts, the Pier Theatre, or in the Cavendish Gardens, only to separate most politely (for decorous manner is the keynote of Eastbourne life)—the democracy to the left hand and the aristocracy to the right. Glorious sea, perfect promenade, delightful music by excellent bands provided by the municipality. "Oh, no, sir. You cannot buy a sandwich, you cannot buy winkles or oysters or any such thing on the Front at Eastbourne." Neither are you tempted to buy the "best shilling dinner," or "a cut from the joint with two vegetables at ninepence." No one buttonholes you to have your photo taken, or to step inside, "our sale is about to begin." All shouting or touting or hawking or crying wares are strictly confined to the side streets or the back streets. The Grand Parade, the Royal Parade, and the Western Lawns are strictly preserved from all ad populum appeals. Eminently prim and eminently polite and proper is Eastbourne. That is why there is no place like it.

The Shows in the Open.

The Pierrots on the Pier.

This excellent show draws crowds twice a day. Their refined entertainment is one of the features of Eastbourne. The company included Miss Edith Blanchard, contralto, in a delightful répertoire of songs; Miss Doris Lee, comedienne, with a selection of humorous songs that fairly captured the audience; Mr. H. V. Cropton, baritone (a great favourite), and his cycle of songs included the best known numbers from opera and musical comedy; Ronald Bagnall and Bert Meredith are comedians in the front rank of their profession, Mr. Bagnall depending entirely (and with great success) on original songs and sketches. Mr. Meredith, too, has some original songs and musical sketches. Mr. B. Mortimer, the pianist, is a musician of great ability.

Uncle Ben's Minstrels.

The wail of the unlearned and the untravelled critic that Christy minstrelsy is dead is not true so long as Ben Stoddart—familiarly hailed as "Uncle Ben"—holds the front on the shingle beach at Eastbourne. All the best features of burnt cork entertainment are preserved (the best will ever live), and to these Uncle Ben has added the saving grace of modern musical comedy and variety stage successes. To hear Uncle Ben, Uncle Tom, Uncle Monty, Uncle Fred, Uncle Bert, and Cousin Lilian is quite worth a pilgrimage from London town. We were delighted with the show. The members of the troupe include Mr. Ben and Miss Lilian Stoddart, Tom Rock, guitarist; Fred Kelly, violinist; Bert Crabtree, pianist and conductor; and Merrie Monty, tambourine; Uncle Ben being bones.

Harry Clifford's Show.

Harry Clifford's Concert Party is another well-established feature of the beach at Eastbourne. The company includes Mme. Mountford, pianist; Miss Clifford, comedienne; Master Clifford, the miniature Harry Lauder; Mr. Percy Albert, comedian; Mr. J. J. Martin, comedian; Mr. Fred Sinclair (at the front); and Harry Clifford. The various items of a strong programme were delightfully given, and crowded audiences rewarded the talent of this high-class combination.

There was a Punch and Judy Show, whereat we rejoiced, and played our plays over and over again. On the Pier are excellent side shows, shooting ranges, palmist, caricature artists, miniature toboggan, and a vast array of penny-in-the-slot novelties. The St. Louis Cinematograph Picture Company did excellent business, both midday in the Theatre Pavilion and at night at the landing stage, with pictures in the open air. A special feature of Eastbourne is the Municipal Band, under Mr. Theo. Ward. We had the pleasure on one of the evenings of our visit in taking our part in l'entente cordiale, the celebrated Boulogne band, l'Harmonie du Commerce (directeur, M. V. Noel) paying Eastbourne a flying visit and submitting an excellent programme.

OLDHAM WAKES.

As early as Thursday last Tommyfield, Oldham (the site of the historic Wakes), was set out in glorious array with the best of modern shows, roundabouts, and fairground novelties to keep the fair. This is the business sense of the showman—to get one or two days amongst the people before so many depart to all the available ends of the earth to spend their hard-won holidays by seaside, on the Continent, in great London town, in quiet country villages, or mountain climbing. Your Oldham man and woman of to-day is a cosmopolitan traveller. You will find him in Rome, up the Nile, in Norwegian fiords, in Paris, Berlin, in the Swiss Alps, on Welsh and Scottish mountains, as well as at Blackpool or Douglas. Over half a million people leave Oldham and district this time of the year. Hundreds of special trains, scores of special excursions to picture places at home and abroad leave the great Lancashire cotton weaving centre. The exodus of the people is greater than the exodus of Israel. The toilers at the loom, the machine bench, at the counting-house desk, behind the shop counter—all these men of muscle, skill and brain, and their women and children—for all have to work in Lancashire's great industry—all these escape from the terrors of toil, from the awful throb of huge machinery, from the wearing monotony of a life that means in most cases bed and work, with an hour snatched for necessary meals.

"The going-off clubs" this year (a year of booming trade) have helped the people to save enough money to cover holiday expenses and a little over.

The People Who Cannot Leave.

All who can do leave. It is sound sense, sound economic science, so to do. Still, there remains the hundreds of thousands who cannot get away, who have not the means to venture forth to other scenes and to visit foreign lands. It is for these slaves of toiling necessity that the round of Lancashire wakes provides. They may not have a spare pound for Blackpool, but they have a shilling or sixpence to spend at the fair.

"So heigho, and away we go, Off to Tommyfield all in a row."

So sings the old ballad, and it is true of every wake in Lancashire. The philosophy of the poor is the saving grace of humour. With a few pence only in his pockets the poor man with his wife and children goes to the fair. There, in the glory-land of shows and of music such as their soul loveth, away from the burden of toil, from the goad of the taskmaster, the workers are free of the fair. Think of it, ye censorious critics! Think of it, ye crude and rude apostles of thrift! ye narrow-minded denouncers of fun and jollity; ye disciples of the flinty heart and the sour face! Think of it, and go to Oldham Wakes. Visit Tommyfield, see the people at play, and learn ye a little grace of kindly charity.

The Shows! The Shows!

Three immense palaces of pleasure—the cinematograph theatres of Col. Clark, Captain Tom Payne, and P. Collins—nothing finer (each a gem of completeness) on the road to-day, each a rival to the other, but, indeed, a friendly rivalry to give the show-loving public the best for money's worth. Then the ground booth, the delightful side-shows, Harry Hammersley (a prince amongst showmen) with his charming atoms of humanity, "the Midget Marvels," Tom Wortley with two ground boots, the Colliery at Work model (an educational exhibit of high value), and the fine art show.

The Mechanical Novelties.

Nowhere on earth can you find a better array of machines than at Oldham. Do you want to ride in an automobile? Then go to Tommyfield, where the Collins Brothers, John Green, and Wm. Mitchell, jun., will lend you a glorious motor-car, and off you go, off you go, riding a Daimler car. If your sporting instincts lead to still prefer a horse, then away you ride on a thoroughbred, a racer, a trotting horse, or a Capetown pony. Perhaps your fancy flies free of domesticated animals, and you desire to ride wild ostriches of South Africa or giant roosters. Then away you fly on a winged monster. Again, you aspire to aerial flight. Why worry when you can have airships, or ships in the air? All these you may get at the machines of Messrs. Ben Mitchell, Wm. Mitchell, John Collins. For a penny you may ride a bicycle on an endless track. You slide down a glorified giant bannister. For a penny you may have a skyscraper flight in park swings; you may ascend the golden stairs towards a glory-land you never reach. All these novelties are provided by Messrs. J. Wingate, F. Harrison, and J. Platt. There are midget editions of motor-car tracks by Messrs. S. Mercer and S. Mellor; shooting ranges, bottle smashers, egg batteries and tube novelties by George Cornwell, Mrs. John Cornwell, Hughes and Martin, Mrs. Addis, and local caterers; avenues and streets of stalls, throwing games, football penalty frames, and all the delightful novelties of the fair.

Bicester Fair.

Poynton Wakes.

This pretty Cheshire village kept its annual fair a week ago. The Stockport firm, Messrs. James Hibbert and Sons, were the fun providers. They exhibited, amongst other novelties, jumping horses and swings. The other varieties were by Messrs. Cordwell, Clough, and Lawley.

Humber's Waxworks.

This show, which from many points of view, is the most interesting ever seen in Aberdeen, has been extremely well patronised from the start. Mr. Humber, the proprietor, is a showman of great enterprise and sagacity, ever on the look-out for fresh attractions. Last week Manita appeared in an exceedingly novel act; this week 1500ft. of capital cinematograph films are shown; and next week Mons. Beaute, the "record fasting man," will begin a five weeks' engagement. These are, of course, in addition to the static attractions of a fine array of famous and infamous characters in wax, and others.

Torquay Fair and Regatta.

The best of the shows on the Western round were found at this fashionable seaside resort for its annual carnival and fair—the Hancock combination in full order and array, Jones with variety theatre, Prince and Princess Samonda, Wright's boxers, Lawrence's marionettes, the shooters, swings, helter-skelter, roundabouts (big and little); and stalls, varieties, and the minor novelties and side-shows of the fair were by Messrs. Newman, Lock, Ford, A. Jones, Oldridge, Whitelegg, Rowland, Criff, Chapman, Charles Smith, Antonio, and many local traders.

Oldbury Wakes.

On the Midland round of fairs, Oldbury is under P. Collins's management. The shows and varieties were P. Collins's new show, Dreamland, Sahib Leo, the Hindoo Fakir, in his occult mysteries, Prof. and Mme. Haydin in telepathy, Westwood's Colonial prodigies, Leonard Harris's freak museum, and Harry Cullis with boxers and athletes. The other exhibits of the famous Walsall firm were motor-cars, airships, helter-skelter, twin yachts, and racing birds. The attendant entertainers and funmakers were the principal variety providers and stallholders on P. Collins's round.

BARNET OLD FAIR.

We wonder when the myth of Barnet Fair in danger will die. Fifteen years ago or more a bold, bad crusade was carried on against the fair. Petitions were poured into the patient suffering Home Office. The cranks, the faddists, the Peck-sniffs, and the Chadbands massed their weird and drab forces, and the attack was made by the attenuated hosts of cant and humbug.

All, all in vain! For one vote against the fair one hundred and more were cast in its favour. The Home Secretary sent a blank denial, and the croakers, the shakers, and the mischief-makers retired in amazement at their own futility and inherent poverty of argument and numbers.

The Never-Dying Fable.

"Another Old English Fair Threatened" is the alarming headline in the sensational daily Press. "Hurry up, Londoners, or you'll miss the very last opportunity of seeing Barnet Fair" is the warning of other busy newsmongers. Of course, the showmen do not mind a bit how industrious these energetic pressmen may be. They recognise that "sweet are the uses of advertisement."

They recognise also the beneficent value of the proverb, "It's an ill-wind that blows no one good," and they return thanks for the kind interest the Press takes in the show business.

We hasten, however, to assure the pessimistic paragraphers that there are more shows, more fairs, more capital invested in the business, more people employed by the show industry, and more showpeople than ever before in the history of England. It is not a dying nor yet an obsolete craft. For every fair abolished ten have sprung into being.

The Truth About Barnet Fair.

It is safe on its present fairground for many years to come; and whenever the present one is built upon another quite as good—if not better—is available, either under local control or by the private enterprise of the organised showmen.

It is increasing in business value, in attractiveness, and in its public utilities as a pleasure fair for Greater London.

The Fair for 1907.

Seven big shows in the first class, half a dozen side shows, eight large roundabout machines, six smaller ones, six sets of swings, a dozen shooting galleries, half a dozen toy bazaars, a dozen or more pannum stalls, seventy throwing games, half a dozen refreshment booths. These make a fair that London may well love to see and to patronise.

The cinematograph shows were:—William Biddall's, H. and W. Thurston's, Chittock's, and Biddall Bros.' Purchase's Menagerie, Buckley's trained animals, Weston's athletes and boxers, Eddie Elliott's boxing saloon, Renton's giant lady, Wilson's fine art show, and H. Bailey's fine are gallery made up a grand list of exhibitions.

The big machines were those of Thurston, T. and F. Gray, Harris, Pettigrove, F. Bailey, Harniess, Jones, S. Mayne, Taylor, and Long. The shooters were by Andrews, Matthew, C. Bailey, R. Pettigrove, Simpson, Holmes, and Harris.

Coker-sheets, throwing games, variety and toy stalls by Messrs. Taylor, Jones, E. Hussey, W. Hussey, G. Miller, H. Bond, J. Purchase, C. Cooper, W. Harris, H. Taylor, E. Taylor, Mrs. Draper, Homer, E. Harris, D. Stevens, E. Elliott, J. Long, J. Mayne, Matthew, C. Andrews, Brown, Stockwood, Holmes, Simpson, R. Pettigrove, Mrs. Pettigrove, Mrs. Shaw, W. Harris, O. Smith, H. Castles, Mrs. A. Bond, R. Bond, W. Manning, H. Peters, jun., Edwards, Reynolds, L. Davies, George Sanders, and others.

PATENTS.

The following abridged description of a patent is specially compiled for The Era by Messrs. Hughes and Young, registered patent agents and engineers, of 55-56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., of whom our readers may obtain information and advice relating to British and foreign patents, designs, and trade marks free of charge.

10,425. Roundabouts. H. H. Pattee, 69, West 38th-street, New York, U.S.A. Relates to roundabouts in which the cars during a part of each revolution enter a darkened structure provided with lights and scenery. In the form shown the cars are suspended from radial arms connected with a hub which revolves on a post, the arms being driven by a motor gearing and a pulley. A semi-circular structure is arranged in the path of the cars and a roof with depending flanges to keep out the light is carried by the arms, so that the structure is darkened. The entrance to the structure consists of a pivoted door, which is provided with a counter-weight to close it quickly, a buffer or spring being provided for the weight. The cars are furnished with rollers for pushing against the door, and the door carries a roller to facilitate the passage of the car over it. Top doors are opened by the ropes supporting the car. As the door is opened a valve arranged on the pivot opens and causes steam or air to be discharged from a perforated pipe which swings with the door. Anti-friction obstructions are arranged to give the cars a jolting motion, or to deflect them from the circular course. Screens or doors of thin or transparent material are arranged to be deflected by the cars, and landing platforms are provided. The cars may be suspended from a circular frame, which, instead of moving around a pivotal support, is provided with rollers which move over a circular track.

18,889. Thomas Henry Rochford, 19, Wellington Quay, Dublin. Improvements in programme indicators for theatres of variety and the like.

The Rev. T. Horne on Tour.

For this week-end the Guild Chaplain will be at Yorkshire's greatest feast—Holbeck, Leeds. He will co-operate with the Vicar of Holbeck in Guild services on Sunday in a show on the feast-ground, Holbeck Moor. Next week he starts for Ayr Fair, Scotland, where he anticipates a Scottish welcome. Guild subscription, 1907, Mr. Charles Thurston, £2 2s.

Mr. T. E. Read, the up-to-date lessee of the great London Christmas annual known as the World's Fair at the Royal Agricultural Hall, has for a long time past been actively engaged in arranging some exceptionally big features for his forthcoming twenty-ninth consecutive fair, having been away from dear old England's shores for quite a long period, looking for and securing some new big special attractions for his fast-approaching season. The aerial shows, always a great success, will be particularly so this season, he having arranged with a first-class company of male and female Continental artists, who will make their first appearance in England, and whose performances are not only of a most sensational character, but absolutely the supreme acrobatic achievement of the era. A new departure is also being made in the circus company, Mr. T. E. Read having made special arrangements with Mr. E. H. Bostock, of the Zoo, Glasgow, to provide an entirely new company of equestrian star artists, also of great Continental repute, in their various lines of performance. In fact, Mr. Read is making several important and improved alterations this year, and with Bostock's and Wombwell's menagerie, the finest and largest travelling museum of natural history in the universe, and popularising the dancing propensity of a large section of visitors by adding a commodious free dancing saloon, and possibly calling into requisition the new large annexe now in course of construction in the hall, should, and undoubtedly will, prove the most successful fair ever held within the walls of this, the largest and most accessible place of entertainment in London.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen will read in this column news with regard to the best and newest films in the market. Most of these films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their stock, either by purchase or hire.

Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.

The output of the Urban Company this week is chiefly comical. In the new film entitled Preoccupied the blunders of an absent-minded man are drolly depicted. Jones, the gentleman in question, is only really at ease when he is asleep, but as soon as he wakes up his misadventures begin. Even before leaving his couch Jones upsets a lamp on a pedestal, and soon after his rising all the furniture of the room is disorganised. Having dressed with difficulty, Jones goes down to breakfast, where he absent-mindedly tucks a corner of the tablecloth in the place where his serviette ought to go, with the result that when he rises hurriedly to depart the cloth is dragged off, and all the impedimenta of the breakfast table are swept to the floor. Jones cannot buy a button-hole without upsetting the flower-girl's stall, and during his peregrination he collides in turn with dustmen, dinners and provision carts. The stock of an Italian plaster image seller is completely wrecked, and finally the "absent-minded beggar" falls over a chair in which he and passers-by become hopelessly entangled. The film is full of comic surprises which allow no rest to the risibilities.

Another laughable series is that aptly named A Wild Goose Chase. A countryman is on his way to market with several basket loads of geese when by some means the birds escape. A wild chase, in which Giles's friends gleefully join, ensues, and the cackling birds are pursued by many devious ways, devastation following in their wake. The geese take to water, and are more at home than their pursuers, who wade in knee-deep, regardless of soaked garments. Down the stream the chase is continued until the capture of the whole flock is effected, and Giles is left happy with his arms full of geese. In addition to its comic attributes the film is enriched by running water effects, which are very picturesque. The enterprising firm, it should be added, have in preparation a number of scientific and educational subjects, for the presentation of which they are so deservedly renowned.

Accidents Will Happen, one of Chas. Urban's screamingly funny films, was advertised last week at the low price of £4 6s. 8d. for 440ft. The price should have been £7 6s. 8d. Showmen please note. The mistake in price was due to a printer's error.

Pathe Freres.

A trio of novelties is furnished this week by Pathé Frères. The first is exciting and picturesque, and is called The Idol of India. It portrays in a series of excellent films the attempt of a Hindoo to molest a young and beautiful Princess. A youthful soldier intervenes and saves the young lady, but is laid low by a treacherous blow. The lady calls her servants and her preserver is taken insensible to the Palace, where he is eventually nursed back to life by the Princess. A marriage between the two is inevitable, and the nuptials are celebrated by rejoicings, of which an Oriental dance by beautiful damsels is a feature.

Dramatic interest is centred in The Blacksmith's Revenge, which tells in a stirring series of pictures the story of wifely perfidy. A brawny blacksmith is wedded to a charming girl, who arouses the passionate love of a young lordling. She yields to his persuasions, and accompanies him to his ancestral home, followed by the blacksmith, whose suspicions have been aroused. The blacksmith breaks in upon the pair, and is turned out of the house vowing revenge. Later he meets the young aristocrat, and forces him into his workshop, where the lordling would fight with swords; but the blacksmith prefers sledgehammers, and after a few passes promptly knocks his opponent on the head, a reconciliation between husband and wife being afterwards effected.

An ingenious device is employed in Good Fortune, in which a gipsy tells the fortune of a pretty maiden who is courted by a handsome youth. The sage takes a pack of cards, and foretells the events which will follow the betrothal. Each card is separately held up between thumb and finger, and as the ten of clubs, the knave of hearts, and the queen of diamonds and others appear and disappear, the scene of the lovers meeting, the wedding morn, the subsequent temptation to infedility, the discovery by the infuriated husband, and the final consignment of the unfaithful wife into the deepest dungeon are graphically portrayed, after which the picture of the maiden shrinking from such a future and bidding her lover depart is presented. The film is elegantly toned, and, together with the other specimens alluded to, is presented with wonderful clearness and steadiness.

Vitagraph Company.

The latest achievements of the Vitagraph Company of America include The White Man's First Smoke, in which both amusement and instruction are combined. The scene is the home of a Puritan settler in New England. An old woman is cooking the dinner when two Indians enter the cottage and barter with her for some skins. After concluding their bargain each one draws out a pipe and begins to smoke. The old lady is greatly astonished, but purchases two pipes and a quantity of tobacco, and proceeds to smoke. Her husband arrives home, and seeing smoke issuing from her face is greatly alarmed, and dashes a bowl of water over her. Having heard his wife's explanation he tries the other pipe, and two of their neighbours are also initiated into the mysteries and pleasures of smoking. All soon succumb to the effects of the weed, and one by one make a hasty exit. The old lady is eventually accused of being a witch, the town council and burghers take her away, and later she is seen strapped to the ducking-stool and ducked in the pond.

A Double-Barrelled Suicide is the ingenious title given to another of the Vitagraph novelties. A young man is jilted by his sweetheart, and determines to commit suicide. He loads his gun for the purpose, and places it in position pointing out of a window with string attached to the trigger. He proceeds to the outside of the house, but during his absence a boy removes the cartridge from the gun, fills one barrel with talcum powder, and to the other attaches a hose, to the nozzle of which he transfers the string. The young man pulls the trigger, and immediately receives a discharge of white powder in the face and a volume of water in the eye. Just at this moment a messenger boy delivers a telegram saying that the young lady has changed her mind, and the would-be suicide takes the boy who has preserved his life joyfully in his arms.

The Cinematograph Syndicate.

The possibilities of animal training are revealed in the newest Norwood film, which the Cinematograph Syndicate will put on the market next week. The picture is called The Gamekeeper's Dog, and in an exciting series tells the tale of a gamekeeper who is out shooting with his retriever. After disposing of a rabbit he goes to an inn, where his sweetheart dwells. A motorist drives up and insults the maiden, for which he is called to account by her lover. Taking a mean advantage the motorist gets away, and the gamekeeper gets into an old country cart and drives after him. A chase through fields and country lanes follows, and at length the motorist shoots at his pursuer, who falls to the ground. With wonderful sagacity, the dog, who has followed his master, seizes hold of the reins with his mouth and turns the cart round, and afterwards picks up the wounded man's hat and runs back to the inn. The young gamekeeper quickly recovers, and induces his sweetheart to make an appointment with the wily motorist. The pair duly meet on a bridge, and at length the gamekeeper springs from behind a hedge and a struggle ensues. The motor-man produces a pistol, but ere he can pull the trigger the dog once more comes upon the scene, seizes the revolver and makes off with it, leaving the motorist at the mercy of his antagonist. It may be added that Mr. H. W. Hough has made arrangements with the Sheffield Photo Company by which their productions may be secured through the Cinematograph Syndicate.

Sanders and Crowhurst.

One of the most enthralling and instructive pictures that have yet been shown on the stage is being displayed at the Palace, to the programme of which a series of moving pictures entitled Birdland has been added. The pictures have been obtained from some of the less accessible haunts of birds by Mr. Oliver G. Pike, F.R.G.S., and Mr. H. Armytage Sanders, who made a special journey to islands in the north. Armed with a specially constructed silent camera, they spent a considerable time on the sea coast, and, in spite of difficulties that seemed almost insuperable, have brought back a graphic series of pictures. Many unfamiliar birds are shown amid their natural surroundings, and by means of this fine film a close acquaintance with the habits of the wildest species of the feathered tribe may be made.

President Arthur Barclay, the black president of Liberia, with suite, consisting of Mr. F. E. R. Johnson, Secretary of State, Mr. McCant Stewart, Acting Attorney-General, Mr. Henry Hayman, Acting Minister, and Mr. Henry R. Hayman, Secretary to the Legation, paid a visit on Monday afternoon to the film theatre of Messrs. Pathé Frères, in the Charing Cross-road, to witness some of the most recent cinematograph films. The Story of a Venetian Tragedy was told in perfect manner on the screen, while the Coloured Costumes of Centuries, showing the dresses of every age, was admirably depicted. Shooting the Ozal Rapids had a great fascination for the visitors, who were afterwards taken for A Trip Through Switzerland, and finally witnessed a portion of The Passion Play at Oberammergau. The President, who expressed himself highly delighted, said that it was his first visit to an entertainment since his arrival in England.

CRICKET.

Played on Clifton Downs, Saturday, Aug. 10. At the commencement of the game a sad accident befell Mr. Harry Belding (captain of Bristol X.L.C.R. Club), a passing cricket ball striking him on the head. After being attended to by his sister, Miss Lillie Belding, and the members of the club he was able to go on in the second part of the game. Jack Leonard played splendidly for Music Halls C.C., performing the hat trick. Scores:—

An "extra turn" of unusually good quality was put on at the Walthamstow Palace last week, the Grantons making a great, instantaneous, and well-deserved success. Their singing and dancing are quite above the average. The young lady is the possessor of a sweet yet powerful voice, and dances with consummate grace and delicacy; while the gentleman gives an exhibition of dancing that fairly "brought down the house" on the night in question. Although handicapped by some disadvantages inseperable from a first appearance, and as a special turn, the Grantons received a double recall, and their future success is practically assured.

Fair at Crewkerne.

Well maintained this year by Messrs. Rowland and Anderton, with their premier living picture show, Buckley's menagerie, with well trained birds and animals, Spink's fat lady show, Marshall Hill's motors and the helter-skelter, varieties by Messrs. Herbert and Gratton.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A band composed of members of the local branch of the Amalgamated Musicians' Union has been engaged throughout the week at the Trades Union Congress, and has enlivened the proceedings. Mr. J. W. Duys, of Bath, himself a delegate to the Congress, wields the baton, with Mr. W. F. C. Schöttler, the musical director of the Theatre Royal, Bath, leading.

The Belfast Royal Hippodrome staff and orchestra had their first annual "outing" last Sunday, when a party of over sixty journeyed to the Giant's Causeway. Dinner was served up at the Causeway Hotel, and on return tea was partaken of at the Midland Railway Pavilion. Amongst those who accompanied the trip were Messrs. Harry Downs (general manager), George Dobler, F. J. Thompson, and Edgar Haines (chef d'orchestre). The day was a happy and memorable one for all concerned.

The annual outing of the staff of the London and Cambridge Music Halls took place on Sunday last. Starting from outside the London, the party drove in ten four-in-hands to the Crown Hotel, Broxbourne, where dinner was served. Sports were then indulged in, the respective winners being as follows:—100 yards running handicap, Scott (Cambridge); 40 yards ladies', Miss Fielding (Cambridge); potato race, B. Newman (London); needle and thread race, Miss Hudson (Cambridge); egg and spoon race, Symonds (London); egg and spoon race (ladies), Miss Moss (London); half mile team, London men; blindfold race, Whitehead (London); billposters' race, Levey (Cambridge); three-legged race, Browne and Polly (London); veterans' race, Hulley; consolation race, Cohen (London); and the tug-of-war, a draw, the rope breaking. The prizes, all money, were later presented by Mr. T. G. Richards, to whom a vote of thanks was proposed in eulogistic terms by Mr. H. J. Pitt, manager of the Cambridge, and steward of coach No. 1. After a suitable response by Mr. Richards, tea was partaken of, followed by an impromptu dance. The party reached home about 11 p.m. The officials were: Mr. T. G. Richards, chairman; Mr. Hector Munroe, secretary (and indefatigable); Inspector Norman, starter; judges, A. Jacobs and S. Smith; and stewards, Messrs. H. Munroe, H. J. Pitt, Sergt.-Major Puttock, G. Richardson, F. Bradsell, H. Lofthouse, L. Tolano, R. Offord, W. Sears, and G. Ganard.

STAGE CHILDREN.

Mr. "Jack" Woolf, manager of the Queen's, Poplar, made an application on Monday at Old-street for a licence for a boy, aged thirteen years and ten months old, to appear and perform on Monday night and during the week. It was said that the boy, with a girl older, was wanted to appear twice, and that his age just precluded the second appearance.

Mr. Cluer refused to extend the licence, remarking that the regulations of the London County Council required a four hours' interval between the times.

Mr. Woolf proposed to allow a four hours' interval by making the first appearance at 6.30, on the opening of the house, and the second at 10.30, when the second performance was on.

Mr. Cluer said it was too long an interval to keep the boy about the precincts of a music hall, and he would not sanction it by a licence.

Mr. Woolf remarked that the turn which included the boy had been billed, and it was a serious thing to disappoint the public; in fact, taking money by a false pretence.

Mr. Cluer said that was utter nonsense. If the boy was fourteen he could be worked from 6.30 till midnight, but it was a scandalous thing. As matters stood, he would not help some people to live on the earnings of children by breaking the regulations.

Mr. Woolf remarked that there were no regulations of the London County Council in the matter; it was an understanding come to by the Theatres Committee and the magistrates.

Mr. Cluer would not break the understanding, and peremptorily refused to licence two appearances.

"THE TREE OF TRUTH."

Produced at the Britannia on Monday, Sept. 2.

After a most successful tour in the provinces, The Tree of Truth was played for the first time in London on Monday. It is a very amusing trifle, and keeps the audience in hearty laughter. When any person sits under the said tree and omits to keep to the truth, the fruit immediately falls upon them. A middle-aged lady has advertised for a husband, and receives a reply asking her to meet the gentleman under the tree. They sit immediately under a very prominent branch, and exchange confidences. The lady naturally minimises her age, and down come the apples on her head. Then the gentleman has his turn. He commences saying he has never kissed a girl in his life before, and receives a shower of fruit Mr. Harry Brayne as the buxom lady is very amusing. Made up as a good old-fashioned pantomime dame, he is quite at home in the part. Mr. Bert Lloyd as a "swell" is good, making the character stand out well. A special scene is carried, and a weird effect is created when the tree is alight with electricity.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
To anyone connected with the stage, from the call-boy to the "star," and from the electrician to the manager, the "Era Annual" makes an appeal which it is very hard to resist. The number of stories and anecdotes contributed by well-known members of the theatrical profession are always bright, breezy, and fresh, and, as usual, the photographs are excellently reproduced. The calendar is arranged so as to give an interesting theatrical event, with the year of occurrence, for every day in the year. The tables of plays produced at the various London and provincial theatres provide an interesting story of successes and failures, and is every respect the Annual for 1907 is well up to the usual standard. It is published at one shilling by "The Era," at 5 Tavistock-street, London.—Dublin Express, Jan. 28.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT,
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT,
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT,
MR. HATTON WHARTON,

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT,
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
The Empire, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE FORTUNE.

Code Word, COMEDIE.

A little country maiden listens and watches with wide-open eyes to the wonderful things shown her by an old witch. She sees the various cards, representing all stations of life, and one by one the persons appear. A prince and princess, followed by all their long train of followers. The young girl recognises her own face in the face of that lovely princess, when suddenly the scene changes and another lover is by her side. The prince is mad with jealousy, and has the princess thrust into an outer dungeon.

The young girl is in the midst of these various impressions when a young peasant stops and asks his way. The young girl, recalling the sad and terrible story she has just seen, rushes away in fear and trembling.

495 ft. The Subject, £8 5s.

AN INDIAN IDYLL.

Code Word, COMMERCE.

Messaouda, walking on a terrace, drinks in the lovely air and perfume of choice flowers. A cavalier comes down the path leading to the terrace, wraps the young Hindoo in his cloak, and together they walk up and down, he whispering sweet nothings into her shell-like ear.

On a wall overlooking the terrace a native, clad and hidden just to the eyes in a long loose mantle, is watching and listening. Suddenly, without the slightest warning, he rushes on to the terrace and stabs the cavalier in the back. Is he dead or not? Patiently and lovingly Messaouda watches by the bed of her beloved, while the father joins their hands.

The native, however, is not satisfied yet, and attempts again to take the life of this brave cavalier, but the Hindoo girl is too quick for him and gives him a fatal blow.

412 ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 4d.
Colouring £4 5s. 10d.

THE BLACKSMITH'S REVENGE.

Code Word, CHRONIQUE.

A big, strong blacksmith at his forge, shoeing the horse of a young lord. During this process the young lord is chatting with the blacksmith's wife, sitting at work at her cottage door. How nice to listen to the talk of this fine, handsome young man. She is overwhelmed with his attention, and promises to meet him.

The blacksmith has his suspicions, however, and follows the two in a summer-house. He finds the two together, tears them apart, and boxes the ears of the young lord, who does not attempt to retaliate, seeing the giant proportions of the blacksmith. Notwithstanding this mishap, the young man again tries to see his lady-love, and hangs about, but this time the blacksmith is on his track, and together they go to the forge, where they fight a duel with hammers. The delicate and fragile young man quickly falls under the huge strength of his antagonist, and drops to the ground a mass of lace and ribbons.

495 ft. The Subject, £8 5s.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERAVON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. D. Jones.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's Gay Parisienne company appeared here the first part of the week, to full and appreciative audiences. The principals, including Messrs. Will Harman, Chas. Maclagan, and Cyril Biddulph, and Misses Holford, Beringer, Adeline Burgon, Madge Souter, and Alice Nixon, in the title-rôle, are all of first-class order. For the remainder of the week, Mr. T. Sidney's company in a Marriage of Kitty was announced.

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—Mr. E. H. Knight's company is here this week in The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell is very powerful as Jagon; Mr. Wallace Curnock is well placed as Paul Blanchard; Mr. S. Riley makes a decided hit as Concou the detective; Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner as Lorentz de Ribas is deserving of praise; Mr. Herbert Lewis is an amusing Loustalot; Mr. John Brittain as Dodot makes the most of his part; Mr. William Annesley is worthy of special mention as Robert de Belfort; Miss Marie Fontaine is a successful Cora; Miss Florence Trevoir a sympathetic Sophie, and Miss Maggie Stewart a pleasing Marie Guerin.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes.—The Scarlet Patrol, practically a brand new musical comedy, has received an enthusiastic welcome here. Mr. Herbert Cottesmore (under whose direction the comedy is produced) has commanded success by the engagement of a first-class company, many of whom have already appeared here in La Poupee, The Girl from Kay's, Sergeant Brue, &c. The fun of the piece emanates chiefly from Nicholas Quiller, as played by Mr. Arthur Stigant; Mr. Leonard Russell makes a smart American policeman; Mr. St. John Hamund as chief magistrate of Zillaree is particularly clever, and ably seconds the efforts of the principal comedian; Mr. J. S. Durant as an effective lover, and Messrs. Percy Rogers as the poetical tailor and Mr. J. H. Bishop as the coon are essentials to the success. Miss Elise Cooke's is a charming portrayal of the smart "police-sergeant," and her reception is most cordial; Miss Reydon Dallas as the heiress had a welcome which was no less assuring.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—We seldom get Shakespeare here, and, when we do, it is rarely we get him intelligently interpreted. This week, however, we are having performances by the eminent tragedian Mr. Allan Wilkie and a first-class Shakespearean combination. Mr. Wilkie appeared in Hamlet on Monday evening, and gave a scholarly interpretation of the Dane. He was admirably supported by Miss Carrie Baillie as Ophelia, Miss Mary Lovatt as the Queen, Mr. Jno. Paley as Claudius, Mr. Alex. Marsh as the Ghost, Mr. Paul Lovett as Laertes, and Mr. Geo. Munro as Polonius, all most effective exponents of their respective characters. On Tuesday The Merchant of Venice was played, and on Wednesday Romeo and Juliet.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The programme here for the current week is, as usual, judiciously varied. The first-named is a turn by Sisters Tree, three in number, who give an entirely new and refined episode in song and dance, entitled "Hunting"; Leo Trainer, favourite vocal comedian, finds abundant of absurdity to make laughter; the Sisters Belmont are charming duettists and dancers; and laughter is continuous while Freddy French is in "front." The Carney Brothers are really funny fellows as character duettists; the Story Trio are marvellous hand-balancers; Moon and Morris, clever comedians and simultaneous dancers; and the Forestiers give a smart, up-to-date quick-change scena, Anthony, the original comic conjurer, is also an artist of undoubted comic power; the pictures give amusing illustrations of Limburger Cheese.

ATTERCLIFFE.—PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bert Lester.—The premier position in an excellent programme this week is occupied by Corbin's Dogs, in a remarkably clever performance; Macintosh and Royal, lady and gentleman clog-dancers, are highly appreciated; Miss Eva Hope and Mr. Jack Wayho are successful in their duologues from Charles Dickens; Mr. E. C. Clayton's Attergraph pictures have a good reception; Miss Maude Beaumont is a winsome burlesque actress; Les Kauvars present a smart equilibristic act; the Brothers Barker are a couple of mirth-provoking comedians and dancers; and Mr. Charles Clark, comedian, meets with hearty approval.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—For the first three nights of this week, Mr. E. H. Bostock's Hippodrome entertainment has been the attraction, the chief item in the programme being Mr. Chas. Majilton and company of comedians, in the sketch, The Trippers. The variety show proper embraced Euston and Pancras, a clever black and white comedy team; Tamamoto, a Japanese rope and slack wire expert of extraordinary ability; Nan de Courcy, the lady juggler, whose performance gave great satisfaction; the Cecilias, clever lady instrumentalists; and Adams and Ward, who created much amusement by their quaint and amusing acrobatic act. A series of animated pictures are displayed by the American Bioscope. For the last three nights of this week, Mr. Chalmers Mackey and his company, in Rollicking Rory, were announced.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Edward Marris's company, in The Dandy Doctor, is here. Mr. Leslie Winter in the title-rôle is excellent; Mr. Walter Nugent is a typical Bertie Bolingbroke; Mr. James Danvers is a vigorous Melchisadek Brown; and the Colonel Pendred of Mr. Herbert Pearce is well done. Miss Ethel Ward is a vivacious Ivy Pendred; and Miss Florence Smithers keeps the house in great laughter throughout.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Miss Annie Hughes and company are here in Tommy. She herself in the title-rôle is exceedingly happy, and shows great ability; Mr. Evelyn Vernon submits an excellent interpretation of Peter Hope; Mr. Chas. Esdale is a capital William Clodd; and Mr. Rupert Lister an artistic Dick Danvers. After Many Years, by Miss Annie Hughes, is the curtain-raiser.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar George Laban.—The Selbini Cyclists top a good bill here this week; Abel and Welsh, eccentrics, create much laughter; Rita Rhylle is a dainty and refined artist; Edna Latonne quite takes the audience with her chorus songs; and Stylo gives an exceedingly clever loop manipulation act.

HIPPODROME.—Under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge. — The Fred Newman British Empire Pictures are still very popular. A fine entertainment is provided. Mr. T. C. Edwards, baritone, sings some capital songs during the evening.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—After many years' absence Mr Edmund Tearle is making his reappearance upon the local boards. The engagement commenced on Monday with Virginius, with the popular actor in his well-known rendering of the title-rôle. His best support came from Mr. William J. Miller as Appius Claudius; Miss Esther Tearle impersonated Virginia; her lover, Icilius, being enacted by Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree. On Tuesday The Three Musketeers was staged. Mr. Tearle was seen to advantage as D'Artagnan; Miss Kate Clinton undertook successfully the part of Miladi; and Mr. Miller again rendered valuable support as Richelieu. The rest of the cast portrayed their respective characters with earnestness and effect. The farce, A Kiss in the Dark, has also been played.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—A bright and dashing turn is that given by Bert Coote's Yankee-Doodle Girls, who meet with a rousing reception. In a similar line come Claud Feldman's beau-ideal troupe of juveniles, who create much enthusiasm; Cole and Rags supply an excellent juggling entertainment that is brimful of clever tricks and humour; Bert Weston has many funny stories to tell, and sings a well-arranged song; the Custances, in their comedietta, A Game for Two, gain plenty of laughter by this amusing item; Mlle. De Rose, the lady baritone vocalist, and J. H. Hawtrey, actor vocalist, are paying a welcome return visit. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, as usual, form an agreeable conclusion.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The National Animated Picture Company opened the autumn season at these fine rooms on Monday their films being of the best and up-to-date description. Songs are given by Miss Eveline Bly, and Mr. Waterfield performs upon a bijou piccolo with wonderful results.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—A welcome visit is being paid to the above this week by Sergeant Brue, very ably presented by Mr. Robert Crossman's company. Mr. Arthur Reynolds plays the title-rôle with wonderful vivacity and drollery; Mr. T. A. Shale is a most amusing and versatile Crookie Scrubbs; and Miss Mary Hay a clever and graceful Lady Bickenhall, whose songs are highly appreciated.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—We are favoured this week with a visit from Mr. George Dance's company, in The Beauty of Bath. As Lieut. Richard Allington, R.N., Mr. Andrew Higginson speedily made himself a favourite with his amusing and clever impersonation; and who could desire a more fascinating interpretation of the Hon. Betty Silverthorne than that furnished by Miss Gladys Guy? Miss Ida Laurie distinguished herself by her acting as Mrs. Goodge; and Mr. Bay Russell must be commended for his entirely praiseworthy impersonation of Mr. Beverley. Mr. Jack Crichton kept the fun going merrily by his amusing impersonation of Sir Timothy Bun; and a highly diverting impersonation of Lemon Goodge, the programme-boy, was furnished by Master Basil Clifford. Miss Jessie Lonnen could hardly be excelled as Miss Truly St. Cyr; and Mr. Fredk. C. Leister was eminently suited as Viscount Bellingham. The rôle of the vacuous peer, Lord Quorn, was done full justice to by Mr. Reggie Grey; other rôles were capitally presented by Messrs. Wm. Ogle, Lacey Mills, J. F. Clarke, &c. The full chorus and augmented orchestra were under the skilful direction of Mr. Hartmann.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—The chief attraction here is supplied by Les Newsomes, whose clever acrobatic feats have created much enthusiasm; Mr. Alf. Gibson's quaint method of singing droll songs gain him a big reception; and the remarkably clever performance of Bosanquet on the violin has aroused considerable enthusiasm. The Coes, lady instrumentalists, have made a big hit; Gregson and Goodfellow supply a comedy act, which is one of the features of the programme; and also here are Frank Maura, the Mexican wonder; Mr. Johnny Dwyer, Mr. Milner Verren, and the Palace Pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading position here is filled by Kurkamp, the singing conductor, who is the happy possessor of a cultivated voice, which has been heard with pleasure in operatic and other numbers; Miss Hilda Jacobson is a delightful comedienne, with good songs; and the Four Athos supply a great performance with their ball manipulating and acrobatism. Mr. Francis O'Flynn plays the banjo with much skill; and praise is due Mr. Charles Santon, male soprano and double-voiced vocalist. Mlle. Amedea's feats of contortionism are certainly amazing; and Lennard and Vereker's pictorial songs are quite a feature of this capital programme. Also appearing are Miss Elsie Kelly, a dashing comedienne; the Three Bounding Patterssons, in their clever trampolin bar act; and the new pictures on the Hipposcope delight all.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Herman Melot tops the bill at this popular hall, and his amazing conjuring tricks have created much astonishment. Walter Purvis and company produce with much success their sketch, Cauliflower Joe; and a hit has been made by Les Frasettis, xylophone soloists, who also play the violin and harp to perfection. Mr. Gus Garrick, a favourite here, is accorded a rousing reception; and Miss Dot Hardy is a charming comedienne and dancer. Also appearing are Miss Florence Vie, character comedienne; and the up-to-date subjects by the Bioscope have afforded every satisfaction. Miss Bessie Butt, soubrette and dancer, was unable through indisposition to appear on Monday; but Mr. Will Montgomery, a talented local comique, deputised with success.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Sinclair Neill.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, produce here this week the fine drama, In the Midst of Life. It is worthy of mention that some few years ago this piece was produced for the first time on any stage in this very city, the cast containing the names of such leading lights as Messrs. Fred K. Victor, author, and Matheson Lang. The Alhambra company acquit themselves with distinction with the drama, and none more so than Mr. Fred Terriss, whose impersonation of David Armstrong was certainly skilful. The heavy part of Henry Germiston was filled with distinction by Mr. Wilford Cheetham; and Miss Nina Blake-Adams was entirely praiseworthy as Margaret Gray. Mr. Cyril Grier was all that could possibly be desired as Capt. Bargery; and Miss Kathleen Magee would indeed be difficult to surpass as Lady Helen Rosmead, her acting being irreproachable. Mr. Elmore Frith's impersonation of Sir John Rosmead was up to the usual high standard expected from this experienced actor; and Miss Mattie Crawford impersonated Sybil admirably. Mr. Ed. Smythe was quite equal to the responsibilities of Richard Dixon; and Mr. Tom H. Solly was very humorous as Joe Drummond. Miss Alice Clarke was good as Molly Bargery; the Alhambra Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett, exhibits a humorous picture this week, entitled "Our Village Band Goes to the Contest."

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby.—The Light of the World is being presented here. Mr. F. B. Woulfe, both in voice and physique, makes an interesting figure of Beric; Miss Ethel Griffies in the exacting part of Gylcera comes through successfully; Miss Theo. Henries makes an energetic Cecropia; Mr. Claude Aymond is a forcible Sysimus; and the poet Petunius is well portrayed by Mr. G. Edward Dunstan. Mr. Oswald Lingard makes a stern Geraldus, and Mr. F. Booth Conway a convincing Missionary Ioris.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL — Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Miss Clarence C. Corri's company, in The Dancing

Girls of Spain, are fulfilling a successful engagement here. Miss Eva Kelland wins general admiration by a clever and effective portrayal of Chiquita Joyce; Mr. Lawrence Emery is a capable Julian Alvarez; Sir Jeremiah Joyce is well embodied by Mr. George Danvers; Jack Davis is amusingly impersonated by Mr. Johnnie Schofield, jun.; Miss Pauline Hague is a charming Miss Marie Montressor; Miss Adele Lane is an irreproachable Lola; and other parts are, without exception, well sustained. The pantomime sketch, Office Hours, follows the comedy.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Dr. Walford Bodie, in his interesting feats with electricity, is a leading attraction; Miss Ethel Whiteside and her troupe of piccaninnies, furnish a smart and clever turn; and Mr. Barney Vox, an exceptionally expert ventriloquist, meets with hearty recognition. An excellent company also includes Miss Dolly Denver, buck dancer; Mr. Harry Bedford, comedian; Mr. Tom Yorke, comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope. Mr. Ernest Denney is musical-director.

OLYMPIAN GARDENS, ROCK FERRY.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton.—The popular pierrot entertainments continue a very successful season.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Mr. Beerbohm Tree's return as Colonel Newcome on Monday was most seasonable and welcome. The character was so graphically portrayed that the audience rose and cheered again and again. Miss Viola Tree's portrayal of Ethel was cleverly conceived; Miss Hutin Britton gave exquisite pleasure as Mme. de Florac; Miss Muriel Alexander as Lady Kew, Miss Iris Hoey as Rosy, Miss Cicely Richards as the Old Campaigner, and Miss Winifred Fitch as Mrs. Mason, were all good; Mr. Basil Gill had his fine moments as Clive, Mr. William Haviland gave a clever performance of Sir Barnes, Mr. G. W. Anson's Bayham was highly popular, and Mr. Harry C. Hewitt as Pendennis and Mr. Charles Quartermaine as Lord Farintosh were successful. During the week Mr. Tree has also appeared as Richard II., to the Queen of Miss Viola Tree; and Trilby, The Man Who Was, The Rad Lamp, The Van Dyck, and Julius Cæsar have also been presented.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—My Darling is very popular here, and Tuesday, being the birthday of Miss Marie Studholme, was a gala night. Miss Studholme as Joy Blossom would melt the heart of a misanthrope, and certainly her charming and merry ways lift the hearts of the audience to the highest point of delight. Mr. J. F. McArdle, in his own clever characteristic way, makes the most of Sir Henry Eldon; Mr. Robert Hale, in his clear, incisive style, becomes very popular as the Hon. Jack Hylton; Mr. Tom Graves as Oddy, and Mr. Frank Hector, who, besides the character of Sir James Jagg, is to be credited with some smart hits, terpsichorean, both in Acts 1 and 2, are prominent performers; while Mr. Alexander Chentrens gives capital vocal and histrionic expression to the part of Maurice Le Blanc.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—A Wife's Triumph again reveals Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company, all of whom have received pleasant receptions. Mr. Frank Stephens is admired for his frank portrayal of Frank Wilton; Mr. W. H. Garbois gives insinuating force to the part of Ellis Jordan; Mr. Weeden Ross as Julius Hartman plays with much success; Mr. Ernest R. Abbott is manly and unaffected as Robert Dewhurst; Miss Ada Abbott wields her good influence as Bessie Dewhurst with womanly charm; Miss Florence North shows sympathy in the rôle of Alice Wilton; Mr. H. Davis Brown is a force to be reckoned with as Stubbs, the trainer; Mr. Edwin Keene keeps the fun of the piece moving as Ben Bradford; Miss Marjorie Tennant makes a merry Margery Crib; and the others are very successful. The End of the Story is being played the latter part of the week.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Love that Women Desire is seen here with Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company. The love-making between Philip Carnaby, the hero, and Sybil, the Squire's ward, is prettily done by Mr. John Davidson in the first-named rôle, and Miss Lalla Stanhope in the latter; Mr. J. O. Stuart creates the desired impression as the villainous Squire Abingdon; Mr. Oliver Rogers displays the requisite ability for the part of the son, Richard; Miss Aimee Gratton-Clyndes is eminently qualified for the rôle of Madge Abingdon; Miss Naomi Wallace is successful in the utmost degree as Muriquinha; Mr. John Mignett diverts the audience well as Dennis O'Rourke; Miss Winifred Barton is a pleasing Pattie Swift; and Miss Violet Haye, Mr. S. P. Clewlow, Mr. Hugh Wallace, Mr. Graham Winsford, and others are successful.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Fatal Wedding enjoys all its former popularity here this week with Mr. Bert Coote's company. Mr. Cecil A. Melton imbues the part of Harold Wilson with more than ordinary interest; Mr. Burton Cooke effectively portrays the rôle of Robert Curtis; Miss Gertrude Harrison is an absorbing character as Cora Williams; Miss Ethel Kay impersonates the hero's wife successfully; Miss Marie Wilson shows much talent as "the little mother," Jessie; Mr. Charles Locke as the French butler, Toto, acts with irresistible humour; and the comicalities of Mr. Frank Ashley as O'Reilly and Miss Ethel Serjient as Bridget are quite to the taste of the audience. Mr. Cyril Melton as Peter Schwartz, and the Misses Dorothy Paln, Shirley Sparks, Nellie Boniface, Hilda Mahlert, and Master Tom Grice are also to the fore.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Are You a Mason? has thoroughly justified its appearance in the laughter and general success that has attended the efforts of Mr. Chas. Macdona's company. Mr. E. H. Paterson thrives well in the character of Amos Bloodgood; Mr. Howard L. Tracy is superexcellent as the son-in-law, Frank Perry; Mr. Eric Albury is very good as George Fisher; Mr. G. R. J. Austin exploits the masquerading rôle of Hamilton Travers to the fullest advantage; Mr. Buchanan Wake add hugely to the fun as John Halton; Mr. Erskholme E. Clive scores as Ernest Morrison; and the ladies are all very good and charming, including Miss Adelaide Grace as Mrs. Bloodgood, Miss Corisande Hamilton as Eva, Miss Babs Stuart as Annie, Miss Dorothy Mackenzie as Lulu, Miss Rita Narcelli as Mrs. Halton, Miss Gwen Clifford as Lotti, and Miss Ploensgains as Franchon Armitage. Miss Clifford's piano sketch is also very acceptable.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—A return visit of Mr. Frank Bertram's company is here in The Breed of the Treshams. Mr. Sidney Bland as Lieut Reresby, called the "Rat," is the dominating character in the piece, and gives an admirable presentation. Mr. Alfred Holles as Viscount Dorsington submits a fine portrayal; Mr. Benson North plays with finish as the Viscount's son; Mr. George Trail as Colonel Curwen is all that can be desired; Mr. R. Gwyn Richardson (Colonel Bagshaw) and Mr. Percy Robinson (Captain Stanhope) sustain their respective parts with credit; Mr. Robert Noble as the Hon. Francis Tresham proves successful; Miss Mildred Hodgson is an interesting Margaret Hungerford, and Miss Grace Harlington plays the part of Betty in a painstaking manner.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Mr. Walter Howard's drama, Second to None, is staged here. The company is an excellent one. Mr. Jerrold Heather at once gets the sympathy of the audience by his manly personation of Harry Wilding; and Mr. Alfred Brandon as Captain Mannering is equally successful. Mr. C. W. Spencer makes a capital study of Sir Reginald; and Mr. V. G. Maine realistically acts the part of Sergeant Horsewon. Mr. T. G. Vane is amusing as Lieutenant Ballater; and the comedy work is excellently done by Messrs. Allan Carruthers (Ruggles) and C. A. Preece (Flutter), and Miss Maudie Grayson as Norah. Miss May Ward scores a success as Nell Greystone; and Miss Violet Lawson makes a charming May Greystone.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—Manning's Entertainers head the bill with an amusing comedy sketch, which is a great success; the Tally-Ho Trio are humorous harmonising vocalists; and the Macdonald Trio are novelty musicians. Prince Kokin is a clever Japanese juggler; and Burnetti, a character musician of high talent; while Robb Gilmore is a capital comedienne, and Nora Stockelle a sprightly comedienne.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The presence here this week of Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott is attended with such gratifying success, financially as well as artistically, that a return visit should be within measurable distance. They selected to make their initial appearance in Mice and Men, which on Monday night drew an immense house, and at the end of each act the famous artists were recalled again and again. Mr. Robertson's Mark Embury is a masterpiece; whilst Miss Elliott plays Peggy with equal cleverness. Roger Goodlake finds a capital exponent in Mr. Charles Langley; and Miss A. Gordon Skinner carefully assumes the rôle of Joanna Goodlake. Mr. A. Wheatman as Kit Barniger, Mr. Sam T. Pearce as Peter, and Miss Elizabeth Watson as Mrs. Deborah also played their parts with care and cleverness. The Light That Failed and Hamlet are in the bill for the latter part of the week.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. George Alexander and company are paying another very welcome visit here this week, and a house packed from pit to gallery greets them nightly in His House in Order. Mr. Alexander as Hilary Jesson has a part after his own heart, which he plays in his usual graceful manner; Miss Irene Vanbrugh plays Nina, and undoubtedly earns first honours, her acting being well nigh faultless. Filmer Jesson, M.P., is impersonated with considerable skill by Mr. Cyril Harcourt; and Major Maurewarde suffers little at the hands of Mr. Norman Trevor. Miss Iris Hawkins plays Derek Jesson, and is intensely interesting. The other parts make no demands on histrionic ability, so that Mr. E. Lyall Swete (Sir Daniel Ridgley), Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds (Forshaw), Mr. George Silver (Price Ridgeley), Mrs. Kemmis (Lady Ridgeley), Miss Ruth Maitland (Geraldine), and Miss Beatrix de Burgh (Mlle. Thomé) are more than equal to their respective tasks. The play is staged in the most complete manner imaginable.

PALACE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The place of honour in this week's programme is rightly occupied by Kate Carney, who scores quite a triumph with her song-scena, "Liza Johnson." That popular comedian, G. W. Hunter, is also meeting with great success; and Ruth Molloy is proving herself to be a mimic possessed of great ability. Other good turns are supplied by Radford and Valentine, the juggling jesters; Arthur Slater, whistler; Rose Cabani, comedienne; Woolmer Young, vocal comedian; Kendrick and Laura, in a very laughable sketch; and Joe Reichen, with his trained dogs.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. T. P. Duignan.—A varied programme is submitted here this week twice daily, in which Johnny Danvers, the popular comedian; Williams and Warden, in an amusing Irish act, Mr. Dooley; and Slippere, the blind entertainer, supply the principal turns. The other contributors are Ruby Bijou, barefoot dancer; Charlie Williams, comedian; the Transfields, instrumentalists; Alix Lukos, in a song-scena; Nancy St. John, comedienne, and Frank Lynne, comedian.

NORTH PIER PAVILION.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. James Walker.—A very pleasing and varied entertainment is supplied here this week by Mr. Walter Curtis, the popular humorist; Mr. Sydney Gandy and Miss Inglefield, in their clever thought-transmission act; Mr. Frenton Cross, lightning sketch artist; and Mr. Gandy, ventriloquist.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The Assassin, presented by Mr. Augustine Knight's clever company, has met with a hearty reception. As Prince Demetri Mr. Knight submitted a powerful performance; to Mr. H. Bonhote-Watson every praise was due for his conception of Ivan Ipanoff; in the rôle of Wanda Miss Ella Vane displayed ability; a sympathetic Nita was presented by Mrs. Eva Trevanna; and the comedy of Miss Hettie Senior, assisted by Mr. Edward Swinton, Mr. Tom J. Taylor, and Miss Marie Robertson, kept the large audience in a humorous mood.

THE GAIETY.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. E. Good.—At the top of the bill are Keski and Raski, grotesque tumblers; Miss Dorothy Baddeley charms her audience with song; Herbert Simister, comedian, and Bert and Dora, in a burlesque act, are much in evidence; and the Bioscope pictorials are greatly appreciated.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Tudor.—A good entertainment has been provided by a varied array of pictures, and Miss Moray in her living marionettes, and Jax, burlesque artist.

BOSCOMBE. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—At the head of an excellent programme are Fred Karno's comedians, in The Early Birds, which provides much amusement; the Daunton-Shaw troupe of cyclists may be said to have reached the acme of perfection in trick cycling; the Katos, as the human marionettes, prove to be a very interesting turn; the Sisters Dixon [illegible] some banjo duets, interspersed by some clever dancing; Sylvia Du Barry has a pleasing voice; Blarney and Kennard, a pair of capital comedians, are assisted by their waltzing dogs; and some interesting films are shown on the Bioscope.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Miss Julia Neilson, Mr. Fred Terry, and company are here with The Scarlet Pimpernel. Mr. Terry's performance of the cool, daring man of resource, Sir Percy Blakeney, is one of rare excellence, and the support is admirable.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's new domestic drama, The Eve of Her Wedding, is proving very acceptable to Mr. Laidler's patrons. Mr. Wilson Benge at the head of his capable company as the hero has good support in a grand impersonation from Miss Sadie Smith as Mavis Leverton, and Miss Adelino Raby in the unsavoury part of the deeply-dyed villainess Renie de Telle. There is some good acting by Mr. C. Groves, jun., as Paul Cairshaw, and in lighter vein Mr. C. Digby as Rudolf Earle and Miss Violet R. M. Leslie as Kinkie are good.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Much interest is centred here in the appearance of the Cossack champion Ivan Padoubny, who is taking on and defeating all comers; Casey's Court (with Bob King as Mrs. Casey) is a diverting sketch; eccentric dancing is contributed by Will Polusk, jun.; Alexandre and Hughes reappear with their entertaining comedy and melody; and the Wedburns are as diverting as ever with music and mirth; James Stewart again "tramps at the piano"; expert dancing is submitted by the Sisters Caselli; Bert Woodward's feats as a "steeplechasing cyclist" are very clever; and the American Bioscope shows capital pictures.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Georg Hackenschmidt's return here has been cordially welcomed; W. B. Raby, comedian, contributes good songs to the programme; some smart skating is done by Willie Gardner on ice and roller skates; with their boxing sketch, Next, Please, the Bros. Ashley provide a lot of fun; Rosalie Jacobi is a pleasing soubrette; and an excellent evening's entertainment is completed by contributions from the Sisters Reno, dancers; Elton and Elma, knockabouts; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON. — SPA THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry Hague.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and company have been here with The Lady of Ostend. On Tuesday the Zancigs gave two of their mystifying performances.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—There was a crowded and fashionable audience in the Grand Pavilion on Friday evening to welcome the popular manager on the occasion of his annual complimentary benefit. Mr. Palmer had prepared a big programme for his patrons, and every item was encored, one of the greatest receptions being accorded to his talented little daughter, Miss Dolly Palmer, whose song and dance were given with all the ease and confidence of a practised artist. The little lady should make a name for herself in the future. Miss Dorothy Frostick's solo dance was also a great treat; Mr. Joseph Sainton and his municipal orchestra contributed some of their choicest items. A highly-appreciated programme was concluded by Family Jars, by the Waterloo Pierrots. This week on the Parade Miss Kate Rooney is delighting the large audience with her charming contralto voice; and the municipal orchestra give pleasure by their performance of some of the works of the great masters, as well as their lighter items. Mr. Percy Frostick's violin solos being especially appreciated for the beauty of tone and breadth of treatment which they receive from this talented violinist. In the Grand Hall the Flockton-Foster entertainers are drawing large audiences, Miss Rita Vincent and Miss Ray Morgan gaining great applause for their contributions. The Loyal Dominion Animated Pictures are always to the liking of the audiences.

NEW SPA AND GARDENS.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Henry Hague.—Mr. Surrie Lindon and his company, whose vaudeville entertainments have been a big draw during the season, were accorded a benefit on Monday, when they presented a big programme in the theatre and secured a very full house. The host of talent who assisted them included Miss Margaret Cooper in some of her choicest songs at the piano.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Charles Beanland.—Variety still holds it own at this popular resort, and some most amusing sketches are giving great pleasure to the audiences. Miss Madge Goodall and Miss Nan Farren, the two ladies of the troupe, are always warmly welcomed in their songs and dances, which are cleverly rendered. Mr. H. B. Cada, the eccentric comedian and violinist of the troupe, was accorded a benefit on Thursday evening, the 5th, and had a good audience, who were highly entertained by the programme, which included a smartly-played sketch by the company, entitled Fun at the Baths.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Messrs. Charles Cartwright and A. B. Tapping's company opened here on Monday with David Copperfield, and attracted a large and enthusiastic audience. Mr. Cartwright gave a masterly impersonation of Dan'l Peggotty; Miss May Yates submitted a charming and sympathetic portrayal of Little Em'ly; Mr. Humphrey Warden was well placed as Uriah Heep; Mr. Arthur Royston was admirably suited as the easy-going Steerforth; Mr. Charles Collette renewed his success as Mr. Micawber; Mr. M. A. Wetherall made a capital David Copperfield; Miss Edith Cartwright's Rose Dartle was well played; and Mr. Allan Pollock's Ham merits praise. Able support was given by Mr. Edgar J. Coyne, Miss Ada Palmer, Miss Ivy Williams, Miss Hilda Francks, Miss Margaret Bush, Miss Dulcie Brooke, and Mr. E. A. Metcalf.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is here this week with Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold achieves distinct success by her superb representation of Leah; Mr. William Clayton gives a powerfully effective enactment of Kleschna; Mr. William F. Grant displays finished acting as Paul Sylvaine; Mr. Hamilton Deane is an admirable Raoul Berton; Mr. Campbell Goldsmid as Schram, Mr. Charles Barrett as General Berton, and Mr. Bert Gunter as Anton Piaff are very effective; and others deserving commendation include Mr. Bernard Rain, Mr. Arles Conway, Miss Ethel Russell, Miss May Hammond, and Miss Edith Summers.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—Miss Florence St. John, ably supported by Mr. Trevor Lerode and Mr. H. V. Surrey, is very successful in the farcical incident, Quits; Francis and Alfred are clever comedy jugglers; Dorothy Gould, a dainty comedienne, displays pleasing vocalisation; Charles Ashdown is a capital comedian and patterer; Jack Lane, "the Yorkshire rustic," keeps the house rippling with laughter; Frances Kapstowne is very entertaining at the pianoforte; Bert Danson is an eccentric patter comedian; W. H. Barber appears in a sensational bicycle act on the high wire; Vendome and Chase, speciality artists, are capital vocalists and dancers; Kate Traill is highly successful in songs at the piano; and the Alhambrascope pictures are amusing.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company is here this week with Mice and Men. Mr. J. Graeme Campbell submits an artistic impersonation of Mark Embury; Miss Helena Parsons is a bright and winsome Peggy; and Mr. J. Henry Twyford makes an admirable Captain George Lovell. Very able enactments are presented by Mr. Frederick Tyrrell (Roger Goodlake), Mr. Arthur Austin (Sir Harry Trimblestone), Mr. C. Lillford Delph (Peter), and Miss Grace Baring (Mrs. Deborah).

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—The famous native choir from Jamaica opened here on Monday, and attracted a large and appreciative audience. The admirably sustained programme included humorous and sentimental songs and duets, glees and choruses, Jamaican street songs, coon songs, clever dances, and sketches.

GRAND SKATING RINK. — The Mondeal Cinema provides afternoon and evening entertainments here. The admirably series of animated pictures is marked by charming variety, and appeals to all tastes, for there is much that is instructive as well as interesting and humorous.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Mr. George Alexander's company is here on a return visit, with Pinero's comedy, His House in Order, the play being staged in liberal style. On Monday evening both Miss Marie Polini and Mr. Frank Fenton acted splendidly in their respective parts of Nina and Hilary Jesson; Mr. Ernest Young did well as Filmer Jesson; Miss Maisie Richardson acted admirably as Derek Jesson; the Ridgeleys, including Sir Daniel Rigdeley, Pryce Ridgeley, Lady Ridgeley, and Geraldine Ridgeley, had capital exponents in Mr. Richard Dalton, Mr. Langford Browne, Miss Madge Johnstone, and Miss Henrietta Leverett; Miss Jean D. Cadell made a good part of the French governess, Mlle. Thomé; Mr. Charles Tyrel had not a lot to do as Major Maurewarde, but his acting of the part was dignified and highly effective; Dr. Dilnot, Harding, and Forshaw, were carefully taken by Mr. Frank Hill, Mr. Barnett Parker, and Mr. Edwin Ford; and Mr. Hubert Blount and Mr. Ernest Liverett did well as the two servants. The play was followed with attention, and there was much applause at the fall of the curtain.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—The ever-popular East Lynne is being admirably played here by Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company. Miss Julie Kennard presents a charming exposition of Lady Isabel, her sympathetic and impressive style suiting the part; Mr. Alfred Beaumont acts decidedly well as Archibald Carlyle; and Mr. E. Maude Cole is in every way effective as Francis Levison; Mr. Alfred Tate is amusing as Bullock; and the parts of Lord Mountsevern, Justice Hare, Comelia Carlyle, and Barabara Hare are satisfactorily taken by Mr. Spencer Goodwin, Mr. C. C. Gratton, Miss E. Hardacre, and Miss Edith Moss.

PALACE. — Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Harry Ford, comedian, heads the programme; he has a quaint style, and obtains considerable applause. The May Fair Quartette contribute some fine singing and harmonising, interspersed with comedy; Bains and Reed do a good comic acrobatic turn; Jack Pleasants has some amusing songs; Fred Tenby, comedian, is successful; Estrella cleverly presents a series of international dances; Pearce and Ward score with their burlesque boxing act; and Macdonald and Huntingdon please with their vaudeville entertainment. The performance concludes with interesting animated pictures.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Ernest Shand, comedian, successfully tops the bill; he has some good songs, and his turn is amusing generally. "Billy," an educated horse, is presented by Edgar Hayes, the clever animal making calculations and doing many excellent tricks; the Francis Harold company have a good dramatic sketch, A Great Judge; Eva Lumley and Freda Ettrick do well with their sketch, Jimmy, All of Twist; Billy French does some smart clog dancing; Jessie Merrilees, American comedienne, is highly successful; Cyril Carle scores with the scena, Dreams; the Lorrisons, comedians and dancers, do a good turn; and animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

COLSTON HALL.—Ralph Pringle's animated pictures continue to be attractive. The collection of films is diversified, the subjects appealing to all tastes, and they are all remarkably clear. There is a good band. The variety artists, which this week include Mme. Sims Reeves, are all capable, and the attendance is highly satisfactory.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—George Kirk and Mary Neil's company are this week doing good business with Her Luck in London. Miss Mary Neil makes a great impression in the onerous part of Nellie Harborne; Mr. Steven Langton cleverly sustains the rôle of Hon. Fitzgerald O'Connor; the stern father, Steven Harborne, is well presented by Mr. Tyrone Power; the straitlaced sister, Lilian Harborne, is successfully portrayed by Miss Frances Bruce; and Mr. Charles Stirling as Richard Lenowen and Miss Marie Clavering as Mme. Gaberielle act those villainous parts well. The comedy business is thoroughly sustained by Mr. J. Telly Dillsen as Jerry, Miss Florrie Groves as Maud Gladys, and Mr. Bruce Chapman as Algie. Good work is done by Mr. Douglas Tremayne as Lionel Strong and Miss Pamela Hodson as Angelina.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—A Modern Adventuress, a clever drama, is followed with great interest here this week. The production is in the hands of Mr. Lingford Carson's able company. As Harry Delby Mr. Arthur Mervyn is all that could be desired; Mr. Eric Forth is admirably suited to the character of Walter Beal; and Mr. Ernest J. Fare makes a smart Wallace Danton. Mr. Will White as John Crompton creates roars of laughter; and Miss Eva Norman as Sally is also very funny. Miss Muriel Thompson as Violet Meredith is excellent; and a charming Vivette is Miss Rosa Mervyn. Mr. Charles Draycott as Pietro Donelli, and Mr. David Donaldson as William Delby, do well. The Octoroon was billed for Thursday, and The Ticket-of-Leave Man on Friday.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The programme here this week is headed by the Davis Gledhill Trio in their cycle and motor-paced sensation; Atlas and Vulcana are heartily rewelcomed, and also the Sisters Atlas are greatly appreciated. J. E. Walmsley, tenor vocalist, brings down the house with his beautiful rendering of "Down the Vale"; and Effie Stuart, Scotch comedienne, is a clever dancer. Little Dot Moss gives a pretty performance; the Steinway Quartette, in "Songs of the Sea," are exceedingly good; Miss Georgette Thierry's sketch company presents Nancy Sykes, a dramatic episode, with Mr. Bernard Lieli as Fagin. The Maniac Juggler is given by the Empire Theatrescope.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE (NEW HIPPODROME).—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—A quaint and distinctly novel turn is given here by the Herald Comedy Four; Vasey and Ramsey meet with a warm reception; the coster songs of Nat Travers are heartily applauded; Bertha Norwood is a pleasing vocalist and dancer; a funny comedian is Will Johnson; a clever acrobatic performance is given by the Voldam Bros.; Walton and Lester are responsible for some amusing business; and the Operascope is up to the usual point of excellence.

Troba, juggler and strong man; the Three Royal Temples, operatic vocalists; Denton, Roscoe, and Galley, colliers, and Bell, acrobats; Wakomie Brothers, instrumentalists; the Sages, burlesque artists and dancers; Edith St. Clair, and Molly Doon, comediennes.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Buxton Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—This week we have the D'Oyly Carte Répertoire Company in a round of Gilbert and Sullivan operas. On Monday the engagement opened with The Mikado. Mr. Leicester Tunks was particularly happy in the title-rôle, and Mr. Strafford Moss was a most successful Nanki-Poo; Ko-Ko was his own delightfully humorous self as played by Mr. Charles R. Walenn, and Mr. Fred Billington repeated his inimitable Pooh-Bah; a performance full of merit was Mr. Leo Sheffield's Pish-Tush, and Mr. Fred Drawater sang exceptionally well as Go-To; Miss Theresa Rassam endowed Katisha with all the fire and go so necessary to this character, and Miss Hope Hastings sang delightfully as Yum-Yum. A performance full of piquancy and taste was Miss Beatrice Meredith's Pitti Sing. The largo chorus sang the concerted music excellently, and the opera was beautifully staged. During the week The Gondoliers, Iolanthe, Yeomen of the Guard, Patience, and Saturday matinée Gondoliers and evening Mikado were given.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The Belle of New York, with us once more, is proving as attractive as ever. Mr. Paddy Dupres gets plenty of fun out of the character of Ichabod Bronson; Miss Hebe Kneller, as the Belle, sings well and acts charmingly; Mr. Ernest Mozar plays Harry Bronson in easy style; Mr. Frank Lawton, as Blinky Bill, is seen again in his popular rôle; Mr. Jos. R. Tate, as the polite lunatic, is full of quaint humour; and Messrs. J. A. Watts and Ray L. Cody are particularly amusing as the Portuguese twins. Miss Winnie Browne is a dashing Cora Angelique and Miss Olive Lenton a dainty Fifi. As Doc Snifkins, Mr. Alfred Sandoe is well placed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The King of Crime is occupying the boards at this theatre for the present week. Mr. Henry Bedford, as Roujaire, portrays powerfully the pathos and contrition of the hunted criminal; Miss Florence Halton, as the blind wife Henriette, is extremely effective; and Miss Nita Imeson, as the persecuted Matilde, wins rounds of applause. Mr. Fred Wells as the old miser Gandelu, Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes as Simon, and Mr. Arthur Robinson as Louis Mascot, all render valuable assistance.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—On Monday was produced, for the first time here, the latest of Fred Karno's clever sketches, entitled The Bailiff. Mr. Fred Kitchen, the chief comedian, is supported by a capable company, and his latest creation is, without doubt, one of the funniest, and a more amusing and cleverly-rendered impersonation it would be hard to discover. Joe O'Gorman, raconteur, provides an entertaining turn; Ah. Chester sings a good character song; the Bros. Egbert prove a clever and laughable duo of acrobats; and Harry Grey, the Australian comedian, Boyd and Gilfain, in pleasing songs, Millie Payne, the popular low comedy artist, The Lyons Trio of Pantomimists, and a Bioscope exhibition are also on the bill, and help towards its success.

THE PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—The management are keeping up their reputation for a varied and free performance. Premier position on the programme is undoubtedly given to Clito in a series of representations of sculptural art. This week's musical farce is A King for a Day, amusingly presented by Mr. Sydney Dooley and Mr. Chas. Seymour's company. Mr. Bert Atherton as Septimus Tupper and Mr. Will Letters as the famous sculptor Signor Carrara cause endless merriment. Lillie Soutter, a favourite character comedienne, Messrs. Dale and Vale, in a clever vocal and dancing speciality, Cullen, Carthy, and Little Cluley, entertaining comedians, Emmie Ames, in her latest success Emmie's Christmas Tree, Harry Bancroft, actor vocalist, and the Bio-Tableaux, with interesting pictures, are all attractive features of a good entertainment.

CARLISLE.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The last visit of the Trip to the Highlands company created such a favourable impression that the house was packed in every part on Monday night to welcome them on their return visit, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. The principal parts are almost all in the same hands as on their last appearance. Mr. Wal Croft is even more successful than before as a Scotch comedian, and Miss Isa Bowman again delights her audience by her versatile acting, charming vocalism, and dainty dancing. Mr. Frank Barclay has a fine voice, which he uses to every advantage in several popular numbers. Miss Nellie Brodelle, Miss Clara Moore, Mr. Harry A. Gribbes, Mr. Willie Scott, Mr. Wellesby Smith, and Mr. James Somerville are clever representatives of their respective characters, and numerous minor parts are capably filled. The piece is again beautifully staged.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. B. Nicholls.—Jack Lorimer, the clever Scotch comedian, is the star turn this week; Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, create quite a sensation; the Norman and Leonard Trio are paying a return visit; another favourite on a return visit is Helen Martin, a charming ballad vocalist; Kent and Keith, in a funny act, keep the audience convulsed; Prince Kuroki, Japanese magician, is smart; Stella Stahl is a dainty dancer; and the Pepiscope has some excellent films.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—Mr. Percy Norman's company, under the personal supervision of the author, Mr. A. B. Mackay, is here in a new military drama, A Woman Worth Winning. Mr.

CORK.—Opera House.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Victor Newman, who remains over from last week, appears with success in several Shakespearean and Dickens sketches; the comic element is well sustained by Mark Henton; Bella White is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Florrie Elliott renders illustrated songs in pleasing style; Fred Mac contributes character songs and recitations; Beatrice Varley is a descriptive vocalist of merit; the Three Zaros are a clever set of comedy acrobats; and a Bioscope entertainment is very much enjoyed.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The programme is one of the best ever seen here, and includes the Allans, skilful musical artists; Hurman is a clever juggler; May Moore Duprez, the Jolly Dutch Girl, contributes some capital songs and dances; Mahatma is a marvellous second-sight artist; Denby and Dent are a pair of comedians whose songs and dialogue are of high order; the Four Berlin Belles give a good singing and dancing turn; Satsuma is an illusionist whose feats are mystifying; and the Saxon Trio of weight lifters perform prodigious feats of strength.

COVENTRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Bennett.—The new Chinese comic opera See-See is being produced here, and receives a hearty reception. The chorus is a well-trained one, and some of the musical numbers were well received. Mr. Colin Coop soon established himself a favourite as the old Chinese merchant Cheoo; Mr. Edmund Sherass ably represents the ardent Yen; Mr. Bertie Wright fairly revels in the part of Nang Kee; and Mr. J. W. Manning is successful as Hoang Wang. Miss Dorothy Chard, a delightful actress, gives a clever rendering of See-See, and Miss Lilian Pollard is seen to advantage as So-Hee, proving herself a very capable dancer.

Hippodrome Theatre. — Manager, Mr. Lennox Barry.—The chief attraction this week is a dramatic episode, The Unwritten Law, by Mr. John Lawson's company, the leading part being taken by Miss Buena Bent, and supported by the original West-end company. The piece is full of exciting incidents. A very good acrobatic performance is given by the Three Panamas; the Four Cecilians are fine dancers; and a laughable absurdity, entitled Slavsys, by the Elvio Trio, keeps the people amused. Other artists are Horace Wheatley, a clever comedian; Austin and Cowan, vocal entertainers; The Maples, comedy artists; and Arthur Elvy, a sporting comedian. The Hipposcope pictures are excellent.

The Empire.—Proprietor, Mr.• Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—Peggy Pryde gives a couple of songs which are received with great enthusiasm; The Lukushimas give a marvellous exhibition of feet balancing, the Lady Otara San being very clever; G. H. Elliott, the chocolate-coloured coon, is well received, both for his singing and his clever dancing; Belloni's Cockatoos do marvellous tricks; Maud Sinclair is successful as a ventriloquist; the O'Gorman Bros. are a couple of capable comedians and dancers; Lilian Lowe is a pleasing vocalist; and the Bioscope pictures conclude a varied bill.

CROYDON. — Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—The Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company is appearing here this week to crowded houses, the excellent répertoire consisting of Tannhäuser, Il Trovatore, Lohengrin, Carmen, Faust, Othello, and The Merry Wives of Windsor. In the first-named on Monday Herr Julius Walther was in fine form, and gave an artistic and expressive rendering of Tannhäuser; Mr. Dillon Shallard played with studied accuracy and dramatic effect in the rôle of Wolfram; Mr. Arthur Winckworth submitted a scholarly impersonation of the character of the Landgrave; Mr. Alec Richard sang with power as Biterolf; Mr. C. Brierley enacted Reinmar in the best possible manner; Mr. Albert Felton was quite up to the mark as Schrieber; and Mr. William O'Connor did full justice to the rôle of Walther. Miss Grace Nicoll fairly eclipsed herself as Elizabeth, acting and singing with delicacy and the skill of an accomplished artist; Miss Amy Rolda was seen to considerable advantage as Venus; and Miss Annie Walker made the most of her opportunities in the character of the Shepherd Boy. The operas are being mounted in an exceptionally creditable manner; and the principals are supported by a chorus and orchestra which deserve warm praise.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James.—Mr. James Willard's company, In the Shadow of Night, is here this week. Mr. George Harvey as John Allington plays powerfully; Mr. H. Dobell Lyle is a worthy representative of Gordon Allington; Mr. Charles Clifford submits a good portrayal of Clifford Yorke; Mr. William Hayward figures prominently as Jake Grudgewell; Mr. James Ingledew represents James Woodstock in a telling manner; and Mr. Cecil Raymond plays the dual rôles of Joe Jackson and the Rev. Nathaniel Hope in excellent style. Miss Pryllis French as Bob is received with favour; Miss Nina Westerleigh as Violet Kingston does well; and Miss Tina Shaw ably sustains the part of Molly Woodstock.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. J. W. Turner's Opera Company hold the boards this week. Maritana was the opening opera on Monday. Mr. Turner as Don Cæsar de Bazan still sings with power; Mr. John Ridding as Don José is capable in the part; Mr. Tom Griffiths makes a good King of Spain; Miss Christine Gomez as Maritana is interesting; and Miss Jessie Dennis, in the part of Lazarillo, does well. Il Trovatore, Faust, The Bohemian Girl, and The Daughter of the Regiment are also in the week's répertoire.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Hippodrome Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—A good bill is here this week, headed by Sahib Gustave Fasola, an exponent of Indian magic, who is amazingly clever; Miss Daisy James sings three songs in a most pleasing manner; Ryan and Hall, funny acrobats, give a clever performance; Miss Ruby Dahl and her manikins submit an enjoyable turn; Arthur Gill is a yokel of many voices; Gus Merriman is clever as a trick musician; the Lannons excel as pedestal dancers; and a pleasant evening concludes with the Pepiscope, with latest pictures.

DARWEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is here this week with The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Mr. Charles Whitlock gives an effective rendering of the Rev. Robert Everton; Mr. Edward Lloyd is a capital Jack England; Captain Geoffrey Cavershame's villainies are well portrayed by Mr. Frank Adair; Mr. Monson Thorpe is a capable Detective Weathersby; and Mr. George Mitchell is well suited as James Sutton. Miss Ethel Bracewell is excellent in the title-rôle; Miss Lydia Mannington ably sustains Marian Franklin; and Miss Joan Ellis is a pleasing Rose Seymour. The comedy is well served up by Mr. Geo. H. Asquin as Dick Punch and Miss Nell Burton as Lucy Vere.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley.—After a highly successful variety season, this house on Monday resumed its career as a legitimate theatre, Mr. Geo. Dance's principal company presenting The Catch of the Season. Miss Moya Mannering as Angela is a charming vocalist and a dainty dancer; Mr. Frank Lincoln as the Duke shows considerable versatility; Mr. Tom Shelford in the character of Lord Dundreary is responsible for fun; a capital part capitally played is that of Bucket by Master Peter Grata; Mr. John Wigley is entirely satisfactory as Sir John Crystal; and Mr. Franklin Miles acquits himself well as Mr. Gibson. The Hon. Honoria Bedford is admirably played by Miss Doris Greville, who sings pleasantly; Miss Muff Carew as the Hon. Sophia Bedford is highly praiseworthy; Lady Crystal is well accounted for by Miss Ernestine Walter; and Miss Louise Bentley figures successfully as the Duchess of St. Jermyns. As Lady Caterham Miss Mellon is to be heartily congratulated; Miss Irene Averill dances prettily; and Miss May Vane merits honourable mention for her song.

Palace.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—As will be seen on reference to our "Variety Gossip" column, this popular hall reopened on Monday night after having been closed for a season in order that it might undergo a thorough renovation. The star turn is provided by J. Gar Kiddie and company, in a pantomimical farce, entitled The House of Tinn. The sketch is exceedingly funny, and is heartily appreciated. F. V. St. Clair, versatile vocalist, is again to the fore with his catchy popular ditties; Maude Mortimer is a charming and clever burlesque actress; Tom Moore a smart comedian and mimic; Sibb and Sibb are to be commended on their gymnastic turn; Canard, described as the man on time, provokes much mirth; Las Sados are first-class jugglers and equilibrists; and the Bioscope adds in no small way to a good all-round programme.

DEVONPORT.—Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—A sensational comedy-drama, entitled The Plucky Nipper, occupies the boards this week. Miss Bonwin Carter undertakes the name-rôle, and is warmly applauded for her clever acting; Mr. Edward Surrey makes an admirable villain; Mr. C. Wilson is diverting as a soldier; Mr. F. W. Lowther is a stalwart Captain Leslie; and Mr. H. J. Butler deserves particular mention for his ability. The play is interspersed with some tuneful vocal numbers.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The Blue Moon is being given here by Mr. Mouillot's company. Chandra Nil, coy and demure, has a pretty and picturesque exponent in Miss Nellie Lomas. As Private Charlie Taylor Mr. Chas. Stephenson becomes a popular personage. A very clever comedienne is Miss May Audrey as Milicent Leroy. Mr. Chas. F. Howard has a character in Captain Jack Ormsby which he portrays with much polish and very naturally. The facetious imposter Moolraj is very effectively presented by Mr. Percy Cahill. Mr. R. Grey plays with much delicate reserve and studied dignity the part of Prince Bndahur; Miss Rose Hélène acts most agreeably as Evelyn Ormsby; and Oma, the saucy charmer and rebel, is charmingly interpreted by Miss Ruth Howe. Bobbie Scott, the journalist, had a capital exponent in Mr. E. E. Stevenson.

DOUGLAS.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, The Grand Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company is here with Robin Hood. Mr. Arthur Whittaker, who has the direction of the tour, has secured a thoroughly responsible company. The title-rôle is capitally sustained by Mr. Ethelbert Edwardes; Friar Tuck is played with quaint humour by Mr. Bruce Winston; Prince John is well interpreted by Mr. Bellenden Clark; Miss Tyffe Alexander's Maid Marian is a Sir Walter Scott living picture; the Little John of Mr. Leslie Rea is admirable.

The Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—Tom Jones, the latest variant of Henry Fielding's great book has come to Douglas this week in musical comedy form. Mr. Robert Courtneidge, with the solitary exception of Mr. Hayden Coffin, presents the same company that appeared at the Apollo. Miss Ruth Vincent is a dainty Sophia; Mr. Dan Roylat a droll Partridge; Mr. Ambrose Manning's Squire Western is quite of the period; the Honour of Miss Carrie Moore is piquant; and Mr. Harry Welchman is a gallant and robust Tom.

The Palace.—Proprietors, The Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—The special function of this week was a complimentary benefit tendered to Mr. Harry Wood, the musical director of the Palace and Derby Castle. This was a great success, because Mr. Wood, as a brilliant composer of dance music and chef d'orchestre, is known to all the Douglas visitors. The programme also at the Palace has quality. Mr. Fred Elton's scena, On Board an Ocean Liner, has novelty and charm. His song, "Mignonette," is whistled and hummed by the crowd. Miss Alice Yorke and Mr. Royston exploit a humorous trifle, entitled A Yacht for Sale; the Cromwells are responsible for a smart juggling turn; Miss Madge Grey increases in popularity with her artistic mimicry; Silvo is a musician who plays on many instruments; Mr. Alec Kendal arouses laughter with his clever "patter"; Dome, the clay modeller, is also an attraction.

DOVER.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart and company fill the bill at this theatre for the week in Sherlock Holmes. The name-part is played earnestly and in the most finished manner by Mr. Stewart; Miss A. Bruce Joy's acting as Alice Faulkner is charming and powerful; Miss Celia Gordon possesses all the force and energy required for the strenuous rôle of Madge Larrabee; James Larrabee has an excellent exponent in Mr. Roy Milton; Mr. H. Ryeland Leigh as Professor Moriarty conveys an accurate impression of the sinister intentions of the criminal; and Mr. Norman B. Cannon is to be praised for his tastful handling of John Forman; Mr. Douglas G. Murray acts pleasantly as Dr. Watson; Mr. Selton Bernard individualises the rôle of Sydney Prince; and Mr. Henry Littlejohn is an impressive Sir Edward Leighton. Miss Beatrice Egerton is a dainty Thérèse.

The Pavilion, Promenade Pier.—Lessess, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—A hearty welcome was given on Monday to the Scarlet "Mr. E.'s" and their Jester by a crowded house.

Town Hall.—Raku, the Japanese wrestler, who is here this week with a company of artists, certainly succeeds in making his demonstrations of the art of self-defence most interesting. Miss Cissie Harcourt, soubrette, has a pleasing style, and Mr. Charles Cardle is a good gipsy baritone. A sensational bicycle act is given by Blanch and Diacoff, and Lulu and Dorothy are capable xylophone players. The Comets, who submit a smart performance, and Mr. Arthur Stafford, pianist, complete the programme.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. William Mollison, supported by Miss Evelyn McNay and company, is the attraction here this week. On Monday evening Macbeth was presented before a large and appreciative audience. In the title-rôle, Mr. William Mollison acted with great force and convincing sincerity; and Miss Evelyn McNay displayed marked ability in the rôle of Lady Macbeth. Praise is due to Mr. William Calvert for his Macduff and Mr. W. A. Mackersaff was well suited as Duncan. Banquo had an excellent exponent in Mr. H. Worrall; and the parts of Malcolm and Donalbain were successfully played by Mr. Henry Deas and Miss Jeanie Fitzgerald. On Tuesday evening The Merchant of Venice was presented. The Bonnie Brier Bush, As You Like It, and Hamlet are also billed.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mrs. Russ Whytall and company in Clancarty occupy the boards here this week. Mrs. Russ Whytall makes a most attractive and interesting Clancarty; Mr. Acton Bond's Lord Clancarty displays genuine histrionic ability; Miss Mabel Knowles's Lady Betty is productive of considerable amusement; Mr. Stratton Rodney submits an effective portrayal of King William; Miss Ethel Wallace enacts Princess Anne in a pleasing manner; Mr. J. J. Bartlett does excellent work as Lord Spencer; Miss Ninon Dudley makes a capital Susannah; Mr. Charles Combe gives a fine rendering of the part of the Earl of Portland; Miss Henrietta Yule is seen to advantage as Mother Hunt; and Lord Woodstock is well played by Mr. Arthur Burne.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Miss Ella Shields, the popular coon vocalist, tops a good bill here; Brown and Le Clerq, in their sketch, Black Justice, keep the house in roars of laughter; Joe Mac is a clever comedian and dancer; amusement is found in Vernando's ventriloquial turn; and Rosa Loader's piano sketches are much enjoyed. The Jackson Family, in a refined musical act, are the recipients of loud applause; and some capital feats of jumping are performed by Charles Wilson. The Cape Girls, vocalists and dancers, are warmly recalled; and the Empire pictures complete the bill.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Occupying the top line here are James Mooney and Ida Holbein, who make a decided hit with their vocal entertainment. Quite the latest thing in gymnaste is submitted by the Rio Brothers; Picitt and Lozette, in their sketch, The Crazy Cook, win applause; as does also Zanfretta and Napio, musical eccentrics; the Sisters Brenton are seen to advantage in a singing and dancing act; Carl Rosine makes a good impression as a magician; Nellie Gannon is a pleasing descriptive vocalist; Harry Wright is a capital extempore vocalist; and Miss Peggy Fame gains favour as a comedienne and dancer. The latest pictures are shown on the bioscope.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Dudley playgoers have been taken by storm this week by the powerful representation of Claudian by Mr. Wm. Maclaren and a company of exceptional merit. The play is magnificently staged, a series of thrills culminating at the close of the second act in a clever exhibition of stage machinery. Mr. Maclaren, in the title-rôle, enthralled his audience by his clever and cultured rendering, and Miss Lily C. Bandman (Mrs. Maclaren) displayed ability of a high order as Almida, her performance of a difficult part being admirable. The two principals were repeatedly called before the curtain. Mr. F. Owen Chambers, as Sharlogalus, acted in forcible style; Mr. Charles T. Chaloner is exceptionally clever and amusing as Belos; while Mr. Douglas Earle makes a typical Blacksmith of Agazil. Miss Maud Garth is graceful and pleasing as Edessa.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Peberdy.—Elmo and Rigo, eccentric acrobats, are at the head of affairs this week with a clever and amusing performance; Lambert and Glover, comedy vocal duo, are responsible for a very pleasing turn; Martinett and Wallis, comedy musical team, met with a capital reception; Ruby Lester is an excellent comedienne and mimic; the Currie Trio, vocalists and dancers, are responsible for a good turn; as also are the Sisters Hart. A favourite turn is that of Beatrice Lane, a comedienne with popular songs and a pleasing voice. The Empire Pictures conclude an excellent programme.

DUMFRIES. — Theatre Royal. — Mrs. Ann Hughes' company was here for the first three nights of the week with The Young Lieutenant. Mr. Edwin Sykes made a capital Admiral Sir Stoke Newington; Mr. Leslie Hawkins was well placed as the First Lieutenant; and Mr. Saxere Granville was admirably adapted to the title-rôle. Miss Hettie Gale was a winsome Nellie Brown, her singing being much appreciated; Miss Kathleen Emmet was very good as Marjoire Mayfair; and Miss Katie Kyrle as Lady Harlington and Miss Ethel Robertson as Lady Evelyn Archer were both excellent, the rest of the company lending good support.

DUNDALK.—Town Hall Theatre.—Under the direction of Mr. Payne Seddon.—We have Mr. Thomas Thorne's company with Our Boys. As Perkin Middlewick Mr. Thomas Thorne keeps the house in a merry mood; Mr. Rex B. Foote is a capital Talbot Champneys; Mr. Ben W. Barnett as Charles Middlewick makes a big hit; Sir Geoffrey in the hands of Mr. Edward S. Petley would be hard to improve upon; Miss Edith Vogue plays Mary Melrose charmingly; and Miss Ruby Loucraine as Violet is very good. Miss Edith Hesketh keeps the fun at high pressure in the part of Belinda.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Proprietors, Robert Arthur Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. William Greet's company pay a welcome return visit here with The Earl and the Girl. As Jim Cheese Mr. Alfred Donohoe sustains the part in a humorous manner; Mr. Robert Hyett as Dick Wargrave is possessed of an excellent voice, and sings and acts with rare effect; Mr. Ernest A. Plumpton as Downham deserves mention for his smart acting; Mr. Roy Sydney sings admirably as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; and Mr. Frank A. Wood imbues the part of A. Bunker Bliss with dramatic energy; Elphin Haye has a sweet representative in Miss Florence Wix, who plays and sings in a delightful manner; Miss Lilian Best is a dainty Daisy Fallowfield, her voice being heard to distinct advantage; Miss Lina Hicks makes a humorous Liza Shoddam, and Miss Beatrice Anderson a stately Mrs. Shimnering Black. The chorus, under the able direction of Mr. W. Stephenson, sings tunefully, and the staging and dressing of the comedy is admirable.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam McIntosh.—The McConnell Trio occupy chief place in this week's bill with their clever vocal comedy sketch; the Kroney Brothers, "London's Lazy Coalmen," submit an acrobatic turn of great merit; Fred Land, comedian, has a cordial reception; Lyster and Cooke, "the musical astronomers," prove their abilities on various musical instruments; Arthur Goodman, in an exceptionally funny juggling act, takes well; the Cosman Couple, comedy artists, are very clever; Adeline Yoble is a sweet ballad vocalist; James Kurry sings some funny songs; Harry Letter, comedian, and Eily Adair, comedienne, are also successful. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope completes a capital programme.

New Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Dicky Clare's company of comedians is here in the musical absurdity, Lucky Liza. Mr. Dickie Clare, in the parts of Silas Slim and the Judge, causes endless laughter; Mr. F. W. Benson and Mr. A. W. Thompson as the two old barristers are very successful; Mr. H. A. Griffiths makes an exceedingly droll Baffins; Mr. Martin Alwyn is clever as Paul Pettitoe; while as Thomkins, the Court Usher, Mr. Bert Collins helps to keep the fun going; Miss Madge Brownie in the name-part acts with vivacity and charm; Miss Vesta Brownie is a piquant Virginia Blatherwick; Marie Pettitoe has a prim representative in Miss Helen Douglas, and Miss Victoria Carman reveals a good voice in the part of Sadie Potts. The clever dancing of the La Belle Trio is a feature of the piece, and the Okito Family, magicians, provide a mystifying magical act.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The romantic drama, When a Man Hates, was presented here on Monday night. Mr. W. G. Arthur as the adventurer, Pietro Danelli, acts with great force and ability; Mr. H. M. King gains the sympathy of the audience as the unfortunate Paul; Mr. F. A. Lester's portrayal of Sir Rupert Treharne is excellent, and Mr. A. P. Leo provides a good character-study as Detective Smart; Miss Mamie Stuart as Olga Gwynne, a woman with a past, is very successful; while Miss Mabel Liston as Lettie does admirably. The humorous element is well looked after by Mr. M. Corri and Miss Jennie Hallworth, and the other parts are capably filled.

EASTBOURNE.—The Pier Pavilion.—Manager Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is appearing here in See-See, and the company, dresses, and staging generally are of the best. Miss Mysie Devine, pretty, sedate, and refined, sings and acts charmingly as See-See; Miss Nina Carton, possessed of a capital contralto voice, does excellently as Mai-Yai; Miss Dorothy Firmin, delightful in face, voice, and figure, does admirable service as Humming-Bird; Miss Gertrude Parker makes a fine boy So-Hie, and is an able dancer; Miss Mora Hersee is eminently satisfactory as Lee, and Miss Nellie Beacon does all that is necessary as Mrs. Hoang Wang; Mr. Tom Nelldon is a tower of strength as Hang Kee, singing very distinctly, dancing gaily, and keeping the fun going generally; Mr. Alec Worcester is possessed of an exceptionally fine voice, and as Yen his work is favourably greeted; Mr. Fred Spitaux is a realistic and effective Hoang Wang, and other parts are in excellent hands. Mlle. Adeline Genee was billed to appear at a special matinée on Thursday.

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day.—Miss Ethel Newman worthily heads the bill here, and in her clever monologue Her Wedding Day displays great talent; the Eight 'Varsity Girls in A Musical Evening give a refined and pleasing show; the Two Bees have an original and highly amusing scena; Wilman has a very attractive musical act; Mr. Harry Lawson is a popular and refined comedian; the Sisters Allen sing and dance nicely, and new pictures are added.

Devonshire Park Theatre. — Proprietors, the Devonshire Park and Bath Co.; Managers, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal are appearing for three nights, and have filled each house. On Tuesday evening A Tight Corner was performed, and the farce thoroughly amused a distinguished audience. Mrs. Kendal in her own charming and delightful manner made the part of Mrs. Hyacynth a complete success, and Mr. Kendal was an easy and natural Jack Hyacynth. Miss Dora Fellowes gave a very able performance as Mrs. Pertwee; Mr. Metcalfe Wood contributed sound and amusing work as Barrington Skews, and Mr. Ernest Hendrie was a distinct and individual Samson Quayle.

EDINBURGH.—Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—In The Prodigal Son, staged here this week by Mr. George D. Day's company, Miss Lily Hall Caine successfully doubles the parts of Thora and Elin; Miss Betty Castle acts convincingly as the unpleasing Helga; and the characters of the two brothers, Oscar and Magnus, are ably differentiated by Mr. Albert Ward and Mr. Oswald Cray. Oscar and Margaret Neilson find sterling exponents in Mr. James Skea and Miss Mima Renouf; Stephen and Anna Magnusson are carefully portrayed by Mr. Lewis Sealy and Miss Isabel Gray; Mr. Robert Forsyth as Doctor Olson, Mr. H. H. Barrington as the Pastor, Mr. R. D. Brooksmith as the Sheriff, Mr. C. Couper as Neils Finsen, and Mr. Cavers Campbell as the Casino director, play their parts well; and the other performers in a long cast do commendable work.

Royal Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The Lady Dandies, with Miss Evie Green vocally and dramatically excellent as Lodoiska, and Mr. Eric Thorne ceaselessly diverting in the part of St. Amour, has provided attractive entertainment here. Other admirable impersonations are the Illyrine of Miss Dolly Castles, the Dorlis of Mr. Talleur Andrews, and the Tournesol of Mr. John Humphries; while good singing and acting mark the rendering of the rôles of Valcourt and Lagorille by Mr. Norman Greene and Mr. Harold Thorley. The song and dance of Mr. A. H. Majilton and Miss Mabel Russell, who play M. and Mme. De Gouttieres, are among the best things in the piece; and the dancing of Miss Vivien Talleur merits the highest praise, a distinction in which orchestra and chorus deservedly share. Mr. Grafton Williams, Mr. George Davies, and Miss Ada Thomas, who appear respectively as Malicorne Ragot and Liane, do their work well, and minor rôles are all capably filled.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—La Milo as Lady Godiva, and in a series of her well-known artistic poses, in conjunction with Cruikshank's lightning caricatures, forms the leading item of this week's bill, which also includes good turns by Harriet Vernon in her latest successes; J. P. Ling, who contributes some excellent imitations of country concerts; and T. E. Dunville, whose appearances are irresistibly amusing. The bioscope shows a most interesting series of pictures of animals, birds, and reptiles in the menagerie at Hamburg; Six Lancashire Lasses sing and give an exhibition of clog-dancing; Ella Retford contributes a smart comedienne turn; Howard and St. Clair appear in their laughable sketch, Do You Want to Buy any Coke? Ted and May Hopkins submit something new in the shape of a Welsh duologue; and Rezene and Robini, comic gymnasts, introduce a knockabout speciality.

King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Muscard.—For the reopening of this spacious house after the summer recess, a variety season commenced on Monday of this week. Foremost in a good bill were Miss Ada Colley, the distinguished American singer, and Mr. Leo Dryden, the actor-vocalist, both of whom secured rapturous encores. Mr. Burt Shepherd contributed a series of very amusing "parodies at the piano," and a clever musical entertainment was contributed in distinctly original style by Sterling and Love; while Miss Olive Myrtle and Miss Edie Cooville both sang and danced very acceptably. The Stowe Brothers performed some remarkable balancing feats; the Saivodos were successful in a good display of trick cycling; Mr. Fred Wilkinson's illusionist scena, in which he was assisted by Miss Sophie Wall, was carried through with great dexterity; and the invariable Bioscope films were more than usually attractive.

Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Ventom Swift.—Excellent entertainment continues to be provided here for full houses. Little Venus is deservedly popular as a character vocalist; among the comedienne artists are Lulu O. Bright and the Sisters Brookland, who give very attractive turns; and the Two Wiltons shine as vocalists and dancers. Cade Burnett, the actor and singer, appears in several of his old and new successes; Barney Noble has a budget of good songs and stories; Crosby and Walker put in some smart comedy patter; Will Doran and company produce a capital farcical absurdity, entitled The Inventors; and the Alhambroscope exhibition is interesting and amusing.

EDMONTON.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Joseph L. S. Moss; Manageress, Mrs. Amelia H. B. Moss.—On Monday Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, the Indian actress, commenced a six nights' engagement with Wep-Ton-No-Mah. In the title-rôle (the Indian Mail-carrier) this lady was particularly good. Mr. C. W. Charles as Colonel Stockton gave a fine rendering; Mr. Edward Leroy was most successful as Manuel Lopes; Mr. A. J. Saunders as Captain Franklin deserved the applause awarded him.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville; J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Baron H. Harriss's company is presenting the musical comedy The Prince of Pilsen here this week before large and appreciative audiences. Mr. Harry Kilburn, as the mistaken Prince of Pilsen, scores the chief success, and whenever he is on the stage he keeps the house in roars of laughter. Mr. Frank Crimp, as the real Prince of Pilsen, takes the audience by storm with his dashing personality, his rich baritone being heard to advantage in his various numbers, especially "A passing cloud," a song written and set to music by himself. Miss Sophie Harriss portrays the part of the widow, Mrs. Crocker, in capital style, her acting and singing being extremely good, and she wears some very pretty dresses. Mr. Bernard Russell, as Lord Shrimpton, is capable; and Miss Connie Leon is excellent as the French maid, being recalled frequently for her dances. Miss Ernestine Desborough ably sustains the part of the Vassar girl; and Mr. T. Lindon Lang and Miss Hazel Saqui are good as Tom and Nellie Wagner respectively.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—That the farcical comedy, Charley's Aunt, has lost none of its fascination for the public was amply demonstrated on Monday evening, when Mr. Brandon Thomas's company opened a three nights' engagement in the presence of a large audience. The part of Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, Bart., was played by the author himself, who acted very nicely, and was cordially received. The chief part was taken by Mr. Spencer Trevor, whose "make-up" and impersonation of the Aunt from Brazil was all that could be desired; his college companions were very well represented by Messrs. Hastings Lynn and Richard B. Mason; Mr. Sydney Compton took the part of Stephen Spettigue with satisfaction; and Mr. David Denard as Brasset was successfully sphinx-like. The ladies were all charming, and included Miss Lena McNaughton, Miss Amy Brandon Thomas, Miss Grace Russell, and Miss Sylvia Morris. The comedy was prettily dressed. The remaining part of the week saw the production of Sunday, in which Miss Nita Faydon appeared in the title-rôle.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Milton Bode's principal company in The Belle of Mayfair was the attraction here the first part of the week. Mr. Haddon Cave acted smartly as the Earl of Mount Highgate; Miss Queenie Ferris played the title-rôle charmingly; Miss Aurélie de Lorière was seen and heard to advantage as the Gibson Girl; Mr. Harry Parker played Sir John Chaldicott in a humorous manner; Miss Agnes Tandy was admirable as the Princess; Pincott was in the capable hands of Miss Veronica Brady, whose singing and dancing won hearty plaudits; Mr. Laurie Lisle was a comical Compte de Perrier; Miss Nellie Cozens left nothing to be desired as Lady Chaldicott; and Mr. Fern Pounds as Raymond Finchley and Mr. Gwyn Alwyn as Hugh Meredith played their respective parts well. Mr. and Mrs. Kendal commenced their annual visit on Thursday.

Leas Pavilion.—Manager and Musical Director, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—The Gipsies and their Jester conclude their visit here this week. All through the entertainments are delightful, their concerted numbers being a special feature.

Victoria Pier.—Manager, Mr. Robert Forsyth.—The Bouncing Dillons head the bill here this week, and perform some difficult feats; Mr. Harry Hemsley is a clever lightning sketch artist and mimic; Whyman, an accomplished roller skater; Miss Mildred Eparne renders a piccolo solo in a really excellent manner; and Miss Zette Handel's ladies' orchestra is a first-class attraction.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—Mr. Russell Norries and company appeared here for three nights last week in the successful comedy, Mr. Smith. Mr. Norrie gave a clever rendering of the title-rôle; the Duke of Angleland was well played by Mr. W. Simmons of Lynn. Herr Anheuser and Ruth had excellent representatives in Mr. Charles Cecil and Miss Mildred Cottell. Miss Gladys Lloyd was a charming Lady Mary; and the rest of the characters were well fitted by Mr. S. Pritchard, C. W. Rogers, Ellis Carlyle, Mrs. Bertha Forrest, and Miss Sophie Lingwood. The scenery and appointments were excellent.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Occupying the leading line here this week is John Lawson and company in the playlet Humanity, which is warmly received; Muir and Bartlett, in the sketch A Collar Stud, cause much merriment; Florence Yayman sings coon songs in a ludicrous make-up; Fine and Hurley, the coster and the dude, are decidedly funny; Henry Cazman has a very entertaining act, termed Le Café Chantant; Dan Conroy, comedian and raconteur; Rosie D'Aulby, comedienne; and the pictures by Vernon's Bioscope make up a good programme.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—A Beautiful Fiend, well portrayed by Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company, occupies the boards here this week. Mr. Oliver Birrell supplies a capital impersonation of Ivan Paulovitch; Count Karoteff is well looked after by Mr. Harry C. Robinson; Mr. Matt Russell presents a polished Sergius Strogoff; Mr. Harry Oates is diverting as Crackles; Miss Sidney Crowe is to be praised for an excellent assumption of the difficult rôle of Wanda; Miss Annie Clunn, in the amusing part of Pattie Woodlands, and Miss Phyllis Brent, who makes a charming Nadine, complete the cast.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphreys.—The second visit here of The Dairymaids has been drawing crowded houses. Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company this time includes Miss Phyllis Dare. Her quiet and charming style, neat dancing, and sweet voice took the fancy of the audience at once, and her success as Peggy was undoubted. Mr. Henry Dent as Joe Mivens and Mr. E. Statham Staples as Sam Brudenell keep the fun going briskly; Miss Edith Blanche makes a stately Lady Brudenell; and Miss Hetty Chapman is duly acidulated as Miss Pyechase. Miss Gay Silvani as Winifred and Miss Beryl Vaudrey as Helene are vocalists of considerable merit. A Glasgow young lady, Miss Cissie Sephton, mak

Eight Lancashire Lads are a great attraction here; Rene is a clever young lady juggler; Major Moss and Son are excellent singers; Ethel Loftus is good in comedy and other songs; while others, of the "sensible" order, are given by Georgina Leonard. The Pasquali Brothers are worthy of the warm reception they get; as a "merry magician," Roy Beavis is well named; two pretty and graceful trapeze artists are Natalie and Diana; the Shakespearean excerpt Clarence's Dream, introduces Albert Wyndham and company in an interesting dramatic scena; and the favourite Scotch comic, Jack Neil, has appeared for Maidie Scott, who was indisposed. The Bioscope American cowboy scenes are worthy of special note. Fine houses are the rule nightly.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Queenie Leighton is the principal attraction here this week, and has a rousing reception; Rhoda Paul, in a musical speciality, The Schoolboy's Dream, is also specially favoured. Other items of interest include Hooker and Davis and Six Cowboy Girls, in songs and dances; Marie Burnett, with illustrated songs; Munroe's Black and White Comedy Team, vocalists and dancers; Chas. Fisher's Pocket Opera Co., in The Music Master; Carina Sisters, instrumentalists; Parker and Parr, Welsh vocal entertainers; Mark Adams and company, in a musical episode, The Wanderer; and the Bioscope, with interesting pictures.

GAIETY, LTD.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Andrew Cowe.—Conan and Doyle, in a singing, dancing, and cross-talk act, please greatly; Leslie H. Murray, in a magic turn, does some clever tricks; and comic songs and eccentric dances well denote the ability of Walter Emerson. Particularly smart is Marie Winsome, in her male attire impersonations; the Two Sparks are very good in speciality duets; in The Fight in the Forge, C. Wordley Hulse and company make a big success. The Bioscope pictures are again good. Capital houses frequent.

BRITANNIA.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—A good programme is attracting large audiences here. Julia Spencer, the Manx Nightingale, had a pleasing reception; Harry Montane, descriptive vocalist, is also well received. The following artists complete the entertainment:—Wee Jessie, clever song and dance artist; A. L. Guthrie, comedian and dancer; Harry English, coon vocalist and dancer; and the American Bioscope, with an amusing series of pictures.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—A welcome change from drama to variety is made this week. Prof. Alex, hypnotist and magnetic healer, submits a clever exposition; Charles Chantry gives a good high pedestal act; the Sisters Vimona sing and dance well; the Attoire, heavy weight juggler, performs some herculean feats of strength; Mr. Chas. Leslie's sketch company, in The New Butler, are cordially received; and the Weimars, elevated wire-walkers, also distinguish themselves by the manipulation of various musical instruments. William Klein, middle-weight champion of Germany, is an adroit wrestler.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Clown Pinta and his troupe of performing geese are here this week; George French again makes a hit with his comic effusions; and a gratifying reception is accorded the Three Dreadnoughts, expert rifle shots. The Paolias, in gymnastic and muscular posing performance, are good; and Ara, Zebra, and Vora present "Indian Pastimes" with success; Rodin, tramp cyclist, is smart; and Adele Lincoln, comedienne and dancer, sings two songs. Mr. N. Delmar, comedian, appears; and Magna, in a series of classical poses, is applauded. Frazer and French, billed as monarchs of the wooden shoe, give a rattling exhibition; and Mr. T. C. Jaques renders a descriptive monologue.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—On Monday Dyson's ever-popular diorama and animated pictures, together with Gipsy Choir and Band, opened to a crowded house. The entertainment throughout is excellent, and the singing above the average.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. George Dance's company is here this week with Miss Hook of Holland. As Mr. Hook, Mr. Fred Winn is drily humorous; Mr. J. T. Bolesworth is a dashing captain, singing with excellent effect; Bandmaster Van Vuyt is capitally represented by Mr. Percy Carr; Mr. Harry Talbot is admirable as Schnapps; Simon Slinks is depicted most amusingly by Mr. Albert Kavanagh; Miss Maggie White is a charming Sally; and Miss Rita Everard as Mina depicts that fascinating Dutch girl with much success.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Geo. Alexander's company is this week presenting John Glayde's Honour for the first time in Yarmouth. As John Glayde, Mr. Philip Cuningham enacts the financier with virile force, earnestness, and energy; and Miss Auriol Lee as Muriel Glayde depicts the weakness and passion of the erring wife with consummate tact. Trevor Lerode is admirably represented by Mr. H. J. Bentley, Mr. Cyril Bevan is excellent as Christopher Branley, and Michael Shurmur is capitally played by Mr. Cyril Cattley. Lady Lerode is amusingly portrayed by Miss Gwynneth Galten; and Miss Beatrice Smith is very successful as the Princesse de Castagnay.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—Wizard Stone, on a motor bicycle, performs astonishing feats in the Globe of Life; the Bros. Leotard provide an amusing and clever turn; Carlo Bianchi gives a wonderful exhibition of foot equilibrism; Bill and Tony arouse plenty of laughter with their eccentric boxing bout; the Sisters Grovini present a good acrobatic turn; the Five Saxonias contribute a clever musical programme; the Debreans give a remarkable display of Japanese juggling. Other artists are well received.
